THIS MAN!

Is not going away. In fact, his hands are so full that he will stay right where he is. So we won't hear from him.

Plainfielders who are going away can have their paper, THE EVENING NEWS, mailed to them at the same rate they are now paying. No extra charge to our subscribers.

We should also be pleased to hear from our readers of information your friends at the pleasant time you are having.

BREVITIES.

—To-night there will be a song service by the W. C. T. U. recoons.

—The farmers have begun their harvesting, and it is claimed that it will be unusually abundant.

—Twenty days more and then those happy Baptist scholars will go to the old delight—Asbury Park and Ocean Grove—and the more that go the happier they will be.

—The Third Street Mission is prospering and those who have it in charge feel much encouraged. The mission will shortly add a library to the Sunday-school.

—The Clipper Quartette, composed of hackmen, went to New Market last night where they will serve in the New Market post. During the Summer they go on those trips once a week.

—Philip Zimmer was in court again this morning to answer to the charge of calling his wife names. Sentence was suspended and Zimmer was advised to go home and behave himself.

—Openbow Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men of Bleecker Heath, held a regular council Thursday night, and elected chiefs. The chiefs will be installed to-night by Grand Sachem A. J. Stiglitz, of this city.

—The near approach of the Fourth of July is indicated by the display of fireworks for sale. Toys are counting up their cash accounts, and estimating just how much fun they can have with the amount of capital they have.

—Edsall says concerning his great removal sale previous to his going into the new Babcock building, that never before in Plainfield has there been offered so many fine staple articles at reduced prices at one sale, as he is now offering. Nearly 200 items are included in the printed list which will be distributed, or can be had at the store.

—Mr. Edward White has given out the contract for excavating the rear basement of his building for another sales room. When it is finished it will give him an extra sales room of 75 feet in length by 30 feet wide. He says this will make his the most complete department store this side of New York. It is not quite six months ago that he built on an extension, 30 by 60 feet to his store, and his business has grown to such proportions in the brief interval that more room is already necessary.

—The "Royal Umbrella Hospital" is the latest thing on Plainfield's street. It is an old-time looking concern and consists of a cart upon which a 5-horse grinder's apparatus has been so arranged that the "hospital doctor" may sit down while he works, getting power from a foot tredle. On top of this concern is an old arm chair for the driver. The "doctor" has a companion in his travels—a dog which sits beside him. Every place the queer looking vehicle stops curious people gather to inspect its workings.

THE "FRIENDS" EXPLAIN.

All Matters in Dispute Have Been Settled in a Friendly Way.

In deference to the wishes of the Society of Friends, the Plainfield newspapers have almost entirely refrained from reference to the legal matters which it was known were under consideration by that society. Erroneous accounts having appeared in certain New York dailies, the Friends have thought best that this brief statement be made.

All matters in dispute have been settled in a friendly way. The property in question consisted of the meeting-houses property near the railway station in Plainfield and similar property in Rahway. These properties and the parsonage lot in Rahway are by the settlement to be released from all adverse claims. The Rahway meeting house property reverted to, being no longer used by the Friends, will be sold and the proceeds will be divided in certain proportions mutually agreed upon, between the Rahway Friends and the Plainfield Friends.

The Rahway Friends have had the legal advice of Corbland Parker and ex-Senator E. A. Tall, and the Plainfield Friends, that of Orrin W. Nash. It is a matter of principle with the Society of Friends to avoid strife and litigation except in case of necessity, and the settlement reached in the present instance is an exemplification of the principle. Suit was not even begun, but an agreement has been reached for the permanent settlement of all claims on both sides.

IS SHE INSANE?

MRS. SAMUEL DOTY ARRESTED THIS MORNING.

She Has Been Trying for a Month Past to get her Husband Sent to the Asylum.—Her Queer Actions This Morning.

For a month past Mrs. Samuel K. Doty of West Fourth street has been trying to get her husband placed in the asylum. Mr. Doty is an old veteran and a member of Wetmore Post, No. 24, G. A. R. He gets a pension from the government and owns a pretty little home on Fourth street.

First Mrs. Doty went to the members of the Post with her tale of woe, telling them that her husband was crazy and that several times he had attempted to kill her. Those to whom she told her story told her to get two doctors to examine her husband and if they decided he was crazy she could have him sent to the asylum. Next Mrs. Doty went to Freeholder Vanderbeek and begged him to have her husband placed in the asylum as she was afraid he would kill her. Doctors, lawyers and police have been visited by Mrs. Doty in her endeavor to get her husband put where he couldn't harm her. The women told so many different stories that doubts were entertained by those who has talked to, relative to her own sanity.

This morning Superintendent Passmore telephoned to Chief of Police Grant that a woman was running around the car house and acting like a crazy person. She would run in front of the cars and several times narrowly escaped being run over.

The wonder proved to be Mrs. Doty. Sergeant Kiely arrested her and took her to the lockup. She was examined by City Physician Simpson who says there is no doubt but that she is insane.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Moore and family of Grove street left yesterday for Asbury Park.

Mr. Freeman and family of East Sixth street have gone away for the Summer.

Lieut. Owens of the Salvation Army left for Jersey City yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Miller, nee Bird, returned last night to Plainfield from their honeymoon.

County Attorney William K. McClure returned last night from a fishing trip in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Belle Hull of Brooklyn is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sharp, of Sixth street.

Mrs. Conklin and Miss MacDonald of East Front street went to the seashore for the Summer.

The Rev. G. H. Murch of New York will occupy the pulpit in the First Baptist church to-morrow evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brower of Park avenue and Fifth street are entertaining friends from Newark to-day.

Mr. A. D. Shepard of East Front street recently purchased a handsome team of gray horses. They are from Kentucky.

Mr. Daniel Manley, an employee of the Food Machine Tool Works, left today with his wife for Worcester, Mass., for a two weeks' visit with his parents.

Miss Edith Hedge of West Seventh street is the guest of her sister Mrs. Parsons, whose beautiful Summer home on the banks of the Delaware river is described as a very enchanting spot.

George Leidy, who played centre field for the Crescents last year, is playing with the Scranton team in the Pennsylvania State League. He is playing a fine game. In Thursday's game with the Harrisburgs, Leidy made one run, three hits and played without an error.

RANDOLPH WENT GUNNING.

But Cottage Place Residents Objected to Being Hunted.

Wednesday night Fred Randolph, colored, caused considerable excitement among residents of Cottage place by running through the street with a gun and threatening to shoot anyone that came within reach.

Policeman Saunders put in an appearance and Randolph ran into his house and closed the doors. The policeman went away.

Yesterday he informed Chief Grant of the matter. The Chief sent Policeman Kiely after Randolph. The servant girl, upon hearing the arrest, locked Randolph in the house.

His wife pleaded hard for the release that the police had him with a 10 fine the evening—but not until the prisoner had signed the pledge and promised not to drink liquor for a year.

A Tin Made of Glass.

Hallock and Davis have on exhibition a four-in-hand tie, made of glass at the World's Fair. It is sea-green in color and feels and looks like silk, but is about three times as heavy.

STILL ANOTHER CHURCH.

SURELY Plainfield is becoming a "City of Churches." There is a church here for almost every denomination, and there are no new additional divine services on the Lord's day cannot too far to excuse the fact that there is no church of their belief here.

The Roman Catholics, Protestants, Episcopal, Catholic, German Reformed, Baptist and colored Baptist churches there will shortly be added a German Lutheran church, the erection of which will soon be commenced.

The congregation has held services in the Warren chapel on Chatham street nearly every Sunday.

The congregation grew so rapidly that the question of building a church was discussed, and it was finally decided to build provided a desirable location could be secured.

This morning Mr. James F. Smith of Somerset street deeded to the church people the lot corner of Mercer, Grove and Grove street. The price paid was $1,000.

COUNTY BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

The Union County Board of Freeholders met at Elizabeth in adjourned session Thursday afternoon. There was considerable business transacted, but mostly of a routine character.

The committee appointed to examine the bridge on Springfield avenue, in Springfield township, recommended that a new iron truss bridge be built at a cost not exceeding $1,200. The recommendation was adopted.

At the request of the Directors a special committee met with a committee from Morris county to examine the bridge over the Passaic river between New Providence and Liberty Corner, and they recommended that a new iron truss bridge be built at an expense to Union county of $1,000.

The recommendation was adopted, and a committee, on resolution of Mr. Bagley, was appointed to construct the bridge.

The Plainfield Bridge Committee reported that they met with the Somerset county representatives, and it was agreed to recommend the construction of a new iron bridge over Green Brook, on the present site, at a cost to Union county of not more than $1,800. It was also agreed to replank another Plainfield bridge, and to recommend that a new bridge be built over Cedar Brook.

The report was received and the recommendations therein adopted.

On motion of Mr. Moore the Director and County Attorney were authorized to execute the contract with the Central Railroad Company for the construction of the new bridge over the Elizabeth river at South Front street.

Mr. Hunt offered a resolution that a committee of five be appointed to report on the advisability of extending the bridge on Eastman avenue over the Rahway river in Cranford township. The resolution was adopted and the committee appointed.

On resolution of Mr. Swain the Mountain Water Co. of Summit were notified to grade a road in the township which they had torn up for pipes some time ago. The repair to be completed within ten days, or to be done by the county at the expense of the company.

On resolution of Mr. Donohue the Director was empowered to execute the agreement with the Old Colony Land Company in accordance with petition submitted to the Board in February last.

A New State Cycling Record.

Antonia Drane, of the New Brunswick Bicycle Club, has established a new State record for the longest bicycle run in twenty-four hours. He covered 320 miles, beating the best previous record of 300 miles, made by F. L. G. Martin, of Plainfield. Drane covered Grant street, Metuchen and dirt roads between New Brunswick, Metuchen, Plainfield, Elizabeth, Springfield and return. Evans' riding time was nineteen hours. The cyclometer registered just 320 miles when he finished and the measurement of the distance between the several points tallied, so there is no doubt of the accuracy of the distance.

Chief Carney will Wield the Gavel.

The Chiefs of Minnetonone Tribe, No. 118, Independent Order of Red Men held no election last night in their hall on East Front street, and as a result Chief Carney of Section will wield the gavel for the coming term. The officers elected are as follows:

Prophet—William A. Westphal.
Sachem—John H. Carney.
Senior Sagamore—Charles Rohstein.
Junior Sagamore—Joseph W. Wyckoff.

A Growing Society.

A regular weekly meeting of the Young People's Society for Christian Endeavor of the First Baptist church was held in the lecture room of the church last evening. The meeting was well attended and a lively interest taken in the meeting. A number of new members were taken in and the society is growing rapidly. The meeting was led by Mr. George E. Bachelor.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Evolution of the Lecture.

Editor Charles Dudley Warner contributes to Harper's Monthly an entertaining dissertation on the transformations that have taken place in the popular lecture since it first started on its gambols. It originated of course in New England. The Puritans were accustomed to meet for a "midweek lecture." The evening lecture, popular for many years, was an attempt to instruct as well as reform the outside sinners who could not be held by the old fashioned sermon. Accordingly the lecture was and still is often given in churches. Frequently it is accompanied by stereopticon views. This, however, was the second stage in the evolution of the lecture. In its early days it was merely an essay, often learned and scholarly, sometimes otherwise, and it was read in a dignified manner, without attempt at humor. This was realising literally the idea of instruction.

But the age became more giddy. It finally voted the instructive lecture as great a bore as the old fashioned sermon and clamored for amusement. Then the lecture evolved into a sort of variety show, with music, recitation and magic lantern pictures. This ousted the real lecture, but it would not be killed. It specialized itself, and the professor who had something particular to say about art, science, hygiene, the industries, etc., won a field anew, though not so extensive as the old one had been. One thing Mr. Warner does not say, however, and that is that as long as there are speakers who are eloquent and magnetic just so long will the world be glad to hear them lecture, and they can earn goodly sums of money.

Mr. Warner thinks the lecture of the future will be more in the nature of a brilliant talk about some subject of which the speaker is full. In brief, the new demand of an audience on a lecturer will be spontaneity. He may and should prepare his subject carefully and con it over, so as to be familiar with its headings, but if he can train himself to let his spoken words be those that come to him at the moment, like new struck coins, he will chain the attention of his hearers as a speaker can do in no other way. This will require a peculiar talent and much hard work and practice; but, in the words of Mr. Warner, "is there any reason why a man who is not able should lecture?" Not if we know it.

Suicide Time.

An eastern daily records the suicide of nine persons in one day within a radius of a few hundred miles. All were men, and three of them killed themselves because they had embezzled funds intrusted to their care in business.

It has been observed that most of the suicides occur in the hottest season of the year, when men's brains are broiled and their blood frenzied with the heat. Many of those who thus put themselves out of the world are leading members of society and of church in their respective neighborhoods. It is evident that Christianity had no hold on their minds, or they would not have dared to take away the lives that had been given them to make a wise use of.

In the old Greek mythology it was taught that suicides wandered on the shores of the river Styx 300 years before they were allowed to cross. They flitted hither and thither, homesick shades, belonging neither to this world nor the next. It is the oriental belief that the man who kills himself must hover disconsolate about the scene of his earthly life till the natural term of his existence here expires. It certainly seems that if there is any hereafter the individual who cowardly shuffles out before his time is done his work will have to undergo some dread purgation ere he can join the spirits that departed peacefully when their time was up. If one has done a wrong on earth, this earth is the place to right it. If one has been wretchedly unhappy, unsuccessful and disappointed in his cherished earthly hopes, this world is not the next, is the place for one to buckle on his armor valiantly and fight straight through all troubles. Every determined soul can do it.

Extracts from European papers in reference to the World's fair show an ill concealed hostility to us on the part of nearly all the writers, from the solemn editors down to the wretched fake correspondents who lie about the fair persistently and shamefully just because they believe it will please their European readers. Well, it is not to be wondered at. We are a republic—a great, rich and successful one at that. We draw away from Europe besides its best and pluckiest manhood and womanhood. For these crimes we cannot be forgiven.

The drowning season is on in full terror. Men, women and children lose their lives on the water every day. And nine hundred and ninety-nine out of every thousand of them could save themselves if they had only learned to swim.

Learn President Cleveland's philosophy. A correspondent says of him, "He has learned to take things as they come and not to worry about the anxieties and disappointments of other people."

If the socialist revolution of opinion goes on in Germany awhile longer, it will mean the overthrow of the Hohenzollern dynasty, and nothing can save it.

AN EARLY CALL.

Congress Will Be Convened on August 7.

SILVER AGT REPEAL URGED.

The President Issues the Proclamation and Marries Away to Gray Gables—Action of the Indian Government Said to Have Caused the Desertion—New York Sunbury Post Easier — Ex-President Harrison Comments on the Call—The News Comes Unexpectedly In All Quarters.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The decision of the president to call an extra session of congress on Aug. 7 was arrived at after an earnest cabinet meeting. The news was received with much surprise. The text of the president's proclamation is as follows:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, June 30, 1893.

Whereas, The existence and imminence of an alarming financial situation, which pervades all business circles, have already caused great loss and disaster to our people, and threaten to cripple our merchants, stop the wheels of the manufactories, bring distress and privation to the farmers and withhold from our working men the wage of labor; and

Whereas, The present perilous condition is largely the result of a financial policy which the executive branch of the government finds embedded in unwise laws which must be enacted or speedily repealed; and

Now, therefore, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, in pursuance of a constitutional duty, do by this proclamation declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the convening of both houses of the congress of the United States at the capitol in the city of Washington on the 7th day of August next at 12 o'clock noon to the end that the people may be relieved through legislation from present and impending danger and distress.

All persons entitled to act as members of the Fifty-third congress are required to take notice of this proclamation and attend at the time and place above stated.

Given under my hand and the seal of the United States at the city of Washington on the 30th day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and seventeenth.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

The president had left directions for the issuance of this proclamation before his departure for Gray Gables. The determination to call the extra session the first week in August instead of the first week in September, it is understood, was only definitely arrived at at the cabinet session after giving full weight to the numerous telegrams received from all parts of the country urging this course.

Sherman Law's Repeal Assured.

Another consideration which caused the president to change his mind was forcibly owed in the remark made by one of his cabinet officers two days ago, that if the president received reasonable assurance that there was a likelihood of a prompt repeal of the so called Sherman silver purchase law, he might be disposed to call congress together earlier than he had announced.

It is inferred from the fact that the president has done so that he considers he has obtained the assurances he desired.

The president will be absent from the capital three weeks or more, his stay depending on circumstances. Secretary Lamont accompanied the president as far as New York. The president's determination to leave the city was only reached this morning, and his departure so suddenly leaves a number of appointments agreed upon and many senators and congressmen, who have recently arrived, in the lurch.

It is understood that the president will transact all of the most urgent public business while Buzzard's Bay, and what official announcements are to be made will be given out at the executive mansion in Washington.

India's Action Forced the Session.

The plain facts appear to be that the disturbances of values arising from the uncertainties of the situation grew so alarming that Mr. Cleveland was compelled at last to acknowledge that the "unexpected contingencies necessitating an earlier meeting of congress," which he spoke of in his celebrated interview of June 5 had arrived.

The action of the British government in India brought matters to a crisis. Previous to that startling news Mr. Cleveland had manifested a firm determination to adhere to his plan of calling congress on Sept. 1. After the suspension of the coinage in India the president declined to speak further about his intentions until he should be prepared to act, and each of his cabinet officers maintained similar silence.

It may be stated, however, without violation of confidence that from the day when the announcement of the action of India was made the president took steps to keep himself forewarned through the press dispatches of the slightest approach of panic in the money markets, prepared at any moment to take the course which he has now adopted if it seemed to him that his so doing would have a tendency to allay alarm and restore public confidence.

When yesterday he found telegrams on his table not only from the eastern and middle states, but also from the south and even from some of the silver states of the northwest urging that congress be called together at the earliest day possible to end the uncertainty, he determined to delay no longer.

But even in taking this action the president took steps as far as he could to prevent its being known before the Stock Exchange closed, so as to avoid any appearance of exercising undue influence on the money market.

The effect of the announcement upon senators and representatives in the city was very marked. Senator Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee, first knew of the president's act when informed by a reporter. He was not surprised.

"I feel being the case," said the senator, "it will not be long until we are again at work. In connection as congress has to deal with this subject, it is well that we get about it, and the sooner the better. I do not know that congress can or will bring relief to the country, but it is certainly its duty to make the effort, and there is no wisdom in delay. The condition of the country certainly, to my mind, demands very prompt and decisive action, especially in view of the fact that everybody seems to be depending upon congress for a solution of our financial troubles."

NEW YORK, July 1.—When President Cleveland's action in calling an extra session of congress for Aug. 7 next, 30 days ahead of the time generally expected, was a decided surprise in financial circles. At first the report was ascribed for the reason that ever since the crisis in the silver and money markets there have been almost hourly rumors about an extra session. The reports have been denied time and time again, and Wall street became so set in its opinion that even when it was definitely announced that the president had called the session the correctness of the advices was questioned. When finally bankers and stock operators were convinced, there was a decided feeling of relief, and the concensus of opinion was that the tendency of financial and commercial affairs would henceforth be in the direction of improvement.

Silver Conference to be Held.

NEW YORK, July 1.—General A. J. Warner, president of the Bimetallic league, came on from Washington and held a conference with Senator John P. Jones of Nevada. In consequence of the announcement that congress will hold an extra session on Aug. 7, they decided to call a convention of the Bimetallic league to be held some time prior to the date fixed for the extra session. A date about the middle of July will probably be selected. No place for the convention has yet been agreed upon, but both Chicago and St. Louis were mentioned, and General Warner said that he favored the latter.

Lizzie Borden's New Home.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 1.—Misses Lizzie A. and Emma L. Borden have purchased a new home, the old Second street residence of Hon. Jonathan Bourne, for them. Their agent purchased what is known as the Butterworth mansion, on High street, and it is a large house, and is said to be the most fashionable position in the city, known as "The Hill." The price is not known, but it is in the neighborhood of $15,000. James Butterworth, the husband of the seller of this property committed suicide a year ago last April by hanging himself. The removal from the present home of the Misses Borden was early date and the place offered for sale.

Two New Men Take Charge.

NEW YORK, July 1.—In the postmaster's room in the Federal building a double reception was held, the incoming postmaster, Charles W. Dayton, being congratulated by a number of his friends, and the outgoing postmaster, Cornelius Van Cott, receiving many handshakes and kind expression from those who had been under him for four years.

Want Funds For Sherman's Monument.

ST. PAUL, July 1.—A movement to secure funds with which to erect a monument in memory of the late General W. T. Sherman has made slow progress. The chairman of the committee having the matter in charge was authorized to issue a circular to the Grand Army throughout the country calling for contributions to the fund.

Received the Germans Well.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The postoffice department received an authoritative denial of the story sent from Chicago to the effect that the reception given the German postal service had been discourteously received by Postmaster General Bissell and his officials while in Washington.

The Closure Bet For July 31.

LONDON, July 1.—In the house of commons Mr. Gladstone's announced that the home rule bill shall be reported by July 31 and shall be closured in four sections was carried by a vote of 299 to 267.

The Colonels Want the Wasp.

PROVIDENCE, July 1.—The Herreshoffs boats Colonia and Wasp had a race down the bay. The Wasp had 200 yards start, but the Colonia caught her in 4½ minutes.

Verezins Sails For Spain.

NEW YORK, July 1.—The Duke of Veragua and party sailed on the La Bretagne early this morning.

Cleveland, accompanied by Secretary of War Lamont, Mrs. Lamont and Miss Lamont, arrived here the party was met at the station in Jersey City by Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, surgeon general of the United States.

"I have nothing at all to say now," the president said. "I have issued a proclamation calling congress together on Aug. 7. In that I have given my reasons for doing so, and that is all there is to it."

When asked where he was going the president said he didn't know. He couldn't say whether he would remain in town or not.

With Colonel Lamont and Dr. Bryant the president entered a coach and drove on to the ferryboat for Cortland street. Mrs. Lamont and her daughter went over by the Debrosses street boat, and went to their home.

On the boat Colonel Lamont got out of his coach and talked with the reporters. He said:

The president has called congress together, and as I do not propose to give my reasons for doing so, and his views on the situation, I am in favor of a repeal of the Sherman silver purchase law. The president is entitled, and the president holds the same opinion on that matter as myself. There have not been any conferences made in New York early yesterday, or opposition to such from silver men to speak of.

"Mr. Cleveland," continued Secretary Lamont, "is going directly on board Mr. Benedict's yacht, Oneida, and will proceed at least three days. Secretary Gresham is on board and they will cruise slowly along the Jersey coast, arriving at Gray Gables Sunday evening or Monday. He will remain there about three weeks. Dr. Bryant will accompany the president to New York until Monday, perhaps longer."

Colonel Lamont said that he knew nothing of any middle of the road movement in Ohio. Hands across the president and New York bankers. It was said that such a conference was to be held, but Colonel Lamont denied it. He said that so far as he knew Secretary Carlisle was not coming to New York.

Harrison on the Extra Session.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Ex-President Harrison, when asked his opinion of President Cleveland's call for an August session of congress, said it was about the only thing Mr. Cleveland could consistently do.

"It is a fatality," said the ex-president, "that the country is in a state of stagnation and that he has a remedy, why the country is ripe for it the silver he will steer himself. If he thinks that he can give the necessary relief, he should have done so then. The city bribed there is not enough money. I think that there is plenty of money, but that people are holding on to what they have got and benefiting by it.

"I am not prepared to say whether I think that an August session of congress will restore confidence, which is said to be necessary. There may be serious obstructions. I cannot tell what may be the extent of Mr. Cleveland's knowledge on the subject, but I know that they would not have repealed the Sherman law for me."

New York Bankers Feel Relieved.

NEW YORK, July 1.—President Cleveland's action in calling an extra session of congress for Aug. 7 next, 30 days ahead of the time generally expected, was a decided surprise in financial circles. At first the report was ascribed for the reason that ever since the crisis in the silver and money markets there have been almost hourly rumors about an extra session. The reports have been denied time and time again, and Wall street became so set in its opinion that even when it was definitely announced that the president had called the session the correctness of the advices was questioned. When finally bankers and stock operators were convinced, there was a decided feeling of relief, and the concensus of opinion was that the tendency of financial and commercial affairs would henceforth be in the direction of improvement.

Silver Conference to be Held.

NEW YORK, July 1.—General A. J. Warner, president of the Bimetallic league, came on from Washington and held a conference with Senator John P. Jones of Nevada. In consequence of the announcement that congress will hold an extra session on Aug. 7, they decided to call a convention of the Bimetallic league to be held some time prior to the date fixed for the extra session. A date about the middle of July will probably be selected. No place for the convention has yet been agreed upon, but both Chicago and St. Louis were mentioned, and General Warner said that he favored the latter.

Lizzie Borden's New Home.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 1.—Misses Lizzie A. and Emma L. Borden have purchased a new home, the old Second street residence of Hon. Jonathan Bourne, for them. Their agent purchased what is known as the Butterworth mansion, on High street, and it is a large house, and is said to be the most fashionable position in the city, known as "The Hill." The price is not known, but it is in the neighborhood of $15,000. James Butterworth, the husband of the seller of this property committed suicide a year ago last April by hanging himself. The removal from the present home of the Misses Borden was early date and the place offered for sale.

Two New Men Take Charge.

NEW YORK, July 1.—In the postmaster's room in the Federal building a double reception was held, the incoming postmaster, Charles W. Dayton, being congratulated by a number of his friends, and the outgoing postmaster, Cornelius Van Cott, receiving many handshakes and kind expression from those who had been under him for four years.

Want Funds For Sherman's Monument.

ST. PAUL, July 1.—A movement to secure funds with which to erect a monument in memory of the late General W. T. Sherman has made slow progress. The chairman of the committee having the matter in charge was authorized to issue a circular to the Grand Army throughout the country calling for contributions to the fund.

Received the Germans Well.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The postoffice department recived an authoritative denial of the story sent from Chicago to the effect that the reception given the German postal service had been discourteously received by Postmaster General Bissell and his officials while in Washington.

The Closure Bet For July 31.

LONDON, July 1.—In the house of commons Mr. Gladstone announced that the home rule bill shall be reported by July 31 and shall be closured in four sections was carried by a vote of 299 to 267.

FRIENDS WERE WITH HIM

PLEURISY CAUSED HIS DEATH.

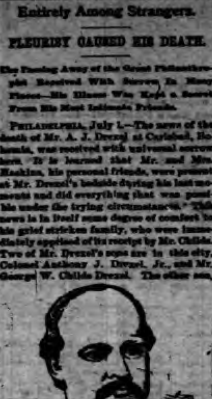
PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—The news of the death of Mr. A. J. Drexel at Carlsbad, Bohemia, was received with universal sorrow here. It is learned that Mr. and Mrs. Hoskins, his personal friends, were present at Mr. Drexel's bedside during his last moments and did everything that was possible under the trying circumstances. This news is in itself some degree of comfort to his grief stricken family, who were immediately apprised of its receipt by Mr. Childs. Two of Mr. Drexel's sons are in this city, Colonel Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., and Mr. George W. Childs Drexel. The other son,



A. J. DREXEL.

Mr. John R. Drexel, is at Bar Harbor, Me., with his wife, and the only surviving daughter, Mrs. John R. Fell, is with her husband at their country seat at Fort Washington, Pa.

It is more than probable that the family will accept the thoughtful offer tendered during the afternoon by Mr. Clement A. Griscom, president of the International Steam Navigation company, of the use of any of the steamships of his line to convey the remains of Mr. A. J. Drexel to this country and to make special arrangements for the accommodation of those who will comprise the funeral escort.

It is stated at the office of Messrs. Drexel & Co. that the death of Mr. Drexel will make no change whatever in the business of Drexel & Co. and will not affect in any material way any of the Drexels' enterprises connected with the firm members. Of course the value of his immense property—real and personal—or its disposition will not be known until his will has been opened and read. The will was made a few months after his interment in the family mausoleum in Woodland cemetery.

His Illness Kept Secret.

His attack of pleurisy and the fact that it had been kept secret explains why he did not leave Carlsbad and also why Drexel & Co. were not notified of his movements. George W. Childs last Saturday received a letter from Mr. Drexel, dated Carlsbad, in which he stated that he was feeling well. Mr. Childs is deeply affected by the sudden death of his lifelong friend.

A monument to the memory of the great financier is the Drexel Institute of Art, Science and Industry in this city, which he founded at a cost of $1,750,000. Herald Mr. Childs founded the Childs-Drexel Home for Union Printers at Colorado Springs. The deceased was born in this city in 1826 in a house which was known as the Public Ledger building now stands.

Mourned at Elberon.

ELBERON, N. J., July 1.—The announcement of the sudden death of Anthony J. Drexel at Carlsbad has caused much surprise here, where he had been a summer cottager for more than 20 years.

Every Sunday while here Mr. Drexel and Mr. George W. Childs would act as ushers at the St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal chapel. After seating the congregation both he and Mr. Childs would collect the offering, which was donated to the poor of this immediate vicinity. Mr. Drexel always gave freely to the poor of this place.

Was It All Typee's Fault?

LONDON, July 1.—The Times' correspondent at Malta says that in spite of the intention placed upon the months of the Victoria disaster, it is now said that Vice Admiral Tryon admitted that the accident was all his fault. The Camperdown had a narrow escape from sinking. When she reached Malta after the accident she was five feet down by the bows. The Camperdown is expected to arrive at Malta on Wednesday next.

The Girl Poisoner Arraigned.

TRENTON, July 1.—Lizzie Stevens, the 15-year-old colored girl charged with attempting to poison the family of Farmer Albert Chamberlin of Hightstown with paris green, was arraigned in the county court. She pleaded not guilty. Lawyers B. H. Hutchinson and George D. Scudder were assigned to look after her interests. She will probably be indicted for attempted murder.

New York Sharpshooters at Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Eighty members of the New York Independent Schuetzen, with 10 ladies, arrived in the city. Today a trial of skill in long range shooting took place at Sharpshooters' park, and this evening there will be a banquet at Lincoln park.

The Falcon to Sail on Sunday.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Lieutenant Peary says that the Falcon will remain at her dock until 6 o'clock Sunday evening, and that she will positively sail at that hour. She will be open to the public until the hour of sailing.

Superintendent Purdon Removed.

LONG ISLAND CITY, July 1.—Sheldon J. Purdon, superintendent of public schools, was removed by the board of education. He was succeeded by J. C. Shull of Hoosic Falls, N. Y.

Hayes Must Serve His Term.

GETTYSBURG VETERANS.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 1.—Dozens of special trains have arrived with veterans who come to take part in the three days' celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg and to dedicate monuments to comrades who perished on the field. Several public boarding houses and private residences in Kinsley filled with people, and thousands of the veterans will find no better accommodations than their blankets afford.

General Sickles with his staff brought two Pullman sleepers and a dining car, in which he will live until Monday. Generals H. W. Slocum and Joseph E. Carr are here. General Josiah Porter of New York will come with Governor Flower this afternoon. Many of the veterans are accompanied by their wives, sons and daughters.

The celebration begins today with a visit to the battlefield and monuments by veterans and their guests and the dedication of new monuments by regiments and batteries.

This evening there will be an illumination of Culp's hill and fireworks. Sunday will be the great day of the celebration. In the morning there will be the reception of General George H Gresse by the brigade on Culp's hill and oration by Major General H. W. Slocum. At 1:30 p. m. there will be a parade of veterans from Center square in the village to the cemetery and battlefield. At 3 o'clock the New York state monument will be dedicated, and addresses will be delivered by General Sickles, Bishop Potter, Governor Flower and Governor Pattison.

On Monday there will be a presentation of medals struck by the state of New York for all of the veterans of the New York regiments and the further dedication of monuments.

LOST WITH A FORTUNE.

HE HAD OVER $100,000 WITH HIM.

Mr. Harrison Was a Passenger on a Norfolk Boat, and He Disappeared Early In the Morning From the Steamer—Fowl Play Hinted At.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Cleora Harrison, 70, a cousin of ex-President Harrison, has mysteriously disappeared. He was last seen on the Old Dominion line steamship Guyandotte. He was a passenger on the vessel bound for this city from Norfolk. Mr. Harrison had in his possession when he boarded the ship $100,000 in money and securities.

Mrs. Mary Oliver, a daughter of Mr. Harrison, who was his traveling companion, does not say that there has been foul play, but she believes the disappearance to be most mysterious, as her father had not an enemy in the world and was of sound mind and health when he took passage at Norfolk on Thursday night.

She claims that the officers of the Guyandotte have not given her proper assistance in clearing up the disappearance of her father.

Seen by a Messenger.

Alexander Brown, a messenger to Purser Carr of the steamship, claims to have seen Mr. Harrison on the upper deck of the vessel at 5 o'clock on Friday morning. She asked to see him, but according to the story she stold last night he was not sent to her.

The officials of the vessel claim that her father, when he boarded the vessel, did not carry the valises containing his securities, while Mrs. Oliver, on the other hand, is certain that he made some arrangements for it, as she spoke to him on the subject after he came on board, and he showed her a check for it.

Mr. Harrison was formerly a carriage manufacturer at East Saginaw, Mich., with branch houses at Jackson and Bay City. Two years ago he sold out and devoted his time to traveling.

When Mrs. Oliver went out to breakfast, her father did not appear. She waited some time and then went to his room. Getting no response to her repeated calls she sent in a steward, but Mr. Harrison could not be found.

She became alarmed and confided her fears to Captain Walker, who ordered the vessel searched, but no trace of the missing man could be found. Mrs. Oliver then examined the stateroom to find her father's money and papers, but they were gone.

HOW YALE CELEBRATED.

A Banquet to the Victorious Crew, The Stadium Was Lit Loose.

NEW HAVEN, July 1.—A royal reception greeted the victorious Yale crew on their arrival here. The train with the eight on board was met by a large and enthusiastic body of New Haveners at the depot. The oarsmen were put on a tallyho, which stood in waiting, and taken to the campus. They were extended a banquet. The coaches were present and responded to toasts. Thousands crowded the streets and made a terrific din with tin horns and firecrackers.

During the celebration, John McGee Ellsworth of Penn Yan, N. Y., had four of the fingers of his right hand blown off by a giant firecracker. He was taken to the hospital, where the members were amputated.

Ex-Postmaster Hart Is Willing.

BOSTON, July 1.—Postmaster Hart states his position in the gubernatorial matter as follows: "If the Republican convention see fit to nominate me for governor, I shall accept the nomination and do all I can properly to get elected."

MANY IDLE MEN.

Closing of Glass Works Throws Out About Thirty Thousand Workers.

PITTSBURG, July 1.—It is probable that there will be about 25,000 or 30,000 idle workers in the Pittsburg district today. All the window, flint and green glass houses close for periods of from five to seven weeks and several plate glass houses have shut down. In case there is no settlement of the iron scale about 10,000 to 15,000 men in the Pittsburg district will be on a strike, and as most of the mills will shut down for repairs, even though there be a settlement, the above estimate will be reached.

The closing of the Tarentum Plate Glass works has thrown out 2,500 men. There are now eight mines which are not running, at which about 2,000 men were employed. Nearly one-half of the ovens in the Connellsville coke region are out of blast, and others are being closed, as contracts expire for over 4,000 workers, so the outlook is for an enforced vacation of the majority of tradesworkers in western Pennsylvania.

PITTSBURG, July 1.—All the iron mills whose employees are members of the Amalgated association, were required to close at midnight last night. The manufacturers and the Amalgated committee failed to reach an agreement on iron wage scale, adjourning until 2 p. m. today. As the old iron wage scale expired at midnight, all members of the association are not to stop work until a new scale is signed.

The tinhouse scale was temporarily settled. The workers asked an advance of 7 cents. This the manufacturers refused, but it was agreed to continue work at last year's figures until a settlement can be reached.

CORNING, N.Y., July 1.—The Democratic county committee of the Second district of the county met at Addison. The Hill-Flower faction was represented by General Austin Lathrop, superintendent of state prisons, and F. D. Backus of Hornellsville. The Cleveland Democracy was led by Edwin S. Walker of Corning, George N. Olcott and De Montville Page of Hornellsville.

At the opening of the convention a majority of the executive committee, who were Hill men, reported that the committee had decided to postpone the convention until September. A minority of the committee, representing the Cleveland faction, reported in favor of the convention proceeding with business, and the minority report was adopted. The Hill men, seven in number, then left the convention, and the remaining 24 (Cleveland men) went on with the usual routine of business.

Captain Jones of the Ranger Shot.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., July 1.—Great excitement was caused throughout Texas over the killing of Captain Frank Jones of the Texas Rangers by Mexican outlaws. A dispatch was received here from Yoletta stating that Captain Jones and a detachment of Rangers were in pursuit of a band of desperate Mexican horse thieves, and were on the Rio Grande trail when he followed them across the Rio Grande river into Mexico. When the thieves reached their native country they made a stand against the Rangers and a fight ensued, in which Captain Jones was shot and killed.

Two Died For One Murder.

MARLBORO, Md., July 1.—William Pinckney and Daniel Barbour, both negroes, were executed for the murder of Francis M. Bowie, a wealthy farmer of Prince George's county, on the evening of March 3 last. When on the scaffold Barbour said: "May God have mercy on you all. I am glad to see you, and I am come up here for the killing of Mr. Bowie. I did not do it, as you have seen." Then Pinckney said: "I am guilty of Bowie's death alone. No one was there when I struck Mr. Bowie. I was led to do it by this man here (Barbour) pointing out the way. The trap was drawn and the men fell simultaneously.

Bad Men Made Plans Do It.

WICHITA, Kan., July 1.—The lone highwayman who attempted to rob the Santa Fe passenger train at Wharton and who was captured by Conductor Hamilton and put in jail here, is a boy only 16 years old. He told the sheriff that he met a gang of four men at Ten Mile Flats in the Chickasaw nation one day and they told him of a scheme to rob the Santa Fe train, and told him that he had to help them under penalty of death.

Knew Who Has the Diamonds.

PROVIDENCE, July 1.—When the custodian of the estate of Mrs. Barnaby made a demand on jewelry and diamonds valued at $15,000, he received a valueless mess of paste and inferior metal. Since then the lawyers for the heirs have been employing skilled detectives, and it is stated that it is now known into whose hands the gems went at various periods of the long chase for the murderer of the widow.

Condemned Government Building.

CHICAGO, July 1.—Citizens of Chicago were officially warned to keep out of the United States building here containing the postoffice, custom house and federal courtrooms. City Building Commissioner Tobin made a personal inspection of the structure and declared it liable to collapse at any moment, the only protection being "thong shields" of iron, which have been put in to strengthen the walls.

Hung a Rewind Murderer.

ATLANTA, July 1.—At Waynesboro George Sumner Rachen, a brutal negro, was hung for the murder of F. M. Frances on April 27. He was working for Frances on a farm when some words arose. The negro struck him with a singletree, leaving him for dead. A few hours afterward he returned to the scene, and finding Frances still alive chopped his head nearly off with a hoe.

Presidential Appointments.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The president made the following appointments:

Thomas J. Wyse, Illinois to be assistant secretary of the treasury.

James F. Tillman of Tennessee to be register of the treasury.

Mexico Reduced Official Salaries.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 1.—The government has decreed deductions of from 5 to 10 per cent in the salaries of public employes and men in the army. The amounts of the deductions have been fixed in bonds. The amount of the reductions will exceed $1,000,000.

The Duke Writes a Magazine Article.

NEW YORK, July 1.—The July number of The North American Review, published today, contains a timely article by the duke. "The Family of Columbus" from the pen of the Duke of Veragua.

"It is the mind that makes the man," said Watts, but modern stales deny this, and give the credit to the tailor. It is questionable, however, if either are right.

TOO MUCH

He Patriotic Citizen Could Stand Such a Disgrace.

"Paint food," he urged as he ambled along beside a Tribune reporter crossing City Hall park, "taint even beer."

Then it's four or five small children, all starving," suggested the reporter.

"No, 'taint."

"Sick wife maybe—sick for two months. No doctor and no medicine. Want a dime to get bath?"

"No, 'taint."

"What is it, then?" asked the reporter, looking with some curiosity at the small and dilapidated individual beside him.

"I have no wife, and I have no children," said the small man mildly, "but my old mother keeps house for me over in Brooklyn."

"Case of mother instead of wife," murmured the reporter.

"And I live in a horrible situation," continued the small man, ignoring the interruption. "As I was about to start for my humble home I suddenly thought of the comet."

"The what?"

"What of it? Why, that comet is 40,000 miles in diameter."

"Well!"

"It has a tail 5,000,000 miles long."

"Suppose it has!"

"Do you realize—why, my dear sir, do you realize," elevated the small man, solemnly removing the pretzel shaped remnant which did duty as a hat, "that that comet is now only 1,000,000 miles away and coming 1,000 miles a second head on for the United States!"

The reporter admitted that the situation was grave.

"If on we," continued the small man earnestly, "there is no telling when the shock may come. I am on my way home, and as I have no money I must walk all the way. Mind, I am not asking for cash, because I never drink beer, and I like to walk, but while that mighty comet is flashing toward us through the realms of space I want to ask you a solemn question."

"Out with it."

"My dear sir, would you be willing—heavens and earth, what a horrible thought!—would you be willing to have an American citizen hit by a foreign comet without consent in his clothes?—New York Tribune.

Science Puzzles

A LUCIFER MATCH PROBLEM

Which Celebrated Architects and Eminent Contractors Have Failed to Solve.

Where, after a friendly dinner, you desire to favor your guests with a little magic at home, you can introduce the problem of the three lucifer matches. With your pocketknife cut one end of a match and trim that of another into a wedge shape. Insert this latter into the split end of the former, so that the two shall form an acute angle. Place them on the table, the angle upward, and prop them up by leaning another match against them, the whole forming a tripod, as shown in the figure.

THE THREE LUCIFER MATCHES.

Now hand a fourth match to one of the company and request him to lift with it the other three from the table. Such is the problem to be solved. The diagram on the left indicates the solution. All that you have to do is to insert the fourth match just inside the point of the tripod between the two conjoined and the single match and with it to press the two joined matches slightly outward till the third falls with its upper end on the one you hold. You lower this till the end of the single match passes within the angle formed by the junctures of the first two. If you then raise the match you hold in your hand, the three others will ride aside upon it—the single match on the one side, the two joined matches on the other. The table used should have a cloth on it, that the lower ends of the matches may not slip. Some little delicacy of handling is needful to make the single incifer fall just in the right position, but this accomplished the three matches thus slightly supported infinitely be carried across the room without any fear of dropping them.

Like most of these little tricks, the thing is easy enough when you are told how it is done, but celebrated architects and contractors skilled in the art of construction have tried it over and over again without meeting with success.

The Eggs of the Bobwhite.

Perhaps no bird in America, certainly no other in Michigan, equals the common bobwhite, or quail, in the number of eggs it will lay upon. This species not infrequently lays 28 eggs, and even more are found in one nest, but I can assure the readers that with my other shaped eggs the bobwhite could never succeed as a successful setter. The bobwhite's egg is triangular and fits in as no other egg, to my knowledge, says Dr. Morris Gibbs in Science. With all birds which lay a good clutch, so far as Dr. Gibbs' observations go, the eggs are deposited in almost an exact circular group. The bird must use excellent judgment in thus arranging them, for it is only by this order that they can all be covered properly. Not infrequently when a grouse is scared from

WHAT GOSSIP SAYS.

NEWS OF CLUBS—DANCES—ENGAGEMENTS.

SHE latest news! Have you heard? No! Well, there are three engagements and a grand time for the Fourth of July, and then so many of our friends are going away.

The engagement is announced of one of the most charming girls in Plainfield society, Miss Annie Corlies, of "Hood's Rooting." The happy man is a Mr. Smith. The young couple met at Old Point Comfort. The gentleman's name is said to be the only common thing about him. He is reported to be young, handsome and worth two million dollars.

Then the many friends of genial Fred Yates of Seventh street are congratulating him. He is a very well liked young man, a good all around athlete, a good business man and also a good society. The other half-to-be is said to be an exceedingly sweet and lovely girl named Miss Cornwall.

Another pleasant surprise is the engagement of Miss Boorman of Washington avenue to Mr. Pond, also of North Plainfield.

There is to be a dance at the Park Club Tuesday evening.

Miss Emily Arnold, of Philadelphia, one of the many charming friends of Miss Minnie Wilson of "Tunlaw," North Plainfield, returned home, Saturday, after a pleasant visit of a few weeks.

There is to be a dance at the Union County Country Club Tuesday night.

Dancing will be enjoyed at Netherwood Hotel, also, on the evening of the Fourth.

There will be a display of fireworks at the Hillside Tennis Club, Netherwood Hotel, Park Club, Casino and on the the Green at Dunellen to-morrow p. m.

Miss Minnie Wilson of North Plainfield will start in a week or so for a few months stay at Cresson Springs.

The "tea" at the Hillside Tennis Club Saturday was the most successful society of any this year. How charming the ladies looked! GOSSIP.

TO HAVE ANOTHER NEW STREET.

The Allen Estate in the Borough to be Cut Up into Building Lots.

City Judge W. A. Coddington, after a year's work, says he has cleared the title on the Allen property on Somerset street by settlement with the heirs, the last being disposed of Saturday, and that a new street is to be opened to Linden avenue, on both sides of the ball grounds, and the whole plot cut up into building lots forthwith. This will throw considerable land upon the market.

BREVITIES.

—The City Common Council will meet to-night.

—The Baptists will go on their excursion to Asbury Park on July 31st.

—John Benford was arrested last night by Policeman Cores. Benford was charged with riding coal trains. He was sent to the county jail for thirty days.

—The circulating department of the Free Public Library will be closed on July 4. Reading room and Art gallery hours are as follows: Reading room, 9 until 12 a. m., 2 until 6 and 7:30 until 9 p. m. Art gallery, 10 until 12 a. m., and 2 until 5 p. m.

—The Honeymoon excursion party is on its way home from Chicago to-day. Reports show perfect weather there and a first-class time in every respect. Some have remained behind, unwilling to leave. They all report by letters that we of the East have no adequate conception of the wonderful buildings and exhibits. Mr. Honeyman starts out again on Friday with his second party.

GLENSIDE PARK.

ONCE KNOWN AS "THE DESERTED VILLAGE."

And now the Home of a Delightful Summer Colony.—It was Founded Five Years Ago by Warren Ackerman.

A delightful place to stay in the State of New Jersey is that known as "The Deserted Village." Originally it was put down on the maps as Prettyville, but it fell into neglect, and when every one moved away it became "the deserted village." Now it is a Summer resort and glories in the name of Glenside Park. It is tenanted by a small colony of Newarkers, but those who follow only the well known rivers of Essex county have a little idea of the beautiful scenery along the road which leads to Glenside in Union county.

It is a delightful little place, situated on a plateau between two ridges of the Watchung Mountains. On the east and west are magnificent views of the mountains, and to the south is a shadowy valley, through which a brook babbles.

The story of the place is an interesting one. A quarter of a century ago Prettyville was a thriving, industrial village, with a mill where hats were made. The proprietor of that mill erected a dozen cottages for his employes, and there they led an Arcadian sort of life. But one day the mill shut down, and when operations ceased the employes moved away. The houses fell into decay. Time it became one of the many places in New Jersey of interest to curiosity seekers.

Warren Ackerman, a wealthy resident of Roselle Park, purchased the deserted village and a lot of the surrounding country about five years ago. He at once began the work of transformation and when he had finished it was a veritable Eden, with long, winding drives over smooth roads, wide, sweeping lawns, picturesque bits of rockery with flowers and vines add palms; rustic observatories, fences and bridges and beautiful pieces of landscape gardening.

The colony now there is composed of the following: Members and their families: Judge David A. Depue, Major General Joseph W. Plume, Ernest F. Munn, Uzal McCarter, John G. Downey, William R. Peck, Alfred Ayers, William Osborn, Sydney Odgen and John A. Miller. The only man in the colony who is not a Newarker is William Tinnin, of Brooklyn. The families occupy the ten little one and a half story cottages, which have been repainted and beautified, but not enlarged, so that much trouble in the matter of cooking clothes washing never take place in them. A large community dining room has been erected, and here the families of these modern Arcadians meet every day to take their meals. A big barn and stable is also used in common for the storage of vehicles and stabling of horses. Thus all the annoyances of housekeeping are avoided.—N. Y. Herald.

FARMERS CHASE A MAD DOG.

THERE was considerable excitement at Jackson school house, Terrill road, last night. Early in the evening as people were on their way to attend divine worship a mad dog caused a panic by running through the place.

Farmers turned out with their guns and started to hunt the rapid canine. About twenty in all took part in the chase. Clubs and guns were seized as weapons. The dog ran through a man's barn and out into the woods, with the crowd in pursuit. Several shots were fired but without effect. For three hours the chase was kept up, and at last a well aimed bullet from Carmen Terry's revolver took effect and the dog was dispatched, but not until one of the crowd used a hoe to help along the bullet's work.

MRS. DOTY RELEASED.

Her Daughter Will Take Care of Her.

Chief of Police Grant yesterday went to Elizabethport and succeeded in getting Mrs. Samuel Doty's daughter to come and take care of her mother, whom Doctors Simpson and Boone pronounce insane. She seems to be peaceable enough, and it is thought if she has some one to look after her she will be all right. Mrs. Doty was released to-day.

To Go to Washington Rock.

The members of the choir of the Green Memorial Reformed church will, Friday next, spend the day to-morrow at Washington Rock. A number of their friends will accompany them. An enjoyable time is anticipated.

LOCAL BASE BALL.

THE N. Y. A. C. DEFEAT THE CRESCENTS.

Keenan was Put in the Box after the Game was Lost, and Pitched Masterly Well—Score: N. Y. A. C. 9; Crescents, 3.

THE New York Athletic Club team opened their Summer season on the Crescent grounds on Saturday. By a combination of errors and bad pitching in the first inning, the Crescents lost the game, and it was not until the ninth inning that a hot contest was developed this season.

Manden started in to pitch for the home team. His wildness cost his team the game. Two N. Y. A. C. men were given their bases on balls at the outset, and by the help of two errors by Keenan and one by Bedford, a base hit, four players crossed the rubber on an error. This was no mean start for the Crescents to overcome, and although they played well, these four runs proved their undoing.

Manden pitched a good game as well as fast, and it is quite evident that his wrists to be released. If he pitches again as he did on Saturday he will be, without doubt.

Keenan was put in the box in the 7th inning. His work was a surprise to the large number present, and contrary to the expectation of many he pitched a winning ball. The "pony battery" proved a good one. The visitors were unable to "size" Keenan, and the best they could do was to get four base hits and one run after he went into the box. As many hits were made off Manden in two innings as there were off Keenan in the remaining seven.

Keenan made the employes more hits than their opponents, but luck seemed to be against them. They were caught napping on the base by Catcher Kinsler, whose throwing to bases caused several to remain just he was a second "Rusie" in the box, and off away a run by his quick throwing, and it had to be a swift runner that would steal second base.

Macludon was injured in the fourth inning in attempting to steal home. He was put out by Kinsler who must have had a well-known lover's body, was substituted for Macludon. He hit the ball every time he went to the bat and had one chance in the field. The following is the score:

Literary Note.

The discomforts of heat, dust and humidity are forgotten in reading the July number of "Lippincott's Monthly Magazine." It opens with a striking legend of the East by Harry Willard Frazer, and continues interesting excerpts from Hindoo, Persian and Japanese literature. Rudyard Kipling's oddest tales; a thrilling story of the Bogay Valley; and a stirring original account of a kangaroo hunt in Australia by W. Thomson. This magazine is issued by Lippincott Publishing Company, Clinton Hall, Astor place, New York; 25 cents a number, $2.50 a year.

Not Murdered in Plainfield.

The New York Times of yesterday contained the following: "Gov. Flower has granted a hearing to Louis Wood, the eleven-year-old Brooklyn boy who is wanted in New Jersey for murdering a child at Plainfield, for he heard Wednesday morning in the Executive Chamber at Albany. When Judge Cullen, in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, was informed of this fact yesterday he promptly adjourned requisition proceedings until the Governor's decision should be rendered."

Veil for the Horseback Girl.

The horseback girl is wearing a mosquito veil. In her case, it is necessary that her veil should be thin, or she may run with mishaps while guiding her pony through the intricacies of park, lanes and country roads. Her veil is so small that, were it not for the mosquito veil, she might as well not wear one. But there is no denying that it adds a certain coquettish air to her appearance and self looks are blown about at the mercy of the vagrant winds.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Declining Birth Rates.

One would hardly guess from the swarms of children in every street and schoolhouse that the birth rate of even the United States is falling off at a rapid rate, but Dr. J. S. Billings informs us in The Forum that such is the fact. Even in 1880 there were 36 children born to every 100 inhabitants. Now there are only a trifle over 30. The same diminishing rate is observed in all European countries, even Ireland and Italy. Dr. Billings does not regard this fact with great alarm, however. The same state of affairs was noticed in the decline of the Roman empire, and if the birth rate had not diminished in those days the world would have been awfully overcrowded now, and no American would have had room to spread himself.

It is not a sign of the decline of the United States, however, this diminishing number of babies. Dr. Billings says it is attributable to several causes. One is the increasing disinclination of women to marry and enter what seems to them a despotic slavery. In these days women have educated tastes and prefer to remain single and gratify these themselves by earning their own living if they cannot find a husband rich enough to suit them. Other reasons are the increased migration from the rural districts of our country to the city. The increase of wealth and luxury has educated expensive tastes into the people, and they are unwilling to burden themselves with children unless they can give to these all the advantages of the times. Still, if the children that are born have a happy childhood, surrounded with everything that can make them become healthy, useful and intelligent citizens, it does not matter that there are not so many, Dr Billings seems to think. He writes:

> It does not appear to me that this lessening of the birth rate is in itself an evil or that it will be worth while to attempt to increase the birth rate merely for the sake of maintaining a constant increase in population, because neither this nor the next generation will such increase be specially beneficial. But considered as one of the signs of forces which are at work to modify the existing conditions of society, and some of which appear to be of evil tendency, this diminution of the birth rate merits careful consideration by statisticians, sociologists, politicians and all who are interested in the physical and moral well being of the inhabitants of this country.

The governor of Pennsylvania incurred considerable blame when he vetoed the bill requiring physical culture to be taught in the public schools. Few intelligent persons deny that some kind of physical culture is wanted. But till the advocates of physical culture agree on some one method which can be depended on to do the work properly it is hardly worth while to waste time on the thing. We find professors of physical culture ready to fly at one another's throats over their respective methods, while the rising generation in the schools grows to maturity crooked backed, bandy legged, hollow chested and awkward. Perhaps while the professors are disputing the military drill for both boys and girls might be adopted with advantage in the public schools.

The law is a curious thing. Haggerty, the drunken fool who recently jumped the Brooklyn bridge and swam ashore, was seen by a dozen persons to go over the rail. Many people saw him turn somersaults in a lively way during his vault of 120 feet through the air. Perhaps a hundred individuals were looking at him when he struck the water and came sputtering up a dozen feet away from where he went in. But the coroner could find nobody to swear that he saw Haggerty take the grand leap. Because of this the fellow was allowed to go free. That he had jumped the bridge was as plain as anything that ever did happen, yet the law could find no evidence that such was the fact.

It has been repeatedly stated that the elevated electric railroad at the World's fair is the first of its kind, but that is a mistake. The North Hudson elevated railroad of Hoboken, N. J., has for some months been operated by electric power, and the cars are run faster and with greater regularity than they were when they were hauled by cable.

Liverpool ought to be an American city, it is so enterprising. Besides the elevated electric railway there, the largest dredge in the world has just been put into the mouth of the Mersey by the five Yankee Britons of Liverpool. The dredge raises 24,000 tons of mud a day from the river bottom.

Is it an invitation to filibustering when a Cuban announces that the revolutionary sentiment is spreading in the island and that a force of 10,000 men well acquainted with the country could whip out the whole 25,000 soldiers maintained there by Spain and proclaim a republic?

When the thermometer marks a hundred in the shade, think of a polar bear upon an iceberg; think of a hundred gallons of ice cream in a glass house under the sea: think of the look on the face of your rich relative when you ask him to lend you $5.

Observe this from Outing: "There is neither need for nor sense in taking gun or rifle into the woods at a season when the law forbids its use upon birds and animals certain to be seen."

Happiness and Poverty.

It is amusing to read the answers in a late newspaper letter to the question, How can one be happy, though poor? Noah Brooks, Dr. O. W. Holmes and ex-Senator John J. Ingalls declare that happiness is a matter of temperament and dependent neither on poverty nor riches. Mr. Ingalls concludes with the classic quotation:

> Mors everi jay Mercellus sul'ist haut

All the same, however, Marcellus would not probably have refused to come back into the senate house again and take another whack at Cæsar.

Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher believes that true happiness is to be found in true love, whether one is rich or poor, which is a credit to her good heart. Dr. John Hall thinks that the practice of godliness makes a man happy. It is to be observed, though, that in this the world the godly people seem to be about as unhappy as anybody else. Cardinal Gibbons affirms that the best instruction on how to be happy, though poor, is furnished in the sermon on the mount.

That blessed man, Dr. Edward Everett Hale, says that if one sleeps nine hours out of 24, spends two or three hours every day in the open air and works on steadily on the side of the divine will he will be sure to have a good time. "As to happiness," writes Dr. Hale, "or being happy, that is something that 'happens.' The minute a man seeks for it he loses it." Hamlin Garland is not far out of the way when he says that happiness depends on good health first and work next.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox thinks happiness consists in being useful to others. That is a truly noble sentiment. "Happiness is intensely a matter of the will," writes George W. Cable, and he, too, hits the nail on the head. "I believe in the superiority of mind over matter," says Bishop Newman of the Methodist church. John Burroughs, Rhea and Fanny Davenport recommend work as a cure for unhappiness—work and a good breakfast. Miss Davenport says. But most of all, the answers of T. V. Powderly and Dr. William A. Hammond will commend themselves to the average erring mortal mind. "I know of no way in which a poor man may remain happy," says Powderly. "I do not believe in the possibility of happiness with poverty unless the person concerned is weak-minded," replies Dr. Hammond.

Noiseless Wagons.

For some time rubber tires have been employed on the wheels of hansom cabs in London to reduce the sound. The result was satisfactory, but now comes another trouble. The noiseless cabs, so grateful to weary nerves, are complained of because they run over heedless pedestrians who do not hear their approach. It is to be hoped the rubber tire will not be abolished. Let the walkers learn to look out for themselves. It is better to knock over a stupid, careless person once in a while than to kill half a hundred by slow torture from the constant thundering, grinding noise.

Anything that tends to lessen the roar of a great city should be welcomed. A number of American inventors are now experimenting with pneumatic tires such as are used on bicycles, hoping to adapt them to light road wagons. An extra rubber tire has been placed outside the pneumatic one by one inventor to prevent the cutting of the air tube by a stone or sharp knock. A New York bicycle manufacturer thinks he has succeeded in making a pneumatic tire that will work admirably on light road wagons. If so, it will add much to the comfort of carriage riding. But if the attachment can be applied to light wagons why not to heavier ones? The gain to the city part of the human race if the roar of the cobble stone wagons could be abolished would be incalculable.

Much fun has been poked at the weather reports on account of their occasional bad breaks, but after all they are accurate enough to furnish a guide to advertisers. If the signal service predicts raging hot temperature, then the shrewd dry goods man announces in display type that he has on hand a great assortment of pajamas, palmleaf fans and linen shirts and the stale statement comes exactly in time to meet the requirements of perspiring weather. If, on the contrary, the report says a cold wave is coming down from the north pole, then next day appears the news that the merchant will open an unsurpassed stock of latest styles overcoats and sealskin capes, and he hits the demand much oftener than he misses.

A Canadian has invented a combination cable boat sled for the lumber districts that may be recommended to summer campers. In water it is a boat containing an engine of 22-horsepower and propelled by side wheels forward or backward at the rate of six miles an hour. On land it is a sled with steel shod runners and containing a drum wound with five-eighths of a mile of steel cable, after the manner of a street car motor. The cable is fastened to a tree or other stationary object half a mile in front, and then the steam engine winds up the cable, drawing the sled forward.

Mr. J. H. Biles believes that in 10 years from now a steamer will travel from New York to Liverpool in four days. The increased speed will be gained by making engines of nickel steel, reducing the weight of boilers and other machinery, and using oil instead of coal for fuel.

HEROES OF GETTYSBURG

Scarred Veterans Gathered on the Old Battlefield Again.

NEW YORK MONUMENTS DEDICATED

The Goals In the Wheatfields Looked Just the Same as It Did Years Ago, and the Veterans Were Crowded—An Impressive Scene at the Dedication.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 3.—With the field on which Gettysburg's decisive battle was fought stretching out below, New York state's handsome monument to the heroes who fell in the fight was dedicated with impressive ceremony.

It was the great day of the celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the three days' battle. Here were gathered New York veterans, the governors of two states, the surviving generals of the battle and thousands of veterans and visitors from other states were present to head the procession and mourn to the scene, and gala day will no doubt be remembered as the second one of Gettysburg since its wheatfields ran red with the blood of Confederate and Union dead.

The wheat stood ripe on the stalk as it did on that day when the armies of Meade and Lee met and the Union troops gleaned victory after three days' varying conflict. Smoke again hung over the field, but it was from the salute in honor of the dead and not the smoke of battle.

One interesting feature of the ceremonies was the review by Major General George S. Greene by his brigade on Culp's hill. A platform had been erected among the trees, where Greene's men fought the most important point on the right of the line of battle of the second day's fight. Within view of a score of monuments erected to mark the places where comrades fell the survivors and their grandchildren gathered and saluted their brigade commander, who is in his ninety-third year, and in the oldest living participant in the battle of Gettysburg. He was escorted from the village to Culp's hill by 25 men of his old brigade, under command of Captain Osborn. A band from York, Pa., played the old war tunes as the veterans marched back to the positions they occupied 30 years ago.

Exercises at Culp's Hill.

General Robert Avery acted as presiding officer. On the platform were Governor Roswell P. Flower of New York and staff, General Daniel E. Sickles, General H. W. Slocum, Colonel Stegmans, who was wounded just 30 years away, and the representatives of the Sixtieth, Seventy-eighth, One Hundred and Second, One Hundred and Thirty-seventh and One Hundred and Forty-ninth New York regiments. Standing about under the trees or seated in carriages were nearly 1,000 veterans of New York regiments and their friends.

The Fifty-fifth Regiment of the One Hundred and Thirty-seventh New York volunteers opened the proceedings with a prayer. The regiment then sang "America." General Avery then introduced General Henry W. Slocum, who spoke in an interesting manner for several minutes.

The veterans listened intently to General Slocum described the scenes in which they took part, and gave him three cheers when he closed. General Greene was next up and was cheered and cheered again as many of the veterans saw their leader for the first time since the war. He made a ringing address.

Governor Flower was then introduced. He said that it was not on the programme for him to speak at that time, but he could not forego the pleasure of coming and looking into the faces of the men from New York state on the ground where they fought so well for both state and nation. He made a short speech, concluding with: "I wish to God I had been there myself [laughter and applause]. You had your opportunity, and you used it well."

There were loud shouts for General Sickles as Governor Flower took his seat, and the ex-general was given a hearty ovation as he stood with the aid of his crutches and congratulated the veterans on getting together on the old battleground.

The band played the air long "Marching Through Georgia" and the Rev. Mr. Pray had pronounced the benediction, all the veterans formed in line and shook hands with Generals Greene, Sickles, Slocum and Avery, while Battery C of the Third artillery fired a salute. Many of the old veterans walked on with tears on their cheeks after the hearty handclasps of their old commanders.

The Dedication Marshals.

After the exercises there was a rush to the hotels and eating houses, where the crowds were fed with difficulty, as the hotels were simply swamped. Then the veterans went to the places assigned to them for the parade.

The organizations formed on the four sides of the town square and along Baltimore street, and then, preceded by the marshals, they took their positions in the square.

The governors, Roswell P. Flower, etc., led the procession. First came the honorary grand marshal, General George S. Greene, and staff in carriages. He was followed by the state,

MARKHAM REPORTS.

He Makes It Appear That the Blame Was All Yeoman's.

LONDON, July 3.—A middyman from the Victoria arrived at Calais with Rear Admiral Markham's dispatches concerning the collision off Tripoli. He was brought to the steamer by the Maid of Kent, to Dover, and was conveyed thence by special train to London. He drove directly to the admiralty office, where the admiralty board, including the addresses of the coming, received and read the dispatches at once. The board decided to publish the dispatches in full.

Concerning the cause of the collision he says:

When the signal was made from the Victoria to the first division to form 16 points to port and to the second division to form 16 points to starboard the columns were only six cable lengths apart. It was not, therefore, very noticeable even within the maneuvering distance to cause such an evolution. I heard the order given to him after the signal which we were repeating at 22p as an indication that the signal from the Victoria was not understood. I did not signal him in addition with the semaphore, "Understand it is your wish for the columns to turn as indicated by the flags," as I thought that before my order could be carried out the admiral would recognize me to know what I was waiting for.

It then struck me that he wished me to turn 16 points, as indicated by the signal, and it was his intention to circle round the squadron in action, leaving them on the port hand. Having the fullest confidence in the great ability of the commander-in-chief, I ordered the helm to be given risk of collision. I ordered the signal hoisted as an indication that I understood. When the signal was hauled down the hoist of the Camperdown was not yet hard a port. At the same time the helm of the Victoria was put hard-a-port. I realized very nearly the helm of the Victoria as indicating the purpose of her signals.

At the time I ordered the helm to be given and seeing that the helm of the Victoria was still hard starboard, I directed the engines of the Camperdown to go full speed astern with the starboard screw in order to decrease our check of turning. Seeing that a collision was inevitable, I then ordered the helm to go full speed astern with both engines, but before our speed could be materially checked the starboard bow of the Camperdown struck the Victoria on the starboard bow about 20 feet before the turret and crushed plate in fully 30 feet before the turret, the bow and the aft line of the ships at the time of the collision being inclined toward each other at an angle of about 80 degrees.

WATKINS IS ALIVE.

But Hedgepeth Was Long Ago Hanged For His Murder.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., July 3.—Recent developments have received considerable support to the theory that had long been disposed of by the hanging of an innocent man.

In 1886 George Watkins, with a comely young wife, moved from Kansas to a county adjoining this and settled on the homestead of Andy Hedgepeth, a wealthy planter. Watkins soon became aware of certain relations between Hedgepeth and Mrs. Watkins.

The sudden absence of Watkins excited suspicion and Hedgepeth and the woman were arrested. The woman at the trial stated that she and Hedgepeth had agreed to kill her husband, but denied any knowledge of the murder. The case was all circumstantial, but in a strong and unbroken chain. The case was carried to the supreme court, reversed, and at the second trial Hedgepeth was again convicted and hanged. Now it is learned by Hedgepeth's counsel that Watkins is living in his old home in Kansas, where he has been all the time since his disappearance.

Altgeld Publicly Scored.

CHICAGO, July 3.—Governor Altgeld was rather severely scored at the patriotic Sunday exercises at the World's fair for his recent action in pardoning the Chicago anarchists. Commander J. M. Campbell of the army and navy union said: "It is eminently fitting that the regular army and navy union should observe patriotic Sunday here today, because the chief executive of this state has recently shown that he would be willing to supplant the flag of freedom with the red flag of anarchy." When he had finished the sentence he paused for a moment, and for a moment the audience was silent, and then it gave vent to a most vigorous applause of approval.

The Released Anarchists Appear Again.

CHICAGO, July 3.—Samuel Fielden, Michael Schrab and Oscar Neebe, the anarchists, made their first appearance as a public meeting since their release from Joliet at Zeph's hall. The occasion was the celebration of the German Festival of Commers by Brewers' Union, No. 25. Fielden was one of the orginizers of the union, and he and the other two were the honorary guests of the evening. The three men took no part in the programme, still adhering to the rule of silence.

Fourteen Insisted on Columbian Guards.

CHICAGO, July 3.—Adjutant General Davis has submitted a plan to the council of administration to dismiss 1,200 Columbian guards employed at the fair and substitute for them 1,600 city policemen.

Welcomed Spurgeon's Son.

BROOKLYN, July 3.—At the Hanson Place Baptist church a royal welcome was extended to the Rev. Thomas Spurgeon, son of the late Charles Spurgeon, the famous London preacher.

A One Legged Wheelman's Progress.

CHICAGO, July 3.—F. S. Beedleson, the one legged bicyclist, who is riding from San Francisco to Chicago, arrived here, 49 days from San Francisco.

Forty-one Took the White Veil.

BALTIMORE, July 3.—Forty-one young ladies took the white veil in the Order of the Sisters of Notre Dame.

SILVER MEN WILL FIGHT

They Have Called a Convention at Chicago For July 25.

WHAT WILL DELAY THE REPEAL

Some Lively Fights Over Contested Seats Must Be Settled Before the Sherman Act Can Be Killed—A Reported Corruption Fund Started.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A secret council of war, comprising four chieftains of the radical silverites, has been held at the headquarters of the American Bimetallic League here. As a result Chicago and July 25 have been decided on positively as the place and time for a general gathering of the league's members and of the friends of free silver. The proclamation is in the hands of General Warner, president of the league, who, with Congressman elect Frank J. Newlands of Nevada, Colonel Lee Crandall, editor of The National View, and Executive Committeeman Johnson of Nevada were in the conference.

The call will be issued to the press today, and will be the battle cry of the silverites. Those men were to telegraphic statement relative to the Sherman law repeal bill, Congressman Bland, and other leaders of the bimetallic standard in various parts of the country.

A telegram from Denver alleges that preparations are being made in the silver states to raise a corruption fund of $50,000 to contest legislation in favor of silver at the extra session. The story is as follows: "A member of the foremost silver league here in Colorado was quietly engaged in the work of raising a substantial fund to be used in lobbying in the interests of a free coinage bill in case the Sherman act should be repealed. The newspapers of this city have refrained from mention of the movement for obvious reasons, but the fact that the work is going on has been apparent in private quarters here. It is alleged that about $50,000 will be subscribed in Colorado, and that material additions to that amount from all the western mining states will swell this sum total to a formidable sum."

The fact that the senators from the north western states are not unanimous on the silver question, and that some of them will probably vote to repeal the Sherman silver purchasing law, seems to lend an added fairness to the process which were pending when the senate adjourned in order to transact in April last in the cases of the senators from Montana, Wyoming and Washington. In all three of these states the legislatures got into prolonged deadlocks and adjourned without electing senators to fill the vacancies that were to occur on March 4.

These Are Contested Seats.

The governor of Montana appointed Lee Mantle, a Republican, but a pronounced free coinage advocate, to succeed Wilbur F. Sanders, Republican. Mr. Mantle's credentials were referred to the committee on privileges and elections, which made a majority report in favor of seating the appointee, but the senate adjourned without action on his case, and the seat remains vacant.

The legislature of the state is controlled by Democrats and Populists. The governor of Montana is a Republican. Should the Republican appointee of the governor be not seated, the legislature would probably choose a Democrat or a Populist.

Governor Richards of Montana was in Washington recently, and he declared very emphatically he would not call the legislature together again if Mantle was refused a seat.

In Wyoming the legislature has a Democratic and Populist majority, but failed to elect a senator to succed Francis E. Warren, Republican. The governor, a fusionist, appointed A. C. Beckwith, silver colonel's cousin. His credentials also were before the senate committee without action when the senate adjourned.

In Washington state the legislature and governor both are Republican, but the legislature failed on account of the legal fights to elect a successor to John B. Allen, Republican, and the governor appointed him to succeed himself. His case also was pending when the senate adjourned.

Mr. Allen, it was thought, would vote for the repeal of the Sherman law if admitted to his seat. These three contested cases will probably bring on a bitter and protracted preliminary fight before the senate can settle down to the business for which the extra session was convened. The right of a senator to his seat is a question of the highest privilege, and senators on one side or other of the silver question are sure to demand a decision on these cases before any vote is taken on the Sherman law.

In addition to these potent probabilities of delay there are the unacted upon resolutions of investigation in the case of Senator W. M. Stewart, South Dakota, and which a hot partisan debate is inevitable.

Mr. Porter Resigns.

Hon. Robert P. Porter, superintendent of census has resigned, to take effect immediately. Mr. Porter has been desirous of severing his connection with the office for over a month, and even if he completed certain business arrangements with a New York enterprise which demands his early attention. His remuneration in the new field, it is said, will be double that which he received as the head of the census bureau, nearly $6,000. Most of the census work is so far advanced as to be practically completed and Mr. Porter feels that he can with propriety retire from the office.

Ex-Governor Weaver's Condition.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Ex-Governor George Weaver of Minnesota and the Hawkeye state, who underwent a painful surgical operation, was reported to be resting quietly in his apartments at the Hotel Savoy. His medical attendants think that he had rallied well from the strain and shock of the operation and that his condition was most encouraging.

One Nation, the Other Retreats.

PARIS, July 3.—Paul Deroulede announces that he has decided to withdraw from political life for four years. M. Millevoye, who presented the bogus Cocarde documents in the chamber of deputies, has publicly declared that he was victimized by a forger.

Train Struck the Buggy.

MARION, Ind., July 3.—The east bound passenger train, running at terrific speed, struck a buggy containing Miss Daisy Mummall, Miss Eva Ihrig and Mrs. John B. Heath. Miss Ihrig was instantly killed.

Cardinal Gibbons Lays a Cornerstone.

PROVIDENCE, July 3.—The cornerstone of the new St. Joseph's hospital was laid by his eminence Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore with impressive ceremonies.

SOUTH CAROLINA'S BARS.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 3.—The question of the new liquor law, which makes the state the dispenser of drinking fluids, was begun in the middle of the week by Governor Tillman. The man had the executive mansion guarded by a number of guards from the penitentiary. They were on duty Saturday and the rumors could not be traced to any authentic source.

As a result of the law there has been a sudden boom in the dry goods business, these articles being seen at many railroad stations bearing all sorts of labels, from eologne to vinegar and cholera mixture. The plan is working well in Greenville. It was decided that shipments of liquor to parties inside the state could be made by railroads, provided the county notified the board, giving name and place. The Richland and Greenville as least will handle the stuff and, it is said, have instructed their agents to accept such consignments without asking the people's leave.

A number of saloons, still keep their liquor on hand and almost all the drug stores are charged with violating the law. Proceedings will be commenced against them by the governor. The gross receipts of the state revenue throughout the state for the first day are said to be ridiculously small, and very few dispensaries have been opened.

MR. DREXEL'S WILL.

How His $30,000,000 Estate Will Be Divided up By.

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—The late A. J. Drexel's will, drawn 10 years ago, but with numerous codicils since, will not be read until next week by counsel. The estate will amount to over $30,000,000.

The will directs a reorganization of all three partnerships in the great banking firms founded by the family, commencing Mr. Drexel's death and establishes the amount of interest the estate is to hold in them hereafter. Each Drexel institution and the Childs-Drexel Home for Union Printers are remembered, and a good deal of money is given outright to charities. It is reported that Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., and John R. Drexel will succeed to most of the banking interests, while George W. Childs Drexel will get, among other things, his father's interest in The Public Ledger.

The Philadelphia house of Drexel & Co. will continue on much the same lines as before. J. Pierpont Morgan, the New York partner, now takes Mr. Drexel's place as the absolute head of the firm, whose prestige his genius has already increased.

Making the Cowboy Awards.

CHICAGO, July 3.—There was an animated meeting held in Colonel Cody's dining tent at the Wild West camp of contestants and parties interested in the Chadron-Chicago cowboy race. The technical protest against Berry being in the race was upheld and he has been given $50 of the $250 interest of letting him have $175 out of Buffalo Bill's Wild West purse of $200, together with the saddle given by Messrs. Bumgeurney, Ward & Co. for the cowboy making the run. It was decided that Joe Gillespie was first in the race as per the Chadron agreement, and he was awarded $50 of the Wild West purse, $200 of the Chadron purse and the revolver offered by Messrs. Colts.

Colorado to Attempt a Silver Revival.

DENVER, July 3.—A mass meeting of the people of Colorado has been called for Saturday, July 8, at Denver, to consider the silver crisis. It is the intention to start a large prospecting party throughout the south and east to get the people to interest themselves in congress to vote for the rehabilitation of silver. There will be a general conference at St. Louis, July 17, to complete the preparations for the silver dinner about that time, and all commercial bodies of the trans-Mississippi states are requested to send representatives.

The Editor Lost an Ear.

MEMPHIS, July 3.—James L. Fleming, colored, formerly manager and editor of The Free Speech, of Natchez, Miss., and proprietor of that suspended publication about a year ago because of the indignation aroused by an editorial in it reflecting upon white women, had his left ear severed from his ears at Marion, Ark. He returned to town and was set upon by the citizens and severely beaten, one of the crowd slicing off one of his ears with a knife.

Would Not Be Tarred and Feathered.

KOKOMO, Ind., July 3.—An attempt was made here to tar and feather M. L. Garrigus, the local representative of the Chicago Sunday Sun. A cab was ready to take Garrigus to the city limits, but the tar pot and feathers were prepared. He fired three shots into the attacking party, was arrested and taken to jail, but afterward released. One man was wounded.

The Cashier an Embezzler Somewhere.

DALLAS, July 3.—C. W. Ward, late cashier of the Ninth National bank of Dallas, was arrested on indictments found by the United States grand jury charging him with embezzling $50,000, and he is also charged with embezzling $20,000 of the funds of the First National bank of Rockwell, Tex., as its agent.

Brought Back Captain Jones' Body.

EL PASO, July 3.—Sheriff Simms returned to the eastern part of this county, bringing with him the body of Deputy Sheriff Captain Jones, who was killed by the gang of outlaws. The ringleaders of the murderous gang have been arrested and will be tried in Mexico.

Mormon Sweetheart's Wife Dead.

Tin Plate Factory Closed.

ELLWOOD, Ind., July 3.—The American tin plate factory closed down for an indefinite time because the Amalgamated association in making its scale for the ensuing year has declared that the tin plate company should sign it.

To Test Railway Tickets.

BERLIN, July 3.—The government is considering a plan to cover with a tax on railway tickets part of the expenditure required by the army bill.

The Cholera Record.

LONDON, July 3.—Seventy-six persons are reported to have died of cholera in Zeddah and 440 in Mecca.

The Cannonia Leave Detroit.

DETROIT, July 3.—The Spanish cannonia hoisted their anchors and proceeded on the way to Chicago.

SENSATIONS IN CHURCH.

In One a Parishioner Died During the Services.

AT ANOTHER WERE THE POLICE.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Death interrupted the mass at St. Teresa's Roman Catholic church, Henry street. The collection was being taken. Suddenly a parishioner let drop the contribution box which was in his hand and returned to the pew of Joseph P. Payton, a venerable worshiper.

Mr. Payton sat alone in his pew. He had grown deathly pale and was on the point of toppling over from his seat to the floor when the parishioner ran to his side. Those in the congregation who sat near the pew of Mr. Payton crowded forward. Father Dolan, who was robed at the mass, paused and then came down to the pew. He beckoned for Father Mahoney to come also.

It was evident that Mr. Payton was stricken with death, and that he would not recover consciousness before dying. If his spirit had not already fled.

Died as He Had Wished.

For some time Mr. Payton had known that he would probably die suddenly from heart disease. He had often expressed a desire that he might die in church.

At last fell over the congregation as the priests hurriedly prepared to administer the rite of conditional absolution. Mr. Payton had not stirred. While the rite was administered, he uttered not a sound and lay where the parishioner who had rushed to his assistance had gently guided his body.

At the conclusion of the rite the body was taken up and borne to the sacristy. A messenger was sent to notify Mr. Payton. She arrived immediately after the body of her husband had been removed from the pew. The service had already been resumed.

Above the words of the priests could be heard the sobs of Mrs. Payton as she bent over the body of her husband in the sacristy.

Mr. Payton, who was 80 years old, first knew that he had heart trouble last fall when he consulted a physician for a malady that had made him anxious for a long time. He was a big man, hale for his years and methodical. He knowledge that he would probably die suddenly did not alarm him or change his way of life.

"Blest be the tie that binds," sang Rev. Dr. Potter's congregation after communion. The next line runs, "Our hearts in Christian love unite." Trouble and trouble of various kinds had inspired this departure from the usual form of worship.

To begin with, Rev. Mr. Putnam, who is pastor of the flourishing several branches of church discipline against Rev. Dr. Potter, the pastor, caused a circular pamphlet to be issued in the name of the deacons of the church doors. It was "communion Sunday," too, when many who neglect the usual Sabbath worship make it a point to be in the tabernacle on the first Sunday of the month.

They Distributed Circulars.

Mr. Putnam's charges have been under a committee's consideration. The committee seems inclined to acquit Dr. Potter. Mr. Putnam's friends believe the investigations are prejudiced in the accused's favor. Hence the circulars. Dr. Potter's partisans called for police interference when they saw Mr. Putnam's party distributing the circulars, and they triumphed for the time over the pastor's enemy by having the circular distributors driven away.

Then the morning worship proceeded without interruption. After the communion ended, Daniel Harding, who has recently been dismissed from the church, got up and sang "Alight, all ye dismayed."

He is a partisan of Mr. Putnam. Mr. Price, one of the pastor's friends, who had anticipated trouble as soon as Mr. Harding began with his bellowing air, started the peacemaking hymn. Mr. Harding sat down and said no more.

Mr. Putnam's circular letter reviews the case from the beginning, and upbraids the congregation for upholding the pastor in the face of what the author considers positive proof of his guilt.

Foreign Views of the Silver Question.

BERLIN, July 3.—The governor of the Reichsbank has an interview on the artificial condition of the silver market. The countries with large commercial interests, he said, might compose a conference with a view of increasing the subsidiary use of silver and thus preventing a scarcity of gold.

RECONSIA, July 3.—The Belgian government is reported to be about to convene a special conference of the Latin union states for the purpose of considering what action they shall take in view of the recent fall of silver.

VIENNA, July 3.—The Politische Correspondenz says that the fall of silver will not influence seriously the Austro-Hungarian operations in connection with the currency reform.

Trouble Over a Big Job.

ORANGE, N. J., July 3.—There is serious trouble in the city of Orange over the contract for the new sewerage which was designed and begun in 1891, and estimated to cost about $684,000.

THE HOUSEHOLD

NEW NOTIONS IN NEEDLEWORK.

Materials Cost and Light to Work Upon For the Busy Bees.

The shops are full of an immense number of articles made of linen and ready for the embroiderer's needle. She will be hard to please indeed if she is unable to discover something that will suit her among the infinite variety of tasselette, brush and comb sachets, dollies, sofa backs, sideboard slips, toilet and tray cloths. Among the more novel articles made of linen are stoppers for champagne bottles of two sizes, which near the base are traced with a somewhat intricate pattern that somehow recalls the constant movement that goes on inside the bottles themselves. Then there are dollies for hot baked potatoes, corn and buckwheats. These are square in shape, the corners, being prettily embroidered, are turned over toward the inside. Not being wetted, these cozies may be considered as extra for show than for use.

The patterns as a whole are still conventional in style and are better suited to the capabilities of the average worker than those of a very accomplished kind. The fancy for working these articles entirely with white is somewhat declining, and now the tendency is to follow the prevalent mode in dress and to use brilliantly colored silks and to shade the work rather elaborately. For instance, in the corners of a white linen sachet, the edges of which has been stitched, is placed a large floral spray executed in shades of flame color and having leaves and stems in tones of bronze green. Pliocelline are generally employed, and the surface of the design is closely covered with stitches, which in the pieces sold commenced are often as smooth as if a piece of satin had been appliqued to the linen. There is a great fancy just now for work that recalls lace in one form or another. The lace braid embroidery still "goes" well, and some very dainty set dollies, cushion covers and chair tidies had fair to become equally popular.

Corner With Tea Table.

"A cheerless and gloomy parlor is made to become something of the air of comfort by introducing a dainty little tea table, with its spotless linen cloth, thin cups and saucers, shining kettle and quaint dish for cookies."

OLD FASHIONED AND COSY.

"It really seems to salute the somewhat weary caller by saying 'Come, take a cup of tea.' Since we are all human and must eat, let us do it in as dainty a way as possible." Such is an attractively illustrated

CITY COMMON COUNCIL.

THE REGULAR MEETING FOR JULY.

The Mayor Presents an Ordinance Relative to the Sunday-Closing Matter—The Street Commissioner to make Merchants Clear the Sidewalks—Routine Business.

The City Common Council held its regular July meeting Monday night with the following members present: President Ginna and Councilmen Bird, Erickson, Fisk, Millington and Weber.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The petition of Grace A. Tinsley for permission to move the building at 405 West Fourth street to the rear of the lot was granted. Property owners requested Council to have crosswalks placed at Ninth street and Madison avenue, at Eighth street and Madison avenue, and at Madison avenue and Eighth street. Referred to Committee on Streets, with power. The property owners of Elm place petitioned to have a crosswalk at the intersection of Elm place and Orange street. Referred to the Street Committee.

The North Plainfield Board of Health, in a communication, informed Council that the Board had adopted a resolution condemning the action of Plainfield in emptying the sewage into Green brook from the Pease street sewer, and requesting that the nuisance be abated. The matter was referred to Committee on Water and Sewerage.

Mr. Charles Hand petitioned Council to allow him to connect his two buildings on Watchung avenue with the North avenue sewer. Referred to the Committee on Water and Sewers.

Mr. E. P. Thorn asked permission to erect a drinking fountain in front of his place on Park avenue. Referred to Committee on Streets, with power.

Permission to allow the moving of the house at the corner of Fifth and Liberty streets was asked for by Dr. Simpson. Referred to Committee on Fire and Buildings, with power.

Property owners petitioned Council to place a fire alarm box at the corner of Liberty and Second streets. Referred to Committee on Fire and Buildings, with power to act. The petition of Mr. A. B. Runyon for permission to erect a frame building 14x16 in the rear of the house No. 6 6 Madison avenue was referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company requested Council to rescind the water contract of the city with Mr. Moore, which had been assigned to the present company. Referred to the Corporation Counsel.

The matter of laying a crosswalk at the intersection of Fifth and Washington streets was referred to the Street Committee, with power.

On motion the rules were suspended, in order to allow a single member of a committee to sign the bills.

The following letter was read from Mayor Gilbert:

To the Honorable Common Council:

Herewith I submit for your consideration an ordinance to amend the ordinance relative to the observance and good order of the city of Plainfield. The necessity for the Scientific Irrigation.

In a beautifully illustrated paper in The Popular Science Monthly Mr. Charles Howard Shinn gives much information about the stupendous change which is quietly transforming more than half the area of the United States from arid plain and valley to blooming farms and orchards. The irrigation question brought about a new set of laws—laws which had no precedent of legislation to build on. There is great confusion in the matter today. It has not yet been settled whether it is best to leave irrigation to private corporations, to let the individual states control it, or whether it is too big a situation for either private companies or individual states to cope with, and hence a matter for the general government itself to close in on and regulate. Mr. Shinn himself has no doubt on the point. He says that any plan which should put water distribution within the power of the separate states would be dangerous. "Only the federal government can protect the sources of water supply, utilize, reservoir and distribute that supply and unite water and land in an indissoluble marriage bond."

Mr. Shinn thinks that if ever the balance of power in this republic shifts from the Mississippi valley to west of the Rockies irrigation will be the cause of it, transferring the leadership from "the man of the corn lands to the man of the fruit lands." California is the state that thus far stands at the head in showing what immense crops can be produced through irrigation and her laws are therefore to be taken somewhat as models for those of other states. It was the old gold miners who taught the agriculturist to irrigate, and to them it is owing that California is all the head in obtaining benefits from irrigation.

In the future no doubt irrigation bonds will form a profitable investment for money, along with other internal improvement bonds in the arid states. The colleges, moreover, in those states will establish a chair for instruction in a new department of education—that of irrigation engineering. California is divided by law into irrigation districts, of which 88 have already been organized in the state. In these districts bonds to the amount of $12,000,000 have been voted. Capital is in demand for furthering the work.

Give the evil one his due. There is one advantage the Chinese have over the white man, and that is that they can keep their mouths shut. What John is going to do or not going to do you never can find out from him. This reticence is assumed probably for self protection, but it pervades the Chinaman in America from the laundryman to the highest official. You may pall John's one, you may swear at him, you may smash his washhouse windows in, yet never a word will he say back. He stretches his dry little lips tight across his mouth and endures in wooden silence. He may meditate revenge He probably does, but it will be taken in a way and time that his tormentors are not expecting. He broods and bides his time. Even when you try to converse with him friendly in his laundry, he mostly pretends not to understand, and his language is confined to the vocabulary of shirts and the price you pay him for renovating them. That he knows perfectly. He is a watchful, suspicious sphinx carved in ivory. Even Chona She Lenn, accused of being a government envoy commissioned by the emperor to study the status of his countrymen in America and report on American public opinion toward them, answers nothing when asked if this is the case.

The sensations of an individual who assists in breaking open a jail, taking out a prisoner and hanging him to a tree till he is dead must be peculiar, to say the least, when the individual finds out that he lynched the wrong man. The blood of the innocent will be on his hands forever. Do what he may, go where he will, he can never get rid of the recollection. From that day on he is a haunted man. If he has the feelings of a human being, the protests, the purple, distorted face of the man he has helped to murder, will pursue him till he joins his victim in the world to come.

The governors of Arkansas and South Dakota have spoken out in favor of a great interstate railway from North Dakota to the gulf of Mexico. But these two governors—one from the north, the other from the south—are agreed that the federal government should control this interstate railway. The laws and interests would be too conflicting to trust its management to the states through which it would pass, they think.

WILD PARISIAN RIOTERS

Students Barricade the Streets and Defy the Police.

TWO NIGHTS OF FIERCE FIGHTING.

Street Roughs and Labor Organizations Swell the Mob and Vandalism Follow Their Track—The Cuirassiers and Military Powerless—Many Injured.

PARIS, July 5.—Riotous demonstrations were again made by students. The police were unable to disperse the mobs. Eventually a large detachment of cavalry charged and scattered the students. The municipal councillors have decided to send a deputation to the funeral of M. Nogue, the deputy who was killed in the encounter between the police and the students in the Latin quarter on Saturday. They have issued a proclamation, however, urging all persons who attend the funeral to act calmly and specifically. It is rumored that the funeral will be held today.

The disorder in the streets increased hourly. The whole district bounded by the Boulevard St. Germain, the river and the Rue de Seine was in an uproar. Students with crowds of roughs fill the open spaces. Omnibuses and tramways were stopped by the mobs, the passengers turned out and the vehicles upset. On the Boulevard St. Germain, Quai Voltaire and the Rue St. Peres traffic was suspended. The Rue St. Peres was barricaded. Pedestrians were stopped and maltreated.

The Charity hospital was surrounded with cuirassiers to keep off the students, who threatened to attack the building. The ministry of public works, the marine department and the Ecole des Beaux arts was guarded by military.

The Students Meet the Cavalry.

The students tried to repeat the scenes of the night before in the neighborhood of the Palais de Justice and Prefecture de Police. A mob assembled at the Place St. Michel and tried to rush over the bridge to the Boulevard de Palais, which runs between the two buildings. They were met and driven back by a body of cavalry. They retreated, fighting down the Boulevard St. Michel. Many students were trampled or cut, and several cavalrymen were wounded by flying stones.

The students finally got possession of a dozen streets between the Boulevard St. Germain and the Seine. Infantry and cavalry were at hand, however, to restrain them from breaking into the public buildings.

An hour later the whole district between the Rue St. Peres and the College de France, two blocks east of the Boulevard St. Michel, was in full riot. Troops of cavalry and squads of police were stationed in every street. The students held their ground. They stopped and upset all vehicles. Scores of carts and carriages were set on fire. Many students used revolvers.

The mob in front of the Charity hospital was charged repeatedly by the police, but fought back and would not disperse. Their allies in windows of buildings near the hospital pelted the police with crockery, furniture and cotton wool saturated with carbolic acid. Many policemen were injured. Although holding the mob at the hospital for hours the police were unsuccessful in taking the offensive.

Workmen Lend a Hand.

The critical situation was complicated by the demonstration of the workingmen. Three thousand of them met in the Labor Exchange and decided to remain in the building all night to prevent the authorities from exercising their threats to close it. More than 1,500 workingmen marched right abreast through the disturbed districts.

It was reported that Nogue's body will be sent to Lyons in order that no opportunity for a demonstration at the funeral may be given. Students watched the railway station to thwart the plan.

The keenest anxiety was every where apparent. General Saussier, military governor of Paris, prepared the garrison for the worst.

At midnight the mobs piled up the carriages and carts which they had seized to barricade the streets. All the shops between the Rue de Peres and the College de France were closed early in the evening. The names of 20 men seriously injured in the riots of the night have been reported. Twelve of the injured are in hospitals. M. Loze, prefect of police, tendered his resignation to the government, but the government refused to accept it until after the restoration of order.

At 1 o'clock this morning the report from the Latin quarter said that most of the windows were broken, the lamposts were lying across the streets, and broken furniture and half smashed vehicles lay strewn over the pavements. A police brigadier is said to have been seriously wounded with a revolver.

This morning's newspapers give many features of the fierce revolution manifested by the students' mobs. On the Boulevard St. Michel the rioters caused a block of tramcars.

They compelled the passengers in the first car to alight, smashed the windows and window frames with iron bars, unhitched the horses and then turned the car upside down. The others nearby was quick to follow this example, and within five minutes five other cars had been attacked and upset.

In the Rue Eugene Delacroix 20 lads built a barricade of vehicles and paving stones. This barricade, like most of the others, was formed in the operations of the cavalry, and was engnable against the police. The Paris newspapers say that one policeman was killed and 30 or 40 policemen and 150 rioters were injured.

Many Miners Entombed.

LONDON, July 5.—Great excitement was caused in Thornhill, Yorkshire, by an explosion that occurred in Ingram's colliery. One hundred and forty-five miners were entombed, and it is feared the loss of life would be heavy.

Many bodies have been recovered and brought to the surface. The pit is badly blocked with fallen rock, dirt and timbers.

It was feared that the men who escaped death in the explosion would be suffocated by the choke damp now rapidly spread.

The day shift went to work as usual. The ventilation was reported good. All went well until noon, when the workers at the pit's mouth were startled by a muffled explosion and by clouds of dense smoke rolling up the main shaft. They tried to communicate with the working, but found that the interior had been cut off from the shaft.

The pit managers organized an explosion party and descended slowly through the smoke. They were driven back repeatedly, and eventually gave up the purpose of penetrating to the working before the men one should be cleared away.

After taking up the bodies found at the bottom of the shaft the rescuing party waited for several hours before making another descent. About the middle of the morning they went down again. The gas had cleared off near the shaft and they were able to examine part of the working.

The bodies of the miners lay in heaps. Many were sent to the surface. Up to noon the efforts are hopeless to reach the few miners who may still be alive. About 116 are supposed to have been killed.

So much gas finally accumulated in the mine that it was necessary to stop the work of rescue. The men and boys missing number 145. The dead body of the underманager, badly burned, was found in the mine near the shaft.

The cause of the explosion has not been ascertained. There is no indication that it was anything more exceptionally grave, but the flames spread through the mine always with extraordinary rapidity and produced an enormous amount of afterdamp. Why it was so difficult to get some of the passages were blocked with wood and stone. The old unused seam in which the fire appeared will be flooded.

There was considerable excitement at the pit's mouth when the manager announced that more than 100 miners were lost. One woman fell dead when she learned that her husband had been killed. The local relief fund may devote to the relief of the stricken families the fund collected for the royal wedding fete.

The Riot a Political Movement.

LONDON, July 5.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily News says that the roughs who are aiding the riotous students are supposed to be in the pay of political wire pullers, who wish to bring the Dupuy government into discredit.

RIOT AFTER RACES.

One Man Fatally Shot and Several Others Badly Injured.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 5.—A riot occurred at the railroad station near Kirkwood which culminated in the probably fatal shooting of William Benson and the injury of several others. Thousands of persons were returning from the races of the Maple Valley Trotting association at the great kite track. A fight arose between George Anderson, colored, and several others, during which razors glimmered and brickbats promiscuously flew. One negro drew a revolver.

State Detective McVey attempted to quell the disturbance. He was assisted by Sergeants Shields and Bailey of the police force. The policemen were assailed by the negroes, who drew revolvers and razors and hurled bricks at them. Detective McVey was wounded with a brick and is in a precarious condition. Two policemen were injured.

William Benson, of Kent county, Md., a bystander, was hit by a flying bullet and will die. He was carried in a special train waiting to convey passengers from the races and brought to this city. Thomas Lowry had his skull fractured with a brick. Several others were fearfully slashed with razors. The following negroes were arrested: Carter Buck of Middletown, Del.; Lewis N. Benson of Kirkwood, Richard Rogers and George Anderson. All of them are locked up on the charge of attempted murder.

Two Track Records Broken.

KIRKWOOD, Del., July 5.—Two world's records were broken on the Maple Valley Trotting association kite shaped track at Kirkwood. Star Pointer and driven by James Gvenn of this city paced a mile in 2:05¾, beating the record for pacing in a race made by Guy in 2:06¾. John Nanlin of Parkville, L. I., drove his trotter Argot P to a pole, with Telephone as a running mate, making the mile in 2:03¾ and breaking another world's record.

Lightning Struck Four.

KANSAS CITY, July 5.—While standing under a tree south of this city Mrs. Irving Clark, aged 19, and Frank Paullin, aged 13, were struck by lightning and instantly killed. Mrs. Irving Clark and Miss Minnie Clark, who were with the boys, were stunned, and lay under the tree for an hour before they regained consciousness.

A Wire Walker Breaks a Record.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 5.—Fully 10,000 people saw Clifford Calverly perform some wonderful feats on his wire stretched across the Niagara gorge. He beat all time records by running across the wire at the speed in 2 minutes 35 2-5 seconds, which is one minute faster than the record established last summer by Dickson.

A Man Covered With Blood.

UTICA, N. Y., July 5.—J. C. Upton, the man who jumped the 208 foot waterway limited between Dion and Herkimer, appeared at a farmhouse near the former place all covered with blood. The inmates of the house took him for a tramp, and since then he has not been seen.

Ward's Private Bank Suspends.

BUFFALO, July 5.—The doors of Ward's bank of Forestville, a private corporation, failed to open. Wild rumors are flying about concerning the cause. The assets and liabilities are not known here, and it is thought there were probably $60,000 to $75,000 of deposits.

Played With a Revolver.

ASTORIA, L. I., July 5.—August Zeiser, 17 years old, of Astoria, and Wm. Williamsburg, was fatally wounded by the accidental discharge of a 22 caliber revolver, with which he was playing.

The Gunner In the Guard-house.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The gunner at Governor's Island fired 28 guns instead of 21 for a national salute, in under arrest in the guardhouse and will be courtmartialed.

P. T. Barnum's Statue Unveiled.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 5.—The P. T. Barnum statue at Seaside park was unveiled before a throng of fully 11,000 people, including many visitors from other cities.

He Had a Bomb.

MADRID, July 5.—The police arrested a man carrying a bomb under his coat in the immediate neighborhood of the house of ex-Premier Canovas del Castillo.

Steeple Mite Record Smashed.

LONDON, July 5.—AT Herne Hill L. J. Metaljon, the bicyclist, beat the "safety" record by covering in one hour a distance of 24 miles, 264 yards.

A Statue of Gutenberg Unveiled.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., July 5. — The bronze statue of William Lloyd Garrison, presented to the city by William H. Sweety, was unveiled.

NEWS OF THE CAPITAL.

The Fairchild Commission Complains of Unruly Officials.

LYON'S LETTER NOT RECEIVED.

New York's Surveyor Says He Has Resigned, but the Treasury People Know It Not. The Democratic Leaguer's Call—Treasurer Huntoon Required In the Disaster Case.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Fairchild commission is sadly informed Secretary Carlisle that it is very much embarrassed by the action of the New York custom house officials, especially that of Mr. Lyon. Previous to leaving the city Secretary Carlisle after receiving this information from New York transmitted to that port the following telegram: "Why is letter notice not thought advisable in the premises. The president is perfectly familiar with all the circumstances attending the efforts of the Fairchild commission to investigate custom matters at the port of New York and Secretary Carlisle desires to know why the old officials," to ask the expression of a treasury officer official, to prevent it from arriving at the exact facts in the case.

The impression obtains at the treasury department that the president will not longer hesitate to take summary action in the case of those who have apparently defied the authority of the Fairchild commission, disregarding explicit orders of Secretary Carlisle and, to use a legal phrase, have brought themselves "into contempt of court."

Had the president been able to agree upon the successors of Mr. Lyon and Mr. Cooper last week, as at one time seemed possible, the changes would then have been made, but now even if he does not appoint them he can remove them in view of their recent action, he will probably examine the offices of surveyor and appraiser. Since Mr. Lyon's statement that he had sent a letter to Secretary Carlisle treasury officials have swatted a letter to rain.

The Letter Never Came.

An official statement from the treasury department has been made on this subject to the effect that Mr. Lyon was called upon by the commission to furnish certain information concerning their subordinates officials and employees and declined to do so. Mr. Lyon was requested by the department by the commission, and thereupon Mr. Lyon was ordered by the secretary to comply with the request, but he has not made so up to the present time. In an interview published in the newspapers, he claims to have sent a letter to the secretary of the treasury disputing the authority of the commission, but no such or any other letter has been received from him on the subject, although his interview appeared several days ago.

Need of Tape Necessary.

It is stated that the government must prove by sufficient evidence in each case that the victims of the Ford's theatre disaster were killed by the collapse of the building before the grand jury will return indictments against Messrs. Ainsworth, Bell, Ferguson and Edwards, the government's jury with responsibility for the affair.

A witness must be produced that he saw the bodies in the wreck and that they were placed in the patrol or other vehicle. Another will give evidence showing that deceased was removed to the morgue, where the bodies were viewed by the coroner's jury to testify that he saw the dead body in the deadhouse, thus forming a chain of evidence commencing in the ruins of the old theater building and ending in the morgue.

A detective has been put to work hunting up the necessary witnesses and it is expected that the evidence will be completed by the end of the present week.

The Democratic League's Call.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The following call for a national convention of the American Bimetallic league was issued:

The recent culmination of events of the greatest moment to the people of this country calls for wise counsel and determined action on the part of all patriotic citizens. It is evident purpose is manifest to seize upon the present opportunity to destroy silver as money and to establish finally and forever the single gold standard, and at one stroke to change all debts to gold debts, with a never ending rise of gold and fall of prices.

A financial disturbance, largely artificial and needless, has been created as an "object lesson," and has attained such a degree as to paralyze our industries, and spread ruin and desolation all around us. Under the guise of conservatism the money of the constitution and establishing the single gold standard is being accomplished. The friends of the same great conspiracy the saints of India have been closed, and the shock is felt around the world.

Congress has been called to meet in extra session on August 7. If at this session the money question is not settled, and the single gold standard is finally established, to the ruin of all over the world, an irretrievable revolution will have been accomplished, and disaster to the welfare of mankind, and especially to the industrial classes, than any in the history of the world.

In view, therefore, of the threatening condition of affairs and the need for prompt and concerted action and in answer to numerous appeals for action, the executive committee of the American Bimetallic league has decided to call a national convention to assemble to be held at Chicago, beginning Aug. 1 and to continue as long as the convention may direct. All organizations in favor of bimetallism are invited, and all who are in favor of maintaining the rights of the American people opposed to the establishment of the gold standard alone in the United States, without regard to party, are invited to send delegates to the convention. Each congressional district is entitled to two delegates at large and one additional for each 150,000 inhabitants of the respective districts. All industrial organizations are invited to send delegates to this convention. A special invitation is extended to members of congress and members of state legislatures. Governors of states are requested to appoint as many delegates as they may deem proper. By order of the executive committee.

W. H. CHILDS, President.

Silver Men Predict Situation.

DENVER, July 5.—The chamber of commerce in conjunction with other commercial exchanges has sent an address to every commercial organization in the south and west asking forth that the unconditional repeal of the present silver law, reducing this country to a gold basis, must result in practically closing every silver mine and smelter in the country, throwing every industry and ruining the wheat, cotton and wool industries.

India's Silver Position.

SIMLA, July 5.—In replying to a question in the house of council Sir Dawab Miller Barbour, financial member of the viceregal council, said that under the new order the sovereigns would be accepted to set unlimited amount by the Indian mints. Bank of England notes would not be so accepted. The silver now en route to India would be taken only to avert a commercial panic.

Mrs. Jennie Powell

"By the advice of my physician and many friends of the family, who had taken it with great benefit, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had been afflicted with a humor in my blood for many years, and in the spring it would break out in my face, causing me much annoyance. I was also troubled with dyspepsia. I took three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took before. All I can say is that I am glad I took it."—Mrs. JENNIE POWELL, Lowell, Mass.

DIED FOR LOVE'S SAKE.

Annie Killed Herself Rather Than Lose Her Lover.

PARENTS OBJECTED TO MURRAY.

She Selected Non-Poisonous and Then Swallowed Three Bottles of Laudanum—Murray Refused Admittance When She Was Dying, and Has Gone Away Forever.

MEDDHAM, N. J., July 5.—When Annie Dunlap's mother objected to a young man who was courting her, she became despondent, and every one in this little village, which is not far from Morristown, noticed a remarkable change in the girl. She became moody, and seeing that her mother could not be changed she calmly and deliberately planned to end her life.

She was discovered unconscious in bed last Saturday morning with three empty laudanum bottles beside her. Physicians were summoned, and the girl revived sufficiently to admit having swallowed what had been in the three bottles in an attempt to end her life. She relapsed into unconsciousness after making this confession and died the next day.

Annie lived with her mother and stepfather, Miles De Groot, and was paid by them for her services as housekeeper. Douglas Murray, a young carpenter, boarded until recently with the De Groots, and fell in love with Annie. His love was returned. Mr. De Groot accused Murray of intemperate habits and ordered him out of the house three weeks ago.

Intercepted a Love Letter.

With her lover's banishment came sorrow for the girl. She was instructed to have nothing to do with him, and on Thursday last when the morning mail brought her a letter addressed in Murray's handwriting Mr. De Goot confiscated it and sternly lectured her daughter.

Annie returned at 10 o'clock on Friday night and failed to appear at breakfast the following morning. Her younger sister found her unconscious in bed at 10 o'clock that morning. Two letters lay beside her. They were addressed to Henry Dunlap, her elder brother, who lives in Morristown and to Mrs. Gates Parsons, a sister at Morris Plains. Both letters were brief.

"I am going to kill myself," she wrote, because I have nothing to live for. God alone will forgive me. Be kind and good to everybody and we will meet again."

With the letters was found a list of friends whom she selected to act as pallbearers at her own funeral.

When young Murray heard of his sweetheart's condition on Saturday night he at once went to her home. Mrs. De Groot met him at the door and refused to permit him to see the dying girl. The sound of their voices reached Annie, who at the moment was conscious. She piteously begged to be permitted to see him and the mother relented. Murray then could not be found and the girl relapsed into unconsciousness with his name upon her lips.

"Annie was a remarkably good and pretty girl," said Mrs. Dunlap, the dead girl's sister-in-law. "She undoubtedly loved Murray, and she was driven to desperation by the unkindness of Mr. De Groot, who ordered Murray out of his house.

"The poor girl took her life deliberately. I know she told friends just before the suicide of her determination to die. 'I can live no longer with my stepfather,' said she, 'but I cannot live without my mother. So there is only one thing left for me—I must die. God will forgive me.'"

Her Lover Will Never Return.

Annie's friends in Meddham speak in the highest terms of her. Murray left Meddham immediately after Annie's death, vowing never to return again.

Mr. and Mrs. De Groot are uncommunicative about the affair. "Yes, she poisoned herself, but we don't know any reason for it," was all either of them would say.

They declare that young Murray was a hard drinker and not at all the right man for their daughter. Others in Meddham, however, speak highly of him.

Annie's funeral took place this morning. She was a member of the Christian Endeavor society, and her friends of that organization attended in a body. Coroner J. N. Hughes of Morristown made an investigation and found that the girl had swallowed at least four ounces of laudanum, which she had purchased in three small bottles from as many local druggists early last week.

Good Cooking is essential to Good Digestion—

in poetry you cannot have either without a good shortening. Lard has always had very objectionable features, causing indigestion and many other dietetic troubles. Science has come to the assistance of the cook, and of weak stomachs, with the new shortening.

Cottolene

It is composed of the choicest beef suet and highly refined vegetable oil, in many respects as good as the finest imported olive oil. Physicians endorse it, cooking experts recommend it, and thousands are now using it in preference to any other shortening. Refuse all substitutes.

SMASHED THE EXHIBITS.

A Minister's Liberal Views at the Home of the Fair.

CHICAGO, July 5.—The Rev. John T. James of Aldie, London county, Va., made an attempt to smash the rum power. Walking into the Agricultural building at the World's fair grounds the reverend gentleman came up to the handsome whisky exhibit made by Sir John Powers of Dublin, Ireland.

Suddenly he raised a heavy hickory cane he was carrying and smashed away at the bottles arranged in the form of the famous Round Towers of Ireland. Three times he smote the exhibit, bringing down about 20 bottles and spilling the liquor on the floor of the building.

Then he was seized by the guards and the club wrenched from his hand. A patrol wagon was summoned and the clergyman was given a ride to the patrol barn, where he signified his meaning the exhibit. He was kept a prisoner while a warrant was being procured, and meanwhile wrote out a long statement of "Why I struck the whisky power," saying that if was because Jehovah told him and that he did it on the Fourth of July as an appropriate day.

Rang the New Liberty Bell.

ALBANY, July 5.—Hundreds of people gathered at the Clinton H. Meneely Bell foundry, Troy, to view the Columbian Liberty bell and hear its first tones. When word was received from Chicago, with which place direct communication with the foundry yard was had, that all was ready for the ringing of the bell, two workmen held a 60 pound bell clapper, which Mr. Chester Meneely guided, while six blows were struck on the bell, which was in the foundry, mouth upward. The notes sounded were deep and melodious, and when they rang out the assembled gathering cheered and cheered again.

Fireworks at Gray Gables.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 5.—The president at an early hour this morning had not arrived at Gray Gables. No announcement had been entertained, as he is in communication with Mrs. Cleveland and is well. There was a modest but very pretty display of fireworks at Gray Gables.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

A Pretty Little Jap.

It seems curious that little Miss Fatima Axtell—there, I have told you her name—should have a man for a teacher, as, you know, our little girls have governesses.

But such is the custom in Japan. The little girls there seem always to be under the control of one of the sterner sex. During my visit to Miss Fatima in Washington a few weeks since she clung to the arm of her beloved instructor and friend and seemed much attached to him. His manner toward the little girl was touchingly kind and gentle.

He is her playmate, friend and teacher and comes next to the parents, who almost idolize their only child. To know Miss Fatima is to love her, as she is a remarkably sweet mannered child.

She is 6 years old and has been in America a year.—Home Maker.

Boy Soldiers In Paris.

Everybody in large cities is familiar with the sight of classes from military schools, uniformed, marching through the streets, and in the Columbian celebration in New York they were combined in regiments, drilled thoroughly, and their marching and wheeling formed a most attractive feature of the splendid exhibition of those days.

Now, the French have always had a taste for military demonstrations of any sort, and in Paris especially they have formed quite an army of boy soldiers, who are organized, drilled and disciplined just like the French army. There are more than 7,000 of these boys, between 13 and 16 years of age, and they are recruited from the scholars in the public schools. The uniform is that of a sailor boy, and they carry toy muskets. They are drilled by sergeants from the regular army and commanded by officers on half pay.

They are so popular in Paris and in the army that when they are out on parade marching to the sound of the bugle the guard turns out at the barracks and the sentries on duty before the Bank of France and other public buildings salute the "hope of France."—Once a Week.

A Favorite German Pastime For Children.

"The German band" is often a great favorite with children. The "band" is formed by every one assembling in line, the leader standing on a chair and giving the signal for a start. The different instruments are then imitated with more or less skill, each performer taking for his model the conductor. First an imitation of the drummer may be given, followed by the trombone or cymbals; then we have the triangle, clarinet, fife, French horn and bass viol. Precision is the point to be aimed at by all the instrumentalists. Laggards are punished with forfeits to meet the case.—New York World.

The Little Girl That Cried.

Once the Little Girl That Cried,
Looking through her tears, espied
Lovely notes of colored light
In the fringe of her eye—
Just as when the weather clears,
And the clouds are put to flight,
There's a rainbow in the sky.
And the Little Girl That Cried
When she saw this lovely sight—
This the rainbow in her tears—
Would forget the reason why
She had thought it best to cry.

A TALE OF A RAT.

A rat that dwelt in a stack of hay
Went wandering round the farm one day.
While prowling here and prying there
He came to a lofty wooden stair.
Said he—I will climb up and will not stop,
Until I come to the very top.
Up he got till he came to a door,

Through a chink he spied the grassy floor.
The rat, you must know, was rather thin,
So he very easily crept in.
And filled his heart with glad surprise.
Big sacks of grain were piled around,
When he saw their mouths with cords were bound
He gnawed their sides till he reached the corn,
And then he feasted from night 'till morn.

Said Boy—You're mine.
Pussy Cat—(seriously)—Did your mother write this excuse?
Bad Boy—You're.
Bad Boy—Measure waste it; but, please, ma'am, she had sister Jennie in one arm crying with a bumped head, and brother Willie in the other, with a cut finger and a lot of sewing on her lap, and she was rocking the cradle with her knee, and she had to write with her toes.
Pussy Cat—(relenting)—I am very sorry, Mr. Poorchap, but I have changed my mind. I shall never marry.—Good News.

Queer Mixtures.

Two or three weeks ago, according to The Gastonia, N. C., Gazette, Jack White's hog killed a rattlesnake in his lot. Sylvester reptorets. Mrs. White directed the hogs to give them to the cat. It so happened that the cat at that time had a nest of young kittens. The cat put the snakes in the nest with the kittens and they are with them yet. The reptorets boomed right along with the kittens. They were healthy, the cold cat concerning. They have grown and flourished on their diet and nearly surrounding only when frightened by unusual noise.

Why It Was Neglected.

The farm editor received the following story and sent it to the cattle column editor, so as returned it because he had it "stated facts and not fiction: A horticulturist had missed many apples every night. Finally he got a scheme to catch the boy who was helping himself to his neighbor's boys. In the dim night light he saw limbs of apple trees shaking, and then he heard the fruit falling. He had some men scatter the orchard. Approaching, he crept up close to the shaking tree. He saw a hobgoblin dressed from the tree, roll over on the ground until he had black eye lashes with the fruit, attached by the quills, and wabbled off. The farm editor didn't doubt the story, but wondered what in his hasty, animal reasoned with explain.

Quite the Contrary.

Daughter—Pa, did my friend call on you last evening to get your ultimatum in the matter of his suit?

Pa—He did.

Daughter—And you expressed yourself with your whole soul, I hope.

Pa—On the contrary, my dear, I expressed him with my whole sole.—Boston Courier.

Dangerous.

Tom—How is it you don't call on Miss Fitz any more?

Jack—I recently bought her little brother a bedak.—Vogue.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," THURSDAY, JULY 6, 1893. PRICE TWO CENTS.

THIS MAN!

Is not going away. In fact, his tracks are so full that he will stay right where he is. So we won't hear from him.

Plainfielders who are going away can have their paper; The Evening News, mailed to them at the same rate they are now paying. No extra charge to our subscribers.

We should also be pleased to hear from you. Letters to The News would be an easy method of informing your friends of the pleasant time you are having.

BREVITIES.

—The Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. will meet this evening.

—According to experts a healthy adult will perspire 28 ounces in 24 hours of hot weather.

—Turtle Soup was served to the patrons of the Central hotel, at eight o'clock last evening.

—Queen City Lodge, No. 293, I. O. O. F. met Monday evening, and initiated several new members.

—John Goff of Third and Liberty streets is the first to put up a public drinking fountain for man and beast.

—The picnic of the Plainfield Outing Club at Veil's grove, on the Fourth, was a success. It netted the members $138.

—The next team shoot of the New Jersey Trap Shooters' League will be held on the South Side Gun Club's grounds in Newark on July 11.

—Dog-assessor "Jim" Frisby made an effort to bag a colored female to an East Front street place, Saturday. He was called down, and the woman walked out.

—In August a team race will be held over the Elizabeth-Cranford course under the auspices of the Associated Cycling Clubs of New Jersey. Four men will constitute a team.

—The Plainfield Corps of the [illegible] are to go to New Brunswick. [illegible] corps stationed there. [illegible] hence there will be no meeting [illegible] hall on West Second street.

—Isaac Brokaw of West Fourth street says he has picked 144 quarts of cherries from one tree, and he further alleges there are enough more on the tree for the family to can for Winter purposes.

—Two colored men, said to be sons of a Mr. Devine in this city had a fight at the North avenue station, Tuesday night. The two fought viciously and finally one of the brothers hit the other over the head with a satchel. No arrests were made.

—Geo. Melius of Westfield came to town Saturday night on a bicycle with coal oil in his lantern. At the corner of Fourth street and Park avenue, the oil caught fire and the lamp was thrown in to the street, and broken. He had to walk out of town with no light.

—If a few of the "Well! Well! Well!" crank could be muzzled probably there would be a larger attendance of the fair sex at the base ball games, but its hard for them to keep still when a good play is made, and, if compelled, they would probably scream for joy in time to shout.

—A writer for Science says that while one bathes his breath is proof against the sting of a bee. He further says the bee may be held by the legs and he will try to sting but will never succeed until the breath is expelled, and then he will accomplish his purpose with speed and certainty.

—It is reported that John Voorhees of of Ten-mile Run owns a seven legged calf. It was born a few days ago. The four rear legs are of natural size and perfect, but one of the forelegs is considerably shorter than the others and does not reach the ground. The owner of the calf was born during the blizzard of 1888.

—When flies become troublesome in a house or room, they can always be expelled by a very simple mixture. A half teaspoonful of black pepper, finely ground, should be mixed with double the quantity of brown sugar, and the compound to be moistened with cream. The flies will generally eat greedily of this mixture, if placed where they can easily reach it, but it will be their last meal, for the least of it is to a fly rank poison. If washed they will often be seen to drop dead within a few feet of the plate which they have last left, and some of the healthiest eaters do not live to leave the plate.—Ex.

Railroad Shops at Elizabeth Closed.

The Central Railroad paint shops at Elizabeth have been closed, throwing a large number of men out of work. The shops were established in 1885 and were never known to suspend operations before, in the dullest times not less than forty-five men being kept at work. Three years ago 250 men were employed, ang last Spring 180 men were at work.

Among the men discharged one had worked thirty-seven years for the company, another twenty-eight years, and several had been employed from fifteen to twenty years.

MR. FRENCH CONSENTS.

AND THE SOMERSET STREET RAILWAY WILL BE COMPLETED.

An Amicable Settlement Reached Last Night.—All Litigation Dropped, and the Company will pay the Expenses.—Work Resumed This Morning.

The street railway on Somerset street is to be finished at once. A settlement was reached last night, between Mr. F. M. French and the street railway company. Men commenced the work of digging up the street early this morning, while others began the erection of the poles.

Mr. French instituted the suit, which will be dropped, and hindered the finishing of the road, chiefly because the company would raise the grade of the street in front of his property, thereby putting him to the expense of raising the sidewalk and the floors of his mill.

By the terms of the settlement the company agrees not to raise the grade of the street and not to place a switch or turnout between Front street and the bridge, thus overcoming Mr. French's objections. The company will pay all the expenses so far incurred by litigation. The whole matter is therefore amicable settled.

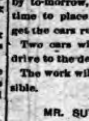
The work of excavating will be finished by to-morrow, but it will take some time to place the wires in position and get the cars running.

Two cars will be run from Johnston's drive to the depot.

The work will be pushed as fast as possible.

MR. SUYDAM FINED $10.

For Building an Elevator without Permission.



KNOWLEDGE of the laws that govern building in this city would have saved Mr. Suydam money and trouble.

The case of the city against Mr. John F. Suydam of Bloomfield, for the erection of an elevator in the rear of the store, No. 23 East Front street, without permission from the Council, was tried before Judge Codding ton this morning. The case was the first of the kind ever tried in Plainfield and therefore was very important as it establishes a precedent in the matter of property owners right to construct such buildings.

Mr. Craig A. Marsh appeared for the city and Mr. Suydam's lawyer was Mr. Halsey Barrett, a well-known Newark lawyer.

Mr. Suydam, through his counsel, pleaded guilty to the breaking of the ordinance, and a plea of leniency was made in his behalf, as he did not do it intentionally, and had already had the boards of the elevator torn off in compliance with the notice served on him by Chief Deane.

The frame of the elevator is not objected to and it will be allowed to stand.

The ordinance provides that for such an offense a fine of $100 or 60 days imprisonment, or both, may be imposed. As Mr. Suydam had been put to much expense by having the elevator built, and then torn down, and as leniency was asked for, the city judge fined him $10 and costs.

FRIGHTENED BY THE CARS.

A Horse Tries to Run Away—The Buggy Broken.

Tuesday, as Mr. Joseph Darby was driving from this city to Dunellen, and when in front of Mr. Hoagland's place on Front street, his horse, frightened by an electric car, started to run away.

But for the fact that Mr. Darby is an expert horseman, a serious accident might have resulted. As it was his buggy was partially wrecked. He was compelled to drive into Mr. Hoagland's and leave his broken vehicle there while he went to a livery stable and procured another wagon.

Horses Dying of Meningeritis.

Philip Voorhees of Warrenville has lost three horses within two weeks from spinal meningeritis, and a fourth one is down with it. The horses become helpless within an hour after the attack, and lie down unable to use their hind legs. The throat becomes so sore that they cannot swallow, and they linger about a week before dying or dead. Mr. Voorhees is a young farmer whom everybody likes, and will deeply sympathize with him in his present misfortune.

Fined $10 for Trying to Collect $8.

Because Wallace Vail owed him two dollars Samuel Russell went to his place of business on North avenue yesterday and without waiting for Mr. Vail to pay the money began to abuse him. Russell created such a row by his cursing and loud talking, that Policeman Kiely was sent for, and he was soon placed safely in the lock-up.

The Judge gave him the choice of paying a fine or spending 10 days in the county jail. He took the latter.

DR. COOLEY'S MISHAPS.

The Team Ran Away and One of the Horses Jumped Upon a Barbed Wire Fence.—Dr. Cooley Escapes Injury.—His Coachman Badly Hurt.

Dr. Justus H. Cooley of Westervelt avenue had a narrow escape from serious injury last night. His coachman, Julius Dorsey, hitched up the team at about half-past seven and drove to the door for Dr. Cooley to go riding. The horses were young and spirited and not been out for a few days.

One of them had a boot put on for the first time last night, as he interfered, and just as Dr. Cooley got to the horses started off, striking the boot against the other leg. This frightened the animal, and both horses started to run. Before the doctor could get control of them they turned short in the road, upsetting the buggy, and threw him out. The coachman was also thrown out, striking on his head and receiving a bad scalp wound. His back was also badly hurt. Dr. Cooley escaped with a few bruises. The horses ran into a tree, the harness broke, tearing one of the horses head and into the gutter. It got up and started up Westervelt avenue, but was caught when near Grandview avenue by Mr. Lenger. The other horse started in the same direction. Julius and Dr. Cooley had in the mean time picked themselves up and, as the other horse started, Dr. Cooley made a grab for it, but it shied off to one side and Julius caught hold of the reins. He held on and was dragged some distance when the reins broke, and the horse jumped the barbed wire fence in front of Mr. Johnson's property, cutting its front legs badly. There were also four large cuts on the right and two on the left leg, from two to three inches in length. Several stitches had to be taken in each.

The wagon was slightly broken. A young girl who stood at the gate narrowly escaped getting beneath the horses' feet.

PERSONAL.

Edward Tweedy is at the Curtis Hotel, Lenox, Mass.

Mrs. U. B. Crane of East Second street has gone to Asbury Park.

Captain McDonald and Lieutenant Owens of the Salvation Army, who were visiting friends here over the Fourth, returned to New York yesterday afternoon, after spending an enjoyable time in Plainfield.

Among the base-ball enthusiasts in the borough is the charming wife of Borough Council Snook. She, not to be outdone himself, somewhat of a weakness for a good ball game. Mrs. Snook keeps score through the game, and keeps it correctly, too.

Mr. Andrew Love, Jr., who was injured Fourth of July by having his face and eyes filled with powder from a pistol, is improving, and Dr. Cornell, the second physician, says he doesn't think he will lose his eyesight. One eye is already all right.

FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

A REGULAR MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

The By-Laws Amended so that the Board will Meet on Tuesday Instead of Wednesday.—The Annual Report of the Directors.

A regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Free Public Library was held last evening. There were present Messrs. A. G. Baldwin, M. W. Tyler, J. B. Dunellen, George H. Sandford, J. Evarts Tracy, and Wm. M. Stillman.

The minutes of the meeting of June 7th were read and approved. The following bills were approved and ordered paid.

Wm. H. Williams, periodicals	$14 65
Bates & Lauter, books	12 30
Miss Adams, salary	30 00
Miss Love, salary	16 00
S. H. Allen, salary	41 66

On motion Miss Adams was granted a leave of absence of three weeks.

The following resolution, offered by Mr. Tyler at the last meeting, and on motion, Article IX. of the By-laws of the Library was amended by striking out the word "Wednesday" and inserting in place thereof the word "Tuesday," so that the Board of Directors will regularly hold its meetings of the Board of Directors will be held on the first Tuesday in each month."

The Librarian's report for June was received and ordered on file.

On motion the annual report of the Directors of the Public Library was ordered spread on the minutes, as follows:

No. of vols. in Library May 31, '93.....11,186
" " " periodicals and papers read 51
" " " card holders 2 072
" " visitors to Library building.....12,000

The home circulation and general character of books and kinds of loaned out have been as follows:

Fiction, 11,332; juvenile, 5,304; geography, 1,018; travel, 307; philosophy, 109; religion, 1,203; sociology, 460; philology, 19; natural science, 622; useful arts, 276; fine arts, 426; literature, 1,526; history, 861; periodicals, 128. Total—26,707.

The use of the Library of books of reference has been extensive and constant. Five books have been lost in circulation during the year, but all have been replaced at the borrower's expense. 40 books are now missing from the Library having been taken clandestinely from the shelves, 17 of which have been taken during the last two years. A catalogue or finding list of the books in the Library has been in course of preparation during the greater part of the year. This has been a tedious work, requiring the exercise of great care and the expenditure of much time and labor, and although the list will make a printed volume of several hundred pages and involves a considerable expense which must be paid out of funds now on hand the Board has deemed it of the greatest importance to the usefulness of the Library and feels sure that the completed work will be highly appreciated. The Board is gratified to be able to report that this work is approaching completion, and that the printed list will probably be available for use by September of the present year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Dated June 7, 1893.

Adjourned.

WM. M. STILLMAN,
Secretary.

WHY NOT MOVE TO PLAINFIELD.

The Central Furnishes Plenty of Fast Trains.

The residents of Metuchen, about six miles from here, are much concerned over securing faster trains to New York. There are a large number of commuters in the town, and they complain that the Pennsylvania Railroad does not give them enough trains nor rapid ones. For this reason they have got up a petition for the running of two trains on the Port Reading Railroad between Metuchen and Carteret, there to connect with the Central trains to Jersey City.

THE ADMISSION REDUCED.

Ball Games May be Seen Hereafter for Fifteen Cents.

The Crescents will have the Olympics of Paterson as opponents on Saturday, and it should be an interesting game as they claim to be stronger than their rivals who played here on the Fourth. Several old Somerville players are with the Olympics.

At the Directors meeting of the Amusement Company, last evening, it was decided to reduce the price to 15 cents admission and 25 cents for grand stand.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Fourth of July Celebrations.

The Forum contains an admirable paper from Julia Ward Howe on the proper manner of observing Independence day. She quotes the well known passage from John Adams in regard to bells and bonfires, but she also quotes the beginning of the paragraph which gives authority for the explosion of firecrackers. The first sentence appears to have quite dropped out of remembrance in the pop-ular mind. It is this: "It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty." Mrs. Howe believes in explosions for the children, but at the same time it must not be forgotten that the real object of the celebration is an expression of the gratitude of the people for the foundation of this republic. She says, "The question will be how to make the Fourth of July a true festival —a national holiday—without forgetting the claims of the young to be amused as well as instructed." She proposes this programme:

On the evening of the 3d of July quiet gatherings in halls or churches, in which the brave love of country should be explained and illustrated. How many a name, half or wholly forgotten, would then be recalled from oblivion, and with it the labor and sacrifice of some noble life, some example precious for the community!

The morning of the Fourth to be ushered in by martial music, and a military display sufficient to recall the services of the brave men who gave our fathers liberty. At 10 o'clock orations in various public buildings, the ablest speakers of the commonwealth doing their best to impart the lesson of the day. At 1 o'clock, that feast, wholesome and simple. No wine to be served therein, and none to be sold during the day. From 12 to last year in the afternoon I would like to appoint for the children of the public schools, examination of themes in American history, prizes given for essays on historical and patriotic subjects. Then a gathering in public gardens and a tea, with fruit and flowers, served for the children of the city. In the evening the singing of national anthems, tableaux vivants and fireworks, and in some form a pastoral benediction.

To these exercises I would add the signing of a pledge of good citizenship. We take much pains, and not unwisely, to persuade men and women to sign a pledge of total abstinence from alcoholic liquors. But why should we not go further than this and lead them to pledge themselves to some useful service in the community? This pledge might be either general or particular in its terms, but the act of signing it should imply a disinterested public service of some sort, a participation in some work useful for the health, beauty or order of the city, without other reward than the badge or button which would represent the agreement entered into.

I would have the history of other republics brought forward on this day, and especially the basic struggles of our own times. Among these I would certainly accord a place to the story of the great heart-throb of young Italy when for a time, and I would if I could compel the attendance of our men and women of fashion upon lectures in which the cheerfulness of European society should be exposed and the danger shown of the follies and luxuries upon which they delight to indulge, and which, however æsthetically adorned and disguised, are for us a lead in the pathway of moral and intellectual deterioration.

Halstead's Silver Policy.

In the New York Herald Mr. Murat Halstead outlines a proposal of silver policy for President Cleveland. The main feature of it is that after the Sherman act is repealed silver be made the basis of bank circulation. Mr. Halstead says:

Suppose the repeal of the Sherman law was associated with the repeal of the state bank tax and the provision that national and state banks could issue notes to the amount of 90 per cent of the gold value of deposited silver bullion. There is something more than conjecture that points to this, far off though it seems, as a feature of the financial policy of the administration. Several bills have been introduced practically as here stated, and they have got to do something when congress convenes. The measure suggested would not be attractive at first to the free silver men unless they could issue straight silver paper. They want 100 cents of gold on every dollar of product. Governor Pratt, though declining to purchase any more of the white money now in Queen Victoria, daughters of the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Henry of Battenburg and the Duchess of Albany.

What the Bride Is.

The Princess May is the eldest child and only daughter of the Duke of Teck and Princess Mary of Cambridge, who are both connected with nearly every sovereign in Europe.

She was born at Kensington palace on May 26, 1867, and the greater part of her life has been spent at White Lodge, Richmond park, the residence of her parents. In personal appearance she is tall and slender, with fine features and extreme wealth of expression. Blonde in coloring, with blue eyes and light brown hair.

She is a fine musician, has considerable talent as an artist, a great reader and an expert horsewoman. The princess has been quietly and simply brought up and represents much that is good and highly attractive in English womanhood.

Being so thoroughly English in all her methods of thought and action wins for her the people of the nation and the most popular approval of their prospective queen. She has endeared herself to the hearts of the people by her personal charms, her unaffected manner, her simple, unaffected manner, and is eminently fitted by all the graces of mind and person, and by the essential qualities of intellect and character, to be in due course of time a queen and an empress.

The Duke of York is the only surviving son of the Prince of Wales and by inheritance stands next but one to the throne of England. He is a commander in the royal navy and personal aid de camp to the queen, and a soldier as well.

Knighted Before Marriage.

LONDON, July 6.—It is the Duke of York was made a knight of the Most Ancient and Most Noble Order of the Thistle by Queen Victoria. Dr. William H. Broadbent, the physician who attended the Duke of York during his attack of typhoid fever some time ago, also came in for recognition by her majesty, who created him a baronet.

Firemen's Miraculous Escape.

PROVIDENCE, July 6.—Chief Brierly of Pawtucket and several of his men had a narrow escape from death at a fire in that city. The chief and half a dozen men were in the building when the floors gave way without warning and the entire building collapsed. The firemen were precipitated to the cellar, but singularly they all escaped with slight injury.

At the rate at which the sculptors are using up silver to make life size statues, pretty soon there will not be any more complaint that we have too much of it.

PRINCE WEDS PRINCESS

HEIR TO ENGLAND'S THRONE.

Five Royal Processions Moved From Buckingham Palace This Morning.—The Bride May Some Day Be Queen of England, Betrothed to Her Husband's Brother.

LONDON, July 6.—At Buckingham palace the royalties of Europe gathered today to witness the marriage of England's future sovereign, Prince George of York, to the Princess May of Teck. From Buckingham palace five royal processions moved on to St. James' palace, where, in the royal chapel, the wedding took place amid bowers of flowers. The congratulations of every nation of Europe were tendered the royal couple.

Although it was announced that the wedding would be a quietate affair, it was made one of the greatest social events of all Queen Victoria's long reign, in which there have been so many marriages.

The Scene in the Chapel.

The archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by Mr. Shepherd, minister of the Chapel Royal, officiated. The arrangements at St. James' chapel were practically identical with those observed in the same chapel on the occasion of the wedding of the Princess Royal of England to the Crown Prince of Prussia, the late Emperor Frederick. All the old pews of the choir in the chapel, as well as the altar rails, had been taken away, and there was erected in front of the altar a raised platform on a level with the steps of the altar, on either side of which were rows of chairs for the seating of the lady members of the royal family. There was sufficient space on the platform to accommodate the queen, the bride and bridegroom; the best man, the bridesmaids, the giver away of the bride and a number of royal personages. The queen's pew and galleries were also utilized.

PRINCE GEORGE. PRINCESS MAY.

After the procession and the wedding breakfast at Buckingham palace the newly wedded pair took special train to Sandringham, and will take up their residence at the house which the Prince of Wales has rented. The name of the house will in future be York cottage, instead of Bachelor cottage.

An Embarrassing Position.

All the world is interested in this marriage, and there is plenty to give more than usual interest to it. There never was a bride before put in so trying a position. Brought up to believe it was the duty of her religion that the individual feelings of a princess mattered not one whit when her queen wished her to marry first one grandson and then his brother, the Princess May has been accused of loving Prince George while engaged to the Duke of Clarence, and of showing unwomanly perversity in shirked now with bearing a broken heart for the older brother while obediently being wedded to the younger.

Queen Victoria did everything in her power to emphasize her approval of the match. She gave temporary quarters in Buckingham palace to the Duchess of Teck and her family until after the wedding and invited the duchess to drive to the chapel with her in the royal carriage. She also gave minute directions as to the bridesmaids and their frocks, besides seeing to every detail of the wedding dress. All the costumes of the bridal party were of English manufacture. An English dressmaker made the wedding gown of English silver brocade and the white satin costumes for the 10 bridesmaids. Those 10 maidens were all great friends of Queen Victoria, daughters of the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duke of Connaught, Prince Henry of Battenburg and the Duchess of Albany.

WARRANT FOR HER.

The Police Are Looking For Miss Drake, the Banker's Missing Daughter.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Miss Edith Drake, daughter of James M. Drake, the banker, has disappeared mysteriously, and her parents and friends are much alarmed because of it. They have asked the police to help search for her, because they say her mind is affected somewhat, and they are afraid of harm befalling her.

She is a handsome girl, 27 years of age, and for some time prior to her disappearance was deeply infatuated with Samuel D. McGilvray, a builder, of 457 East Eighty-sixth street.

He is a year younger than Miss Edith, and her father doubts, for reasons sufficient to himself, the sincerity of the affection McGilvray professed for the young woman.

Her father had her apprehended and brought before Justice Grady a month ago. She was then given a private hearing. No proof was adduced, and the case was not held. Mr. Drake took her home with him and then sent her to a private institution for mental treatment. Whether she did not go there at all or broke out from the sanitarium to see her two weeks ago she had gone.

THE MINE DISASTER.

Eighty-eight Bodies Recovered From the Thornhill Colliery.

LONDON, July 6.—The rescuers at the Thornhill mine brought 26 bodies to the surface. Two more were brought up in an unconscious condition, but still breathing. The physicians who had been around the pit's mouth nearly all the time since the accident occurred at once took them in charge, and hopes are entertained that they will recover. Six men, who had sustained no injury whatever, but who had been imprisoned for a long time by falling debris, were dug out. When they arrived at the mouth of the pit they were greeted in a most touching manner by their relatives and friends.

No reason has been given for the explosion, but the conjecture is that it was caused by carelessness on the part of one of the miners in opening his lamp.

All hope for the others in the pit has been abandoned. The bodies of the victims are being rapidly brought to the surface. The scenes at the mouth of the pit as the bodies are brought up and recognized by the relatives and friends of the dead are most distressing.

Bedding Must Be Kept Aboard.

QUARANTINE, N. Y., July 6.—W. C. Stewart, a passenger on one of the Sandy Hook boats, has made complaint by letter to Health Officer Jenkins that a large quantity of bedding was thrown overboard from the Thingvalla line steamer Helka while coming to the bay. Dr. Jenkins boarded the Helka and took the statements of the captain, pilot and officers of the steamer. All denied that any bedding had been thrown overboard from the hatchway limits. The steerages were thoroughly disinfected and the steamer was released. Further investigation will be made later, and if the charges are found to be true the master will be prosecuted.

The Wyckoff Murder Inquest.

HUDSON, N. Y., July 6.—The inquest in the murder case of Fanny Wyckoff was continued. Albert Weinstein, the peddler who had been arrested charged with the crime, was again examined. He testified that there was some suspicion, was placed on the stand, and told a very straight and plausible story. He telegraphed the sheriff last week that he would come here at any time if wanted. Without eliciting any new developments in the mysterious case the inquest was adjourned until next Saturday afternoon.

Russian Exhibitors Arrested.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Ivan Samelovitz Lewitte, in charge of the Russian Silversmith company's exhibit at the World's fair, and Legare Berdan, an employe, on suspicion were held to the federal grand jury for trial in October. They were charged with unlawfully removing goods from a bonded warehouse. It is alleged quite gold goods to visitors for immediate delivery and duplicated the exhibit.

An Official Baseball Game.

ORANGE, N. J., July 6.—A game of ball was played between the members of the Orange common council and the members of the board of education. Mayor Fell acted as umpire, and City Counsel Horton as scorer. The proceeds were divided between the Memorial hospital and the Oakland home. The game ended with the score 13 to 13.

Chicago Has Financial Hopes.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Chicago is now beginning to realize in a practical and substantial way upon its investment in the Columbian exposition. In the period embraced within the last 130 days of the fair it is estimated that a sum ranging from $130,000,000 to $150,000,000 will be brought to Chicago and neighbors.

Honolulu Dynamiters Arrested.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—The steamer Beigic brings advices from Honolulu that the Royalist dynamite conspiracy has collapsed by the arrest of three of the active agents. Twenty others are known to be deeply implicated, among them nine of the numerous ex-cabinet ministers.

Captive Balloon Company Embarrassed.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Matthew J. Swatek, one of the stockholders in the World's Fair Captive Balloon company, filed a bill in the circuit court asking that a receiver for the company be appointed.

Engineer Hogan Rewarded.

BUFFALO, July 6.—Charles H. Hogan, the engineer who made the famous fast run with the Empire State express, was appointed chief of the traveling engineers of the western division of the New York Central.

A Family Quarrel Ended in Tragedy.

LIGHTNING HIT POWDER

NINE INJURED BY FALLING WALLS.

Eastern Pennsylvania Ravaged by a Severe Hailstorm.—Crops of Grain and Grape Vineyards Destroyed, Glass Houses and People Driven to Shelter.

KINGSTON, N. Y., July 6.—During a terrible lightning storm that passed over this city Van Dusen Brothers' powder magazine, at Devil's Lake, a small settlement on the outskirts of the city, was struck by lightning and was completely demolished. There were about 25 kegs of powder in the magazine, and their explosion blew that brick structure to atoms, destroying several buildings nearby and injured nine persons, two of them seriously and the other seven more or less severely.

The terrific report was followed by a dull roar, and many persons rushed from their houses in terror, thinking the city had been visited by an earthquake. Anthony Prussock, with his family, occupied the second floor of one of the demolished buildings. He was sitting at the bedroom talking with his wife when the crash came.

The walls and roof fell in, and Prussock and his wife and children were seriously cut and bruised by flying bricks, glass and other debris.

They were hurled from their chairs and knocked unconscious, and severely cut and bruised by falling timbers.

Another small house on a hill near the magazine was partly demolished. It was occupied by George Sowolski and his family. He and the children escaped with only a severe shaking up, but Mrs. Sowolski was badly cut by flying glass and plaster.

The nine wounded persons were carried to a saloon nearby. Some of them presented a sickening spectacle as they lay on the floor covered with blood, and it was heart rending to hear their pries as Dyt. Crispell and Stern dressed their wounds.

The most severely injured of all is Mrs. Sowolski, who had a cut several inches in length across her scalp and was also severely hurt internally.

The magazine was owned by the Schaghticoke Powder company of Buffalo, and it was used by Van Dusen Brothers, who acted as their agents for this city and vicinity.

An Extraordinary Hailstorm.

READING, Pa., July 6.—This city was visited by a hailstorm which for destructive ness eclipsed all previous storms of the kind. Several hailstorms originated about three miles west of Reading and covered awidth of about four miles.

The streets of the city were covered with hail and water, and the sewers became choked, being entirely too small to carry off even one-tenth of the water. Grain, corn, potatoes, vines, grapes and other fruits were stripped off like leaves. The vineyards on Mount Penn are completely ruined, and the owners do not expect to obtain more than 10 per cent of a crop. Many of these vineyards covered acres, and there is nothing left but the vine.

South of Reading, especially along the Schuylkill valley, the destruction to crops was very great. The wheat, rye and oat crops not yet cut have been leveled to the ground and scattered. The corn was flooded.

At Birdsboro hail fell to the depth of three inches, and in some places was piled up to a depth of nearly a foot.

The storm was the worst of hickory nuts and fell so rapidly that pedestrians in this city were driven from the sidewalks. Hailstones of unusual size were observable from the pelting hail, and the drivers were compelled to stop the cars and seek shelter because of the hail striking them on the heads.

In the southern and northeastern parts of the city many cellars were flooded, and in some instances the water rushed through building, ruining stock. The downpour was terrible, and nothing of the kind has ever been experienced in the recollection of the oldest inhabitants.

At Boyer's Fork the cars were delayed 20 minutes by the track being flooded. A passenger train got into the storm at Phœnixville and remained in it until it was near Pottstown. The storm is described as terrific, and the hail pelting the roofs of the cars caused quite a panic among the passengers. The storm was accompanied by thunder and lightning.

It is believed that the damage in the Schuylkill valley will reach many thousands of dollars. The glass of the hot-houses in this city and in the track of the storm were shattered and thousands of young plants ruined. The beautiful flower and plants which were just set out by the Reading company at the Reading station were cut to pieces. The Reading forge on North Eighth street was flooded to a depth of four feet, and the fires had to be drawn and the works shut down.

Glass Broken In Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—Probably the severest hailstorm that has visited this section in years passed over the northern part of Philadelphia. The path of the severe panel it was very heavy, flooding streets and cellars. Hailstones nearly an inch in diameter fell for fully 15 minutes, breaking thousands of panes of window glass and cutting trees and shrubbery to pieces. A gale blew during the prevalence of the storm and much damage was done to tree and insecure buildings and fences. Reports from points in the eastern portion of the state indicate that the storm was very heavy and did much damage.

There was some anxiety about the Delaware peach crop, but dispatches say the storm did not extend to that state.

Signing the Scale Slowly.

PITTSBURG, July 6. — While the local manufacturers have not yet signed the scale, the mill owners in the eastern and western districts are one by one agreeing to the Amalgamated association wages. The Spang, Chapin and Iron Steel company of Baltimore, signed the scale.

Colorado Has a Gold Craze.

FULFORD, Colo., July 6.—There is a large influx of mining men here at present attracted by the discovery of a ledge of gold bearing quartz. The mountains in the surrounding country are being overrun by prospectors.

Suicide a Little Better.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The condition of Assemblyman Shields of Brooklyn, who is very ill at the New York hospital, is slightly improved.

CABLE CAR RAN AMUCK.

NEW YORK, June 6.—One of the Broadway cable cars became unmanageable near the city hall park and started on a race-course toward the Battery. The gripman was unable to release the grip, and under the circumstances the brake became useless. In front of the runaway car was a heavy truck loaded into the rear platform of a horse car ahead. The driver of the horse-car urged his horses to one side just in time to save them from being run down and both horses were thrown to the street. Other vehicles were turned out of the way.

With the partly demolished horse-car ahead, the still unmanageable cable car continued on its mad course. The gripman struggled and strove with all his might to unclasp the grip, failing in which he shouted warnings to everybody in sight. His bell rang at a double rate. The passengers in both cars became terribly alarmed, and made a rush for the door, but the conductor obstructed their way and prevented anybody from leaving.

Near St. Paul's churchyard, on Broadway, there was a blockade of horse cars and wagons, and a number of trucks were standing on the track. The runaway cars dashed into the first one. The wheels of the vehicle were torn off and the horses thrown down, while the driver was buried against the wall of the churchyard. He escaped with light injuries. Still the car crashed on, going through trucks and knocking down horses. The drivers naturally had warnings and escaped, but owing to the blockade they were unable to save their horses and wagons. When the cars had cut a passage through the blockade, seven horses were stretched upon the ground and five wagons smashed.

When it was seen that nothing could stop the runaway car, somebody rushed to the nearest telephone and notified the Fulton street powerhouse. The cable was stopped immediately, and the cars came to a standstill below Trinity church. The traffic on Broadway was suspended for awhile.

Alleged Anarchistic Plot.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Soon after the arrival last Sunday of General S. M. Donkhovsky, the recently appointed governor-general of Siberia, with a large party bound for the World's fair, the clerk at the Clarendon hotel, where the party is staying in this city, received a letter signed "A victim of Siberia." The writer says that a certain organization in New York are plotting to kill Donkhovsky. He also says but that for the interference of the organization would have made an attempt to destroy the Russian men-of-war that were in the harbor. The letter was sent to Superintendent Byrnes, and it is said that he made preparations to prevent any assassination.

An Attempted Assassination.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 6.—An attempt was made to assassinate M. Pobiedonoszeff, a member of the council of the empire and of the supreme tribunal. An ex-seminarist named Chiarnitof tried to stab the minister with a dagger at the latter's residence, but was overpowered and placed under arrest.

THE COMMUNE LOOSE.

Paris Once More at the Mercy of the Mob.

MORE SOLDIERS ARE ORDERED OUT.

Barricades Built in the Streets as In the Days of the Revolution—The Students No Longer the Only Rioters—Bitter Feeling Against the Police and Politics the Cause.

PARIS, July 6.—After 22 years the commune has again built barricades in the streets of Paris. Every effort is being made to incite insurrection. What was on Saturday a street fight between the police and angry students has become an uprising with which the civil force and the whole military garrison of Paris are deemed inadequate to cope.

Three or four persons have been killed and many wounded in several desperate encounters between the mob and the soldiers and police. Several streets where these battles have taken place look as they did in the dark days of 1871. No glass remains unbroken. No lamposts or kiosks are standing.

Dozens of street cars and omnibuses lie in ruins where they were upset for barricades. Even the pavement in some spots has been torn up to furnish weapons and barriers for the mob.

These facts would be terribly ominous in Paris under most circumstances. There is, however, no danger of a revolution. What is, not yet. There is reason for fearing more disturbances. The past few days have been disquieting. The disturbances have not been stopped by riots in any ordinary time for a second day.

There is evidence of statute efforts to use the death of young Nuger and other acts of police violence to foment the angry populace against the authority.

The motive is not far to seek when it is considered that the elections are only six or seven weeks off and that the government is in weak hands. There is danger, therefore, that the killing of the unknown young man at the hands of the Rueil and brutal police will furnish a more powerful weapon to political conspirators than did the greatest scandal of modern times last winter.

When rioting was resumed a mob in the Boulevard St. Michel assumed a threatening attitude, and the police charged upon the crowd, driving the rioters down the Rue des Ecoles as far as the Place Manbert. There the mob made a determined stand, showering stones and every kind of missile on the police. A hand to hand fight followed, and the struggle continued until the police were re-enforced by a large force of Republican guards, when the rioters were dispersed.

In the meantime a body of police and Republican guards had driven off the turbulent crowds that had assembled in the vicinity of the Labor Exchange, which is now occupied by troops. At 11 o'clock there was a sanguinary encounter on the Rue des Ecoles. The exact details are wanting, but it is known that the Republican guards charged upon the rioters with drawn swords and that the police opened fire with revolvers upon the mob. One man was killed on the spot by a cut from a saber. Others were taken to neighboring drug stores where their wounds were dressed.

Two Hundred Arrests Made.

Another mob upset and set fire to a tramcar on the Rue Strouge. The car was burned to ashes by the time the firemen arrived on the scene. It is believed that petroleum was used to destroy the car. An assistant brigadier of police was found drowned near the Grenelle bridge, and is supposed to have been thrown into the water by the mob. Two hundred persons were arrested for participating in the disturbance. Many others escaped.

The London Standard's correspondent telegraphed his paper that three policemen were thrown into the Seine by the mob during the riots. It is supposed that they were drowned as they have not since been seen. The French government has ordered to Paris re-enforcements from the garrisons at Versailles, Melun and other places.

The Paris Temps says that 42 policemen and 16 Republican guards were wounded during the fighting. Eighteen kiosks were burned and 45 others ransacked.

The municipal council held an excited meeting, at which resolutions were adopted to the effect that the prevailing disorders are due to the hostility of the police toward the citizens. The council throws the responsibility for the disturbances upon Prefect of Police Lozs and his hierarchical chief, Premier Dupuy.

A POORHOUSE BURNED.

Big Blaze Last and Several More Persons May Have Been Drowned.

ST. PAUL, July 6.—The big steamer Bethel, anchored at the foot of Sibley street and used for the Seamen's Mission as a lodging and boarding house for about 200 persons, was burned to the water's edge. She was at least two hours and several are missing, but whether they are burned or drowned in the crowd is not known.

At the time the fire broke out there were 9 persons asleep in the lodging room and was the progress of the flames that those aboard the boat had to jump for their lives at their night clothing. The steamer Stockton was tied to the Bethel, but by quick work in cutting her hawsers she was floated down stream uninjured.

Three bodies have already been recovered—those of Mrs. Bush, matron of the Bethel, and of an unknown man and girl. Miss Lulu Morgan, a girl of 19, daughter of Rev. David Morgan, pastor of the Bethel, was taken "to the fire hospital in a dying condition. The bodies of two women are still in the hull of the boat. When the second survey of the ruins is made there may be fatal changes to add other's arms into the hull's seething cauldron of flames. The fire was caused by the explosion of a lamp in the washroom.

Died to Save His Child.

ROYALTON, O., July 6.—A sad accident occurred here by which a father, through his devotion to his child, lost his life. James Kirtland recently completed a new house and moved into it with his wife and 3-year-old daughter. His old house, a story and a half structure on the same premises he decided to remove. The foundation has been completed and Kirtland saw his little girl standing where she would be caught by the falling rubbish. He sprang toward her, picked up the child, reached the hall door when the falling bricks upon his head and back. The little girl escaped without serious injury, but the father was instantly killed.

Corbett Will Fight Mitchell Only.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Gentleman James J. Corbett is perturbed over the rather caustic letter that President Newton of the Coney Island club has sent to him. "The Coney Island club elected me champion, and I am not away from the Coney Island club," said Corbett. "While I am anxious to live up to the agreements with the Coney Island people, I must say that while I want them in preference to any where else, I do not see how it is possible for me to do so unless Judge Newton and his associates can get Mitchell."

Panic Among Pensioners.

DES MOINES, July 6.—There was almost a panic among pensioners here. Five hundred or 600 old soldiers are now crowded around the federal building. The money for the regular quarterly payment has not yet been received, although Agent Mastes made the requisition June 26. The amount required is about $210,000. Some one told the pensioners that the payment of pensions had been summarily stopped by Cleveland, and that added fury to fear.

WOMAN'S PROGRESS.

DOES HER LIFE IN PUBLIC CONFLICT WITH HOME DUTIES?

The end of the century is discovering some wonderful possibilities for woman, and the question, "Is there a conflict between woman's duty to her home and her participation in public life?" is exceedingly pertinent at this juncture. It seems necessary to repeat the well worn truth that home is the keystone of society's arch. The people of the United States have long pointed to their homes as an evidence of the stability of their government. The recent census exhibits a large increase of householders over the previous census, and as this prosperous condition of affairs has grown side by side with the rapid advancement of women to positions of trust and importance, side by side with higher education, side by side with a social culture of wide extent, the question under discussion seems to present its strongest arguments in favor of a decided negative. Let us look at some of the most salient points in support of this position. Want of space prevents their presentation in more than bare outline.

Not much more than 50 years ago the question of broader life for woman was first mooted. Under an apparently quiescent condition of society there was a growing discontent with narrow lines and unpremeditated routine. Greater than this general discontent was the cry for bread, over the most potent factor in history. It was found that in society, as that time constituted, women without resource could not support themselves.

The old occupations of teaching and housewifery, the only lines open to women, were overcrowded and ill paid.

When a harvest is ripe it becomes filled, its constantly increasing current must overflow its banks in a general wreakage or force a new and wider waterway.

A few brave women, among them lovely and reverent Lucretia Mott, silver haired and gentle voiced Mrs. Stanton and lion hearted Miss Anthony, undertook for us ginner this new channel. But how they were hooted and reviled! How their wedges of argument were derided as wooden blocks of error, their handspikes of truth as feathers of fancy, and their pickaxes of fact as hatchets of envy and tomahawks of misfortune!

But what has been the result? Today what an army of self supporting women, cultured, self reliant, capable, has come into the world. You will not find their walls hold handmade carpets, the hard chairs, the crude, "samplers," those exquisitely funny attempts at art of 40 years ago! The small god of the decorative touch has the strong minded by the ear, and she can decant much more glibly than her [illegible] 40 years ago on the beauties of [illegible], arsenic and bluelike. If you are so fortunate as to be a guest at her table, she will doubtless present you a "feast of fatness," with the strong probability that the dishes were prepared by her own hands. You will find no corners of her establishment "salted down" to prevent spoiling, but everywhere that "sweetness and light" which is the inborn right of all women, and which knowledge only brightens and glorifies.

Again, if to injure the domesticity of women is to open up to them those wider paths of helpfulness, how does it happen that the "unspeakable Turk," the last known advocate of simple domesticity, has already caught the contagion of the new growth for women? Often of late some civilized woman penetrates the seclusion of the harem to which the remainder of the world is denied its inmates. And, wonderful to relate, the lord of the harem likes it! He has found that "the gentle path of dalliance" is not the only path which women may tread with profit and pleasure to their reputed owner.

But, some one asks, how does the modern woman of civilized society accomplish so much? How does she find time for the demands of home and family while satisfactorily discharging existing public duties? By no magic. Simply by the growth of constant culture. Metaphysicians will tell you the development of the brain is something marvelous under certain lines of education. Then again, the genius of invention is an important factor in her onward march. She has no longer, as in our grandmothers' days, to convert the raw material into all the various stages of development before it is fit for use.

On this continent, there is scarcely anything which is not offered ready for immediate consumption. If it were not for this "keeping step" of invention and progress, the hardly probable that the various women's societies, all for the avowed purpose of helping humanity, would see such prosperous days. As it is, one has only to glance about to be convinced that the "end of the century" woman is capable of great things and that one of these things is to diffuse a genial warmth and beautiful comfort in the home circle, while at the same time she is helping to mold public opinion and widen the way for the toilers of her own sex.—Birch Arnold in Woman's Tribune.

Unused Doors.

An English decorator notes that doors which are not required for any reason for their usual purpose may be locked and utilized in decoration. "In old houses where the walls are thick they form deep recesses, and by placing four or five shelves in these they can be turned into excellent book shelves, over or rather across which a handsome curtain may be drawn. When the recess is not deep enough to accommodate books, narrow enameled shelves will serve to fill with old china, bric-a-brac and photos, and the effect produced by these arrangements is in general uncommonly good."

A Word About Veils.

Every woman is not bold enough to wear a violet veil, which is apt to be singularly unbecoming, but few neglect the opportunity of securing a black one with artistically violet spots, as they are eminently becoming. In this connection a word may be said of veils. Tulles and nets are getting lighter and more hateful daily, and the chenille spots are gradually dwindling down to mere specks. The rage of the moment is the soft, cream colored veils with narrow borders and small flowers scattered over the surface of net that covers the face.

What Makes a Pretty Mouth.

There never lived a beauty without a pretty mouth, and never lived an ugly girl who had a pretty mouth. Shape has nothing to do with the case. Cupid bows and curved lips are fiendish. Good teeth, a sweet breath, smooth lips, a red tongue, a soft voice and kind words are the essential features of a nice mouth.—Exchange.

SNAKES ARE SOMETIMES MUSICAL.

Enchanted by a Pipe, They are not Hard to Catch.

When a snake has been bitten several times the poison is quite exhausted for the time being, rendering the animal comparatively harmless. It is said to be this fact which enables the Indian snake charmers to handle their charges without danger. They tease them into anger, when they will readily bite a stick or bundle of rags and so exhaust their venom. Perhaps it will be well here to say a few more words in regard to snake charmers.

Many kinds of serpents, especially the hooded cobra of India, are thought to be affected by music. In capturing them for exhibition, the Indian takes his pipe, and, unconscious to himself near an old wall or ruin, begins to play. A cobra is almost certain to make its appearance soon, for they are very numerous in that country. They sway to and fro in unison, the little children calling them "uncle," and getting saucers of milk for them to drink, and they are loved upon as guiding angels. Should one be killed the slayer would suffer death in punishment.

As the music of the pipe rises and falls, the snake's head sways to and fro, and all unconscious, is seized by the musician's confederate. In this state of musical excitement the snakes are said to be quite safe to handle.—St. Nicholas.

Senile Self-Superintendence.

The most beautiful instance of senile self-possession I have ever witnessed occurred when engaged in opening shells in search of pearls they take every ninth day, which is the large "or" day, and put it into a bottle, which is kept tightly corked with a dead man's finger.

The pearls that are known as "seed pearls," or those of little value, are the size of the letter "o" in this sentence, and they will reproduce their kind. For every pearl put in the pearl tree grafted or rice are put in for the pearls to "feed" upon.

In laying down rules for the young, one has to be very careful or they will be taken too literally. A case of this kind occurred recently with a maid that put the parent decidedly out of countenance. "Johnnie," said his mother, "what did you mean by telling Mrs. Smith you were and over and over again, when you heard me the first time?"

"Why, ma," was the staggering reply, "you always told me never to interrupt you."

Playing at Housekeeping.

They live in the big city, and every Saturday their mamma takes them down to the beach, where they can have a good time. They have little spades and dig up the sand, and make mud pies, and when their mamma lets them go a little way into the water, but not very far because they might get drowned.

"RING AROUND A ROSY."

Ring around a Rosy,
Rachel, Thait and Sue,
Pocket full of posy,
Precious, I love you!
In the nodding grass and clover,
Kiss them, wind, and pass them over;
Bring a kiss to me
From the darling of the three
My wee lover!

Ring around a rosy,
Rimmed little children;
Sue is swinging rosy,
Rachel picking stone,
Baby boy is digging
Built to catch a whale;
Ship with hammock-rigging
Ready for a sail.

Ring around a rosy,
Baby girls are gone;
Lies a splendid posy,
Sets the sleepy sun.
Pillowed close on mother's breast,
Sweet brown eyes drooping to rest,
Whispers drowsy baby-boy:
"I love you, do you love me?"
By-lo, by-lo,
Baby sleeps while mother hoops
Mother swinging to and fro;
Swings,
Sings,
Ring around a rosy.
—Detroit Free Press.

A Boy's Tooth.

The rat is now the only quadruped how the peculiar life he is confined to least. He has strong weapons in the shape of four long and two very sharp teeth—two in the upper and two in the lower jaw. These teeth are very much used by a wonderful provision of nature here always a fine, sharp cutting edge. On one side only, and naturally, the lower part is found to be of a soft, very like the position, which can easily be worn away, and the outside is composed of a glass substance, which is exceedingly hard.

The upper teeth work into the under so that the centres of the opposed teeth rank perfectly in the act of gnawing, because the soft part is being constantly worn away, while the hard part keeps a sharp, chisel like edge all the time, and at the same time the teeth are constantly growing up from the bottom, so as they wear away a fresh supply is ready. Should one of these teeth be removed by accident or otherwise, the opposing tooth will continue to grow, and there being nothing to wear it away, it will project from the mouth and its inward spoon itself, but if it be an under tooth it will often grow so long as to penetrate the skull.

Surprised Pig.

Little Pete never intends to mistake things, but his very figurative imagination sometimes gets the better of his facts. He lives on a farm, and one day which is perfectly true, but before he is done he has generally drifted off into some elementary exaggeration. The other day he exclaimed in his excitement:

"Just think, Billy! Out in Chicago they aren't going to be cruel to the pigs any more when they kill them. They're going to electrocute them."

"How do they do it?" asked Billy.

"Why, they just put a sponge in front of the pig's nose, and he goes right to sleep, and when he wakes he himself he says, 'Why, my head's gone!' And by and by he says, 'Good-by! Somebody's carried my self!' and then he falls out and that he's all cut up!"—Youth's Companion.

The Great "Moon Dragon."

It is a time-honored belief in Turkey and many other Oriental countries, that an eclipse of the moon is caused by a huge dragon that seeks to devour our "silvery sister world," and in making the attempt winds his slimy body about it, also hiding it from the terrestrial observers. The writer was in Constantinople on the night of August 28, 1877, the occasion of the great eclipse throughout Eastern Europe and Western Asia, and was a witness to the peculiar ceremony of "Kakat-mayh-yi," which was calculated to free Luna from her ready antagonist. There was a general attempt made to frighten the "dragon" by firing muskets and revolvers and by beating upon drums, cymbals, kitchen utensils, etc.

Cut Almost.

The barroom fight at Salem 199 big oysters in forty minutes, and thereby lost won a wager for a professional sport who had backed him to the extent of fifty dollars.

"You needn't have worried yourself so much," said the sporting man, trailing up his weapon in a disappointed way, and picking the pile. "The last was that you could eat 170 oysters in an hour."

"I know it, boss," replied the oyster eater apologetically, "but I hadn't had anything to eat for four hours, and I was hungry."—Chicago Tribune.

PERSONAL.

Mr. T. J. Gillies of Madison avenue is seriously ill.

Mr. F. H. Andrews of Central avenue left yesterday for the seashore.

Miss Caroline Boyle of Finderne has been visiting Miss C. H. Shaw of this city.

Mr. Frank Pine of West Front street has been visiting at A. Meserole's, at Harlingen.

Among the arrivals at the Trenton House, Asbury Park is A. Honeyman of this place.

Messrs. Edward Campbell, Louis MacIntosh and Louis Stover went to the fishing banks to-day.

The Plainfield Cornet Band played at Somerset, on Tuesday, and the South Plainfield band at Dunellen.

Mr. Fred Dunn, who has been for two months in the South, as manager of electric light plant, is home again.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Powlison of Somerset street returned last night, after a five weeks' trip to the World's Fair.

Mrs. Morton of Grove street, Somerville, who has been visiting in this city for the past three weeks, has returned home.

Messrs. Franklin S. Smith, teacher of science in the High School, and O. B. Smith of Broadway started to-day for an outing.

District Deputy Mrs. Newcorn and her installing staff installed the officers of Iona Council, Degree of Pocahontas, Wednesday night.

Mrs. Arthur F. Bryker is visiting Mrs. Chamberlain of Jersey City. Mrs. Chamberlain is a daughter of Constable Moffett of this city.

Miss Bertha Needham of New York State is visiting her parents, Councilman and Mrs. Henry E. Needham of Jackson avenue, North Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Long of Craig place, accompanied by their grandaughter, Miss Van Ness, have gone for a week's stay with relatives in Pennsylvania.

Pastor J. M. Philpott, of the Second Church of Christ, New York, is expected to exchange pulpits with Pastor Hand of the First Church of Christ, one Sunday during the Summer.

Mr. A. M. Randolph of Park avenue was among the graduates at Alfred Centre University last week. Mr. Randolph graduated from the Plainfield High School three years ago.

Mrs. George Watson of Crescent avenue left yesterday morning for Sea Girt, Mr. Watson and his son are at Lake Hopatcong, where Mr. Watson is having a Summer residence built.

Mr. Frank L. C. Martin attended the supper of the Union County Roadsters at Rahway on Friday night. He presented each of the silver cup won at Trenton by the Roadsters took place during the evening.

William Nelson and William S. Ayers were recently initiated into the letter carriers' degree. Those who have been fortunate enough to receive the degree speak in the highest praise of it, and are always ready to help initiate others.

Commander Moore of Post 73, G. A. R. while on a recent visit to Mt. Bethel and Mt. Horeb discovered the graves of two dead soldiers which have never been decorated. He declares that next year he will personally attend to decorating the graves.

Mr. C. W. Tallman and his installation staff went to Westfield Wednesday night and installed the new officers of Westfield Lodge, 168, I. O. O. F., after which a supper was served. They report having had a fine time. To night they will go to Somerville to install the new officers of Lodge 63, of Somerville.

The host of friends of that most estimable lady, Mrs. Schepflin of Dunellen, will be pleased to learn that she has almost entirely recovered from her recent serious illness. The beautiful home of the family at Dunellen has been for a long time unusually quiet. It is usually a sort of social centre as Mr. and Mrs. Schepflin's hospitality is known and appreciated all through this section of New Jersey.

Found a Snake in his Collar.

Mrs. Charles Koel of Netherwood avenue was surprised when going into the cellar Saturday afternoon to discover a snake coiled up on the cellar floor. With the help of the other inmates of the house the reptile was killed and found to measure three feet and ten inches in length. It was a black snake.

A NUISANCE COMPLAINED OF.

Complaints have been sent to the North Plainfield Township Committee by residents of Madison avenue, this side of Dunellen in regard to the dumping of garbage in that vicinity by John Huff of Dunellen.

They say that the stench arising from the garbage is unbearable and ask the committee to take some action towards the abating of the nuisance.

Township Clerk Horace J. Martin promptly sent a notice to Mr. Huff, informing him that he would have to remove the objectionable matter.

BREVITIES.

—The Borough Council will meet in regular session to-night.

—Fire key No. 5 has been lost, and its return to Chief Dosse will be appreciated.

—Twenty six out of some 45 horses in the Metropolitan stables were out with pleasure drives, Tuesday.

—The Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will hold a meeting to night.

—The second of the Honeyman tours to the World's Fair started to-day. About a dozen Plainfielders were among the party.

—Electric roads promise to make a network all over the State. The franchises granted and asked will aggregate $100,000,000.

—Mrs. Samuel Doty of West Fourth street, who was pronounced insane by Drs. Stagg and Boone, has been taken to the asylum.

—The excursion of the Crescent avenue Presbyterian and Bethel chapel Sunday schools left this morning for Asbury Park and Ocean Grove. There were 14 cars.

—Jim Johnson picked up a watermelon while a big pellet let slip from under his arm on West Front street Tuesday morning. The melon was only slightly cracked, but the rider did not stop to get it.

—Bridget McClusky, while intoxicated yesterday afternoon, created a disturb ance and was arrested. She was arrested by Policeman Kiely. Judge Coddington sentenced her to the county jail for thirty days.

—Adjourned meeting of the Crescent Wheelmen will be held this evening, at 8.30, at their North avenue club rooms, at which the new constitution letters will be ready for distribution. All members are urged to be present.

—Mr. Augustus Frazee of Peace and Second streets was one of the projectors in the Peace street opening. Now he is complaining because he has been assessed $78, and claims that it will cost $100 more to re-set his fence and relay the curbing and walks.

—Three out-of-town bicyclists were in Plainfield Sunday and became indignant because the public drinking places were not open on the "Lord's Day." One of them declared that it was a shame that there was not a public drinking fountain in Plainfield where pure water could be found.

—That excellent organization Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, Independent Order of Odd Fellows will run an excursion on Thursday, August 24th. The committee in charge of the affair consists of Messrs. E. H. Clevely, T. A. Kurzhals, Jr., S. E. Seymour, S. H. Schlief and John Staats. It will be duly advertised in THE NEWS.

—The bill which Senator Daly, of Hudson, worked through the Legislature last winter, providing that a liquor dealer who sold his wares on Sunday should not be indicted for keeping a disorderly house, and which, together with other legislation in the interests of the liquor dealers, earned for the Senator from Hoboken his own bailiwick the sobriquet of the Mixed Ale Senator, went into effect Tuesday. Hereafter a saloon keeper violation the law by selling on Sunday may be fined $600.

A Thief to Blame for the Child's Illness.

An infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Jr. F. Watson of Grant avenue is very ill, and all owing to some thief. Mr. Watson has been in the habit of placing a milk pail outside the door at night as the milk man comes around early. About a month ago the pail was stolen. He procured a new one and two weeks later that was stolen. Consequently he had to get milk from a man that came later. The change of milk made the child sick and it has been very ill for two weeks, and has been attended two and three times a day by a doctor.

The Second Honeyman Excursion.

Mr. A. V. D. Honeyman left again to-day on the Royal Blue line, with about sixty more excursionists. Among the party are Dr. Hoeke, George D. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Rohn, Miss Bartolette and E. B. Kinyon, of Raritan; Miss Cawley, of Somerville; Matt. Suydam, Jr., and Miss Kate Suydam, of Franklin Park; ex-Mayor Whiting and family, of Bound Brook; Raymond A. and Harry A. McGee, and Miss Hattie Rockwell, of this city; L. S. Blackwell and wife, of Westerville; James Bowman, of South Branch; and Edward M. Honeyman.

NOT YET A BOARD.

A MEETING OF THE ORGANIZERS OF THE BOARD OF TRADE.

No Business Transacted, as their Actions would Not be Binding Until the Certificate of Incorporation is Filed.

There were twelve members present at the Board of Trade meeting last night. In the absence of President Hoffman, Postmaster Elias R. Pope was made chairman of the meeting. Secretary George D. Bullock read a communication from ex-Judge Ulrich, stating that he regretted that he would not be able to attend the meeting of the Board as he had been called out of town.

Ex-Judge Coddington, counsel for the Board, informed the members that the Board of Directors had held a meeting and had come to the conclusion that it would be necessary to elect another director, as the act governing Boards of Trade says there must be at least ten directors elected in order to organize; after that any number may be elected as the corporation sees fit. He further stated that they were not yet a Board of Trade until the certificate of incorporation had been filed. The certificate has to be signed by each charter member and filed with the Secretary of State.

The Committee on Constitution and By-Laws was instructed to revise the Constitution so as not to conflict with the law.

The secretary then read the certificate of incorporation, setting forth the objects of the Board and where located.

It was moved and seconded that two more members be added to the Board of Directors. The motion was carried, and Chairman Pope appointed Messrs. L. B. Woodruff and J. R. Coward.

Counsel Coddington was instructed to strike out the words "117 and 119 East Second street," which had been placed in the certificate of incorporation, because it was not thought advisable to bind themselves to meet in any particular place. The meeting adjourned to Thursday, July 13.

HEWED CLOSE TO THE LINE.

The Bound Brook Democrat in it account of Fourth of July celebration, says:

"Dr. Lewis of Plainfield was the big orator of the Day and, after some well-aimed remarks on the feasibility and advisability of one of the several Bound Brooks into one to which the whole United States may point with pride, eloquently raised his voice in favor of a restricted or limited franchise to which character should be the test and sex no bar. He deplored the depravity of politicians who practice bribery at the ballot boxes (a method which he said sometimes obtains, in a disguised form, in Plainfield—a city of churches, the Colorado of the East). He believed that education in the form of government should be an essential qualification of the voter and that no public measure should be at the mercy of and ignorant mob which might perchance carry the controlling vote."

"The speaker had evidently marked out his discourse certainly hewed close to the line, no matter where the chips fell. Frequent applause testified that his close-cutting remarks were favorably received and with some the impression made by them will no doubt be more lasting then was the speech, which occupied only 40 minutes."

Base Ball Notes.

The Park Club team will play at Cranford to-morrow afternoon.

Stanhope, a strong player from the Binghamton Club of the Eastern League, will play third base to-morrow to place of Hessman, who plays with the Eastwood Field Club.

The Olympics of Paterson will Play against the Crescents to-morrow. A good game may be expected, as the Olympics and Patersons are about evenly matched, and the latter defeated the Crescents once this year.

Crescents—Hufford, r.f.; Smith, s.s.; Ryman, l.f.; Turner, 2.b.; and p.; Stanhope, 3 b.; Sneden, c.f.; Fritz, c.; Keenan, p., and 2.b.; Jones, 1.b.

The Park Club ball team visited Dunellen on the Fourth and played a game with the Dunellen Athletics. The teams were made up as follows:

The Law Concerning that Scavenger Business.

At a meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Health held June 22, the following resolution was offered and adopted:

Whereas, Numerous complaints have come to us concerning the offensive matter pumped into Green brook by the Peace street sewer, and

Whereas, The noxious odors arising therefrom are not only a nuisance and menace to the health of the people, but a source of danger to the public health, and Therefore, Be it resolved that the Board of Health of North Plainfield desires herewith most respectfully to enter its protest against the act of Plainfield's allowing any foul, fetid, noxious, or offensive matter from any sewer, privy vault, cesspool, or other source to empty into said brook from the said sewer, and cause equally as much complaint to Constable of the City of Plainfield who make such complaints, as in their opinion they have a right to do, but who refuse to take cognizance of, especially as the said sewage discharge is detrimental to the public health, and also a direct violation of the State law.

CHAPTER CLVII.

An Act to amend chapter fifty-two of the laws of one thousand eight hundred and eighty, entitled "A supplement to an act entitled 'An act to prevent the willful pollution of the waters of any of the creeks, ponds or brooks of this State,'" (Supplement Revision) approved February twenty seventh, one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That the first section of the said act be amended so as to read as follows:

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That if any person or persons shall throw, cast or permit to be thrown into any reservoir, or into the waters of any creek, pond or brook of this State which runs through or along the border of any city, town or borough of this State, or the waters of which are used to supply any aqueduct or reservoir for distribution for public use, any carrion, dirty and noisome, or any other offensive matter whatsoever calculated to render said waters impure, or to create noxious or offensive smells, or shall connect any water closet with any sewer, or other means a brook the contents of which are conveyed to and into such creek, pond or brook, or shall so deposit or cause or permit to be deposited any such carrion, offal or other offensive matter that the wastes or washings of which may be so conveyed to and into any such creek, pond, brook or reservoir such person or persons shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding two years, or both.

2. And be it enacted, That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act, in so far as they are inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed, and that this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 14, 1893.

A Chicken Thief Caught at Last.

For some time past, a resident of Somerset avenue has been losing his chickens. At last he discovered a hole under the barn evidently the retreat of some "varmint." A steel-trap was set and last night the owner of the chickens was rewarded in his efforts by catching in the trap a large opossum. The animal was caught by the foot, and for fear it would get away, a gun was procured and the chicken stealer shot.

—Papine is growing more and more in favor as a picnic resort. Fourth of July a number of Plainfielders spent the day there. Yesterday several hackmen with their families went there for an outing.

Buck Kinds on One Street.

There will be two kinds of rails on Somerset street railway and it will be a good chance to ascertain which does the least damage to wagon wheels. By the terms of the franchise with the city, the company is compelled to lay one make of rails to the bridge, and another and more expensive rail was used on Somerset street in the borough. The rails used in the borough are not only said to be the most expensive, but it is claimed they are less damaging to wagons.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Thirty Miles an Hour by Steamer.

Darius Davison, a veteran engineer and naval architect, proposes what will be nothing less than a revolution in ocean steamship construction if his idea is practicable. He declares that he can build a steamship 1,000 feet long which will travel 30 miles an hour and be safer than the ordinary ship now is, besides getting rid of seasickness.

A company is already organizing to construct a monster ship on the new system. She will properly be named the Leviathan. The principal deviation from present models in the hull will be that the bow and stern will project sharply out like a ram into the water far beyond the main body of the vessel. Thus in a steamer 1,000 feet long 200 feet of the length would be taken up by the projection bow and stern, leaving 700 feet in which to store freight and passengers. She will be 80 feet wide, 15 feet wider than any vessel of today.

The projecting bow and stern are sharp at the point, widening toward amidships. On top they are of the type of the whaleback ship, allowing the waves to break over them and slip gently off without crashing against the body of the ship itself. It certainly seems as if this would be a great advantage. The bow and stern give buoyancy as well as steadiness to the vessel, preventing the rolling motion.

The Leviathan will have four huge propellers capable of working singly or altogether without interfering. This is far beyond even the twin screws, which are now the pride of owners of the newest steamers. The engines will be of 80,000 horsepower and will consist of four sets, vertical and direct acting, each in a separate water tight compartment. Best of all, Mr. Davison declares he can drive this tremendous craft 30 miles an hour through the water with only one-fifth the amount of coal now consumed by our fastest steamers. He will do this chiefly by improved methods of stoking. One would be glad to know whether among his many inventions Mr. Davison has discovered an improved system of poking the fire.

The Leviathan's great length will enable her to cover three ocean swells at once, thus avoiding the pitching and adding to the comfort of the hundreds of swells who will be aboard of her. Best of all, by the economic methods to be introduced the inventor claims that his ship will be able to carry freight and passengers across the sea at much lower rates than are possible now. May we all live to travel in one of these steamers!

Educating Convicts.

If the plan proposed by the Chicago university can be put into successful operation, a convict can enter a state prison an ignorant man and come out a college graduate. The scheme is part of the system of university extension which the Chicago institution has in preparation.

Instruction will be given first by lectures, afterward by correspondence and lectures. Professors from the school will visit the prisons of the state in turn, giving courses of lectures in various branches. They are not to be free lectures, and the men are not compelled to attend. Those who do choose to will pay for the instruction out of their earnings in the penitentiary.

There will be no distinction whatever between the classes and courses conducted inside and outside the prisons. The convict will be wrestling with cube root in his cell in exactly the same way as the free mechanic in his cheap lodging house. Already more than 40 different courses of study have been arranged for in science, history, mathematics, literature, etc. Examinations will be conducted by writing. Where a prisoner finishes a given department a certificate will be given to him that such is the fact. This seems the brightest hope for convict reform that has gleamed upon a sinful world in a long time. It will give a new interest to the dreary life of the prisoner and perhaps turn him away from thoughts of murdering his keeper.

Of 652 girls who passed the severe examination for admission to the normal college connected with the public schools in New York city, two-thirds were of foreign stock, no more than one or at most two generations back. Of the two young ladies who secured the highest per cent, one was a Jewess, the other a young lady of German parentage. The list included many Jewish and German names, and these occurred most frequently of all. Next came the Irish girls, and after them Scandinavians, then a sprinkling of French, Italian, Polish and Spanish. Are these the foreigners who are pouring in upon us to corrupt our institutions and overwhelm our republic with a tide of ignorance? By the way, what are the native American girls about?

Now that it cannot have Mormonism any more the territory of Utah has broken out with a volcano all its own. Sulphurous fumes are pouring out in a style worthy of Dante's "Inferno," and columns of smoke are visible many miles away from the volcano.

The man who first suggested the use of bicycles instead of horses in the army ought to try to ride the two wheeled vehicle across country once.

PARIS FULL OF TROOPS.

From the Provinces 60,000 Have Been Poured In.

STILL MORE RIOTING IS EXPECTED.

The Labor Unions Will Not Join the Mob, but Will Order a General Strike—Guns Have Turned In the Streets and More Fighting Last Night.

PARIS, July 7.—There was some serious trouble at the Place de la Republique, to which platoons were brought into use by the rioters against the troops, who charged the mob with fixed bayonets. Several omnibuses were overturned and set on fire, and the street railways were pulled up and the tram cars upset.

It is the general opinion that the disorders will continue and become more serious.

The labor syndicates, representing 260,000 workmen, have decided not to make any manifestations, but they propose a general strike.

The government has closed and occupied with troops the Labor Exchange, where the syndicates of the workingmen held their meetings in order to discuss among themselves and with their employers the conditions and wages of work. This Labor Exchange was a creation of the Municipal council of Paris, and its closing has greatly angered the working classes of the city, so that serious disorders are possible.

The government has assembled troops in Paris from every direction, and there are now no less that 60,000 men massed in the barracks of the city. For the present everything is quiet.

Gangs of rowdies made disturbances in the Rue du Chateau d'Eau around the Labor Exchange and in the nearby streets, by 9 o'clock the rioters had become humorous and belligerent. They upset and partly smashed five tram cars and broke many windows. The police eventually were able to hold them in check, but not to disperse them.

In the fights between rioters and police several rowdies and two policemen were injured. Few students took part in the riots. The Students' association has published an appeal to students to abstain from any further participation in the riots.

The closing of the Labor Exchange has caused intense excitement among the work ingmen. As soon as the action of the government became known, thousands of workingmen came to the building from all parts of the city. They were restrained from violence by several companies of military and the strong force of police. The auxiliary Labor Exchange in the Rue Jean Jacques Rousseau has been closed also and is held by troops.

Not Ready For Revolution.

The labor leader, Allemane, in speaking at the main exchange, warned his hearers against resorting to open fighting with the government. More than 25,000 troops have been brought from the provinces to Paris within the last five days. If the workingmen should go into the streets to obtain their rights, they would be mowed down by the military. Their fight would be futile, as the country was not yet ripe for the revolution.

Allemane's statement concerning the concentration of troops in Paris is acknowledged generally to be correct. When the municipal councillors heard that the government had closed the Labor Exchange M. Humbert, their president, invited the deputies and senators to meet him for conference at the city hall. At the time set for the meeting the senators and deputies who answered M. Humbert's invitation found the city hall surrounded by troops who would allow only the municipal councillors to enter. They adjourned their conference, therefore, to the largest of the nearby cafes, and there issued the resolution until very late and declined to say what their final decision was.

Premier Dupuy informed the cabinet council that the street disturbances had been suppressed and probably would not be repeated. All precautions had been taken, he said, for the immediate repression of any further attempts to start riots.

Closing of the Labor Exchange.

At the clearing of the Labor Exchange 700 policemen, under instructions from the ministry of justice, searched the building from about the middle of the afternoon and drove everybody out. The doors were then closed.

Three hundred policemen were left on guard. The exchange was closed because the syndicates using it refused to comply with the law of 1884, requiring them to register themselves. The syndicates of the exchange gave warning to the government through the municipal council that unless this attempt to compel them to register was abandoned they would proclaim a general strike. Nevertheless M. Guerin, minister of justice, told the senate that all labor unions which had been constituted illegally or were unqualified to register would be prosecuted. The Labor Exchange, he said, had become a hotbed of revolutionary propaganda and had defied the laws, hence the government had closed it. The government would not be deterred by threats from enforcing the law.

Governor Flower Calmed Depositors.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 7.—The run on the Jefferson County Savings bank subsided when the officers of the bank refused to take advantage of the usual hour for closing and continued to pay all depositors who presented demands for their funds. This action, together with the guarantee given by Governor Flower and other prominent financiers, had a most satisfactory effect.

Immigrant Train Held Up.

MONTREAL, July 7.—A report reached here from St. Anna, a small station about 30 miles east of Montreal, that an immigrant train on its way to Montreal, with 300 immigrants on board, was held up by five masked men, who attempted to rob the baggage car. They were overpowered by train hands and placed in custody.

Bid His Stealings In a Featherbed.

BOSTON, July 7.—Arthur Morse of Cambridge was arrested on a Montreal train charged with having stolen $1,700 from his employer. Since then the police have found $900 of the money sewed into a featherbed at Morse's house.

Two Strangers Killed.

UTICA, N. Y., July 7.—Two strangers, one known as Boston Red and the other called Jack, both claiming to be hotmen makers of Chicago, were killed by a fast west shore freight train near Little Falls.

The Alva Destroyed at Last.

CHATHAM, Mass., July 7.—The government inspector has announced the work of destroying the Alva complete, and the contractors were discharged.

CLEVELAND'S CONDITION.

Report That He Is Suffering From Cancer In the Mouth.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 7.—The reports given out as to the president's condition are not at all satisfactory as to detail and are often contradictory.

Colonel Lamont said that the president's condition remained about the same. He had nothing to add to the statement sent out yesterday. The president was able, by the aid of his physicians, to get to the piazza for a short time and imbibe the beautiful breeze which comes off Buzzard's Bay.

Many telegrams have been received, inquiring as to the movements of the president's illness. It is said not to be of a serious character, but Surgeon General Bryant says that the president must have absolute rest and quiet. The president will remain through July, but will not transact any public business. He will later on give necessary attention only to any official matters of importance that may come from Washington.

The reported visit here of Vice President Stevenson is denied by Colonel Lamont. He says that the president did not expect him or any one else. Executive Clerk O'Brien of the White House arrived and will assume charge of the president's mail. Private Secretary Lamont and Dr. Bryant will remain about 10 days.

"Doctor, a number of conflicting stories are told concerning the illness of the president. Some of them made the matter very serious. You would confer a great favor by making some sort of an official statement."

"The president is all right," said the doctor emphatically.

"You mean what is he suffering?"

"He is suffering from rheumatism, just as it was reported; those reports were correct."

"Then, doctor, the report that he is suffering from a malignant or cancerous growth in the mouth, and that an operation was necessary and had been performed to relieve it, is not correct?"

"He is suffering from his teeth, that is all," announced the doctor.

"Has an operation been performed?"

"That is all," said the doctor.

The President's Sister Comes East.

BEATRICE, Neb., July 7.—Mrs. W. K. White, sister of President Cleveland, departed this morning for a visit to relatives in New York and the president.

LONDON WENT WILD.

A Night of Rejoicing Followed the Royal Wedding.

LONDON, July 7.—When the Duke of York and his bride arrived at Wolferton station they were met and cheered by thousands. They and the stern force of police. The cheers they drove in an open victoria to Bachelor's cottage in the grounds around Sandringham hall. Throngs of country men stood cheering along the road, and children scattered flowers before the carriage. At the lodge gate the tenants and household formed a bodyguard. School children threw flowers as the bride entered the house. An hour later the counle was serenaded and fireworks were set off outside the grounds.

The illuminations in this city last night were magnificent. From Liverpool street westward, far beyond Piccadilly, the city was aglow with colored lights. The splendor of the scene has not been equaled before in London. Enormous crowds filled the main streets. The uproar in the great thoroughfares was deafening. Men, shouting and cheering below, were answered by women, cheering and waving flags from the windows.

In the crowds like for views of the processions 70 persons were slightly injured and two were injured mortally. All these cases are under medical care in the hospitals. Two hundred persons, prostrated by the heat and excitement, were carried away from the crowds by ambulances, but all recovered without being taken to hospitals.

Anarchists Want Its Carcass.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Superintendent Byrnes contradicted the report that he intended to prevent a meeting of anarchists in the Windsor theater this evening, but he said:

I understand that such a meeting has been called by certain persons to express satisfaction with the action of Governor Altgeld of Illinois in pardoning the Chicago anarchists. These people have a right under the law to assemble and express their views, if they will. Some of the leaders are known to the police as disturbers of law and order, and it may be well for them to be careful. So long as they violate no law the police will protect them. I shall have policemen at the meeting to protect those participating in it as well as to see that order is not disturbed. The scenes of disorder which have been enacted in Paris for the past week will not be repeated here.

Discussed Texas Cattle.

GUTHRIE, O. T., July 7.—Hundreds of the Texas cattle which have been driven into Oklahoma from the Cherokee strip by the soldiers are dying of the Spanish fever, and farmers along the line are greatly alarmed over the prospects of their domestic cattle becoming infected. Armed forces have gone to the line to shoot any cattle that may be driven over, and the government has been appealed to for aid and protection to the farmers and stock raisers.

A Brutal Second Mate.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—When the American ship Thos. Winsmore arrived from New York the men deserted her and repaired to the office of the United States marshal in a body. All were more or less injured, and Seaman Hill is in a frightful condition, owing to the brutality of Second Mate Crocker. Crocker was arrested and charged with beating and wounding sailors on the high seas.

A New Electric Road.

BUFFALO, July 7.—Surveys have been completed for a new electric road running to points on the lake shore between this city and Hamburg. The work will be commenced at once, and will open up a valuable territory, and in addition touches at a number of summer resorts along the lake which are well patronized.

A PASTOR AND HIS WIFE.

He Declared In His Pulpit That He Was Not Married.

SHE AND HER FATHER SAY HE WAS.

In Consequence of These Statements the Church People of Eastport Have Much Interesting Matter For Gossip—Mrs. Fancher Tells Her Story.

NEW CANAAN, Conn., July 7.—If there was surprise in Eastport, L. I., when the Rev. D. E. Day returned home without his bride a few weeks ago, there was equal astonishment in Pound Ridge, N. Y., when he went away without her. And the women are busy discussing the fact that when the villagers read that the minister had announced from his pulpit last Sunday that the marriage had not taken place.

George N. Fancher declares his daughter was married to the minister on the appointed day. He accompanied the bride and groom to Pound Ridge, but refused to accompany her husband to his Long Island home, but decided to give the reason for her conduct.

Mr. Fancher is a prosperous farmer of Pound Ridge, a small village in Westchester county, N. Y., just over the state line from Greenwich, Conn. Mr. Fancher, his only daughter, is about 28 years old and prepossessing. The family is highly esteemed and is connected with prominent citizens of Norwalk, Conn. The Rev. H. S. Brown, pastor of the Congregational church of Lockport, N. Y., is a cousin of the young woman. The Rev. Henry S. Hall of Carnarie, L. I., is her uncle.

A reporter called at the Fancher home and asked the young woman for an explanation of the statement the minister had made to his congregation from his pulpit last Sunday when he told she had refused to marry him because she had heard he had a wife, was engaged to another woman and had been arrested on a charge of breach of promise of marriage.

"I was married to Mr. Day at noon on June 20," said the young woman. "The ceremony was performed by my uncle, the Rev. H. Hall of Carnarie, L. I., in the presence of my father and mother and about a dozen relatives." This statement was made with great reluctance, and the young woman refused to say anything more. She sent for her father, however, and he added the following details:

"The first I knew of their visit to Pound Ridge on his vacation five years ago, when he was a student of the Westminister Theological school in Maryland. While here he supplied the pulpit of the church at Pound Ridge Woods, where I was superintendent of the Sunday school.

"He returned to the theological school the following September, finished his studies, and last July came here, again and boarded for several days in my house. He was appointed to the church in Eastport, L. I., and left for there. Soon after he reappeared here last December he asked to marry my daughter and I gave my consent. The wedding was to have taken place in June, but early last July he visited us and urged an immediate marriage.

"The reason he gave was that he was placed in an embarrassing position on account of a young woman in his boarding house, but a wife would free him from the peculiar trouble.

"After much persuasion it was finally decided that the ceremony should be performed on June 20, and the marriage did take place on that date. The next day my daughter told her mother she would not accompany her husband to his home, nor would she ever live with him. Before Mr. Day to the railway station in New Canaan he refused to explain."

Mr. Fancher could give no further explanation of his daughter's conduct than to say it was not the result of stories she had heard about the minister.

He added that the Rev. Mr. Day returned to Pound Ridge last Thursday and wanted his wife and father-in-law to sign certain papers of separation, as he wished to wed a young woman on Long Island who was anxious to marry him. This is the story as told by Mrs. Day and her father.

Cadets Will Visit the Fair.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The West Point cadets are going to the World's fair. The legal objections that were advanced have been overcome and Acting Secretary Grant has sent the necessary instructions to Colonel Mills, superintendent of the military academy. The cadets will leave West Point Aug. 17, and remaining at Chicago 10 days will start on the return trip Aug. 28. The entire corps of 398 cadets is expected to go. The cadets will be encamped in Jackson park during their stay at the fair.

Burning Balsam Caused His Death.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 7.—Leroy C. Smith was boiling balsam on a stove, when the balsam took fire, and Smith attempted to throw the kettle out of the window. His clothing caught fire, and before the flames could be extinguished the unfortunate man was so badly burned that he will probably die. The house was completely destroyed. Three women, occupants of the place, were rescued from the burning building almost suffocated.

LYON RESIGNS.

NEW YORK, July 7.—George W. Lyon, surveyor of the port, sent his resignation to President Cleveland to take effect on the appointment of his successor. Mr. Lyon has obtained 30 days' leave of absence and started for his country home on the Connecticut river. Until his resignation is accepted Auditor Samuel D. Blatchford will be acting surveyor.

Surveyor Lyon wrote to Secretary Carlisle a letter of explanation. He had refused to prepare a list of employees in the surveyor's department for the Fairchild commission, saying that he was unaware of any authority the commission had for the assurance.

Then Secretary Carlisle directed Mr. Lyon to give the information called for. Mr. Lyon still demurred, and wrote a letter to that effect to be forwarded to the secretary. The letter was not forwarded, and finally Mr. Lyon wrote to the secretary that he had now compiled a list of the employees and other information requested by the custom house commission and left the documents in the hands of Auditor Blatchford for the commission, which is to reassemble on July 10. In explanation of his course in this matter one of the surveyor's friends said that Mr. Lyon had decided that his controversy with the secretary might injure Auditor Blatchford, who has held over under Democratic and Republican administrations.

A Daring Sculler's Journey.

TOLEDO, July 7.—After five weeks of sculling a distance of 1,200 miles, F. G. Appley of the Pawtucket (R. I.) Boat club reached Toledo on his way to Chicago, which he will reach by lake, hugging the shore all the way. His shell is of aluminum, the first ever made. It weighs twenty-eight pounds and is but one sixty-fourth of an inch in thickness.

Twenty Families Fled From Fire.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Twenty families were driven out of the five story double tenement house at 182 West Seventeenth street by a fire that started among some rubbish in the cellar. Two firemen were overcome by smoke and two were badly injured by falls. Several persons received injuries in making their escape from the burning building.

Alleged Mail Robber Caught.

PATERSON, N. J., July 7.—A mail robber, for whom the post-office department at Washington has been searching since the middle of last March, has been, it is thought, captured here. The prisoner gave his name as Frank Melms. He is 35 years old and the father of 11 children.

Will Declare No Dividend.

NEW YORK, July 7.—The Denver and Rio Grande directors, owing to the present condition of the money market and the depression in the silver mining industry, will not declare the regular July dividend, although the company has the money.

For Home Rule $20,000.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Mr. Eugene Kelly, treasurer of the Irish National Federation of America, cabled to the Irish National parliamentary fund $20,000, sent to America during this session of parliament.

More Trouble at Tonawanda.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., July 7.—The lumbermen are again having trouble with their nonunion help. Eighty-four Poles, who had been imported from Pittsburg, decided to return home, and quit work.

Victims of the Bethel Fire.

ST. PAUL, July 7.—The bodies of Mrs. Jennie Peck, matron of the Bethel boat; John Singleton, the engineer, and an unknown man, are at the morgue.

Earthquake Shock in Massachusetts.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 7.—A shock of earthquake was felt during the storm of last night throughout the towns in the Blackstone valley.

ONE HUNDRED KILLED.

A Deadly Cyclone Visited Southwestern Iowa.

POMEROY COMPLETELY WIPED OUT.

Two Hundred Persons Injured.—Several Other Towns Visited by Winds Which Were Fatal.

DES MOINES, July 7.—It is reported here from Jolley, eight miles distant, that a cyclone struck Pomeroy, swept away half of the buildings in the town, and injured a large number of people. Information is very meager as no communication can be reached with Pomeroy or other near towns. It is believed that Fonda and Manson also suffered from the storm.

Pomeroy is a town of 1,000 inhabitants, located on the Illinois Central railway in Pocahontas county, in the north central part of the state, about 85 miles west of Dodge. A railroad image states that a special train bearing physicians has been sent from Fort Dodge to Pomeroy. The storm came from the northeast and devastated a wide territory.

The operator at Terra, Ia., telegraphs that 100 are dead at Pomeroy and 200 injured. Not a building is left standing in the town.

ALTA, Ia., July 7.—A terrific tornado, accompanied by thunder and hail, struck four miles south of this place. A number of persons were killed. Reports indicate that the storm extended from Aurelia to Newell, but meager reports are only, as yet, at hand.

Swept Everything in Its Path.

CHEROKEE, Ia., July 7.—Reports reached here to the effect that a terrible cyclone passed through the southeastern part of this county. The cyclone's course was westward, and cut a path from one to three miles in width and about 12 miles long in Cherokee county. All crops in its passage are completely ruined. A large amount of stock and farm animals were killed. It is also reported that 18 persons were killed and many others injured. Definite details, however, are unobtainable.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., July 7.—A cyclone, accompanied by heavy rain and hail, passed over Cherokee, Buena Vista, Ida, Sac and Pocahontas counties, east of here. Wires are down and little can be learned.

The cyclone struck just west of Quimby, in Cherokee county, and did much damage to property. Many buildings were wrecked. Mrs. Allen Warburton of Quimby was killed.

Near Cherokee Mrs. Molyneux was killed, but no damage was done in the town. The storm swept across the country nearly eastward, destroying crops and demolishing the buildings in its path. It is rumored that several people were killed. Many horses and cattle were killed.

Trains on the Illinois Central suffered severely, all the glass in the north side of the cars being broken. Hailstones 10 inches in circumference picked up. The hailstorm covered an unusually wide area.

Blew a House Into the Lake.

LAKEFIELD, Minn., July 7.—A cyclone struck here, doing considerable damage to buildings. The S. Y. Hydge warehouse was blown down and the steeple of the Methodist church blown off. The dwelling of Mr. Thompson, five miles west of here, was carried into the lake and totally wrecked, several members of the family being seriously injured. The dwelling of Andrew K. Abars, three miles south, was totally wrecked, Mrs. Abara and one child being killed. Several trees, which are reported to have been lost in the country near here, but nothing definite has been learned.

THE DUKE A BANKRUPT.

Veragua's Residence Seized For Debt While He Was In Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The friends and advisers of the Duke of Veragua in his country, having learned that his financial affairs in Spain are in such a condition as to threaten the loss of his entire estate, have decided to raise a considerable fund for the benefit of his family.

Hon. Thomas W. Palmer has consented to act as chairman of a committee to secure subscriptions not only in the United States but in all the other American republics and the West Indies. The funds will be invested in United States securities and held in trust for the benefit of Don Cristoval Colon, the son, and Dona Maria Del Pilliar, the daughter of the Duke of Veragua.

Letters from Madrid state that the beautiful residence of the duke in that city, with its entire furniture, many valuable works of art and the entire library were seized by his creditors while he was in Chicago as a guest of honor of the World's fair.

Three Attempts at Suicide.

NEWARK, N. J., July 7.—Gustav Albrecht of 540 South Tenth street, 60 years old, shot himself dead with a rev olver. He had during the night attempted to poison himself and to shoot himself with a gun, but each time was prevented.

Recovered 138 Miles Victims.

LONDON, July 7.—One hundred and thirty-eight dead bodies have been recovered from the Thornhill mine, in which there was an explosion on Tuesday.

Died in a Horse Car.

LEWISTON, Me., July 7.—Thomas Hill Rich, professor of Hebrew in Cobb's Divinity school, died in a horse car, aged 71.

Rev. John James who smashed the whiskey exhibit at the World's fair was fined $50.

A STAKE BURNING.

CAIRO, Ills., July 7.—Thompson Sandwich, the brutal negro who murdered Mrs. and Annie Hoyt, the daughters of John Hay, near Wickliffe, Ky., was captured at Libertown, Mo., 38 miles from here, and a special train was made up to convey him to the scene of his crime, there to be hanged or burned to the stake, as the infuriated mob should decide.

A party of men has been organized here to make way with the prisoner if he were brought through the city, and many will attend the lynching, which will inevitably occur when the party which has been in charge reaches Wickliffe.

Bloodhounds were secured, and one was started to hunt the murderer. He was captured on a freight train at Sikeston, Mo., 36 miles southwest of this city. The prisoner is a light colored mulatto, weighing 198 pounds. He wore no coat, and upon his clothing were found white colored beads and which had been smeared over with dirt. On his person were concealed a bloodstained razor, a gold watch and chain, which were identified by the members of the party as belonging to Mary Hay. Word was at once telegraphed to this city, and the excitement became intense.

A special train was ordered at Wickliffe. It left here at 9 o'clock last night for Sikeston. Two steamers have been chartered to take to Wickliffe from this city, and probably more than 1,000 people will be present to witness the lynching or burning, one of which will inevitably occur.

LOUISVILLE, July 7.—The negro will probably be lynched in a few hours.

AUSTRALIA'S SAD PLIGHT.

Business There Has Come to Smash and People Are Roughening.

SAN FRANCISCO, Ju' 7.—News brought by the steamer Mariposa from Australia is of a discouraging tenor. The closed banks are trying to resume, and business is at a standstill. Strikes are imminent, and tens of thousands of people are out of work.

A number of coal mines have shut down, wages of sailors are being reduced, and omnibus drivers went out on a strike because their wages were reduced from $10 to $6.75 per week.

The unemployed swarm along the docks, looking a chance to ship on any outward bound for the United States, and the Oceanic Steamship company's sheds at Circular quay had to be turned into a place for the destitute to sleep in.

The Mariposa's second cabin and steerage were crowded. Nearly all of those who came up were men and women who were once well to do, but lost nearly all in the general crash. They could not spare money for a first class passage and consequently had to come up in the steerage. Many of them hoped to make a new start in California.

Crushed In a Mine.

ROSEDALE, Ind., July 7.—At mine No. 9, in the Parke county coal range, was in the path of the cyclone which did such fearful work in Illinois. Four miners were coming up the slope, three empty cars got loose at the top of the tipple and ran down with lightning speed. The miners were caught in a narrow place and could not escape. Joseph Craven was instantly killed. Otto Gregan, aged 14, was crushed about the temples, and will die. Rolla Gregan, setin Yeager, and Joe Blacketer, aged about 18 years, were badly bruised about the head and hips.

Shot the Bad Man Dead.

MOBILE, July 7.—Pincher, a desperado of Wheelerville, Mobile county, and an escaped lifer, was shot and killed in the street in Wheelerville by Westby Thomas, a sheriff's deputy. Pincher was the terror of a bad settlement and has a string of miscellaneous killing to his credit. Several men have been watching for him near his old home, and found him on horseback in a country road. He told him to hold up his hands, but instead of doing so Pincher attempted to draw a pistol. Thomas put eight buckshot into his body.

War Expected In Samoa.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 7.—The war dogs on the Apia islands have not yet been let loose, but they are howling. Four ships of the two factions will begin open warfare. King Malietoa has informed the consuls of the three powers that he is confident of being able to effectually subdue the rebellion without much fighting, and a council of war will be held by his party.

House Rule Clauses Rushed Through.

LONDON, July 7.—Clauses 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 of the home rule bill were rushed through the house of commons yesterday. The Conservatives hardly knew what they were about. A page and a half of the bill was pushed through committee. This is almost as much as all the houses in committee had disposed of in all the previous sittings.

Working on His Message.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—It is stated that President Cleveland's message to the extra session of congress will be written at Buzzard's Bay. It is said that the message will be sought this vacation was that he might, unmolested by the office seekers, prepare the document upon which he intends to devote a great deal of painstaking care.

The Poorhouse Hardcase Convicted.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., July 7.—James Gardner, the murderer of Jennie Martha at the Queen's county poorhouse in November last was found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree. Judge Bartlett sentenced Gardner to imprisonment in Sing Sing for life. He is now over 60 years of age.

British Vessels Decorated.

BOSTON, July 7.—All the vessels in the harbor flying the British flag were gay with bunting in honor of the royal wedding. Lieutenant Murphy's Atalanta Pilot was kept busy all day July 4 decorations, and every little lumber laden schooner from the provinces hoisted the crimson ensign.

Nobility on Mount Washington.

MOUNT WASHINGTON, N. H., July 7.—Count De Rameses, Baron De Worst De Lamee and Baron De Lamee of the Belgian nobility visited the summit of Mount Washington. The party is on its way to New York and the World's fair.

Has the Bank's Residence Dot.

DENVER, July 7.—Elmer F. Williams, secretary of the state bureau of information, has been arrested charged with having in his possession $21,000 of the funds of the Chaffee County bank, which recently failed at Salida.

The Falcon Leaves Boston.

Railroad Superintendent Robbed.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 7.—The government has decided to discontinue negotiations for the subsidies amounting to $700,000 asked by the Mexican Railroad company.

FASHIONS.

THE NEW DRESS TRIMMINGS.

There never was a time when the success of a dress more depended on the trimming or when trimmings were more magnificent. Collars and belt pieces in a mixture of jet and mauve beads are one fashionable form, and these there are a great number of large sapolbe collars of the 1830 period which display the ornamentation to the best advantage. One illustration shows one of the newest forms of collarette. It consists of a circular puffing encircled with beaded bands and finished with a soft frilling. All round depend radiating tabs in satin glistening with jet beads, white colored beads and fluid with a contrasting silk.

BEADED COLLARETTE.

Jet plays an important part, not only applied on black cloth, but on stuffs of nearly every color. Nets are once more greatly in demand covered with spangles—the black with jet or gold, the white with silver or crystal.

In bead trimmings an effort is made to produce glass effects, and the cut beads are of great brilliancy. Also the Arabian style of combining various formed cuttings' spangles, one laid upon the other in rows. These are to be seen on many of the new gowns.

Manufacturers have been mindful of the fashionable bands of various widths which are introduced round skirts. They have also brought out a number of narrow trimmings to head the hems, and the newest of these form florets of jet and paste, or jet and amethyst, about the size of an ordinary marguerite, and are very effective. A favorite adornment of mantles is much simplified by introducing colors and gold and silver passementerie. The gold and green cord and beads, with a couple of pendants and falling at the back and front. Some of the gold ribbon galloons display a bow and ends, which are finished with tassels, the ties most charmingly blended in many-rayon tones, pink and blue, mauve and dark blue. Fashionable trimming is indeed fascinating, and for it much beautiful material is produced.

Fashions In Jewelry.

Numbered with new designs is the gold bracelet with two hearts shown in the accompanying cut. The center of one heart is studded with rubies, the other heart with a sapphire incrusted in brilliants and tied together with a true lover's knot, also in brilliants. Hearts are very popular at present, and the locket is usually worn suspended within an open, larger one of gold wire set round with pearls, is another novelty, as well as a single heart in the centre, with the date of the year in tiny gold figures across it and a gold bow above it. A simulated ribbon bow nearly half an inch wide, prettily tied in diamonds, with a large pearl set in the center and a perfect pear shaped one as a pendant, is a beautiful design, and so is a crab and a spider, while the newest conceit for pearl forming the back, or a butterfly or dragon fly set with rubies, sapphires and diamonds. Another novelty is a tortoise, with diamond head and body, the back formed of a moonstone engraved to resemble the natural markings.

NEW DESIGNS IN JEWELRY.

Among the bracelets there are bangles set with single stones, especially diamonds at distances, which are very beautiful, the bangle being in tiny enamel, but worn to give a raised effect. A bangle set with a diamond heart also forms a safety pin brooch. There is great variety in the jewelled bracelets. In the centre single rose there is a thick gold so called curtain ring bangle, with five or six gold charms hung to it, such as a lucky bell, a padlock, heart, lover's knot, etc.

A specialty is English enamel, which is more costly, but more beautiful than French. In the newest sleeve links is forms a prominent feature.

The New Cotton Dresses.

These are all made up rather elaborately and trimmed with ribbons and lace. Plain skirts are being worn by most of the girls. All the new ones are flounced, frilled or trimmed with bands of their own material or narrower cut on the cross.

Lace insertion, though, seems to be the newest trimming, and we shall shortly be seeing it on pretty nearly everything. Its width varies from about a quarter of an inch to 1½ inches, and it is largely used as an edging for the little frills that now run the whole depth of skirts.

Mourning Fashions.

The gradations of mourning, from somber, unrelieved black, through black with white, to black and white gray, lavender, until at last rosy pink is reached, and life and color are in evidence, have become a thing of the past. There has always been a touch of gayety-ness in the observance, as one should say, "Which me; my grief is subduing by many stages."

Makes an every-day convenience of an old-time luxury. Pure and wholesome. Prepared in 2 lb. packages. 10 cents. Served at all Pure Food Exposition. Each package makes two large pies. Avoid substitutes—and insist on having the NONE SUCH brand.

WOMAN AND HOME.

A TRIBUTE TO THE PARLORLESS HOME AND DEAR MOTHER.

Remarkable Record of Public Service.

The word parlor always suggests to my mind a vague something not exactly practical or beautiful, with no savor of comfort to be had, but instead a bewildering sort of place, from its solemnity or "not to be used" air. A place so sacred from disturbance and the possible dust that may come to it on the open windows always looks ghastly and fresh air. In stately mansions its forbiddingness takes an air of such supreme elegance that humidity seems not related because there is no deference to the common needs.

I always feel a chill when honored by a reception in a parlor or drawing room, and shudder at the cold-blooded criticism I am sure my mother is that she so loved her home that she never had a parlor. The largest and sunniest room had the most furniture, and along with easy chairs, cheery pictures, an open piano and books in plenty were the open window and vases and flowers in summer, and warm fire and plate of fruits in winter.

Mother always had a sitting room apart, because our reception room was so popular that sometimes I wished to spend the evening more quietly with book or friend than with our merry group. But no guest left the happy young circle without a good night to mother, even if she had been fit to withdraw from our musical, fun loving crowd. All who came thought the evening incomplete without the pleasant smile, jolly word or bit of kindly counsel they sought of my mother, "the young folks' friend."

It was through this sweet freedom, informality and unity of our home life that the children's friends were always under the supervision of our parents. A shield invisible was about us in this parental love and companionship, and our home made the center of pure and wholesome amusement for our young companions. Our mother knew our friends and she was our, and often their, confidential friend.

Let us not waste an inch of room in our house by making it a show room. If we would have our home the brightest spot in the memory of our boys and girls when they have become men and women, let the atmosphere of the home be genial, sympathetic, with every belonging serving every day the human needs of unfolding lives.—Housekeeper

A Remarkable Record of Public Service.

Miss Harriet M. Aspinwall, the only woman permanently employed in the money division of the dead letter office, was appointed from New York by Postmaster General James in 1881. It is her duty to record, and return to the senders wherever possible, such letters as have been opened and found to contain money. She is required to search for all money letters received by her and is held responsible for them until they are turned over to the mailing division at the close of each day. The records show a complete history of each letter handled and can be quickly traced from first treatment to final disposition. If a letter contains the faintest clew to the identity of the writer, it is sent under cover to the postmaster at the mailing office, together with careful instructions as to the delivery of it. About 95 per cent are delivered by this means.

The largest amount she has yet found in a single letter is $1,000, but a letter containing a cent receives the same careful attention, and equal effort is made to discover the owner. About $20,000 in money is received to the senders of letters each year, and the amounts are kept so accurately that in all the period of the woman's service not a cent of the thousands passing through her hands has failed to be properly accounted for. Miss Hall's appointment has she failed to report for duty at 9 o'clock save once, when an accident caused her to be delayed eight minutes, nor has she lost an hour on account of illness in 19 years. It is believed this record cannot be equaled in the entire department. This lady has been twice promoted. Her present salary is $1,200.—Our Postoffice.

A Word to the Good Young Girl.

The extremely well behaved young girl who has never been tempted; and who cannot understand how another could commit a folly is certain to become the most censorious of her women. If she does not deplore into a cruel, malicious tongued scandal rasagge, it will be a wonder. Nothing is so easy as the descent from uncharitableness to malice. A young girl she prizes herself upon her love of morality and good behavior. All her friends speak of her as a "perfect girl" in her ideas. No one would think of appealing to her for sympathy or advice in an hour of temptation. She she is respected for her high ideas if feared for her unforgiveness. An old woman she is simply held in abhorrence, and her name becomes a neighborhood synonym for cruel judgment.

Criticism of our fellows belongs to a vice which takes possession of us like a stimulant or a drug, once we encourage it. It long holds in our high ideal stand and our hatred of sin, but once it becomes a habit we indulge in it for the pleasure it gives us. It is a bad habit in the young. In the old it is terrible. Nothing renders an old age interesting or lovable save sympathy for the young and charity for the erring. It is strange that we all do not grow more tolerant of evil. As we learn more and more of our frailties and more and more of the temptations and illusions of life we ought to become more and more tender and pitying. One can be sympathetic without encouraging vice and wrongdoing or cloaking sin.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox in New York Press.

Ancient Women Poets.

It is no new theory that women in order to succeed in poetry must be brief, personal and concentrated. It was recognized by the Greek critics themselves. Into that delicious garland of the poets which was woven by Meleager to be hung outside the gate of the gardens of the Hesperides he admits but two women from all the centuries of Hellenic song. Sappho is there indeed because the work her flowers were few, they were all roses," and, almost unseen, a single virginal shoot of the crocus below the feet of Erinna. And what all womanhood gave of durable poetry to the literature of antiquity. A critic, writing 500 years after her death, speaks of still hearing the very note of Erinna clear above the jangling chatter of the jays and still thinking those 300 hexameter verses sung by a girl of 19 as lovely as the loveliest of Homer's.

Even at the time of the birth of Christ Erinna's writings consisted of what could be printed on a page of a magazine. The whole of her extant work, and of Sappho's, too, could now be pressed into a newspaper column. But their fame lives on, and of Sappho at least enough survives to prove beyond a shadow of doubt the lofty inspiration of her genius. She is the type of the woman poet who exists only by reason of the variety or volume of her work, but by virtue of its intensity, its individuality, its artistic perfection.—Edmund Gosse in Century.

Early Training of a County.

"If I am a county," said a young woman who had been accused of indulging in this truly feminine vice, "I was made so by force of circumstances. My bringing up in a family where I was the youngest of seven."

As this was a new theory, with all the curiosity of our sex we questioned the prettily speaker, and she gave us the following figures, which, once heard, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it.

"To begin with," she said, "I do not think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old I remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her piled me with questions regarding the errand she had sent me on to that other house.

"I remember distinctly the epithets of 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my ears and eyes to advantage and retailed all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Whenever I failed to observe, including the facts I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Ailments of Children.

Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach are very common among children, especially between 2 and 12 years of age. These attacks are sometimes induced by exposure to cold, but are oftener the result of improper food. Two kinds of food especially lead to such disorders—irritating food and easily fermentable food.

The first is a food which is not easily digested, and hence, by its continued presence, acts as an irritant. Easily fermentable food is that which is acted upon quickly by certain ferments, including the yeasts and the alcoholic ferments.

This process gives rise to the formation of gases and acids in the stomach and duodenum. All this results in a greater flow of mucus from the surface of the stomach. In the mild cases "a bilious attack" supervenes. In other cases the attack is more severe. A chilly feeling or a chill will ensue, followed by fever, frontal headache, restlessness or delirium, a dry and coated or a fiery red tongue. The complexion is sallow, the appetite lost and dark circles appear under the eyes. The most important part of the treatment is preventive. Candy and sweets are among the most easily fermentable things swallowed by children.—Youth's Companion.

Concerning Wrinkles.

There are several kinds of wrinkles. Some women whose lives are comparatively free from care have their faces furrowed with lines that do not indicate age or trouble. Such are the wrinkles that might be called constitutional or hereditary.

Another kind of thirty women. You don't well known to have a singularly care free life has a forehead seamed with horizontal lines that result entirely from a trick she has of raising her eyebrows when she is talking earnestly or emphatically. It is a

A Carved Beauty For Dusting.

A weary and perhaps often fastidious housekeeper, who was asked what her idea of heaven was, promptly responded, "A place where there is no dust." As long, however, as we do remain on this earth dust is a more aggressive and ever present enemy than either moths or rust. At least every housekeeper will admit that the keys of windows and doors should have their entire surface gone over with a clean broom inserted in a bag of cotton flannel. Pianos of each kind, but especially an unstrained, fiery mahogany, besides which the fuzzy nap of the cloth catches and retains the dust better than old muslin and does not injure it by friction, should be dusted each morning from polished or stained floors.

A Joyous Healthy Woman's Recipe.

Lizzie, the actress, is a level headed little woman. In a letter to a friend who wanted to know how she keeps well and good looking she writes:

"Early to bed and early to rise make a woman healthy, wealthy and wise. That has been my rule all my life, and I have consciously followed it to it. Fifteen minutes after the performance I am out of the theater, I take a glass of milk and eat ready for my bed. I have always found that a well balanced life and a well balanced mind filled with kind feelings for others, especially those around me who are toiling for their daily bread, is the greatest of beautifiers. A most excellent rule is to cultivate only those who are congenial, for the result is mutual benefit. It is good economy, I find, to avoid antagonistic natures, for is such contact both are mentally injured. Nothing in the world helps to beautify one more than to appreciate their blessings—the perfect enjoyment of our five senses—with health."

How Authoresses Write.

Edna Lyall, the author of "Donovan," "We Two" and "To Right the Wrong," works to some extent on the lines which she is not the systematic writer that Miss Braddon is. She first thinks out her central figure as hero, and endows him with those qualities in which her daughters excel. If to cloke him. She then thinks out the story to fit the man. She makes certain events befall him which shall bring to light his special virtues, working up till she produces a final result which may leave the world better for having heard of such men. Miss Braddon, in common with many other authoresses, works as a matter of duty every day for a certain time. The actual p'anning of new stories varies, but much of her fiction is founded upon fact, and her own personal experiences are used, and often her plots develop themselves to her after she has begun to write the story.—Exchange.

Curing Free Trombonians Foot.

A great many women are habitually suffering from cold feet. This is very often due to an imperfect circulation of the blood or to some such trouble calling for medical advice. But in many cases the feet will often remedy this matter, however, if it is due to the state of the general health. The feet should be carefully and daily cared for their daily bath, and they should be rubbed briskly with a friction towel if there is any tendency to chilliness. The shoes should fit easily, but not loosely, nor be tight. If the feet are wet, the shoes should be removed at the earliest opportunity and the stockings changed. If they are cold, it is best to rub them with a little alcohol and water and dry them with a soft friction towel, rubbing them briskly to restore the circulation.—New York Tribune.

Overworked Cabinet Wives.

A woman whose husband was in the cabinet throughout its entire administration said that during the first months of which they were "in office" she spent nearly her entire time in simply cataloguing and returning her numerous visits. "Four or five days of every week in the season," she said, "I actually took my lunch in the carriage and started out at 12 o'clock in my endeavor to catch up with my visiting book before my next reception day brought a fresh batch of callers to overwhelm me. It was the most dispiriting thing imaginable and was the hardest work I ever did. Something ought to be done to relieve the wives of the cabinet officers from such a burden."—Philadelphia Press.

Bread For Sandwiches.

As a matter of fact, for perfect sandwiches the bread should be made on purpose, and the baker should be requested to bake it in tins and raise it well before it is put in the tin, so that it shall not be full of holes, as in that case too much butter will be consumed and the sandwiches will become disagreeably greasy. It is only giddiness who like sandwiches in the bread of which the numerous perforations are filled with butter. Epicures prefer delicate slices of pure, white crumb of bread, with a united surface and the under sides tenderly and discriminatingly spread with a thin layer of the "same fresh."—Exchange.

Women as Medical Practitioners.

About 45 qualified medical women are now practicing in London, and 144 are on the medical register. Many are making a good start in the provincial towns. They are holding posts under the asylum boards, in the infirmaries, in children's hospitals, as physicians of factories and cabinets, as medical officers to the employees at the several postoffices, London, and at the Liverpool and Manchester exhibitions. A considerable number of the women who have been qualified as medical practitioners have gone to India, China, South Africa and Australia. —Furnishgitly Review.

When Ironing Tablecloths.

Tablecloths should be folded once only for ironing, and that lengthwise. They should be ironed with a very hot iron until perfectly dry, and then there is no danger of a rumpled appearance afterward. They should be quite damp and free from starch. Fold them loosely crosswise, without ironing, and these folds will be easily smoothed out with the hand, leaving no crease but the middle one.

Moderation In Perfumes.

I do wish that some women would learn to use perfumes with discretion. How often one is overpowered with the strong odors of what, when delicately used, would prove to be an exquisite scent! This is particularly noticeable in the cars and stamps a woman so quickly as being vulgar that I wonder she does not use a delicate sachet bag which is as powerful as her perfume.—Philadelphia Press.

Canary birds are fond of oats. Try them and see how they will enjoy hulling out the grains and how eagerly they will devour every kernel in their cups. If agreed with them, does not make them too fat and promotes a luxuriant growth of shining plumage that will glisten in the sun as never before.

Ellen Terry lives in a brick house at Earl's Court with her son and daughter. Pretty surroundings are necessaries of life to Miss Terry, and her home is full of quaint nooks and corners, and soft harmonies of color and the delicate fragrance of flowers.

Miss Braddon's method of novel writing is to sit down at her desk every morning at 10 o'clock and stay there until she has completed her task of about 3,000 words. Miss Braddon has, it is said, realized Scott's ambition to make £100,000 by writing fiction.

Another excellent hint relative to starch offers a piece of alum about the size of a hickory nut for every pint of starch. The alum is dissolved and then stirred into the starch. This preparation is used for stiffening ginghams, muslins and calicoes.

Miss Evelyn Smith is keeper of the county jail in Kent county, R. I. She inherits her office, it having been held in direct line in her family since the Revolution. When her predecessor died, she was the only one of the family left to succeed to the keys.

The queen of the Belgians is very fond of music, a good pianist and a performer on the harp. She has composed one opera, called "Wanda." The king hates music, and when the piano is opened he vanishes from the room.

Instead of putting food into the oven to keep hot for the late comers, try covering it closely with a tin and setting it over a basin of hot water. This plan will keep the food hot and at the same time prevent it from drying.

THE BOROUGH COUNCIL.

THE REGULAR JULY MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT.

The Plainfield Electric Light Company Ordered to Take its Poles Out of the Borough.—A Portion of Duer Street Ordered Macadamized.—The Plainfield Street Railway Granted an Extension of Time.

All the Councilmen were present at last night's Borough Council meeting. After the approving of the minutes of the week previous, a petition was read from Mr. J. P. Rambo and others for the removal of the Plainfield Electric Light poles from the borough streets. The petition was referred to the Ordinance committee on Streets.

Residents of Grandview avenue petitioned Council to cause a crosswalk to be laid at the intersection of Grandview and Westerveit avenues. Attention was also called to the bad condition of the crosswalk at Grandview avenue and Grand street.

Mr. L. B. Woolston and others petitioned Council to macadamize Duer street from Craig place to Emily street.

In behalf of the Warren chapel, Assistant Superintendent Van Arsdale requested Council to have the placing of two poles on Chatham street by the Plainfield Electric Light Company, so that the chapel might be lighted by said company, the wiring having been already completed.

The Plainfield Street Railway Company, through Superintendent Passmore, requested Council to grant an extension of sixty days time in which to finish the street railway on Somerset street.

Foreman J. J. Stahl of Warren Engine Company informed Council that the company was out of badges and requested that new ones be procured.

Clerk Vetterlein reported that Street Commissioner Gavin had turned over to him $18.75, for dirt sold from Somerset street.

Mr. Connolly presented two bids for the erection of a hose tower in the rear of the engine house, one from Mr. D. L. Hulick for $200, and the other from Mr. A. J. Winckler for $265. It was resolved that the contract be given to Mr. Hulick.

Mr. Needham, of the Street Committee, reported favorably on the macadamizing of Duer street, and stated that $136 had been subscribed. On motion the work was ordered done.

Councilman Connolly stated that the committee was not ready to report on the Grove street extension. He also reported that the borough would not have to pay Mr. Mackey for services as special marshal any longer as the Park residents were arranging to pay him themselves.

Mr. Edwards reported that he had bought a safe for $75 for the borough.

On resolution the Mayor and Clerk were authorized to borrow $800 for the street lighting account.

Marshal Pangborn was authorized to build a dog pound, for which $10 was appropriated.

On resolution the Street Railway Company was given until August 15 to finish its work on Somerset street. The company stated that August 26 to finish the work, but according to the Corporation Counsel's view of the ordinance the time limit expired June 15, instead of 26th as the company claimed.

A resolution was introduced by Mr. Needham ordering the Plainfield Electric Light Company to remove its poles from the borough inside of 30 days after the serving of a notice on the company to that effect. In explaining his resolution Mr. Needham said that the Plainfield company had merely been given permission to erect poles as an experiment, and that an agreement had been made to remove the poles when the Council so ordered. That was in December, 1892. In January, 1893, the Council passed a resolution ordering the company to remove the poles. The company had contracted to light several places in the borough and a few poles were allowed on this account to be left standing. As the borough now has a company of its own and as the city had refused to allow the borough company to place its wires on Front street, it was no more than right that the Plainfield company be refused that privilege in the borough. The resolution was adopted by the following vote:

Yes—Messrs. Needham, Edwards and Hummer.

No—Messrs. Howell and Connolly.

A loan of $1,000 was authorized to be negotiated for, to be charged to the general road account.

The following bills were ordered paid:

Council then adjourned.

W. C. T. U. Convention.

The annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of New Jersey opened at Ocean Grove yesterday, and was continued to-day. The following is a list of the principal speakers: Mrs. M. B. Denham, Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, Miss Jennie Clark, Mrs. J. H. Demarest and Mrs. S. M. Krom.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—The educational exhibit at the World's Fair is the most extensive and valuable collection of accomplished work, of its kind, which has ever been brought together. Each State owes the measure of its appreciation of the value of education, by its method of handling its exhibit, and by the use made of the space allowed by the commissioners.

The exhibit includes the whole range of educational institutes, from the kindergarten to the finished work of the Pratt Institute and the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

A notice in one of the daily Chicago papers contained the following paragraph:

"Notwithstanding that New Jersey is one of the smallest States in the Union her educational exhibit is among the best, as containing more original ideas both in work and methods of display."

Thus urged we lost no time in making an examination of New Jersey's department. We found that the praise was justly bestowed. The space allowed being entirely inadequate to show the large amount of work contributed, some ingenious original device had been invented by the ex-postmaster of Atlantic City by which the space is almost indefinitely increased, a space of one square yard being made available for exhibiting twenty square yards of work, and of the same time protecting the copies from dust and handling.

It will be of interest to residents of Plainfield to hear that the work sent from our schools ranks with the best of its kind in the Fair. As a proof of this we were told that not a single copy which was sent from Plainfield was rejected, all being included in the exhibit.

It is with great pleasure we record this fact, both as cause for encouragement in future efforts, and as a reward for work well done in the past.

A prominent and interesting feature of educational work, is that accomplished by the Manual training schools, showing what a lively interest is taken in the full development of the pupil, eye and hand being trained to use and express the thought in the desired material as well as in fitting language.

In this important department the world is running away from Plainfield, and obtaining such a start that we are apt to become only copyists of what Newcomers, a short room, filled up with joiners' benches, where children may be left in charge of the managers upon payment of twenty-five cents per day, and they are instructed in "Sloyd work," which comprises lessons of a practical character, and consists in sawing and working in wood and clay. The children become earnestly interested in the work, and some very good examples of modeling and wood carving, done by the children, are on exhibition.—A supporter of Sloyd, which can be seen in the "Sloyd department" of the World's Fair, cannot be found.

It suggests a valuable adjunct to the "Boys' Parlor" being practical and inexpensive in fact such a school would be an acquisition in every town and in every district of larger cities. As it enables children who are backward in the use of language to make use of their hands and eyes, saving them from the weariness of idleness and carrying mischievous propensities into useful channels.

BREVITIES.

—To-night a song service will be held in the W. C. T. U. rooms.

Mr. George Mantz of Dog Watch Hollow has been confined to his bed with sciatica for several weeks.

—Two young men were arraigned before Judge Coddington, this morning, charged with fighting. They were fined $5.

—The Y. P. S. C. E. of the First Baptist church was led last evening by Mr. Henry Adams. The meeting was well attended.

—Frank Conches was arrested for drunkenness by Marshall Pangborn yesterday afternoon, and was sentenced to a to $10 fine or 10 days in the county jail.

—The Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers will go for a run to Staten Island to-morrow. The start will be made from the Lyceum Club House, corner of Sixth and Liberty streets, at 7.30 a. m.

—Mr. Spencer, a farmer of Mr. Horse, says he finds potato bugs are scarcer this year than any year before. He noticed, the other day, a peculiar sort of fly that was killing the potato bugs.

—On complaint of Charles Albert, Fillmore Coddington was arrested this morning by Constable Tryon, charged with assault. He was released on $100 bail to appear to-night for trial. Mr. Henry DeMott became his bondsman.

—Mr. W. C. Tallman and his installation staff, went to Somerville last night and installed the new officers of Somerville Lodge, Monday night they will go to Elizabeth to install the new officers of Franklin Lodge, number 9 of Elizabeth.

—At the adjourned meeting of the Crescent Wheelmen, last night, three new members were elected. Several committees reported, and it was decided to rent the store, formerly used as the United States Express office on North avenue, and to fit up for temporary use.

THREE TONS ON HIS THUMB.

One of the Babcock Granite Pillars Injures a Workman.

Between four and five o'clock yesterday afternoon as Manning Simpkins was assisting in placing one of the three granite pillars in position in front of the new Babcock building on West Front street he was hurt by having the thumb of his right hand caught between the pillars and base. The latter was being lowered by a derrick and as quickly as possible the heavy piece of granite was raised off the man's thumb, which was badly crushed.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Ireland of Philadelphia is visiting her brother, Mr. Hiram Woodland of Duer street.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Pope of Fifth street have returned home after spending three weeks at Spring Valley, N. Y.

Miss Lizzie Burry of New York, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Kiely of Stelzer place, left to-day for Saratoga.

Mr. Frank L. G. Martin of the Plainfield Bi-Club was appointed referee of the bicycle races at New Brunswick today.

Mrs. R. Lalor and Miss Josephine Schaeffer of this city have gone to Federalsburg, Caroline county, Md., for a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hyde of New York are visiting Mr. and Mrs. William W. Springsteen of Somerset street. Mr. Hyde is a brother of Mrs. Springsteen.

Mr. A. L. Hinrichs of this city is entered in the races of the Riverside Wheelmen's big race meet at Manhattan Field, New York, to-day. A score of crack riders are among the number.

The family of Mr. Joseph Zeller, a former employe of the Pond Machine Tool Works, and who has been for some time working in an electric light works in New York State, has moved back to Plainfield.

At the regular meeting of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum Thursday night the new officers were installed, and delegates to attend the Convention of the Diocese Union were appointed as follows: Messrs. W. J. Kiely, J. Lynch and Dennis Galbraith.

Mr. Edward Gately of New York spent the Fourth as the guest of Mr. Andrew Carney of Emily street. Mr. Gately is a brother of the mate, who formerly pitched such good ball for the Crescents. Mr. Gately attended the ball game here Tuesday and praised the playing of the Crescents very highly. He says he was often asked by his brother to accompany him to Plainfield and witness the playing of the Crescents. He seemed to take as much interest, almost more, filled up with joiners' benches, where children may be left in charge of the managers upon payment of twenty-five cents per day, and they are instructed in "Sloyd work," which comprises lessons of a practical character, and consists in sawing and working in wood and clay. The children become earnestly interested in the work, and some very good examples of modeling and wood carving, done by the children, are on exhibition.—A supporter of Sloyd, which can be seen in the "Sloyd department" of the World's Fair, cannot be found.

It suggests a valuable adjunct to the "Boys' Parlor" being practical and inexpensive in fact such a school would be an acquisition in every town and in every district of larger cities. As it enables children who are backward in the use of language to make use of their hands and eyes, saving them from the weariness of idleness and carrying mischievous propensities into useful channels.

Chief Raised Up.

The following officers of Minnitonoi Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, were installed, last evening, by Deputy Great Sachem Andrew J. Stiglitz and staff:

Prophet—William A. Westphal.
Sachem—John R. Carney.
Senior Sagamore—Charles Edstein.
Junior Sagamore—Joseph Wycoff.
First Sannap—Elmer H. Neal.
Second Sannap—David G. Allen.
First Warrior—E. J. Allaben.
Second Warrior—William Klein.
Third Warrior—Nelson Wyckoff.
Fourth Warrior—Louis Alpaugh.
First Brave—George Hoagland.
Second Brave—M. Leahy.
Guard of Wicket—William C. Kilby.
Keeper of the Council Fire—Charles Hall.

A handsome representative cask was presented by the Sachem, in behalf of the officers and members of Deputy Great Sachem and representative to the great council of the United States, Norman C. Hoagland, who was completely surprised and could hardly find words to express his gratitude.

Blundering Correspondents.

Alexander M. Runyon brought suit for five thousand dollars against the Central Railroad Company a fortnight ago, and the New York papers have just found it out through their Elizabeth correspondent. The latter got the name Theodore M. Runyon, and stated that Mr. Runyon had expended five hundred dollars for medical services. THE NEWS ascertained this morning that the suit was brought through Cyrus A. Marsh of this city as counsel, and that in the papers filed the amount included medical services, etc., were stated to be one hundred dollars, and the five thousand dollars damages are claimed for pain and suffering endured and the necessity loss in Mr. Runyon's business.

Ex-Postmaster Force Dying.

The doctors held a consultation last night and are holding another this afternoon regarding the condition of ex-Postmaster William L. Force, who was expected at two o'clock this afternoon to last but a few hours. Paresis has developed, and his lungs are congested, so that he is unable to talk. He was injured a week or so ago by a kick from a horse, and a fall in consequence from the conveyance in which he and three others—one of whom was saloon-keeper Thorne—were out driving. They had been warned that his condition was serious, but the hope lingered up with the doctors. The others escaped injury. A telegram has been sent to his brother, Mr. James Force, who is at Lake Hopatcong, to come on at once, as the doctors give no hope.

FOR A FIREMAN ONLY.

"THE NEWS" FREE TRIP TO THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The Most Popular Fireman will get a Week of Holidays at Chicago.—The Contest Open to the Firemen of this Vicinity.—The Chance of a Lifetime.

FOR the most popular fireman of this vicinity, to be decided by popular vote, THE NEWS proposes to give free accommodation, and accommodation for a week, at that wonder of the age, The World's Fair.

To secure this has cost both time and money. But then our firemen always willingly give their time (and sometimes money) when needed, and, as has often been the case, work hard for hours and hours without compensation when fighting stubborn fires. They deserve a good thing this time. The only regret is that the contest makes it only possible to give them few weeks of holidays to one man. Every fireman has his particular host of friends who think he is the best. For us to decide such a question would be impossible and manifestly unfair. The coupon below will be printed every day in THE EVENING NEWS until the end of the contest. The coupon must be cut from the paper and mailed to us. Every coupon so received, and properly filled out, will count for one vote.

The results will be published in due time.

Don't put off sending in your coupon. Tell your friends the same, for the contest will only last a short time, and then the highest number of votes received for one man will make him the winner. In two months the weather will be most suitable for the trip.

Every fireman will have an equal chance in the race.

Just think of the chance! Railroad tickets, hotel accomodations, admission tickets, and other attractions and excursions. And all for nothing. Only the winner must be the most popular man and secure the votes as stated to prove it.

Base Ball Notes.

Manager Keller is trying to secure the famous Cherry Diamonds of the Manhattan Athletic Club for next Saturday.

In relation to the publication in another paper of his release by Manager Keller, and, in justice to himself, Mr. Hofford thinks a more definite statement of the facts should be made, and says the reason for his leaving Plainfield is that the management, finding it impossible to keep the agreement made with him, advised him to accept a reduction in salary, and, as he would not agree to that, under any circumstances, he asked for his release. Capt. Hofford has already received an offer from Manager Barham of the Providence Club to play there.

A Prosperous Business Man.

Tuesday, Mr. J. E. Townsend not only celebrated the glorious Fourth, but also the anniversary of his opening of business in Plainfield. One year ago he started his marble works on Somerset street with four pieces of work to get out. He worked alone and put in about 14 hours a day. To-day he has about $6,000 worth of work on hand and employs four men. This is a record to be proud of, but Mr. Townsend does not intend to stop at $6,000 worth of work, and is still hustling.

A Violation of the Health Ordinance.

Complaints are made by residents of West Second street to the emptying of objectionable matter in the streets by a neighbor. They claim that it is done at night, and the past day the stench is unbearable. The Board of Health has been notified of the matter and it was ordered stopped by the Health Inspector. Recently, however, the violation was resumed.

The city of Philadelphia compels the trolley companies to pave with Belgian blocks the entire streets they use, and to keep them in repair thus believing the taxpayers compensating for the use of the streets. The North Plainfield Council and they have stated the matter to their hands aside, by reason of the failure of the Railway Company to complete the Somerset street road by June 26th, as called for by their franchise count to have provision to the percentage to be retained in lieu. One of these, is that the road, should be kept in first-class repair under penalty. Otherwise it will never be properly done. The road is not in proper condition now, and it is because of these tracks.

A Valuable Relic.

[Round Brook (Chronicle.)]

Burritt L. Stryker, of South Bound Brook, had in his possession on the Camp Ground, on Tuesday, a pair of spectacles once owned and worn by Abraham Clark, one of the New Jersey signers of the Declaration of Independence. They are mounted in a heavy silver frame, are are kept in the case used in the original weave. It would be interesting to know if they were worn at the time Mr. Clark put his name to the immortal document which pledged his life, his fortune and his sacred honor. The glasses are highly prized by their owner. Mrs. Stryker, who is likewise a descendant of this Revolutionary hero.

Chancellor McGill at Trenton yesterday granted an order requiring the officers of the Somerset County Bank at Somerville, to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed. The order is returnable to Wednesday. The application for the receiver was made by Banking Commissioner Duryea through the Attorney-General, on allegations made that the bank was in an unsafe condition, and had become involved in the financial embarrassment of ex-Congressman Pidcock. The bank's capital is said to be $100,000, and the surplus $50,000. The deposits are said, amount to $250,000.

—The removal sale at Estell's before going into the new Babcock building, he says, affords an excellent opportunity to secure goods at lower prices than to before offered.

—Several shots were fired in the rear of Miss Veiden's home on Somerset street, last night. Constable Tryon investigated the matter and found that some one had been merely practicing on some rats that were prowling around and making night hideous.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Probably the American story which next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has sold most widely is Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter." From the time it first appeared it met ready and steady sales. These have recently been increased by the fact that the copyright has expired, and cheap copies are on the market by the hundred thousand. One neat paper edition is sold at 19 cents. The great army of average novel readers, it is said, do not know when they buy it that they are getting a famous American classic, but imagine it is some new tale on a par with the sensational story of the period. It is also said that after they read it through many of them have no idea what the title, "The Scarlet Letter," means. Let us hope this is a slander on the intelligence of the young American novel reader. If it be the truth, however, then the young American novel reader will, unknown to himself, become acquainted in this weird, fascinating book with one of the greatest works of American fiction ever produced.

BLOOD STREWN PRAIRIE

Awful Scenes In the Track of the Iowa Cyclone.

SOME QUEER FREAKS OF THE WIND

Hardly Enough Persons to Bury the Dead and Attend the Injured—Every Other Resident of the Stricken Towns a Mourner—Dead Adds to the Death Rate.

POMEROY, Ia., July 8.—Fifty-three dead, 75 fatally injured and 150 with broken limbs cuts and bruises more or less severe. This is what the tornado accomplished in the matter of casualty.

The town of Pomeroy is one complete wreck. There is scarcely a house left standing. About 18 acres of debris constitutes now what was a thriving village. Splinters are all that remain. Pomeroy is part and parcel of the prairie, the death dealing wind having left it barren and desolate. Scarcely a tree remains. Piles of broken timbers and occasional pieces of furniture are all that can be found of what was once the largest buildings in the place.

Two hundred and fifty houses were all destroyed, and the money loss on these and their contents is placed at $200,000. Every where about Pomeroy were dead and dying people. A dozen men were digging graves in the burying ground on the hill just north of the village, and the hearse was kept busy carrying the victims of the storm to their last resting place.

Doctors from a dozen or more places hurried through the streets, and in their wake followed squads of soldiers carrying cot-fins. Special trains from all the surrounding towns brought thousands who were ready to take part in the work of caring for the dead and wounded.

Clothing and food were shipped in by the ton. Soon order was brought out of chaos. Relief corps were organized and things were going along in a businesslike way.

An Awful Night.

The night of the cyclone in Pomeroy is one that will never be forgotten by those who were here. Darkness followed quickly in the wake of the tornado, and those who escaped death and injury were compelled to grope their way among the ruined houses, guided along by the cry of some poor unfortunate who was pinned under the fallen timbers. Almost every light in any description whatsoever was destroyed, and the fire from Fort Dodge and the surrounding places, who were the first to reach the scene, failed to bring lanterns with them. The search for the victims therefore, was necessarily slow till morning came.

It was not till the first streaks of light appeared in the east that the enormity of the disaster dawned upon the people. They looked where once a city stood and saw nothing but a timber strewn prairie. Every member of the crew of the railroad tracks had disappeared, and the spires of seven churches in the place that only a few hours before shot upward to the skies were nowhere to be seen. Pomeroy had a wealth of shade trees, but now nothing is to be seen of them save a broken and twisted mass of limbs and roots. Dead horses, cattle, cats, dogs and chickens were scattered over the ground.

Pools of human blood mingled with the mud at every turn, showing where some victim of the tornado had been tossed after life had been crushed out.

The air was full of moans and sobs and shrieks, and every other face met on the street was stained with tears.

The people in Pomeroy seemed powerless to do anything for the sufferers, and it was not until early morning, when the people from outside towns arrived, that anything was done toward recovering the dead and caring for the wounded.

Scenes at the Morgue.

What is called the postoffice building, but which has recently been used as a billiard room, was turned into a morgue, and this is where the greatest horrors of the ruining build ings, the biggest one being the Pomeroy hotel. The scene in the improvised morgue was a ghastly one. Billiard tables were covered with sheets, and on these the mangled bodies of the dead were placed.

The floor was badly sunken in the middle, and here the blood as it dripped from the tables ran in small streams, and soon with the assistance of the water from the rapidly melting ice, formed a puddle of gore up to the tops of the attendants' shoes.

On the tables were bodies without heads and bodies without arms, bodies whose legs had been blown away by the cyclone and bodies with heads crushed beyond recognition by the falling timbers. On one table lay the remains of an old woman, a babe as big as a man's fist, torn from the rest part of her head. Close by was a baby not more than a year old, one of its legs gone and its little arms mashed to a jelly.

The tornado, for such it was, came from the northwest. All those who saw it agreed that it was one of the funnel shaped species, but came bounding along the prairie like a huge ball. It was of a dark green color and was accompanied by a terrific noise. There are many who saw it when it was far out of town, gave the alarm, and many were prepared for the monster when it reached the village.

In the Cyclone Cave.

Most of the people, however, became panic stricken. They ran out of their houses and fled up the streets crying and shrieking, till struck by the flying timbers and whirling debris. The cooler ones, however, especially those who had a cave to them, made for the two caves in the southeast part of the town, built especially for just such occasions as this. Into one of these caves collected 25 people and in another five. All escaped without a scratch.

A half hour before it struck it was exceedingly hot and save for a few small clouds there was no evidence of the approaching whirlwind. The cyclone was but of a few minutes duration and was followed by a terrific rainstorm, which continued at intervals more or less throughout the night.

The path of the storm seems to be about an eighth of a mile in width and 20 miles long. The death list out in the country is heavy, and from many of the neighboring towns are coming reports. Fairfield, in Cherokee county, swelling the total number of dead to 75. Eight more are reported dead at Storm Lake, and many other places give notice of one or two deaths.

There was a good supply of doctors—not large enough, however, to care for the wounded. The ladies of Fort Dodge were as nurses, and there was a plentiful supply of bedding and food. As rapidly as possible the injured were taken to the improvised hospitals and given needful attention. It was soon found, however, that the buildings used for this purpose were far too small, and efforts were made to lessen the number of patients in each. This was no easy task, for there was no place to put them.

The Injured Dying.

Company D, Fourth regiment, of Fort Dodge, commanded by Lieutenant W. F. Chestnut, 40 strong, arrived with a full camp equipment. Tents were soon close to the hospital, and into these many of the sufferers were placed. They were not particularly comfortable here, however, for the sun was stillenough hot and caused the thermometer to rise over 90. A death occurred among the injured every little while all day long. The number of those who had expired because of their injuries was placed at a dozen.

The National bank of Pomeroy was made the headquarters of the relief movement. Here those willing to work or to act as nurses were assigned to the various hospitals, and here also provisions, money, bedding and clothing were received, and all of these matters rolled in rapidly. By 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the office of the bank was stacked clear to the ceiling with food and clothing. Scores of people were arriving on every train. Governor Boies arrived and took charge of the whole affair. He was first driven out over the ruins, then he visited the hospitals and then came, consulted with those who had thus far directed things and then issued a proclamation setting forth the needs of the sufferers and calling upon the people of Iowa to contribute liberally.

The governor said the situation was far worse than he expected and assured the people that nothing would add to their comfort and relief would be left undone. He ordered more tents from Des Moines and said he would have a company or more of soldiers on the grounds before tomorrow.

The intense heat made it impossible to keep the bodies of the dead and those that were not claimed by relatives or friends and by them buried or taken away by noon were placed in the graveyard by the officials. Forty graves were dug and filled with dead up to 2 o'clock last evening and at that hour the flitting lanterns in the cemetery showed plainly that the work of burials was going on still.

The escape of the Lowery family was a strange one. They were sitting on their veranda when the storm came along. A cow that was standing 50 yards away was blown right through the house, and the latter, all save the veranda, was demolished. Not a piece of furniture that was in the house escaped being broken.

One of the first things that greeted the hundreds of visitors that poured into town was a full grown rooster without a feather upon him. He looked as if he had been plucked and singed. There was not even a pin feather left. He strutted up and down the principal thoroughfares, flapping his naked wings and crowing in a loud voice.

The body of Sam Maxwell, who was killed along with two of his children, was found under a broken tree 10 yards from the house from where he was blown. On his breast was a torn and mutilated copy of the Bible. Around this and pressing also against it was the body of the dead man were several strings of dried apples.

The Forches were all horribly mangled. When the cyclone struck the barn all of the Forches' house and commenced to delve among the timbers for the dead, the first thing that greeted them was the smiling face of the baby. It was laughing and shouting and clapping his hands with glee, unmindful of the fact that close by his side were the mangled remains of his parents, brother and sister. Not a scratch was found upon him. The tornado dwelt gently also with the baby of Silas Rushton. His and his wife were killed, but their child escaped with scarcely a bruise. It was blown 200 feet and landed among a bunch of sharp alfrees, but not one of them entered the flesh of the child.

The body of an unknown man, apparently about 60 years old, was found among the ruined houses in the residence district. A card in John Deere's pocket was found on his breast. Four unknown children were picked from under the ruins of a house in the southern part of the town. They had evidently been crushed to death. Two of them, boys, sustained fractures of the skull. A splinter had been driven through the shoulder of one.

A KENTUCKY LYNCHING.

A Negro Hanged, Shot, Mutilated and His Body Burned.

HE PROTESTED HIS INNOCENCE.

Men of Four States Formed a Ferocious Mob That Could Not Be Checked—Hanging Substituted For Burning at the Instigation of the Murdered Girls' Father.

BARDWELL, Ky., July 8.—Sam J. Miller, the negro charged with the outrage and murder of Mary and Ruby Bay, was hanged and the body burned after being horribly mutilated. The negro made a speech proclaiming his innocence, but it is said that he afterward made a partial confession.

The mob came from three States, with several hundred men from Cairo on board, met the special train from Sikeston at Bird's point. The prisoner was put on the boat and taken to Wyckliffe. Frank Gordon, the fisherman who has lived on the banks of the Mississippi river Wednesday night, identified Miller as the same man. Still Miller pleaded his innocence, and John Ray, the father of the murdered girls, counseled patience.

The mob reached a train at Wyckliffe, and brought the prisoner to this city. There were not less than 5,000 men at the depot, and the train of eight coaches was crowded. Previous to this time an agreement was made by the people to allow the father of the children to prescribe the punishment, but when the train arrived it seemed that the men forgot their promise for the time.

They rushed to the train one over another, and at one time it was thought by a great many that the negro was being torn limb from limb. At last quiet was restored, and all went to a temporary scaffold constructed of bridge timbers.

The Sheriff Was Present.

Sheriff Hudson, the prisoner and a number of deputies were on the platform. John Ray, the father of the murdered girls, made a talk, in which he said: "This is the man who killed my children, but let us keep quiet now, and at the proper time burn him."

The negro was called upon to make a speech, and responded promptly and with wonderful coolness under the circumstances under which he was placed. His voice was clear, and he seemed almost oblivious to the surroundings. His exact words were as follows:

My name is Sam J. Miller, and I am from Springfield, Ills. My wife lives at 736 North Eighth street. I am here among you as a stranger and looked on by you as the most brutal man that ever stood on God's green earth. I am standing here an innocent man among excited men, who do not propose to let the law take its course. I have committed no crime to be deprived of my liberty or life. I am not guilty.

At this time he was disturbed by several questions and many called on him to go on, but Sheriff Hudson begged that he be permitted to put him in jail and get some rest for himself, which he needed so badly.

Just before he left, Ray, the father of the children, appeared on the stand and talked only a few moments, carrying on a conversation with several persons on the ground. Mr. Ray finally said: "I charge against the negro and said he was willing to set a time and place for the execution, which was agreed between him and several bystanders should be 4 o'clock this afternoon, nine minutes past noon and then the negro was placed in jail to await the time when he would be called forth.

The Crowd Demand His Neck.

When the negro was brought from the jail to the principal street a chain was put around his neck and many men were pulling at it. Some were for hanging and some could guess at the fate of the negro. He was almost suffocated when the north end of the depot was reached and here the father of the girls requested to some extent and suggested that he be hanged rather than burned.

The body was accordingly swung to a tall telegraph pole directly at the north end of the depot, and he was drawn up. His clothes were torn from his body by the crowd. Some one heard to say just as they drew him up, "I am an innocent man." But there is a fully authentic report that he made at least a partial confession as the mob took him from the jail, but the confession implicates a partner in some way, and nothing positive can be learned.

The negro was drawn up with his face to the p ole, and when his feet were two or three feet from the ground some one shot him from the front, the ball passing entirely through his body. His left temple life was extinct. The body was left hanging, during which time some of the toes and fingers were cut off.

The body has been taken down and carried about 300 yards to the rear of the Downs & Harlan mill. At that place the ears were cut off nearly, all the remaining toes and fingers were severed and the body otherwise mutilated. The body was then placed between two logs and kindling piled upon it, and a coal oil torch used to complete the job of burning. The crowd remained orderly to the last, but very determined. The men who did the hanging are from Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois and Missouri, but the work was done in such a manner, and the throng was so great that no man can name an individual who participated.

Leather Merchants Called to Action.

NEW YORK, July 8.—A number of merchants prominent in the leather trade have issued a circular to leather merchants calling for a meeting to be held this week at the New York Hide and Leather club, this city, when it is proposed to adopt resolutions urging upon congress the speedy repeal of the Sherman silver purchasing law.

Somerset County Bank Embezzled.

TRENTON, July 8.—Chancellor McGill granted a rule to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the Somerset County bank, a state bank at Somerville. The application was made by Attorney General Stockton on behalf of Banking Commissioner Duryee, and the rule is returnable on Wednesday next.

One Vote Will Be Missing.

PETTUSBURG, Va., July 8.—Congressman Epes of this district has written a letter to the Petersburg Index and Appeal announcing that he cannot vote for the repeal of the Sherman Silver law unless some accompanying legislation is coupled with the repeal.

Winners of Prizes at Henley.

LONDON, July 8.—The rowing in the Henley races closed with the following results: Magdalen college eight carried off the Stewards cup, the grand Challenge cup went to the Leander crew and the Thames cup went to the Thames crew.

PARIS

The Municipal Council Denounces the Government.

The feelings of the workingmen against the students who refuse to paralelpade in the riots is very bitter. M. Carnots, chairman of the students' committee which sent out the proclamation against the rioters, was attacked on his way home by two navvies and three laborers. They stabbed him, beat him and left him on the ground for dead. Although severely wounded, he probably will recover.

The municipal council held a stormy meeting. M. Humbert, president, made a bitter speech against the government's action in closing the Labor Exchange.

Other members of the council spoke even more strongly against the government. All were applauded and cheered. The protest of police replied briefly. The law must be obeyed, he said. The government had merely done its duty in closing the exchange, and the action was in every way justifiable. As soon as the trades unions showed a disposition to obey the laws the government would meet them more than half way and allow the exchange to be reopened.

Much uneasiness has been caused by the announcement that on Tuesday the anarchists will celebrate the anniversary of Ravachol's execution.

At the corner of the Avenue de la Republique and the Boulevard Richard Lenoir the gas pipe was cut and the gas was lighted. A tremendous explosion followed. This is supposed to have been the work of anarchists.

Throughout the evening the police treated brutally the Paris reporters who were sent out to describe the riots. Several newspaper men were assaulted and beaten by the police. All of them have been subjected to as many indignities as the police found opportunity to inflict on them.

CLEVELAND'S CONDITION.

He Wears a Big Shoe, but Is Feeling Somewhat Better.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 8.—President Cleveland was last reported as feeling slightly better than he did yesterday. His knee is lame and his left foot swollen so that he is obliged to wear a big shoe. He spent the greater part of the day playing checkers with Mrs. Cleveland and enjoying the beautiful weather.

The published report that the president is suffering from cancer is denied. Dr. Bryant says the president is absolutely free from cancers or malignant growths of any description, and that the report is absolutely false. No operation has been performed, except that a bad tooth was extracted, something which is likely to happen to any one.

Dr. Bryant is of the opinion that the president will be able to go out in a day or two and is desirous for him to take a sail on the bay today, but the chances of his going are very doubtful. The following was sent from Buzzard's Bay:

To Walter Q. Gresham, Secretary of State, Washington:

The president is laid up with rheumatism in the knee and foot, but will be out in a day or two. There is no occasion for any uneasiness.

D. S. LAMONT.

The president sent this message:

To Mrs. Samuel Blatchford:

Please accept my heartfelt sympathy and condolence on the death of your distinguished husband, whose long and honorable public service causes a nation to mourn his loss.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

President's Sister Was Sent For.

OMAHA, July 8.—The departure of Mrs. W. T. Hoyt of Benrice for Buzzard's Bay to nurse her brother, President Cleveland, has aroused fears that his illness is more serious than is admitted by his physicians. Mrs. Hoyt had just returned home and had no intention of going east until she was called by a dispatch from Mrs. Cleveland.

BLATCHFORD'S DEATH.

The Associate Justice Passed Away Quietly.

A LEARNED AND EMINENT JURIST.

For Over Half a Century He Had Been Actively Engaged In Law—Now There Will Be Four Democratic Members of the Supreme Court.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 8.—Associate Justice Samuel Blatchford passed quietly and peacefully from earth. He retained consciousness until an hour or two before his death. There was no sudden change in his condition, simply the gradual slipping away which has been taking place for the last week. The arrangements for the funeral are not yet completed, but the body will probably be taken to Washington for interment. For many years he has been a quiet visitor in the city during the summer season, residing in his own cottage on Greenough place, and while not greatly given to society following, frequently entertained in the best families.

JUSTICE BLATCHFORD.

His Brilliant Career.

Samuel Blatchford was born in New York city, March 9, 1820. He was the son of Richard Milford Blatchford, a distinguished lawyer of his time. He studied in the public schools of the city and was graduated from Columbia college in the class of 1837. In 1839 he became the private secretary of Governor Seward, and held the position until he was admitted to the bar in 1841. He began the practice of law in New York city, but removed three years later to Auburn, where he became the law partner of Governor Seward. In 1867 Justice Blatchford began the publication of the decisions of the United States circuit court. Two years later he returned to New York where his practical law until he was elevated to the bench. In 1867 President Johnson made him United States district judge for the southern district of New York, in which position he served with distinguished success until 1878. In that year President Hayes appointed him circuit judge for the second judicial circuit, and in 1882 he was again promoted to be an associate justice of the United States supreme court to succeed Ward Hunt, by President Arthur.

Justice Blatchford was regarded as the highest authority in the United States upon questions arising in admiralty law. His long experience as judge of the southern district of New York made him intimately familiar with that difficult branch of the law, and many of the most important decisions in admiralty cases rendered by the United States supreme court in the last 20 years were written by him.

Justice Blatchford in personal appearance was notable. He had an erect and stately carriage, he had a vigorous constitution and he was fond of open air exercise. Although he passed the age of retirement in 1890, he was so vigorous both in body and mind that he refused to surrender his life work. He was fond of society and entertained handsomely at his home in Washington.

ENDEAVORERS MOBBED.

An Open Air Meeting In Montreal Stoned by Toughs.

MONTREAL, July 8.—There were a number of the Christian Endeavor delegates crowded out of the big tent, and these held an open air overflow meeting nearby on the Champ de Mars. A crowd of toughs that surrounded the square flung some stones at the speakers, and several Endeavorers were struck about their heads and shoulders with missiles.

The special reserves of police were called out from the police headquarters nearby and the stone throwers sneaked off. This hostile manifestation is attributed to the speech of Rev. Mr. Kernochan at the morning session, when he made an attack on Roman Catholicism.

Ex-Governor Price Out of Jail.

HACKENSACK, N. J., July 8.—Bondsmen were secured for ex-Governor R. M. Price, who has been in the custody of Sheriff Bogart at Hackensack for the past month in default of $20,000 bonds for contempt of the New Jersey court of chancery. The ex-governor expects to leave Hackensack today.

Brakeman Threatens to Strike.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., July 8.—Unless Superintendent Payne accedes to their demands all the freight brakemen on the Danbury and Norwalk division of the consolidated railroad will strike at noon today.

Prisons Will Be Paid Less.

MADRID, July 8.—The government has obtained permission to reduce the salaries of the clergy between 11 and 30 per cent.

The Savings Bank Run Ended.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 8.—The run on the Jefferson County bank has been ended. Some depositors who drew during the panic have returned their money.

CLOSELY CUT TELEGRAMS.

Dr. Walter Kempster says that cholera germs can only be absorbed through the stomach, and that the disease can be prevented.

Captain George White Remick, one of the naval heroes of the civil war, who served on the Kearsarge during her engagement with the Alabama, died at Newburyport, Mass.

Ten new cases are reported from diphtheria infected Polar, Wis., and the entire district is quarantined.

So far 160 dead bodies have been taken from the Thornhill mine, England, the scene of Tuesday's explosion.

ANARCHISTS AWED.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The red flag waved and all the anarchistic leaders denounced at the meeting of anarchists at the Windsor theater in celebration of Governor Altgeld's pardon of their three confreres, but it waved feebly and the denunciations were tempered with moderation.

The meeting turned out a tame affair to all who expected scenes of excitement. There were 3,000 people on the floor and in the galleries of the theater. They cheered at times, but never got wrought up to a pitch of enthusiasm.

Mr. Albert Uhlmann, a young man who learned his anarchism in Boston, nominally presided over the meeting, but from a half mile away in a big white building on Mulberry street was the real presiding genius of the demonstration.

Two hundred police supporters were in the great majority, but Superintendent Byrnes held the best hand. Not a half dozen blocks from the Windsor theater, at the Eldridge Street station on the one side and the Elizabeth Street station on the other, were 500 policemen ready to be called to the scene at the first sign of disorder. Leading into the theater from outside of the theater door was Inspector Williams. Just inside stood Captain Dewey, in full uniform, surrounded by a dozen of his subordinates. Police were also distributed through the theater in plain clothes. The anarchists resented the presence of the police so plainly as they feared, and the speakers reserved their denunciations in order for them and the "Capitalistic Press."

TWO CHICAGO FIRES.

Twelve Persons Were Injured, One Fireman Killed and Several May Die.

CHICAGO, July 8.—The Hotel Lincoln, at 4,020 Edgerton avenue, at the edge of the World's fair grounds, was badly damaged by fire, and five people were injured, two of whom may die. The injured are:

Miss Jessie Bigelow, Ogden, U. T.; may die.
Mrs. C. H. McAleer, wife of the proprietor.
Joseph Cooke, Scranton; may die.
John Powers, dramatist.
Unknown man, badly cut about the head and shoulders by falling glass.

The fire originated in the kitchen of the hotel, and by the time the fire department arrived the frame building was a mass of flames. Most of the guests were visiting the fair at the time, but the few who were in the building had no time to save any of their personal effects.

Mrs. McAleer was ill in bed, but was saved by her husband, who rescued her at great peril to himself. Miss Bigelow was caught in the third story, and despite the exertions of the firemen, who told her that they would save her, jumped from the window. She sustained a concussion of the spine, which will probably prove fatal.

Seven firemen were seriously burned by an explosion of natural gas, and one of them died. They were fighting a small blaze in the basement beneath the sidewalk when the explosion occurred. William Paddris, a truckman, was terribly burned, will lose both eyes and inhaled the flames. He cannot recover.

Discharged National Guardsmen.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., July 8.—Among the members of Company C there is a feeling of animosity toward Superintendent B. W. Booker of the tariff department of the American Express company, because the company discharged his effgy hanging in their street, but Captain Kusk, officer of the day, ordered it down. The reason for this feeling is that three members of Company C—Corporal J. J. Gearhard and Privates John Howitt and John R. Benedict—who were employed in the tariff department of the express company before the same to camp, have been discharged, as they claim, because the superintendent of their department does not want national guardsmen as clerks in his department.

Shot Two Men.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 8.—About five miles out of this city some men were repairing the highway in front of property owned by Stephen Kneal. He forbade them to do work in front of his house, but as they continued he entered the house, returned with a double barreled shotgun and discharged the contents of both barrels, one into the body of Horatio Gardner and the other into the neck and the face of James Anderson. Although both men are yet alive, Anderson can scarcely survive and Gardner's condition is critical. Kneal was arrested and admitted the shooting.

The Canovas Arrive.

CHICAGO, July 8.—The Spanish canovas finished their long journey from New York to this city. As they arrived off the exposition grounds they were saluted by many whistles from the whistles from craft lying in the lakes and the lagoons. Captain Conesa and the escorting party were met by a messenger from the director general and escorted into the fair grounds.

Mexico Knocked Over Silver.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 8.—The drop in the price of silver caused considerable excitement here. Merchants hastily counted over the silver dollars every one. At the same time it cannot be said there was anything in the nature of a panic.

Shot Himself In His Coffin.

WARNER, Ida., July 6.—Henry Merrill who shot Jesse Ellison, an old man of 80 years, on June 28, was found dead in a car at Ida. He had evidently committed suicide by shooting himself.

AN ORDINANCE

To amend an ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance relating to the licensing of hawkers and peddlers in the City of Plainfield," adopted April 10, 1894, and the several supplements thereto, adopted October 16, 1891, October 1, 1892, November 7, 1892, and March 6, 1893.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That section 2 of the ordinance aforesaid, supplement to which was adopted October 1, 1892, be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 2. No person shall sell or expose for sale any vegetables, fruit or shellfish, or any meat, poultry, game or shellfish, or keep open any store, door or place of business for the sale of any of the articles aforesaid, or be open for the sale of such articles or any of them, on any day of the week except Saturday, the first day of the week commonly called Sunday, and the day next preceding the same, under the penalty for each conviction thereof, to be collected by a suit for contempt brought and prosecuted in the name of the City of Plainfield, or by a suit for the collection of a penalty, and recovered before any court having jurisdiction of the same, with costs and three years to the use of the City of Plainfield, or by a portion thereof, to the discretion of the Common Council, and in default of payment of the penalty and costs, to be imprisoned in the City Prison for a term not exceeding thirty days, at the discretion of the Police Justice before whom the proceedings shall be had."

F. W. RUNYON, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., June 7, 1893.

AN ORDINANCE

Section 1. That the road-bed of North avenue, from Somerset street to Watchung avenue, be and the same hereby is ordered to be repaired and improved with broken stone, and that the curbing be reset, and the gutters be of such grade, and in such manner as the engineer of said street, and in the absence of the engineer, the street commissioner, may direct, and that the same be completed by the 1st of September, or as soon thereafter as the condition of the weather will permit.

Section 2. That before any work shall be done under this ordinance, the property owners on the line of the proposed improvement shall agree to one-third of the cost of the same, and the balance to be paid by the City of Plainfield, as provided by the 2d section of the supplement to an act entitled "An act to authorize the Common Council of the City of Plainfield to improve certain streets in the said city," approved May 18, 1893.

Section 3. That before any work shall be done under this ordinance, the property owners shall file the line of the proposed improvement with the City Clerk, and the Common Council shall appoint a committee of three to confer with the property owners, and report to the Common Council at its next meeting thereafter, the amount of money necessary to defray the cost of said improvement.

Section 4. This ordinance shall take effect immediately.

ORIGIN OF THE DOMESTIC CAT.

Thousands of Years Before the Christian Era It Existed in Egypt.

It is a popular but very incorrect idea that pretty nearly every person has that the domestic cat of the fireside is derived from the wildcat which formerly existed in considerable numbers in Europe and even in the British Isles. Such, however, is, according to an English naturalist, undoubtedly not the case. There are many essential distinctions between the two animals. The wildcat had a short tail, which was of equal size throughout its whole length, and moreover the cat has been very long domesticated. It is described in the Egyptian writings nearly 2,000 years before the Christian era, being then a domesticated animal, and recently a very remarkable illustration of its appreciation by the Egyptians came before the public.

The cat is well known as having been an object of worship in Egypt. The Goddess Pasht, many of whose statues may be seen in the British Museum, was always represented with the head of a cat. A temple was dedicated to her at Beni Hassan, which is as old as the eighteenth dynasty, 1800 years B. C. The cats that died were buried in countless thousands in pits near this temple, having been first of all embalmed and converted into mummies. A few years since these cat pits were excavated and many tons of the embalmed cats were broken up, shipped from Alexandria to Liverpool and there ground into manure at the bone mills of that city. When first dug up out of the pits, each mummy was enveloped in thin cloth, as shown in the accompanying illustration of a head with the cloth still adhering. One cargo alone was calculated to contain the remains of not less than 180,000 cats. The examination of the skulls proved that the cat, domesticated by the Egyptians, was really a north African species known to naturalists as Felis maniculata. This is rather smaller than our ordinary domestic cat and of a yellowish color, with some dark stripes on the body.

The cat came into domestication in Europe shortly after the Christian era, and the first specimens brought into England were very highly valued. Since its introduction as a domesticated animal the cat has been carried by voyagers to almost every part of the habitable globe, and it is quite certain that it has accommodated with the various smaller wild [illegible] the countries to which it has [illegible] Thus in Scotland it is known to [illegible] with the wildcat which [illegible] readily so abundant in the forests of [illegible] In India the domestic cat crosses freely with the wild Kaffir cat, and the hybrids so produced are quite common. In India the domestic species has crossed with several of the smaller native wildcats, and the same may be stated regarding the cats of America. Consequently there is a great amount of variation and variability in the domestic animal.

The Shapes of Clouds.

It will soon strike any one who notices weather phenomena ever so casually that clouds have a tendency to assume one of two well known forms or shapes, either a heapy or globular form or that of thin sheets or layers. Clouds in the first form are known as cumulous (cumulous, a heap) clouds. In the second as stratus (stratus, a layer) clouds. Once it is clearly understood that all clouds be divided against cold as long as possible. As soon as the premonitory symptoms appear, retire to the birth, coolness as quickly as possible and lie flat on the back for the first 12, or even 24 hours, without food. Then take a small portion of dry bread and roast beef without fluid. If the stomach will probably retain. If there is much movement of the vessel, lie quiet again, or even go upon deck, and in the course of 36 or 48 hours the system will have recovered its tone and no further trouble will be experienced.

It is a mistake to introduce a quantity of fluid, even of strong coffee, into the flaccid stomach, but if sickness needs a glass of champagne will probably prove serviceable. In some few persons quinine or antipyrine, and consequently it affords a very valuable index not only to the state of the immediately surrounding atmosphere, but also to the weather we may expect, and this frequently some hours before any instrumental warnings are indicated.

A New Source of Mexican Onyx.

Professor Merrill tells in Science of the recent discovery on the peninsula of Lower California of extensive deposits of the so called Mexican onyx. The new find is some 150 miles southeast of San Diego and 30 miles from the Pacific coast. The material, as is the case with that of Mexico proper and other sources, is a travertine (i. e., a spring deposit) and not stalagmitic. The deposits are essentially superficial, the material in many instances so occurring as to be taken directly from the surface of the ground by means of bars and without previous stripping. The colors are light green, rose and white, variously veined and tinged, and of great beauty. While in compactness of texture, susceptibility to polish and freedom from flaws the material leaves little to be desired.

Professor Marvin on Drainage.

After the drainage system of a house has been thoroughly constructed it will not maintain itself, but, like any other thing, needs constant care and supervision.

All rooms containing water closets or other fixtures grouped with them should be specially ventilated. It is a good plan to keep a small gas jet burning in the outlet of a special flue, in the ceiling of a bathroom, proper provision being made for the inflow of pure air from the outside at some point near the door.

The waste pipes from refrigerators should not be connected at all with the drainage system, but discharged into the open air or into a basin in the basement.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

$5 per Year in Advance. E. W. Mercein, Editor and Proprietor. Office, No. 21 Somerset street. Printing of All Kinds. 15 Cents per Week, Delivered.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," MONDAY JULY 10, 1893. PRICE TWO CENTS.

A FIERCE GUST OF WIND.

AND ITS HAVOC IN A FEW MOMENTS SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

FIERCE thunder storm burst upon Plainfield a little before six o'clock Saturday afternoon, when the skies were suddenly clouded over, the sun was hidden and an electrical storm set in. The dust blew up in whirlwinds. It was driven into the faces and eyes of pedestrians, in some instances dense enough to blind them for a while. The air was full of dust and flying paper, handkerchiefs, hats and all sorts of light things. Many people were riding in vehicles, and they had livelv times in trying to reach places of safety.

Scores of trees were blown into the air and several huge trees were blown down. The roof of Charles Raybert's barn on Arlington avenue was lifted by the wind and carried several feet away.

An immense locust tree in the rear of Mr. Merkley's house, on West Second street, which is occupied by the Hargraves family, was uprooted and fell across the end of the house, knocking the chimney off and smashing in the end of the building.

A big maple tree in front of the Seminary on West Seventh street was blown into the yard, carrying a portion of the fence with it. On East Fifth street, near Park avenue, a large tree was uprooted and fell with such force as to completely demolish another nearby tree.

An old elm in Mr. Lutkin's yard on Somerset street succumbed to the gale and fell with a crash close to the house.

At the corner of Elmwood place and Front street a big tree fell on the house, slightly damaging the roof.

The fire alarm wires were grounded and the system made useless. Councilman Fisk, Chief Doane, H. Chamberlain and another fireman, who went around the city trying to locate the trouble. The street lights were out and the men groped their way about the streets in the dark. A "bridle" was placed across the grounded wires shutting off the Fourth Ward, and another "bridle" was used to shut off the Netherwood district. First Assistant Foreman Irving Waters of Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company was kept on duty at the engine house. In case of fire in either of the above sections he was to notify First Assistant Chief Martin who would then send in an alarm from a nearby box, the system being so arranged that by pressing a key in any box any number can be sent in for any district.

During the inspection by Councilman Fisk and Chief Doane, Lineman Chamberlain received a shock while among the wires at the top of one of the poles. He slid to the ground in a dazed condition. He was all right in a few moments. After spending half of the night putting in "bridles" and trying to locate grounded wires, Councilman Fisk was surprised when he got home to find that one of the wires there had caused most of the trouble. It was lying across a piece of iron.

The street lights were out until about nine o'clock.

The wind burst open the door in the rear of the Music Hall stage and played among the scenery with such force that it banged in the balcony for an audience. The "audience" was on the stage at first, but was landed in the balcony by the first blast. The pressure against the front doors burst them open, giving the wind a clear track.

Two large trees on Brook avenue fell across the brook. Three trees were blown down on Jackson avenue and two on Manning avenue. A large tree in front of Mr. Pangborn's on Chatham street was blown down. A grape arbor in the rear of Mr. John Mackey's, on Somerset street, was blown down, as was also his kitchen chimney. A large tree at Mr. Duffey's on Terrill road was blown over, barely missing the house.

A large tin room on Mr. Mair's place, on Belmont avenue, was blown off. Mr. Mair, who was standing nearby escaped being struck.

Mr. Johnson's rye shocks on Mountain avenue were all blown down.

Two large willow trees were broken off on West Third street.

A large tree in front of Mr. Roger's house on West Second street was uprooted and fell across the street.

The top of a big tree in front of the Reform Hall on West Second street was twisted off and struck the fire alarm wires, causing the alarm to blow.

The people along Pruden's alley have been complaining for several weeks of the dirty condition of the alley. The storm swept it clean.

A small boy was crossing Pruden's alley on Second street, when the wind struck him and carried him into the middle of the road, a distance of eight or ten feet.

In the rear of the Yoe house, on Second street, a tree was taken up by the roots.

A limb was twisted off a tree near Grove street and carried over the tops of the houses and dropped near Somerset street.

A tree measuring nearly three feet at the base, was snapped off, next to the Baptist church, at Scotch Plains.

A number of trees in Mr. J. F. Wilson's place on Green brook road were badly broken.

Some small sheds in the rear of Mr. Binbels and Pierson's on Wilson's avenue were blown over.

In front of Dr. F. S. Wells', on West Fourth street, a tree was taken up by the roots, also one in front of Mr. Bonbergs on the same street.

A number of trees were badly broken at the corner of West Seventh street and Plainfield avenue. Two trees in front of Mr. Smith's place on Front street were blown down.

The top of a tree in front of Mr. Lewis', on Mountain avenue, snapped off, and a cherry tree on the old Hillman estate on Somerset street was split in half.

Among other large trees blown down was one on Levi Hetfield's on West Fourth street, which fell across the wires, and was probably the largest of all; one on Mr. Reinhart's place Netherwood, and about a dozen others.

The Street Commissioner had fourteen to set out of the streets alone.

The storm was very slight at Grant avenue, Evans and Dunellen.

Mr. J. M. Emerson, the New York gentleman who recently purchased the stone mansion on the mountain, was lying in a hammock on his front porch, Saturday, when the cyclone began. He says it was the grandest sight he ever witnessed. It did not reach to his place, so that he could look down upon the storm quite undisturbed. He was first attracted by the sudden darkening of the heavens, and then by the peculiar cyclonic roar of the furious wind. He knew at once that the storm was to be something unusual and watched. He saw a cloud of dust rise in the southerly part of the city, about at Pond's Machine Tool Works. It rose to a great height into the air, and traveled northerly a distance of a mile and a half, as nearly as he could estimate, the time occupied being one minute. During which it would seem that the wind was traveling about 100 miles an hour. The sight of the sheets of falling rain was also very beautiful to him.

The storm, for the length of time it lasted, was, for this vicinity, the most destructive on record.

Ex-Postmaster Force Dead.

Ex-Postmaster William L. Force died at twelve o'clock to-day, at the City Hotel, as the result of injuries received, Saturday afternoon, while out driving in a phaeton with Mr. Edward Thorne and others. The horse kicked Mr. Force in the chest as he was getting out of the conveyance, fracturing his breast-bone. The kick buried him out, and in the fall his head was crushed in the socket. He was first taken to the office of Dr. Tomlinson, who happened to be out. He was then conveyed to Muhlenburg Hospital, and temporary relief afforded him. He was later removed to the City Hotel in accordance with his desires, and remained there in much agony until death came to his relief, his wife being constantly with him. He had all the medical aid desired. It was thought his death would have occurred Saturday, as the four doctors attending him, after a consultation, gave no hope.

Deceased was well-known in this city, and throughout Union and Somerset counties. He has lived here and been identified with the locality all his life.

He learned the printing business in this city, in the office of the defunct Plainfield Union, and, with his younger brother, Mr. Albert L. Force, started The Constitutionalist, Jan. 2, 1865. The paper, in the days of weekly papers, was a power in this section for many years, as the organ of the Democratic party. As an outgrowth of the weekly, the brothers seven years ago started the Plainfield Daily Press, which deceased owned a half interest in at the time of his death. He was chosen Postmaster by the Cleveland Administration and served four years, being succeeded by the present incumbent. He leaves a widow and two children. His wife's sister is the wife of Mr. James Force, a brother of deceased, and a first-cousin of Sergeant Force, but now keeping a hotel at Round Brook. Deceased was born December 29, 1840 and was, therefore, 52 years old.

He was for many years secretary of the old Plainfield Fire Board, and for for many years was fish warden of the State. He was a member of Jerusalem Lodge, F. & A. M., Hermitage Chapter, A. R. & M., Trinity Commandery, K. T., and Easter Lodge, K. of H.

The funeral will take place Thursday at three o'clock p. m. He will be buried beside his brother Joseph, who was killed in the Civil War, and who was buried in the North Plainfield cemetery. These will be masonic services at the grave.

Thought Murderers Were Under the Hay.

Henry Brown, an old man, a resident of Scotch Plains, was taken to the insane asylum to-day by Marshal Pangborn.

Mr. Brown believed two men and a boy were trying to kill him and were always hiding in a hay mow. He would keep searching for them under the hay with a pitchfork.

A Basket Surprise Sociable.

At the meeting, Friday night, of the Woman's Relief Corps, No. 19, it was decided to hold a basket surprise sociable, Wednesday night, in order to secure money to defray the cost of their picnic. Each lady is expected to take a basket filled with something, which will be disposed of during the evening.

A GAMBLING DEN.

THAT'S THE KIND OF A PLACE HOOPER KEPT.

When Arrested He Pleaded Guilty to the Charge, and Easily Paid a Twenty-Five Dollar Fine.—Jones Also Fined.

Policeman Kiely and Lynch made a raid on the place kept by Alexander Hooper, colored, on East Front street, Saturday night. It was said that gambling was carried on there, and on the Fourth, Chief Grant walked in upon four men playing poker, and it was upon his complaint that the warrant was issued.

Hooper pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $25 by Judge Coddington.

The place was kept by two brothers. Warrants were issued for the arrest of both. When Policeman Kiely read the warrants Sherman Jones, the police said, deliberately opened a side door, pushed one of the Hoopers out, and so helped him to escape.

Jones was arrested for aiding a prisoner to evade an officer. The Judge adjudged him guilty and fined him $25.

Chief Grant says Johnson formerly kept a disreputable place there, but it was hard to get sufficient evidence to convict him. He finally sold out to Hooper, who did things more openly. Jones also gathered there and played cards for beer which was procured in a pail.

MAY HAVE TO "PAY THE PIPER."

Westfield Jokers' Deeds Cannot Be Forgiven This Time.

It looks now as if the young men and boys who on the night of July 4 gave vent to their patriotism by burning Westfield models down will have to "pay the piper," that is, if anybody can tell who the perpetrators of the deeds are. The jokers, as told in Tax News at the time, hauled old bazzies up to the top of the ridgepoles of several buildings, smashed gates, sideboards, etc., and otherwise deported themselves in a way that shocked the propriety of the order-loving members of the community.

Numerous complaints began to pour in to the Town Committee, and it was deemed necessary to call a meeting of that body. Many verbal complaints, in addition to written ones, were heard, and one man put in a bill for $20 for his buggy, which was roosting on a building and fell off. It was broken all to pieces.

The Town Committee passed a resolution calling on all citizens who could furnish evidence against the jokers to go before a justice of the peace and swear out warrants for their arrest.

The Town Committee will push to take such action, but was forced to by the indignant protests of many citizens against passing over such outrages without inflicting any punishment.

THE CRESCENTS LOSE.

A GAME OF ERRORS ON THE CRESCENT OVAL.

HE reduction in the price of admission to the ball game by Manager Keller resulted in a marked increase in the attendance Saturday, and as if to celebrate the event the Crescents played the poorest game of the year.

Stanhope, a player from the Binghamton team, occupied third base in place of Heckman. The change proved a poor one. He made four errors and his bad playing seemed to affect the whole team. Rymon, Hofford and Keenan also made disastrous errors. Of the nine runs tallied by the visitors only three were earned, the remaining six runs were presented to them.

Much fault was found with the umpiring by Coleman, whose decisions on ball and strikes were questioned.

The game was brought to a close during the last half of the seventh inning by the storm, which suddenly burst over the country. The fielders didn't have time to get to shelter and were compelled to lay down on the ground to keep from being blinded by the clouds of dust.

The score was as follows:

ABOUT DRINKING FOUNDTAINS.

A Good Fountain Would Cost About $200, Says This Sympathizer.

To the Editor of The News:—The item in Friday's issue about one of Secretary Morgulies being indignant that there is no public drinking fountain in Plainfield is noted, and I can fully sympathize with them.

For over a year past, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, in co-operation with the Women's Branch Alliance of the Unitarian church has been trying to gain permission to erect one, but so far has not been able to find a suitable site, as no property holder has yet consented to have it placed on his premises.

Pictures have been placed in the windows of various stores, and appeals through the newspapers made for subscriptions but not a single cent has been received. Therefore the conclusion has been reached that the citizens of Plainfield did not desire to have a drinking fountain.

One who knows says a substantial iron fountain can be erected for about $200.

Wants His Adopted Daughter.

August Kotchen, of Murray Hill is endeavoring to secure possession of Bertha Goshde, his seventeen-year-old adopted daughter. He claims she is in the family of Harry Gwynette, of Fanwood, and is being held against her will. Under an indenture, executed by an overseer of the poor, Kotchen is given authority over the girl until she is twenty-one. Justice Kelly of Summit has issued an order commanding Gwynette to deliver Bertha to her guardian.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Real Captain Kidd.

Many of the world's typical bad men have been gradually transformed into martyrs, or at least into victims, of untoward circumstances. The latest of these is the notorious pirate, so called, Captain Kidd. History has got even his name distorted. Instead of being Robert Kidd, he was William Kidd, a canny Scotchman, born about 1656. To set all doubts at rest and save time and expense to treasure searchers, it may be said that it is not at all likely there is any treasure buried anywhere along the New England coast. Kidd landed goods at various places, but these were undoubtedly taken possession of when he was arrested, if not before.

He was not a pirate, to begin, and in the light of later evidence it does not seem that he ever was one at all. He himself strenuously denied to the very day of his execution in 1701 that he had ever practiced piracy on the high seas. When he was seized at Gardiner's Island, near the Long Island coast, and taken to Boston, the authorities found they had "an elephant on their hands," in the words of a writer in the Portland Transcript. They could not prove any charges of piracy against him, and they would not pronounce him innocent. It is on record that while in Boston he had every opportunity to escape, and Lord Belmont and his council, after taking away from Kidd his treasure chest and commission papers as a privateer officer under the British government, would have been glad to see him go. If he had been a real pirate, he would not have waited for a second chance.

He had been sent out in command of a privateer to prey on French merchant vessels and pirates. One-tenth of his booty was to go to the king. He went first for a long voyage to the East Indies, then came by way of the West Indies to Gardiner's Island. He reported at once to Belmont at Boston that he had with him on his ship $10,000 worth of goods and that he had run the East Indian trader ship Quedah Merchant into a creek on the coast of Hispaniola. In his defense when arrested for piracy he declared that the Quedah Merchant was sailing under a French pass when he captured her. He offered if guaranteed liberty and protection afterward to guide a party to the Quedah Merchant in the creek on the coast of Hispaniola. Permission was refused him, and to this day no man knows where the Quedah Merchant lies.

The Hawk the Farmer's Friend.

So they say now. In certain states where there was a bounty on hawks' heads agriculturists are petitioning to have the bounty law rescinded, and, on the other hand, an act passed making it a misdemeanor to shoot a hawk. Under the bounty law hawks disappeared rapidly till in some localities they were practically extinct. Then it was suddenly found that field mice increased at an alarming rate, destroying for the farmer more grain then all the chickens that hawks had caught in 10 years were worth.

Dr. A. K. Fisher, assistant government ornithologist, reports that these birds ought to be encouraged instead of killed. In the stomachs of 2,212 hawks and owls examined by the department only 5½ per cent contained any poultry or game birds. The contents of the rest were field mice and other small mammals and insects. Six species of hawks are destructive to poultry. Of these the department reports that three are so scarce as to be practically extinct. Of the remaining varieties, one—the fish hawk—is only indirectly injurious. There are only two left—the sharp shinned hawk and Cooper's hawk. They play havoc with young poultry. To the farmer therefore the department would say: Go for the sharp shinned hawk and Cooper's hawk, but let the rest live. They are among your best friends.

If only the temperance ladies would work with Ollie Sumner Teall, a handsome young New York society man who amuses himself with philanthropy, something might yet be done to save the world. At least it would save considerable money. Ollie's scheme to break up intemperance is not exactly new, but it was first sprung on the world so long ago that it has been almost forgotten. In brief, it is that every man shall pay for his own drinks. Teall is forming the Antitreat League. When its membership is full, its list will include 5,000 men, pledged neither to treat nor be treated. This pledge will be operative one year to see how the members like it. The weak social drunkard is perhaps the most hopeless of all, except the surly, misanthropic drunkard who periodically goes off by himself for a big spree and locks himself up alone in his room till he sobers off. Mr. Teall does hope—he does—that the ladies will aid him in his scheme to advance temperance and yet not stop drinking altogether.

Good news! The peach crop is pronounced abundant and of excellent quality. Providence and the consolidated wholesale dealers permit, this luscious, healthful fruit will be plentiful enough even for poor people to buy.

The New York city newspapers are now figuring up what it cost to entertain the infants. How truly hospitable!

HIGH WIND AT THE FAIR

Glass Roofs Broken and Much Mischief Done.

THE CAPTIVE BALLOON SMASHED.

CHICAGO, July 10.—A windstorm of terrific force, followed by a heavy downpour of rain, passed over the White City, doing considerable damage to the different buildings and the exhibits stored within. Some damage, principally in broken glass, was done in nearly all the buildings, but the principal havoc was done the display by the soaking they received will not be known until some time today.

About 5:45 the storm burst suddenly over the park. Ten thousand people were crowded about the pavilion to the east of Manufactures building enjoying the music being given by the Cardinal band. The wind, sweeping dense clouds of blinding dust before it, caught them totally unawares, as it did everybody. They hastily rushed for the shelter of the big building and entered the doors in much disorder, many fright-sted women losing hat and parasol in the confusion.

The guards, after admitting the crowds, endeavored to close the doors, but the force of the wind shut the doors with such violence that the glass in the three big entrances was shattered into fragments, while the uniformed preservers of the peace were sent sprawling on the floor.

There was much confusion, but as the blow lasted but 10 minutes, the people soon became calm.

The Wreck of the Balloon.

The persons who were aloft in the Captive balloon had a close call, and the balloon itself, after being brought to earth, was blown into pieces, and the pieces were carried out of the grounds.

As the basket touched the ground the passengers were let out, and as the last anchor was made fast the wind struck it. The big balloon stands 60 feet from the ground. When the first gust struck it, in spite of guy ropes, it bent over. The 100,000 cubic feet of gas were but a speck in the gale. Then in an instant the force of the wind seemed to shift and bore down on the great body. It flattened out and shook and trembled under the terrible force like a jelly.

With a succession of cracks, the giant silk covering was rent completely in two. The strong cordage which had covered the silk with a net work, snapped as though it had been pack thread. One-half blew one way and half another. The gale struck the Ferris wheel with all its force. The cars were all filled. It blew so hard that the engineer could hardly keep at his post. Even if the wind did blow, it did not move the gigantic structure a hairsbreath. Some little excitement was shown by timid people in the wheel as it swirled around the cars that hung in the very heart of the storm, but the wheel kept moving as steadily as if the sun had been shining.

Part of the roof of Machinery hall, two sections of glass roofing, 30 by 10 feet, were blown in, doing considerable damage to the Japanese section, the rain drenching exhibits in the south department of the United States division of the building, as well as that of Japan, which it adjoins. A number of handsome Japanese fans, paper, vases and carved bric-a-brac were soaked, and water stood on the floor two or three inches deep for some time, until holes were broken in the floor by other exhibits in the near vicinity were hastily covered and further damage prevented.

A Candy Clerk's Escape.

The full force of the gale was felt mainly in Agricultural building. Large crowds had thronged the east front of the building during the day inspecting the newly arrived Spanish caravels, and when the storm burst they made a rush for shelter in the building. Just as the greater portion of them had gained the doors a section of glass roofing over the outer aisle near the north door gave way and came to the floor below with a crash. It fell all around Miss Minnie Gates, an attendant at a candy counter in the center of the aisle, but she miraculously escaped without a scratch.

A minute later a smaller section fell over the edge of the French division of the building, breaking one of the glass showcases containing fruit. This, added to the great confusion caused by the fright-ened way, man rushing from place to place, put the building in an uproar, and but for the fact the storm was not very large there would have been a panic.

The greatest damage was done to the French section and the New York exhibit, the latter, however, being protected by heavy tarpaulins thrown over the cases by the guards. Many leaks were sprung by broken glass in different parts of the gallery and main floor, but the damage was not serious, as the system adopted used to subdue the glare of the sun deadened much of the noise. Fifty-three feet of glass roofing in the annex were completely shattered into fragments, while the uniformed preservers of the peace were sent sprawling on the floor.

Four Persons Drowned.

Chicago, July 10.—During the terrible windstorm the sailing yacht Chesapeake was overturned about two miles from shore. The party on the boat consisting of nine people, all of them boys, were drowned. The dead are: Ethel Chase, 16 years old of Boston; Theunistches Timblin, Harry Marlow, William B. Cornice. Those who were saved are: George Gray, Edith Crampton, William Avery, Fred Avery, William Elliot.]

Miss Burke's Father Forgives.

New York, July 10.—Miss Edith Burke, the daughter of James H. Burke, the well known politician, recently eloped and has been forgiven. Miss Burke has proved that she is lawfully married to Samuel McGlinsey, the young contractor.

ENDEAVORERS IN DANGER.

MONTREAL, July 10.—The Christian Endeavor convention was brought to a close here under the protection of the militia. The citizens of this city did not allow hold another meeting in the big tent, but they finished up their convention in a hall.

During the evening thousands of people congregated on the streets St. Mary and St. Craig street, in front of the hall and for blocks east and west. The elements for a riot were there in full force. The talk about Kennedy's recent ill timed remarks had spread all over the French part of Montreal, and in the crowd were many who burned to avenge the insult which they considered to be more than personal one. Then there were thousands assembled who had resolved to protect the Christian Endeavorers when they left the hall if necessary. The antagonistic elements in the crowd kept at a respectable distance from each other, awaiting the opening of the doors at the close.

Among the Protestant crowd were nearly 1,000 militiamen in plain clothes. Occasionally the volunteers and their adherents fell into line and marched past the block inclosing the Champ de Mars, and the opposing crowd did likewise, marching around the block to the west of Champ de Mars.

Everybody expected a riot, but when the delegates emerged from the hall the volunteers formed a cordon at the edge of the sidewalk, and the police kept the crowd in subjection, and these they held around their necks. This was the distinguishing badge. No one without it could approach the Endeavorers from opposite sides of the street, and slowly and without any manifestation of alarm the delegates made their way along.

The Frenchmen on the Champ de Mars stood silently gazing at the procession of Endeavorers, which marched to the time of the music they were singing. All emerged and passed out of the dangerous locality in safety.

POISONED BY MILK.

Summer Colleagues In New Jersey Drunk a Fatal Drink.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Impure milk is supposed to have caused the death of one person and the dangerous illness of six others at Bay Head, N. J. Among the victims is Mrs. F. B. Miles, the wife of a wealthy resident of Philadelphia. Last Friday afternoon a dish was prepared in the kitchen which was consumed almost entirely of milk. Within an hour after eating the food Mrs. Miles was taken sick, and in a few minutes one of the three servants in the house was also stricken. The other members of the household were also taken sick. When a physician arrived he found the seven inmates of the house in great agony. He summoned two other physicians, and all worked heroically to save the lives of the sick ones, but Mrs. Miles died, and one of the servants is so ill that she may die at any moment.

The other five persons are still in danger. Mr. Miles was not at home at the time the milk was eaten, and he is the only member of the family who escaped.

Washington's Surpliced Choirs.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The Epiphany church introduced to Washington its first surpliced choir of mixed voices, female predominating, yesterday. They wore plain gowns of white, with flowing sleeves and deep edges of black. On their heads were simple toques of black, with tassels and cord, and these toques were the only marks of costume by distinguishing the young ladies from the other and lesser contingent. There are but three choirs in this country whose female members wear vestments.

A French Reporter's Trip.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Among the passengers who arrived on the La Champagne from HAVRE was George Grandin. He is a correspondent of La Journal of Paris, and started out to walk to the World's fair. He crossed over a mountain range and did odd jobs aboard the ship to work out his passage. He starts today afoot for Chicago, and will "deadhead" his food and lodging.

The Dempsey-Smith Battle Postponed.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The famous middleweights, Jack Dempsey and Billy Smith, will not meet on July 24, as the Coney Island athletic club's board of directors decided to postpone the event, because in the absence of the fighters they have no tangible proof that the men are in proper condition.

Guilty Italian Senators Will Be Prosecuted.

ROME, July 10.—The Patria newspaper says that as soon as the senate finishes the business now on hand the closing of the senate will be followed by a sitting during with a view toward proceeding against all members of parliament who are implicated in the bank scandals.

Prince Visited His Mamma.

HACKENSACK, N. J., July 10.—Ex-Governor Price visited his mamma in Oakland, Bergen county, N. J., but returned to Sheriff Bogert today. It is said that the ex-governor will bring a suit for damages against the persons who caused his arrest.

Kansas City Prisons Coming Home.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The steamship Parmenia, from Glasgow, has aboard 25 men of the Hall Water Tower company of Kansas City, who have been giving exhibitions throughout the British Provinces and who have won several gold medals.

A National Tennis Tournament.

CHICAGO, July 10.—The annual tournament of the United States National Lawn Tennis association begins today on the grounds of the County club at Evanston. The object of the tournament is to decide the western championship.

The Cashier Decamped.

FALLS CITY, Neb., July 10.—The State bank at Shubert has failed. C. V. Argabright, the cashier, decamped, leaving a shortage that will be over $20,000 short, having spent that sum on the board of trade.

French Cabinet Crisis Averted.

PARIS, July 10.—M. Peytral, minister of finance, resigned, and a general ministerial crisis was imminent. Another cabinet meeting was called at which M. Peytral consented to withdraw his resignation.

One of Peary's Figures.

BUFFALO, July 10.—The strike of the union bakers has been declared off. The strike has been in progress since May 15.

The Viking Ship's Progress.

MILWAUKEE, July 10.—The Viking craft, in tow of the steamer Albany, has reached here.

TROUBLE IN CHURCHES.

Dissensions and Fights of Three Congregations.

TWO BADLY HURT IN PATERSON.

Methodists, Protestants and Reformed Attempt Water Services—Detectives and the Sheriff In Dr. Potter's Tabernacle—A Priest Starts Bulletins.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Worshipers who usually assemble on Sunday in the Baptist tabernacle, in Second avenue, near Tenth street, whose pastor, the Rev. Dr. D. C. Potter, is under investigation on charges of immorality and intemperance, met separately and respectively passed resolutions.

To be sure, Deputy Sheriff Hamilton was in the church guarding the Rev. Dr. Potter's $7,000 collection of stereopticon lantern slides, kept under lock and key in a little room, to which admittance is gained from the gallery opposite the pulpit.

The doors of the second avenue opens in a plain view of the preacher. Before the morning services Deputy Sheriff F. C. Hamilton, whose meals are brought to him from a restaurant nearby, retired from view of the congregation to avoid attracting curiosity by his presence the meditations of the worshipers.

The deputy sheriff is to be kept on guard over these valuables until the Rev. Dr. Potter pays the bill of F. Lueddeke for two weeks of milk for the Lueddeke home and also Miss Maude Wagner's claim of $600 for rent for a house at 228 East Eleventh street.

Detectives Watched the Services.

None of the worshipers was aware that while the morning and evening services were in progress detectives were watching outside of the church door. They were citizens' clothes and they strolled back and forth, or stood meditatively on the opposite side of Second avenue.

It had occurred to the Rev. Dr. Potter that the former assistant pastor, the Rev. James W. Putnam, who had caused circulars announcing him to be installed as church members in front of the church at the close of the service a week ago, might repeat the performance. No one with circulars was in an appearance.

The Rev. Mr. Putnam remained all day in his rooms in the parsonage, from which the Rev. Dr. Potter seeks to eject him by a writ from Civil Justice Stechler's court. It is said that he is preparing a paper to be read at the meeting when the investigating committee makes its report.

In Bayonne, N. J., the stormy history of the Roman Catholic church of St. Mary Star of the Sea, of which Father Thomas M. Killeen is rector, had another exciting chapter added to it. Opposition to the pastor has been expressed in some quarters of late, and members of the church have been holding meetings at which they have expressed their desire that the pastor should leave or remedy certain alleged evils existing in the parish.

The strife culminated in an exciting and disorderly mass meeting in the afternoon. Father Killeen also surprised his congregation at all the masses by asking his parishioners to vote for or against his leaving the church. He caused to be circulated among the worshipers printed ballots, one set bearing the words, "For Father Killeen to remain," the other set, "For Father Killeen to leave."

Much excitement was caused by this proceeding as well as by the priest's comments on a circular which had been handed to him calling the mass meeting, which took place in the afternoon at Brady's hall, "for the purpose of obtaining the opinions of the parishioners as to the troubles which have broken out afresh."

Voting at Mass.

Father Killeen took occasion, in referring to the circular, to make comment on the severe terms ex-Postmaster Thomas Brady and Recorder Patrick W. Connelly, two of the leading parishioners who have been prominent in their opposition to the pastor. After upbraiding them the pastor invited every one present to cast his or her ballot declaring opposition to or support of him. Ballots were taken at the four masses. One hour later various parishioners reported they could not find ballots against Father Killeen. The result claimed was 1,867 favor of Father Killeen to 94 against him. It is said there are 6,000 parishioners.

The sensation of the day, however, was the mass meeting in Brady's hall. Recorder Connelly presided, and about 300 persons were present. The proceedings were boisterous. It was said that a fight took place at the outset over the indorsement of the action of a private meeting held by the leaders of the opposition to Father Killeen. The meeting was finally ended by the police.

Resolved, That we repudiate the statements made to the effect that Father Killeen was removed and cite the figures of the ballots taken at the masses.

During a dispute which followed, John Smith and Richard Walsh indulged in a colloquy, in which the former threatened to force Walsh "to shut up" if he failed to do so voluntarily. The meeting at which speeches were made, and the resolution was adopted.

A Fight In Paterson.

PATERSON, N. J., July 10.—Divine services in the Reformed church were ended in a riot, in which Abram Marcus' leg was broken and Peter Pawlicki was dangerously injured. Shortly after the services Mrs. Gas a woman drove up and tied her horse to the fence, blocking the sidewalk. A dozen young men who assemble in front of the church for evening worship objected to the horse on the walk and threatened to untie it. The woman was angry and rushed into the synagogue and asked the men who were near the door to untie her.

When the men reached the sidewalk they were set upon by the lungers and retreated into the synagogue, followed by a dozen of the worst element in the Third ward. The entire congregation then rushed upon the members and a general hand to hand fight ensued. The sounds of a police whistle alarmed the disturbers, and as a signal from the leader they ceased hostilities and ran across the Park street bridge over the Passaic river. Mr. Marcus, whose leg was broken, is a member of the congregation, while Pawlicki assisted the disturbers.

A Comet Coming This Way.

ROCHESTER, July 10.—Professor Swift at the Warner observatory received from Albert Ricdeme of Salt Lake City a telegram saying: "Naked eye comet observed at 10 o'clock, July 8, in constellation lyrae. No starlight. Nothing possible." The comet was observed by Professor Swift and H. C. Maine of this city. It has a tail and rapidly increasing.

Hood's Cures

Mrs. John Fenton

Dyspepsia, Intense Misery

"For years I was afflicted with dyspepsia. I was so bad at times that I could not eat anything. Everything I ate distressed me. I was also troubled with a pain in my side. I was completely discouraged and had no faith in medicine. I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had taken one bottle I felt relief coming. I have taken three bottles and am entirely cured. I can eat anything I want and have no pain in my side. I am very grateful for what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me." MRS. The Queen Mab Arrives.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The racing yacht Queen Mab, whose long disappearance on her trial trip from England to this country caused so much anxiety among yachtmen before she finally put in appearance from St. George, Bermuda, was towed into port by the tug Triton, which had been sent down from Philadelphia. One of the crew was lost, and two others were saved only by the bravery of their comrades.

Mexican Convicts Break Jail.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 10.—The convicts confined in the prison at Chihpancingo made a desperate break for liberty. The guards soon overcame the prisoners. The convicts then secured arms and made a strong resistance. One of the guards was severely wounded and three of the convicts were killed. The other convicts were recovered and will probably be shot for their bold attempt.

Killed Himself and His Wife.

TOLEDO, July 10.—A special from Watson, Fulton county, O., says: Frank Bayes, a young farmer, butchered his 20-year-old wife in this manner. He cut her throat being cut from ear to ear, the arms and face fearfully hacked and her right leg almost severed from the body. Neighbors arrived in time to see his father shoot himself. Insanity caused the family trouble.

Associate Justice Matthews's Funeral.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The officials of the supreme court now in the city have been advised that the funeral of the late Associate Justice Horace Gray will take place in Newport on Tuesday. The chief justice and associate justices, except Justice Harlan, who is in Paris as one of the Behring sea arbitrators, have been requested to act as pallbearers.

A Peculiar Railroad Accident.

LANCASTER, N. H., July 10.—On the Maine Central railroad at Maidstone, as a mixed train was coming down, it was run into from behind by a special train, a passenger car being lifted on top of the engine, where it was entirely burned up. One lady belonging in Guild Hall, Vt., was injured slightly.

UTICA, N. Y., July 10.—A special from Rossie, St. Lawrence county, states that Edward Fletcher was killed by lightning while loading hay in a field.

Chinese Hooted by Fire.

ORONVILLE, Cal., July 10.—Fire destroyed eight brick stores and about 30 smaller buildings, mostly in the Chinese quarters.

THAT CARPENTER CLEW

His Name Connected With the Borden Murder Once Before.

AN ALIBI WAS PROVEN AT THE TIME

He Did Not Return to Fall River Because He Dreaded Publicity, and That Was Why His Wife Wrote the Letter Which Was Lost.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 10.—Another supposed clew to the Borden murder has been hunted down and found to be false and worthless.

Joseph W. Carpenter, Jr., about whom much is now being printed in connection with the Borden murders because of a suspicious letter supposed to have been addressed to him in New York, is no longer suspected. He formerly worked for the Borden & Almy firm of furniture dealers, of which Andrew J. Borden was the senior member. It was alleged against Carpenter at one time that he falsified the firm's books. Some Sagamore mill stock was transferred to satisfy the charge, but later the mill became involved and the stock proved valueless. Suit followed, but when both parties were ready for trial Carpenter threatened something which several of the parties did not care to face, and the proceedings were quashed. Andrew Borden was most severe with Carpenter, but the latter never had serious trouble with him.

Carpenter left the city shortly afterward and became a drummer for inks, pens and stationery. He has travelled the most of the time in New York state and generally makes his headquarters in Albany. He married a daughter of Captain Barney of this city and was here late in May, 1892.

Who Suspected Good Boy.

When the Borden tragedies were heralded about the country last August, every man who might have had reason for enmity toward Andrew J. Borden was hunted down. Among the unfortunate suspects was Carpenter. District Attorney Knowlton felt satisfied from his talk with Mrs. Carpenter and her little girl here, that her husband had not been in this vicinity since the time of the tragedy nor for some time before it. Nevertheless, at the suggestion of Marshal Hilliard, who was urged on by Mr. Jennings, the new Captain Harrington was sent out to run down Carpenter and to obtain positive information of his whereabouts during the latter days of July and the early days of August, 1892. Carpenter proved an alibi by hotel clerks and registers.

Because of Carpenter's family connections he was very much chagrined at being followed by a detective, also at being again heralded in the connection of the old story of the falsification of the books. He has not cared to come this way, although his relations with his wife's family are of the most possible character, so far as the police know.

One fact in connection with the Carpenter matter caused Miss Borden's lawyers to be persistent in their search for him. It was positively stated by one Peter Driscoll that he had shaved Carpenter in the barber shop of the Pittsburg House a day or two before the murders was committed. This story, the police say, was wholly unfounded.

Why She Wrote It.

Mrs. Joseph W. Carpenter, who is now at the home of her father-in-law, who she is visiting with her daughter, has been interviewed. In answer to questions, she said she wrote a letter to her husband some weeks ago, in which she begged him to come home as soon as he could. She said, in substance, that nobody could cause him any more annoyance on account of the murders, inasmuch as Miss Lizzie was acquitted, and the feeling in the matter had quieted down. She wrote in this strain because her husband had been difficult about coming to Fall River on account of having once been shadowed and had his name mixed up in the affair.

She said that her husband has not been here since December day, 1892, and that his whereabouts after that date had been fully explained to the satisfaction of the police. She cannot explain how her letter was lost. She wrote to her husband Saturday and receives letters from him regularly. She requested that Captain Harrington's detailed statement be given the broadest publication. The officer says he cannot talk at present, but will have a consultation with the marshal today.

Bismarck Speaks to Emonstrants.

BERLIN, July 10.—About 400 emzendorfers from the principality of Lippe-Detmold visited Prince Bismarck in Friedrichsruh. Both the prince and the princess responded to the cheers of the enthusiasts by appearing on the balcony of the castle. Prince Bismarck made a notable speech concerning the relations of the federal states to the empire.

REBELLIOUS LEPERS.

VAN COUVER, July 10.—Recent advices from Honolulu state that the provisional government is taking vigorous steps to subdue the rebellious lepers at Kalalau.

It is hoped that the display of force will induce them to surrender without bloodshed. Kalalau is an isolated canyon, accessible on foot with extreme difficulty, and by sea only in fine weather. There are 102 inhabitants, of whom 70 are lepers, mostly refugees from other districts of Kauai. Their stronghold is four miles inland in the valley in recess, accessible through a narrow chasm.

Their unrestrained intercourse with the people in whose houses they live threatens to infect the whole population.

Sheriff Stolz had been urging the board of health to remove them. He was confident he could persuade them to come if given full powers.

The result proved fatal to him. At Molokai they would be in entire comfort and free from anxiety. It is hoped no party in force will be made about their exile. The majority of the natives are strongly opposed to the segregation of the lepers, which most whites regard as a wise measure. The Royalists and the Annexationists hourly attacks the president of 'the board of health for distributing the poison of Kalalau, which the royal government had established.

Sheriff Stolts, who was shot by the lepers of Kalalau, was buried here June 28. The government dispatched a company of soldiers to the seat of strife, numbering about 90 men, with one Krupp field piece by steamer on June 26. Martial law has been proclaimed in the districts where the lepers are, and orders are to be taken dead or alive. The lepers have arms, and a battle between them and the troops is not unlikely.

Around the World In Sixty Days.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 10.—The Canadian-Australian Steamship company's steamer Warrima arrived here, 18 days from Sydney. She has on board mail for England, and has steamed across the Pacific in an attempt to break the record in making the transit of the world. Letters on board the Warrima are answers to mail that left London May 19, on the steamer Himalaya, and if all goes well they will be in London July 19, or 60 days from the time when the English mail for Australia left London.

A Sigh For a Kick.

JERSEY CITY, July 10.—John Monahan of 365 Grove street went to John Murphy's saloon and sent a boy into the saloon to call out Thomas Corrigan, the bartender's brother-in-law. Corrigan came out. Monahan stabbed him in the abdomen, inflicting a wound from which he is dying. He had previously attacked Corrigan with a knife. Corrigan had kicked the knife from his hand and threw him out of the saloon. Revenge for this act is supposed to have caused the assault.

Aid For the Cyclone's Victims.

POST DODGE, Ia., July 10.—The appeal for aid issued made by George Bloter for relieving sufferers of the Pomeroy cyclone is meeting with fair response from all parts of the state, and already $6,000 have been received by the relief committee. Owing to the severe nature of the injuries which most of the people have sustained, weeks and even months must intervene before they can care for themselves.

Corbett Will Make a Ringside Speech.

CHICAGO, July 10.—Johnny Griffin, the Boston lightweight, and Solly Smith, the Pacific coast champion, will meet tonight in the arena of the Columbian Athletic club for a purse of $6,000 and the featherweight championship of the world. Champion Jim Corbett will be the club's special guest, and from the ring he is expected to make a statement of his position in the Corbett-Mitchell matter.

Behring Sea Case Ending.

PARIS, July 10.—The Behring sea arbitration case has now entered upon its last stage, and while of course it is impossible to foretell what the judgment of the arbitrators will be, to an unbiased observer it would seem that the United States counsel have made the better arguments and presented a much stronger case than England.

A Youngster Brother's Revenge.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Pa., July 10.—John Jones, catcher of the Duncansville Pin Boys, a ringtail baseball team, in a game at that town was struck on the head by a brick thrown by his younger brother, and his injuries are fatal. The player had called his brother names for interfering with the game, and the missile was thrown in revenge.

Jerry Simpson Under Fire.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Representative Jerry Simpson of Kansas states that a deal has been made by the Populists of Kansas whereby he would become a candidate for governor next year, and that Governor Lewelling would run for the senatorship to succeed Senator Martin.

Upheld an Indulgent Conductor.

CLEVELAND, July 10.—Forty switchmen in the Cleveland yards of the Lake Shore railroad struck because a yard conductor who allowed one of his men to work 16 hours was reprimanded while on duty was suspended for 15 days.

The Canada Murderer Caught.

PARRO, N. D., July 10.—A bulletin just received from Church's Ferry says that Bamberger, the murderer of the Kreider family at Cando, was captured at Deloraine, Manitoba, 60 miles from Cando.

A Shower of Fish.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., July 10.—A heavy electric storm visited this section, in which a shower of fish of the sun perch species was precipitated on the town. They ranged in length from 1¼ to 3 inches.

The Nanshan Aground Again.

LONDON, July 10.—Royal Phelps Carpenter's steam yacht Nanshan, which sailed from Newport on June 11, passed the Scilly islands. She comes to England to race the crack English yachts.

Swindled a Farmer.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 10.—John Martin, a farmer, sold his corn crop to Jones for $25,000, and gave them $5,000 in small bills as change. The $25,000 was all counter cit. The men escaped.

General Howard on Prayer.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 10.—There was a large crowd of people at the Asbury Methodist camp to hear Major General O. O. Howard speak on "Does God Answer Prayer?"

Drank a Deadly Beverage.

NEWARK, N. J., July 10.—Mrs. Mary Fricdower died from the effects of carbolic acid which she drank. Deceased was 62 years of age.

Freedom on the Girdle Ban St.

I took the gentle Amanda
To see a football game,
And then was a friend of hers
Did she describe the same:

"Oh, May, you should have seen them play!
'Twas such a lovely match!
And though the first game I had seen
I understood it quite.

"First came the Yales, all dressed in blue;
Then came the Princes all in buff.
One fellow yelled, the rest all tried
To jump upon his head.

"And then one fellow stooped and stooped,
And all the rest did so;
And every fellow stooped and stooped
And looked hard at the ground.

"And then another fellow yelled,
And hooted, where he stood,
Just hit and struck and knocked and kicked
At every one he could.

"And then one fell upon his neck,
And all the others fell
And on his prone and prostrate form
Lodged every blessed man.

"And then the ambulance drove on,
And hooted by each man,
With twisted and crushed broken bones
Went driving off again.

"Oh, football's just the cutest game!
It caught on with a rush,
But yet it really is a shame
To use up men so fast."

BREVITIES.

—In Justice Nash's court, the case of Hewitt vs. Le Compte-Hamilton, landlord and tenant, will be tried next Monday.

—Prof. Sims gave an exhibition of athletic feats before a large crowd at Plainfield avenue and Fourth street last night.

—A party of North Plainfield young people started by stage this morning for Pequot (Boynton Beach) to spend the day picnicking.

—Mr. Marsh of West Front street reports having two windows blown out and broken and two large chairs hurled from the porch to us rejoicing to by Saturday's storm.

—The last regular communication before calling off will be held by Anchor Lodge, F. & A. M., to-night in Masonic Temple. The master mason degree will be conferred upon two candidates.

—A daughter of Mr. Charles Wittke of Westfield, died Saturday of malignant scarlet fever. It is now thought that the little girl who died in the same neighborhood a week or two ago suppposed to have also had malignant scarlet fever.

—Two class-s of girls from Warren Chapel, accompanied by their teachers and many lunch packages, are spending the day picnicing in the Leland avenue woods. On Friday they will have another happy day when they will go to Ocean Grove.

—A wagon belonging to Edward Murphy was wrecked last night as he was coming down Somerset street with a load of wood. In attempting to turn from the car track one of the rear wheels of the wagon was wrecked of. Another wagon was procured and the wood transferred to it.

—Italian laborers are putting the finishing touches on the roadbed of Somerset street from Front street to the bridge. It has been torn up for several days during the laying of the railroad tracks. The stretching of the wires that will supply power to the cars, will probably be begun to-morrow.

—A place to get fresh fish, cheese, and table delicacies not to be had elsewhere, will be opened to-morrow at 60 Somerset street by Mr. Jules Bovey. He has had the store he now occupies thoroughly renovated at his own expense thus emphasizing the fact that he intends to keep a first-class fish market, clean and fresh.

—Policeman Corse is again on duty at the depot to day for the first time in two weeks. During that time he has been a special officer on the Monmouth race-track trains looking after the railroad's interests by preserving order and removing such nuisances as pickpockets, shell game men, peddlers and beggars. Recently he found two newsboys who had ridden to the races on the wheel-trucks of a parlor car.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross, of Carlton avenue have returned from a delightful vacation in the mountains.

Mr. W. B. Wadsworth and family of West Eighth street are Summering at Washington, Conn.

Mrs. E. S. Popp, wife of Postmaster Pope of Park avenue, has returned from from the World's Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Potter of Seventh street will spend the warm months until September at Lake Hopatcong.

The Rev. Mr. Richardson of Prospect avenue will rest from pastoral labors at Middlebury, Conn, for a few weeks.

Messrs. M. Carhen, M. Winn, Policeman Kiely and J. Keaney will start early to-morrow for the fishing banks. It is said they are going for fish.

Mr. F. A. Miller of Spooner avenue is out after an illness of several months duration. His friends hope that he may soon enjoy good health.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Truell of Central avenue are still at the World's Fair. Mrs. Truell writes home that she is delighted with the trip. They have been gone about a month and will not return for some time yet.

Miss Anna M. Reed, a sister of Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed, sails to-morrow on the steamship Westernland for Europe. She was a teacher in the Comstock school, New York, at the time Helen Potts Harris died there of morphine poisoning.

About eighteen months ago a suit for divorce was begun by Frederick Sandford of North Plainfield, against his wife Ella G. Sandford. The litigation has just been concluded, and has resulted in a degree of absolute divorce in favor of Mr. Sandford. Mr. Craig A. Marsh was his counsel.

It is true, quite true, and not at all sad to relate, that the music loving people of Plainfield are not only increasing in number, but they also appreciate a good thing when they get it. Probably no better series of concerts has ever been presented to them, than the proposed series by Mr. Venino. People may, for several seasons and various reasons, support mediocre concerts, but the time is bound to come sooner or later when they awaken to the fact that they are not getting their money's worth. Mediocrity does not pay. The subscriptions for the above concerts, Mr. Venino says, are coming in very rapidly. The limit of the Casino seating capacity has already been nearly reached, he says.

AROUND THE WORLD.

MR. HOCKRIDGE STARTS TO-DAY FOR JAPAN AND CHINA.

Probably the First Plainfielder to Completely Encircle the Globe.—Was to Japan During the Terrible Earthquake Two Years Ago.—Many Relics.

E. W. G. Hockridge, who lives at the corner of East Fifth and Washington street, is probably the first Plainfielder to make a continuous trip around the world.

As buyer for Messrs. Arnold, Constable & Co., Mr. Hockridge starts to-day direct for Japan and China. He will go by rail to Vancouver and will take the steamer from there on July 17th for Yokohama, Japan, where he expects to arrive on July 31st. He will remain in the Island empire for a week or two and supposed to China, returning by way of India; the Suez Canal, Malta, Brindisi, Italy, Paris and London, reaching New York about November 20th. On his return trip he expects to meet his mother at Paris, and proceed with her to her home in London.

Mr. Hockridge has made many trips to these oriental countries before, but this is his first circuitous trip by which he virtually goes around the world.

He was in Yokohama last year, and, on his return trip, reached New York in 19 days after leaving Japan. This remarkably fast trip has only been excelled by the Empress of Japan, who, four years ago, made a special trip, under most favorable circumstances, in fourteen days.

Mr. Hockridge is most entertaining when telling of his travels or of his many relics, gathered in every country he has visited. There is usually an excellent story connected with each relic.

Many times he has had thrilling experiences also, one of them being during the terrible earthquake of October 10, 1891 when from 9,000 to 10,000 lives were lost. He was then at a hotel in Kobe, a city of considerable importance situated between Tokio and Yokohama. The centre of the great earthquake was between Kobe and Yokohama and consequently only a few miles away, devastating the towns of Nagoya, Gifo and Ogaki.

The first shock was felt by our fellow townsman while he was lying in bed about 6:45 o'clock in the morning. The shock, he says, was one of the longest in duration of any on record, continuing for about half a quarter minutes. At first, the furniture was tossed about the room in an alarming manner, then chimneys fell in, and many of the houses were completely demolished. Excitement among the residents was intense and several hundred persons who grouped themselves in the middle of a large open street were trembling with fear. Mr. Hockridge had managed to partially clothe himself, but all the others had rushed for safety regardless of appearances and dressed only as they had been when suddenly awakened by the catastrophe.

Mr. Hockridge says that when unable to get out of a house on such an occasion, the safest place is the jamb of a window. By sitting on the sill the frame of the window protects one and whether the building falls inward or outward the chances of injury are not so great.

Sixty miles of railroad were destroyed and all telegraphic wires for many miles wrecked. Soon after the great earthquake, terror was caused among the natives by the rumor which spread about the country that Tokio and Yokohama were in ruins.

Mr. Hockridge left the country within a week after the episode and was the first man to reach New York with the news. He was besieged by reporters from the metropolitan papers and interviews with him were published at considerable length.

Mr. Hockridge will not take a camera on this trip. He did so on a former occasion and had experiences that he is not anxious to have repeated.

On one occasion while endeavoring to "catch" an odd looking old native in one of the very narrow and rather dark streets of Japanese village, he was much hampered by a large crowd of natives who blocked the street at either end in their curiosity to watch him. On account of the poor light, a time picture was necessary, and it is amusing to hear him describe the difficulties of his attempt.

The odd, little, sober-faced Japanese policemen, with their gongies and broadswords, succeeded after much obstructing and many gestures in dispersing the crowd, and, though not discouraged in his artistic desires, Mr. Hockridge was compelled thereafter to procure what photographs he wanted from photograph-venders because the edict had been sent forth forbidding foreigners from creating disturbances by "making" photographs in public places. And as beautifully colored, large and artistic photographs together with many other artistic relics were obtained at a surprisingly low cost, he will hereafter profit by his experience.

Throughout Mr. Hockridge's home are many samples of the wonderful cleverness and ability of Japanese artisans.

In every Japanese household are shrines of Buddha and other gods. Mr. Hockridge has secured a beautiful specimen, encased in miniature temples of elaborately carved wood, daubed in black and gold lacquer and inlaid with ivory, rare woods and pearl, as only the Japanese can do them.

Another parlor ornament that attracts the attention of visitors is a tangled, twisted and knotted mass of the roots of a tree cleverly made as a table. Several exquisitely carved outside of bamboo wood, ebonite, rosewood, sandal wood, ebony, ebora the ball and parlor.

The Japs are the finest ball makers in the world. Mr. Hockridge has some specimens, one, a large bronze beagle gong, when struck by the head hammer produces a very rich sound which continues for more than two minutes. There are also a series of various sized gongs, hung on a string that making a harmonious chime when tapped.

Among the relics that Mr. Hockridge prizes most highly is a Satsuksad boy and cart made of light wood and carved most perfectly.

An old old armor such as worn by the soldiers during the old regime, is made of leather and wood curiously shaped together and surmounted with a grotesque heavy metal mask, ornamented with a bristling moustache, and a heavy helmet. With the armor is a thick and very sharp dagger and sheath.

A thirty year old pine tree, only twelve inches in height, and photographs of trees trained to grow horizontally show a wonderful secret knowledge known only to the Japanese.

Mr. Hockridge's house is full of souvenirs of his many trips. They are mostly different from those generally gathered by travelers.

He has also many interesting and rare souvenirs of China, and will probably procure more during his present trip.

MR. VARNEY WAS THERE.

So Mr. French's Horse Got Over Its Fright.

One of the handsomest horses in Plainfield is a little black, nervous beauty, owned by Mr. L. M. French, the carriage manufacturer of Plainfield.

Last evening Mr. French was going out for a drive and in some way the horse started out of the alley on Somerset street, that leads to Mr. French's stable, before Mr. French was in the carriage.

The animal was only walking fast when it started, but several persons had seen one yelled "runaway horse, stop it" and several men ran toward the horse pretending to stop it and then the runaway commenced.

The horse trotted along Somerset street to Craig place. Then, thoroughly frightened by the yelling crowd, it turned sharply into Craig place, banged the carriage several times against the curb, tried to dodge several men, fell twice and then dashed in a headlong gallop down Craig Place with a crowd of men, women and children, streaming after it.

When near Dunn street, Mr. Edward Varney, the athletic machinist, started out and caught the horse. It was well for Mr. Varney that the animal had been tough for he was hanged around at a lively rate for a few seconds and thrown a couple of times, but managed to stop the horse, which, after a few soothing words had been spoken to it, became its old self and permitted Mr. Varney to get in to drive it without any further unpleasantness.

Mr. Theodore J. Gillies Dying.

Mr. Theodore J. Gillies, an old resident of this city, is dying at his home on Madison avenue. Six weeks ago Mr. Gillies was attacked with peritonitis, and jaundice afterward set in, and yesterday it seemed as though he could not live throughout the day. He has been unconscious since last night and is sinking very rapidly. Mr. Gillies is 76 years old, and an exempt fireman, and was one of the first chiefs of the Plainfield Fire Department. His family are assisted in caring for him by Mr. Guerdierone Tiers who is one of the Exempt Firemen's committees for attending sick members. The invalid has been unable to partake of nourishment for several weeks. Dr. Ellis of Mt. Bethel has charge of the case.

It is expected that the contracts for the building of the Central Railroad's new freight house will be awarded in a few days. The work will then be pushed forward rapidly so that the building may be put in use early in the Fall. Meanwhile the old freight house is being cut of repair considerably to accommodate the freight handlers, and they will be pleased when the new quarters are ready.

The company pays rent to place another freight house at Grant avenue and it is probable that the old one will be removed there.

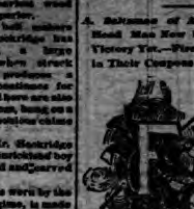
A Little Girl Catches a Big Bass.

"Aggie" Morse, the little daughter of Mr. Ed. Morse, yesterday caught a bass that weighed almost a pound and was almost eleven inches long, in the brook back of French's carriage factory.

UNTIL AUGUST 30TH.

THE CONTEST WILL END THEN.

A Salesman of Alert Home Co. is Head Man Now but is to Augment's Victory Yet.—Firemen Should Send in Their Coupons Every Day.



MEN are receiving votes and the lucky man who is now head is still have the power sort to work—and a free gift of it all, at that.

Mr. A. Salesman of Alert Home No. 1 has the lead in votes to-day. This is the third day of the contest.

The firemen who has received the highest number of votes on August 30, at 10 o'clock, to be fixed, will be entitled to the following privileges, as the winner of the Great World's Fair Contest:

First—A first-class railroad ticket from New York to Chicago and return on any railroad.

Second—Good accommodations, room and board (not more than two in a room) at the home of family head, added feature, ing or private house in the city of Chicago for six consecutive days, during the Fair.

Third—Transportation for baggage from and to Chicago.

Fourth—Six admissions to the World's Columbian Exposition.

Fifth—Admission to "Spectatorium," the Celebration of the Great Discovery; the Dramatic Triumph of the Ages; Orchestra, 150 players; Chorus, 600 voices.

Sixth—A round trip pleasure excursion on Lake Michigan. A visit to Lincoln Park (the finest in America), to the Lincoln and Great Monuments, Conservatory and Botanical Gardens.

Seventh—Admission to "Spiral Tower," "Gliding Railway," "Street in Cairo," "Street in Japan," "Midway Plaisance," "Chinese Village," and "Matsy Village."

Eighth—Admission to "Moorish Palace," containing over 100 figures, a Palm Garden, the original Guillotine of the French Revolution and many Oriental curiosities.

Ninth—Admission to the famous Arctic whaling ship "Progress," built in 1881, fully equipped, containing the finest collection of marine curiosities ever exhibited.

The privileges are obtained and the trip is arranged under the auspices of the World's Columbian Tourist Company, a reputable and solid corporation composed of leading New York bankers, railroad and business men, whose advertisement will be found in another column. We have every guarantee that all the privileges named above will be carried out to the letter.

From time to time more interesting particulars of the trip means for the winner will be published. Be sure and get THE NEWS every night.

So far it is anybody's victory.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS

WORLD'S FAIR COUPON.

Record one vote for Fireman

Name of Company:

At the City Hotel last evening "Chic" Holford was surprised by his friends who presented him with a sealed envelope containing a large sum of money. Chic, who is 24, and asked if the donors would not kindly take it and purchase something which he might retain as a souvenir of Plainfield. This will be done and given to him at some future time.

Bicycling Notes.

The Ignacia Quakes had a "run" to South Bound Brook and a "run" to Westfield last evening. At the club meeting, Friday night, final arrangements will be made for a twenty-five mile road race to be held over the Fanwood course. Pledge cards were placed around the Plainfield course on July 4th. Thirty prizes have already been donated by local merchants.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Negro Uprising Feared.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 11. (Special.)—A negro uprising is feared at Bardwell as a result of the recent lynching of Miller, the negro, accused of outraging and then murdering the Fry sisters. The Mayor of Bardwell has telegraphed to Paducah for 100 Winchesters.

Savings Bank Assigns.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 11, (Special.)—The Kansas City Safe Deposit & Savings Bank, one of the largest institutions of its kind in Missouri, made an assignment this morning. Its liabilities and assets are not known.

City Court Notes.

Mrs. James Tracy, for being drunk and disorderly on Sunday night, was fined $5 this morning by Judge Coddington.

Peter Brown of North Plainfield became drunk and disorderly on the wrong night of the week and was fined $5 and given his choice this morning of paying $5 fine or spending twenty days in the jail. To spite the city he chose the latter, and gave his wife what money he had in his pockets before going away.

John Harnell was found about midnight on the corner of Second and Grove much liquor. His coach was the sidewalk, corner of Grove and Front streets, and as a policeman's suggestion was exchanged for a bunk in jail. In court this morning he said he was a stone cutter; had never been arrested before. His employer said he was a sober, industrious workman and so the Judge suspended sentence.

The suit of Miss Smith against Isaac Lederer, for salary, will be tried before Justice Mosher at two p. m. Thursday. Miss Smith is also suing Mr. Lederer, who was formerly her employer, for $10,000 for defamation of character, alleging that he had circulated stories of her stealing flowers from his millinery department, of which she had charge.

Base Ball Notes.

Jack Martin, an old Plainfield favorite, will be another recruit added for the Orranges. Martin was recommended to Providence by Lee Smith, and has been playing the position for the N. Y. Athletic Club.

"Willie" Murphy will occupy one of the outfield positions, as Brennan has not been signed permanently. If Murphy only takes care of himself, he will find that his ability as a player is appreciated, and that he can make himself respected.

In Murphy, McIntire and Breeden the Oreanoits outfield will be the best.

Lee Smith will be field captain.

The Arlingtons will play the Gorhams on the Park avenue ball grounds, Thursday morning. The line up for the Arlington will be the Arlingtons battery: C. F. Sprague, c.f.; G. Baxter, p.; O. Smith, 1b.; W. Schlosser, 2b.; H. Wolf, 3b.; Thomas, ss.; O. Dodge, r.s.; Howe, l.f.; A. Lederer, r.f.

"Fell Asleep while Standing and Lost its Balance."

A horse, belonging to a fruit vender, was taken sick while standing at the corner of Somerset street and Manning avenue to-day noon and fell down. Some bystanders, however, said the animal had "fallen asleep and while dreaming, perhaps of a bag of oats, had lost its balance." The animal died in a few hours without assistance and was then unharnessed from the wagon and taken away, probably to have its dream realized.

—The North Plainfield Board of Health met last evening. Among other business it was ordered that the dump, corner of Grove street and Greenbrook road be closed. An ordinance was passed licensing collectors of swill for the eastern and western districts of the borough.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Texas College Girls.

Very fine and esthetic it has come to be, the education of these college girls. They are taller and stronger and have more physique and in many cases are handsomer than their mothers were. All that money can add to their knowledge and enjoyment is supplied. Take the annual "Float day," so called, at Wellesley. It is an regatta of the college oarswomen. The fine girls selected from each class have bright uniforms and boats coating one knows not how much money. The trained crews row by moonlight or starlight, as the case may be, over a course on Lake Waban, all together, in splendid style, keeping time to the dip of the oars with their sweet young voices in song. Their uniforms are a picturesque gleam, like the flutter of the wing of a bird of paradise. Skirts bother the girls in their rowing, so they wear only bright colored zouave trousers and sweaters.

The college boys from Harvard come over to Wellesley in a friendly way and cheer the lasses like mad when they make a good spurt around a bend. They answer back the Harvard college calls to the Wellesley college calls, and all is joyous, brilliant. Gleaming red lights and calcium lights dance across the water and glint upon the faces and uniforms of the beautiful girls. It is like fairyland.

The other day 351 young ladies graduated from the normal college in New York city. Every one of them was dressed in white silk and came to the commencement hall in a carriage. All held white fans and bouquets of beautiful flowers. The outfit of every one of them cost a good round sum. Well, one is glad they can afford it, especially as this college, whose graduates were so handsomely rigged out, belongs to the public schools and is supposed to be run for the benefit of poor girls. Beauty, refinement and esthetic pictures are very pleasing.

But one somehow suddenly remembers how Lucy Stone went through college and came out a fine scholar; how she washed dishes in the boarding hall to pay her expenses and provided her own food, living on 50 cents a week. In these luxurious times, what chance is there for a very poor girl, no matter how grand a brain she has, to pay her own expenses in a humble way at college? It would require such courage as not one in a thousand possesses.

The Prosecution.

What is the duty of the state in a legal trial. The prosecutor is appointed for the state to see that no criminal escapes the just penalty of the law. It is undoubtedly the duty of the prosecution to convict the accused if he is guilty, and to prove him guilty if he really is so. But apparently the legal methods of criminal jurisprudence have degenerated into something very different.

It is a well known principle of law that every accused is to be considered innocent until he has been proved guilty. In 90 cases out of 100 here in America in our time the attorney for the state proceeds on exactly reverse this principle, and in all he says and does assumes that the prisoner is guilty until he is proved innocent. Justice, mercy and common sense alike declare that the state has no interest in convicting a prisoner. Its function is simply to see that justice is done. If an accused is innocent, it is far more the state's business to clear that accused than to try to convict him. But in the practical operation of our law the prosecutor evidently is not granted that his sole business is to convict the prisoner; that, too, whether he is guilty or innocent. The courtroom becomes simply a stage for the prosecutor to show his eloquence and trickery in gaining his case and getting glory for himself, irrespective of whether the accused is guilty. That is apparently a side issue. When the prosecution becomes persecution, and that fiendish persecution, as it does too often at the present day, it is time for a change.

The revulsion which is sure to come in a violently excited public feeling came in a little less than six years in the case of the Chicago anarchists. Four of them were hanged Nov. 11, 1887, the governor of Illinois refusing to interfere in their behalf. One of the condemned, Lingg, killed himself by means of a dynamite cap the day before the execution. Now a governor of Illinois, Altgeld, pardons the imprisoned survivors in response to a petition signed by many citizens of Chicago and the state at large. It is to be noted especially that the very men who were most bitter in their clamor for the hanging of the anarchists constitute a majority of the signers of the petition for the release of the prisoners. The fact is that it has never been discovered who really threw the deadly bomb in Haymarket May 4, 1886. Meantime in seasons of violent public excitement, before we clamor for a hanging, let us think about it.

There are one or two places in which all the world is agried appointments to or removals from office should not be made on political grounds. One of these places is a hospital; another is an insane asylum.

The Campania when she made the fastest run that any ocean steamer ever has made averaged 22 5-6 miles an hour for 24 hours.

TRAPPED IN THE TOWER

Eighteen Chicago Firemen Meet Most Fearful Fates.

FRIGHTFUL LEAPS DOWN TO DEATH.

CHICAGO, July 11.—The fear that has existed for months in the minds of nearly every citizen in Chicago was realized in the frightful holocaust at the World's fair that claimed nearly two score of victims and for a time threatened the destruction of the entire White City.

The disaster was all the more dreadful because of its sudden transformation from an innocent flame into a death dealing catastrophe. Like an animate monster it seized its victims to the topmost stage of its pioneering and then enclosing the whole shaft in a sheet of flame held them in a trap until one by one they fell a sacrifice on the fiery altar that raged beneath them while 30,000 people stood helplessly aghast.

The structure that burned was by comparison one of the smallest buildings of the fair. It was the cold storage warehouse and skating rink and was not the property of the exposition. It was a concession and exhibit of the Hercules Iron Works and Ice and Refrigerating Machine manufacturers.

In addition to the skating rink there were three 120 foot ice storage rooms and 36 or 40 barrels of linseed oil. The oil no doubt greatly hastened the conflagration, and that the fire was not communicated to the other buildings in the fair buildings was due to the favorable winds.

The scene of horror was witnessed by many thousands of people, and strong men and weak women joined in one life after another was snuffed out within full view of the multitude, but beyond the reach of human aid.

Within 20 minutes the great loss of life occurred. At the first signal the firemen rushed up the huge shaft surrounding the warehouse, and when at the summit began preparations to fight the flames, which had first appeared at this point. Before the hose could be coupled a cry of horror from the crowd below caused the firemen to look down, and the whole shaft below was found to be encircled in flames.

Instantly every man realized his danger, but there were few to find an avenue for escape. One man suddenly grasped a rope or hose, and Ralf sliding, half falling, reached the roof, 90 feet below, in a bruised and burned condition, but still alive.

Fearful and Fatal Leaps.

Suddenly one of the firemen was seen preparing to jump, and every eye was turned upward. He gave a quick, spasmodic leap, and turned over and over half a dozen times before he struck the roof, 90 feet below. To the spectators he seemed a minute falling this distance, and when the body struck the roof with a frightful crash and bounced four feet into the air a groan of horror went up from the crowd. From this time the bodies rained from the tower, but in nearly every instance breath and life had fled when the victim was picked up on the roof below.

After the first wild leap, one man after another jumped in quick succession as the flames closed in below and the heat became unbearable. In nearly every instance the victim turned over and over again before he touched the roof, and in nearly every instance the result of the leap for life was the same—death. For the last man on the cupola was reserved the most dreadful fate of all. After all his companions had passed to apparent death, and as the last man was hesitating, the whole shaft began so tremble and vibrate. The lone fireman gave a quick, wild leap. He was too late. At the very instant he sprang, the whole structure gave way, and this human being, quivering with life and wildly grasping for support in the frenzy of despair, was seen to drop into the labyrinth of flame and fire and finally disappear entirely in the roaring furnace below.

A Further Frightful Firetrap.

As a firetrap the cold storage warehouse could not have been more perfectly constructed. The structure was 250 feet long by 150 feet wide, and was constructed entirely of wood covered over with staff. The main body of the building was five stories high. In the center of this rose the smokestack to the top of a cupola to the top of which was almost 200 feet. The base of this cupola was about 30 feet square. About 40 feet from the base of this cupola there was a square tower, which another square tower rose, culminating in the mouth of the smokestack, where the fire was discovered. The interior of this tower and around the smokestack were the wooden beams and framework on which the staff covering was laid.

It was at the top of this cupola that the fire was discovered. It is supposed that the framework around the mouth of the huge chimney caught from a defect in the flue. At first it appeared to be an insignificant affair, but knowing the inflammable nature of the structure, Fire Marshal Murphy, who had charge of the fire department on the exposition grounds, sent to the other companies to turn out.

With about 40 of his men Captain Fitzpatrick climbed the stationary ladders inside the tower to the balcony, and from there ropes were lowered to haul up the hose. Only one hose, that of a chemical engine, was hauled up when a gust of wind caused the flames to break out. When there remained from 25 to 30 men on the tower hopelessly beyond the reach of help Captain Fitzpatrick's tall form and white helmet appeared in front of the men, who were huddled together on the narrow balcony. He appeared to be addressing his brave followers. What he said will never be known.

As on Red Fire.

A large quantity of linseed oil was stored on the top floor, and when the tower fell it crashed through the roof to this inflammable fuel, and then the flames rolled up high in the air.

As the firemen fled from the roof one of them picked up the mangled form of one of the unfortunates who had jumped from the balcony, and carrying it to the edge of the roof dropped it to the ground, thus saving it from cremation. As yet the body has not been identified, as the face was battered black. Many of the unfortunate firemen who lost their lives might have been saved had the department been supplied with nets. They could have jumped from the tower to the roof and been saved by the nets.

Seeing that it was a hopeless task to attempt to save the building and as all who escaped alive had left the roof the firemen directed their efforts to keep the fire from spreading.

The World's fair stables just south of the big warehouse was burning, and the fire had spread to the roofs of several hotels across Stony Isle avenue, just outside the grounds. With a good deal of effort all hotels were saved, but the stables were burned to the ground.

In less than two hours from the time the fire started the big cold storage warehouse was leveled to the ground, a smoking ruin. It is doubtful if any of the bodies will be recovered, so furious and terrific was the heat. The building and all its contents added to this the barrels of oil, made the fire one of the hottest the fire department has ever had to fight.

Columbian Guards Killed.

The loss of life has been variously estimated, but at least 16 are dead and 16 others are injured.

The full extent of the death wrought may never be known, as the building collapsed totally in so short a time after the fire started that many people who entered the building hoping to render aid before the peril under which they were placing themselves was realized, were caught like rats in a trap and perished in the midst of their work. It is said that but four Columbian guards are missing, but there are many vacancies in the different companies stationed through the grounds and their captains, while refusing to commit themselves, fear that their men have been cremated. As soon as the ruins were cooled sufficiently for the search, the work of searching for bodies began.

The first body taken from the smoking mass was evidently a fireman, as a blue shirt was found on the corpse, as was all that was found of the unfortunate. A short time later two more were taken from the ruins. Under one of the bodies was found a broken sword, a mute informer of the wearer's identity, a Columbian guard. The other body was of course unrecognizable. The six secured to a stretcher. Two more bundles of flesh were discovered at short intervals. In all six bodies, horribly burned, were taken out by 10 o'clock last night when operations were stopped for the night on account of the risk in working under beams and iron columns and the absence of light. A relief fund was started and in less than 30 minutes the fund had reached $2,000.

Harrison Says Chicago Must Act.

Mayor Harrison, in discussing the tragedy, said: "This settles one thing—the city of Chicago is going to assume control over those buildings, as far as protecting life is concerned, and will do so at once. I will see that all buildings are carefully inspected, and if changes are necessary for the safety of the people are found advisable, they must be made. Every day 15,000 people visit the top of the Manufacturing building. I have seen myself nearly 5,000 people there at once.

"In the event of a fire panic hardly two of them would escape. These things must be looked to and they will be, if it takes every police officer in Chicago. It is a little late now, but the city will take no more chances. That cold storage building would never have been built if the city authorities had possessed a voice in the matter, and now that is going to speak and speak so that the world will know that the blood of these men is not upon us, and that we will have no more of these awful catastrophes if we can avoid it."

A CHANCE BLOW.

It Gave Smith the Championship and Knocked Griffin Out.

ROBY, Ind., July 11.—In the featherweight championship battle between Solly Smith of California and Johnny Griffin of Braintree, Mass., at the Columbian Athletic club, for a purse of $6,000, Smith knocked Griffin out in the fourth round by a chance right hand blow.

Smith had staggered to the center of the arena, and a heavy thrust in the wind nearly put him on earth. Griffin at this play he turned on his opponent, and with a wicked right lunge caught Griffin full in the face below the eye. Griffin went down like a log, and was counted out before the referee announced that the fight was Smith's. Then there was a rush to the arena, and the supporters of the victor cheered themselves hoarse.

Before the fight there was some talk between Corbett and Parson Davis, and finally the announcement was made amid a torrent of cheering that Corbett and Jackson would meet in November for a fight to a finish.

Now Grasshoppers Are Scarce.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The banks holding drafts on the obstreperous instead of sending them through the clearing house sent them direct in order to obtain currency. The subtreasury, however, refused them in gold, and in that way paid out $400,000. Gold is inconvenient to handle, and the object in using it was to force the drafts through the regular channel. Banks report a scarcity of bills, the result of recent heavy shipments to interior points and withdrawals by savings institutions.

Forger Trowbridge Held.

BUFFALO, July 11.—Louis L. Trowbridge, the Buffalo man who surrendered himself in St. Louis a few days ago and confessed that he was wanted in Kansas City, and in this city for forgery, was arraigned before Judge Seaver under two indictments, charging grand larceny in the first degree and forgery in the second degree. Trowbridge pleaded not guilty to both and was committed for trial. Trowbridge's crime there was the passing of a forged New York draft.

Gas Killed Two Physicians.

MAHANOY CITY, Pa., July 11.—Harry and Jacob Klein, both bachelors of middle age, living in the Seventh ward, a populous portion of town, were missed by their friends and neighbors since Saturday. On breaking open their house, which was severely locked on the inside, both men were found dead, asphixiated by gas from a stove.

Two Charged With Arson.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 11.—Benjamin F. Leonard, 19 years old, was arrested here charged with setting fire to the Eddy block at Webster, which was burned, with over $60,000 loss July 4. Emory Lawrence of Webster was arrested in that town charged with the same offense. Leonard kept the store in which the fire originated.

North Attleboro's Murder Mystery.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., July 11.—All the local constabulary force are at work trying to ferret out the mystery surrounding the death of Patrick McCarthy. The opinion is quite general among those who have made any investigation that the man was killed in some house and the body taken in a wagon to the pond and thrown in.

Pomeroy Appeals to the Red Cross.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Miss Clara Barton, president of the Red Cross, received a telegram from Pomeroy, Ia., the town demolished by Friday's tornado, asking that 50 nurses be sent on at once for service there. Dr. Hubbell, the field agent of the Red Cross, left immediately to supply the demand.

VICTIM OF A DOG BITE.

STRONG MEN COULD NOT HOLD HIM.

He Snarled and Snapped at His Parents and Tore a Hole in the Wall With His Teeth—Was Attacked by a Vicious Bull-dog, Which Cannot Be Found.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Struggling in the frightful throes of hydrophobia 10-year-old Joseph Rhein lay in a small front room of his parents in the third story of a tenement house at 264 Belmont avenue, Newark, N. J. He raved and gnawed the bedclothing, and the united efforts of five strong men were required to restrain him. Every effort to give him water from his parents' cup was met with a snarl and a snap. He also refused to take food, and the doctor who was in attendance said that the boy could not live more than a few hours. The little fellow was conscious, however, and knew that he was dying.

His struggle was marvelous and almost incredible, with each recurring convulsion in spite of quiet injections of morphine. His heartbroken mother and father, Mrs. and Mr. Tobias Rhein, were there, with their four other small children, clinging about them with fright as the agonized shrieks of the little boy rang through the house, followed by low, guttural sounds resembling the snarling of an angry dog.

The boy was bitten by a bulldog owned by Retschert Brothers, grocers at Rose and Bleeker streets. The animal is said to have had a bad reputation for ugliness.

Attacked by a Bulldog.

Joseph was carrying two bundles of wood and some groceries, and as he passed Retschert's store the bulldog sprang from a side door and with a great fastened his teeth in the fleshy part of little Joseph's right thigh. His mother had the ugly looking wound cauterized and Joseph ran out to play with the children of the neighborhood and went on a visit to Mrs. Bilser, his grandmother, some distance away.

He spent yesterday afternoon playing in the street near her house, and about 6 o'clock, when he was starting for home, told her for the first time that he had been bitten by a dog. She gave him about a tablespoonful of homemade wine and a bottle of camphor, hoping that would relieve the pain.

When he entered his home about 7 o'clock his mother wanted to wash him, but he protested and would not go near the water. He complained of a fever and pains in the head, body and legs, and said he wanted to go to bed.

He struggled against his mother's attempts to wash him until she desisted, and after calling in Mrs. Heinlein and another neighbor ran for Dr. Leblanch, whose office is a mile away, but who is the family physician. While she was gone the little sufferer became spasmodic and frothed at the mouth. He tried to bite the two women who were watching over and trying to control him.

He finally became so violent that they had to call for assistance. William Heinlein, a six foot, brawn shouldered man, responded, but even with his efforts the boy could not be firmly held. At this juncture the boy's father entered. He was surprised and unnerved, but was forced to aid the neighbors in holding his child.

Dr. Leblanch arrived a few minutes later and, after giving the morphine injections, causing temporary calmness, during which the boy's father went to the fourth precinct police station and reported the case, requesting that Officer Hartnett be compelled to kill the dog. This was at 9 o'clock last night.

He grew uneasy a few minutes later and gradually became violent. While his father and several others, who were called in by Dr. Leblanch, held him he made desperate efforts to bite them. He seemed to gain strength every instant and finally gave a great struggle, gasped and then lay exhausted.

Threw the Men Aside.

The spasms returned at regular intervals of from three to five minutes and each one seemed worse than the other until five men were required to hold the boy. He struggled and shrieked in agony. With a sudden movement he threw them all aside as if they were straws, and springing erect in the center of the bed stood glaring at them.

When they attempted to take hold of him again he snarled and bit at them so viciously that Dr. Leblanch warned them to keep away from him.

The next instant he dropped in exhaustion, but again the awful convulsion came upon him and the same struggle was repeated several times until the boy finally became exhausted. Then, to alleviate the sufferings of the boy, Dr. Leblanch administered chloroform, under which his struggles soon subsided.

The boy in his convulsions tore a hole in the plaster wall against which the bed stood, digging it out piece by piece and by seizing it between his teeth. He also tore open a cornhusk pillow, biting at it in each of his spasms.

The Boy Head Poisoning Case.

BAY HEAD, N. J., July 11.—With the exception of Miss Ada F. Miles and the coachman, Duffy, all of the members of Mr. Frederick B. Miles' family, who were poisoned on Friday by eating a dessert called "Bavarian cream," are doing well. The daughter and the cook are still in a dangerous condition.

DREW ELEVEN SALARIES

Van Brocklin of Buffalo and His Little Game.

HE HAD TEN FICTITIOUS FIREMEN

For Six Years He Had Them Enumerated on the City's Pauds and Living in Regal Style—Other Officials May Also Be Implicated.

BUFFALO, July 11.—Eric Ontario Van Brocklin, secretary of the board of commissioners, was arrested here, charged with embezzling a sum said to be over $50,000. He was taken to the mayor's office where he made a confession, and was then taken to police headquarters and locked up. Van Brocklin's method has been to add fictitious names to the fire department payroll.

For some time past the commissioners have had suspicions that all was not right. They knew that Van Brocklin was living far in excess of his salary of $1,500 a year, and it was not known that he was worth anything outside of that. A quiet investigation followed, and it resulted in the startling discovery that the secretary of the board was an embezzler to the tune of $50,000.

The commissioners went to the comptroller's office and got the payrolls for the time over which the embezzlement has been going on. It was then seen by what method the steal has been accomplished. There were 10 names on which Van Brocklin had been drawing salaries. The names are fictitious.

Then Eric Confessed.

He broke down completely and then made a full confession. He admitted stealing, adding the 10 fictitious names to the payroll twice a month and drawing $666.80 every month.

When asked what he had done with the money he said he had lost it in land speculations. He could not tell how much he had stolen, how long the pilfering had been going on, but he thought over six years at least.

When the conference was over Officer Puls was instructed to formally serve the warrant, and he took Van Brocklin to police headquarters and locked him up. The prisoner sent for his attorney and had a long talk with him. It is said that he implicated a an employee of the comptroller's office, and that this person will also be arrested. He is reported to have been standing in with Van Brocklin and juggling the warrants so the steals could be made. The board of fire commissioners met and formally dismissed Van Brocklin from the fire department.

Van Brocklin lived in luxurious style, driving fashionable turnouts and keeping up an expensive establishment. This attracted the attention of the board, and for nearly 10 months the three commissioners have been investigating Mr. Van Brocklin's doings.

More Privacy For the President.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Colonel John M. Wilson, chief of engineers, who by reappointment by President Cleveland has now charge of the White House and the adjacent grounds, has made a strong report on the necessity of some changes in the arrangements for the domestic life of the chief executive. He says that the chief magistrate of the country should no longer be obliged to cross the public residence and office under the same roof.

Tramps Fooled With Dynamite.

DENVER, July 11.—Almost the entire city was shocked by the explosion of 8,000 pounds of dynamite in a storage house in South Denver. Two men are supposed to have been blown to atoms. Particles of clothing and of a revolver were found near the scene. What caused the accident is not known, but it is supposed to have been the work of tramps.

Builder of Long Bridge Dead.

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., July 11.—Charles Brenneke, a notable character, has just died here, aged 70 years. He graduated as architect-in Germany at the age of 17, built the first Lutheran church in Denver and the first railroad out of Berlin. He also built the Long bridge at Harper's Ferry in the forties.

PET DOGS POISONED.

They Belonged to an Ex-Alderman and Were Valued at $1,400.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Five pet dogs, each of which took a prize at the Westminster Kennel club's show at Madison Square Garden, were poisoned on Sunday night while out for a walk with their owner, Mrs. Adelaide Grinnell of 124 Oak street, Greenpoint, and died within half an hour. Four of the dogs, Pardo, Puddy, Beauty and Dandy, were of the hairless Mexican species. The other, Don, was a Scotch stag hound.

Mrs. Grinnell, the owner, is a widow. She was known once as a comedienne. Her son and daughter, Benjamin and Katie, also cooked her in her profession.

Her next door neighbor, Max Berliner, who is a foreman in the Eagle Lead Pencil works in this city, is said, was not fond of the dogs, and several neighbors say he frequently threatened to poison them. When Mrs. Grinnell took her dogs for a walk, they stopped in front of Berliner's house, and she noticed that they were eating pieces of meat which were scattered upon the sidewalk. She called them off and continued her walk with them. When she returned to the house, they died one after the other. The five dogs were valued at $1,400.

SANTOS A PESTHOLE.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—The brig Odorilla, Captain Holland, has arrived here from Santos. Captain Holland is the only survivor of the original crew, eight men having succumbed to the ravages of yellow fever.

The vessel was under charter to carry to Santos a cargo of locomotives. When she arrived in that plague stricken port May 25, 1892, she was docked 362 days before her cargo could be discharged.

Captain Holland's description of the misery and sufferings from yellow fever in Santos is heartrending. Thousands have been stricken with the disease and have died. Business was at a complete standstill, and there were 45 vessels lying in the Santos river without their crews. Anchored near the Odorilla were fully 20 vessels, every one of which had lost her captain. On April 23, when Captain Holland made sail from the pesthole, the fever was on the increase.

Dr. Bartsell's Case.

NEW YORK, July 11.—It is understood in well informed Catholic circles that Archbishop Corrigan's refusal to restore Dr. Bartsell to his old parish at the request of Delegate Satolli, will result in a demand for a reopening of the case at the Roman Propaganda. Dr. Bartsell was tried and condemned on charges springing from the McGlynn troubles.

A Reception by Deaf Mutes.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The deaf mutes of this city and representatives from several other cities gave a silent though hearty reception at St. Ann's church to W. Rocket Harris and Francis Maginn of Belfast, who arrived in this country on Sunday evening en route to the conference of deaf and dumb-ottiseus to be held soon in Chicago.

National Carriage Affairs.

NEW YORK, July 11.—F. C. Young, one of the receivers of the National Carriage company, said that all of the preferred and common stock of the company as well as all notes and claims against the company must be checked off before anything definite could be known in regard to the recent transactions.

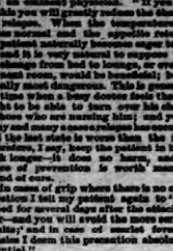
WHEN A CHILD IS CONVALESCING.

It Is the Most Dangerous Time—Things to Be Avoided.

"Keep a child in bed for half a week after every symptom of illness has disappeared," is my motto in all serious illness, said a prominent physician. "If you will do this you will greatly reduce the chances of a relapse. When the temperature becomes normal and the appetite returns, the patient generally is anxious to get up, and it is very natural to suppose that the change from bed to lounge, or even to the next room, would be beneficial; but it is really most dangerous. This is precisely the time when a busy doctor feels that he ought to be able to turn over his charge to those who are nursing him; and yet in many and many a case relapses have occurred and the last state is worse than the first. Therefore, I say, keep the patient in bed a week longer—it does no harm, and an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

"In cases of grip where there is no complication, I find the greatest need to 'keep in bed for several days after the attack is over—and you will avoid the more serious results; and in case of scarlet fever or measles I deem this precaution absolutely essential."

Moorish Design.



A CABINET.

There is something very fascinating about certain pieces of furniture when designed after the Moors. For the purpose of a cabinet it will be seen by the cut that the art of those people lends itself admirably to the purpose.

Chapped Hands.

Wet, cold, and dirt are the chief causes of this unpleasant affection. The use of poor soap, and imperfectly drying the hands before exposure to cold, are the exciting causes of chapped hands in most cases. To cure, keep them scrupulously clean, washing them with castile soap and soft water. After wiping them nearly dry, dust them over with finely powdered starch. Washing the hands with water to which a handful of bran or corn meal has been added, is a good remedy. Another is, after thorough washing and drying at night, to apply a few drops of glycerine diluted with soft water, or what is much better, milk. Sweet cream is also good.

WHITE, of Plainfield,

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

The Ship's Colors.

What flag is your schooner to fly at her peak?
Or, Jack in blue jacket, I pray you, declare
What colors your very brown fingers prepare?

"What flag but the grandest!" my sailor boy said,
"The star spangled ankus, the stripes white and red;
The flower of all ensigns, the pride of the sky—
No flag but 'Old Glory' my beauty shall fly!"

Oh, sailor, my sailor, you've chosen aright!
True pride it forever and ever shall light.
Each stripe has a meaning you yet cannot guess;
Each star is more sacred than words may express.

Over desolate footfalls—cold islands of palm—
It lives through the storm and it sleeps in the calm;
It guides through the wretched on perilous ways,
It decks the glad cities on festival days.

In far-away harbors, where many ships meet,
Where dark foreign faces look strange in the street,
The flag flaps a greeting, and kinsmen who roam
All bless the brave colors that tell them of home.

Wherever it flutters, the pride of the breeze,
A message of freedom it flings o'er the seas,
A hope for the world—and the heart that beats true

—Helen Gray Cone in St. Nicholas.

Maggie at a Church Meeting.

Little Maggie went to a church meeting, and the congregation voted on several questions. On one question they voted by rising to their feet, and on the other questions they voted by holding up their hands. Maggie told about the meeting when she came home, and she said that the man (meaning the chairman) told them that if they wanted Mr. Brown elected they must hold up their right foot.—Exchange.

How Little Boys Learned a Lesson.

It was a very hot day, and the little boy was lying on his stomach under the big linden tree reading the "Scottish Chiefs."

"Little boy," said his mother, "will you please go out in the garden and bring me a head of lettuce?"

"Oh, I—can't!" said the little boy. "I'm—too hot!"

The little boy's father happened to be close by weeding the geranium bed, and when he heard this he lifted the little boy gently by the shoulders and dipped him in the broad tub of water that stood all ready for watering the plants.

"There, ma'am!" said the father. "Now you are cool enough to go and get the lettuce, but remember next time that it will be easier to go at once when you are told, as then you will not have to change your clothes."

The little boy went drip, drip, dripping out into the garden and brought the lettuce. Then he went drip, drip, dripping into the house and changed his clothes, but he never said a word, for he knew there was nothing to say.

That is the way they do things where the little boys live. Would you like to live there? Perhaps not. Yet he is a very happy little boy, and he is learning the truth of the old saying:

"Unto whom you're called, do as you're bid,
What the door after you and you'll never be chid.
—Laura E. Richards in Youth's Companion.

How to Make Big Soap Bubbles.

It is a great sport to make soap bubbles, but it is twice as much fun if the bubbles are big ones, strong enough not to break when they are floated to the floor. Bubbles twice as big as your head, or as big as the biggest kind of a football, can be really blown by any one who knows how to mix up the soap bubble material. To make these big bubbles take a piece of white castile soap about as big as a walnut. Cut it up in a cup of warm water and then add a teaspoonful of glycerin. Stir well and blow from a small pipe. This will make bubbles enough to install all the guests. And this is all you really care to make in one day. To make pink bubbles add a few drops of strawberry juice, and to make yellow ones put in a little orange juice.—New York Ledger.

Smallest Horse in the World.

Smallest of his race and the smallest horse in the world is the distinction claimed for the pony whose picture is given here. Cloud Nimble, for so he is called, is the property of an English gentleman, and he has taken prizes in many shows. He is 9 hands, or 36 inches, high, and 9 years old.

A Young Traveler.

There has just arrived in London an American lad 13 years old who has already traveled 30,000 miles. He has a mania for seeing the world, and if he cannot get employed on a vessel he smuggles himself on board as a stowaway.

LOOK OUT!

Or you might burn your fingers. People need to be careful a bad many months days, especially in the way of Carriages. Quite a lot of them are made to sell, and to wear. Some are made to wear well to sell to others. Some are made to look well all the time. Ours are made of good material. They are guaranteed to wear well and keep their good appearance. Some Carriages are made with the idea of the cheapest profit. We made it, because we couldn't sell many of them. Ours are offered at a small profit, which we think will sell them, as we do an enormous business. Do you see the difference? If you do, you can see me that it is to your interest to trade with me.

EAT BEFORE SLEEPING.

And You Will Have No Trouble With Insomnia.

The value of a light great or other food taken just before retiring is not generally appreciated. People who enjoy a night dessert can quickly learn to sleep well by it, as if they were doing something which was not quite proper from a hygienic point of view. As a matter of fact, however, the energies of the body thus gained have the benefit of the long hours of resting food is necessary. It should not be heavy food, of course, such as will induce indigestion, but a light bite of food of a happy nightmare, but light, wholesome food taken just before retiring. This is a very excellent thing for women of a highly nervous, physique, who are confined to sleeplessness. A bowl of oatmeal gruel, delicately made of half milk, a glass of hot milk or of warm cocoa, eaten just before retiring, is a light broth, will often bring a night of sleep and sweet dreams when nothing else will. A great many people who eat supper at 6 o'clock and then go to bed at 10 should have food at 9 or 9:30 before they retire, and regular diet at 7 o'clock the next day. If you do not do this you will be hungry, and the hunger will often keep you awake. Hunger is a great deal of sleeplessness is said by physicians to be caused by an emptiness over-eating for food, which a light broth at bed-time will satisfy.—N. Y. Tribune.

In Case of Croup.

While waiting for the doctor, in cases of croup, quickly apply a mustard sponge, squeezed out in the hottest water to the child's neck for about twenty minutes and give it a hot bath blanket. If the child is choking, give a teaspoonful of ipecacuanha wine every five minutes, until violent sickness takes place. It is a good thing for the child to breathe over steam. Pour boiling water into a basin or on a hot brick or flatiron, and let him inhale the vapor.

Boiled Puddings.

Boiled puddings require double the time that baked ones do to cook. The pudding cloth should be first well scalded in water and floured well before the batter is put into it, always remembering to allow space for the pudding to swell. No pudding should be allowed to stand out of the oven after it is mixed. Always put it into boiling water and keep it boiling; if more water is needed, add hot water—never cold.

Hints on Bread Making.

When putting the bread in the oven it should be hot enough to hold the hand in and count twenty rather quick. Care must be taken with the fire to keep the heat steady, allowing it to gradually die away towards the last of the baking; and this is the best time to set in your rolls, as a more moderate fire is necessary for them.

Smells Like Strawberries.

Pure olive oil grows rather lighter by boiling, but most other oils, like cottonseed, peanut, etc., grow darker. Then also evolve a disagreeable odor, while olive oil has a pleasant smell, not unlike strawberries.

Ink Stains on Silver.

Remove ink stains from silver-plated ware by rubbing them with a paste composed of chloride of lime and water; then wash and wipe dry.

LOVE LIGHTENS LABOR.

A good wife rose from her bed one morn
And thought, with a nervous dread,
Of the piles of clothes in the washtub and room
That a dozen of months to be fed.

The mouth is not for the men in the field,
The children to fit so early,
To school and the milk to be skimmed and churned,
And all to be done that day.

It had rained in the night, and all the wood
Was wet as it could be.
There were puddings and pies to bake, besides
A loaf of bread to be.

And the day was hot, and her aching head
Throbbed wearily, as she said,
"If maidens but knew of the many cares know
They would be in no haste to wed."

"Jennie, what think you I told Ben Brown?"
Called the farmer from the well,
And a flush swept up to his bronzed brow,
And his eyes half bashfully fell.
"It was this," he said, and coming near
His smiled, and stooping down
Kissed her cheek, "'Twas that you were the best
And fairest woman in town."

The farmer went back to the field, and the wife
In a smiling, absent way
Sang snatches of tender little songs
She'd not sung for many a day.
And the pain in her head was forgot, and the cares
Were white as the foam of the sea;
Her bread was light, and her butter was sweet
And as golden as it could be.

"Just think," the children all called in a breath,
"Tom Wood has run off to sea!
He wouldn't, we know, if he only had
A helper as he ought to be."
The night came down, and the good wife
Smiling
To herself as she softly said,
"'Tis so sweet to labor for those we love,
It's not strange that maids will wed."
—Building Association Record.

Starch at a Flash.

Starch can be made from all farinaceous substances. Take potatoes, cut-of grated new potatoes, wheat-bran, cornmeal, oatmeal or flour. Starch of commerce is, however, so generally accessible that it is scarcely worth while to do more than indicate the things that may upon a pinch serve as substitutes for it.

To use any of these in supplying wheat flour, tie a double handful loosely in a thin bag, then wash and knead vigorously in plenty of cold water. When it looks milky white, take out the bag, let the liquor settle five minutes or until clear water stands on top, then pour it off so as to be rid of floating particles and use the thick remainder as starch.

If wheat flour is used, either make of it a very stiff dough, from which wash out the starch in cold water, or else wet it first with a little water, adding more gradually until it is a thin, smooth batter ready to be made into boiled starch.—Exchange.

Care of the Clothesline.

Clotheslines should be carefully taken down as soon as the clothes are dry. In doing this do not drag them on the ground or pull them over the dusty walks or porches, for they are liable to be damp and will catch any particles of dirt that they come in contact with. This necessitates a thorough cleaning when they must be used again or the risk of making spots on the clothes. Tie the line up in a close hale and put it in a bag kept expressly for the purpose.

Some people leave the lines out from week to week, and as a consequence have to clean them and take the chances of having streaks and soils on the clean clothes, or, worse than this, find them parted in some weak spot and the wash spattered and draggling in the mud. The few minutes' work necessary to take down and put away all lines is time well spent.

Pinks For the Table.

Pinks are always plentiful and never very cheap. They are in such request as to be ever given away. Arranged by themselves they show to best advantage in a low jar; so that the leaves can be seen. But pinks have an almost human quality of demanding that their surroundings shall be in absolute harmony with themselves.

For carnations there is a blood red vase, clear as crystal, which, with a handful of the lovely red flowers, is a poem—a thing so beautiful that you do not know how to describe it. Then there are white porcelain vases for white pinks, and variegated ones for spotted pinks, which are so spicily fragrant. Harmony is actually demanded on the sweet beauty of your bunch of pinks will refuse to reveal itself properly.—Boston Globe.

To Destroy Ants.

A new cure all for ants of all kinds came to my knowledge the other day and was hailed with delight as we have had both the tiny red ants and the large black ones in the house. It is also a remedy for cockroaches and other pests that invade the sanctum of the "chief." Place green walnuts in the pantry, closets, cupboards or any place where the "varmints" roam. Proof it is as soon as I heard of it, and the nuts left post haste. I also placed a handful of the nuts under the red and white peonies, and the ants do not thrive there either. The cure was so simple and effectual that I concluded I could recommend it to the world at large.—St. Louis Republic.

Delicate White Cake.

A very delicate loaf of white cake that many prefer to angel cake is made in the following way: Work a cupful of butter to a cream, and add to it gradually 2 cupfuls of sugar. When light and creamy, add 4 cupful of milk and 2 cupfuls of flour that has been sifted three times. Beat vigorously and add gradually the stiffly beaten whites of 11 eggs and another cupful of sifted flour. Add the eggs and the flour to the batter alternately and stir gently, but thoroughly. Mix in quickly a teaspoonful of baking powder. Put the cake in tins and bake three-quarters of an hour in a moderate oven.

Advice For a Young Woman.

This from an authority, "Don't ask questions, don't mention names, listen occasionally, and you will find yourself a society favorite." The first "don't" seems to have the most correctly placed, as it is nothing which causes a pleasanter impression and which really leads to the most complete confidence than the test which listens sympathetically to the confession will say, but never probes deeper by an impulsive interrogation. One learns to trust such an acquaintance and feels in her company a peaceful sense of security that is very satisfying.

Holding the Hands While Driving.

Whenever I see a woman driving with her hands turned in and directly in front of her, I want to proclaim it from the housetops and advise her to do otherwise. A good horseman keeps his hands well out, where they are ready for any emergency and the horse will soon be brought up at a short turn, which is quite impossible, or at least a clumsy and perilous maneuver when the hands are held close to the body.—Buffalo News.

A Home Cure For Sleeping Sickness.

A family physician was recently appealed to by a neighbor whose corn mother he had attended since her accession to the throne as a household queen for a remedy for sleeping sickness.

"What you advise a bruce for Lily, doctor? She is getting so round shoulder—I something must be done," said the devoted mamma.

"Give her a slap on the back two or three times a day, and she'll soon straighten up," growled the old doctor, who was an extremely gruff man, but a good man, who didn't believe in binding erring shoulders to a board unless there was some serious defect which would be likely to develop into a severe affliction.—Buffalo News.

The Mother of Goethe.

The mother of Goethe is described as a woman of great imaginative and the highest animal spirits. It is the attention of her wonderful son these gifts with that of narrative exercised a large influence. She was married at the age of 17, and a year later Johann Wolfgang was born. The relation between this child mother and the genius son is best described by herself. Late in life she said of it, "I and my Wolfgang have always held fast to each other because we were both young together."

A Hint to Mothers.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

$6 per Year in Advance. E. W. Maxfield, Editor and Proprietor. Office, No. 21 Somerset Street. Printing of All Kinds. 10 Cents per Week, Delivered.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1893. PRICE TWO CENTS.

EX-CHIEF GILLIES DEAD.

THE END CAME AT 12:40 O'CLOCK LAST NIGHT.

He was the First Chief of Police of Plainfield, and was for Many Years an Active Fireman and Helped Organize Engine Company No. 2.

Theodore J. Gillies, for many years a resident of Plainfield, died, at his home on Madison avenue, a few minutes past midnight. He was only confined to his bed about five weeks. Decoration day was the last he was out doors.

Mr. Gillies was the first Chief of Police of Plainfield, and for many years was an active fireman. He was one of the original fifteen members of Gazelle Engine Co. organize No. 2's company, and it was chiefly through his efforts that the first 2-in steamer was procured. He was one of the old Fire Commissioners for several years. No. 2's company was organized in Mr. Guillermo Thorn's photograph gallery. Mr. Thorn and Mr. Gillies being the principal men for the project.

Being an old and enthusiastic fireman he was chosen as the first vice-president of the Firemen's Association. He was offered the presidency, but declined in favor of a younger man. He was elected to the vice presidency every year thereafter, and held it at the time of his death.

Theodore Jackson Gillies was born in Philadelphia, on March 22, 1815. He remained there until about thirty-five years ago, when he moved to Brooklyn and engaged in the iron furniture business. From there he came to New Jersey and has lived here ever since, living in Plainfield for about 25 years. He was married twice, the first time to Miss Eliza Wilson, and the second time to Miss Mary Buchanan, who survives him. He was the father of fourteen children, nine by his first wife and five by the second. Three of the latter are living in Plainfield. One is Mrs. Keller, the others, Mabel and Theodore J. Gillies, Jr., live home.

Two sisters survive him, Miss Emily Gillies and Mrs. Charles Glatheery, both of Philadelphia.

His funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of which deceased was a member.

BREVITIES.

—New planks have been placed on the Grove street bridge.

—Peter Sauder was given the letter carriers' degree to-day.

—On Wednesday, July 21, the Baptists will go on their excursion to the seashore.

—Messrs Neumann Bros. advertise a choice selection of Formosa Oolong which they recommend especially for iced tea.

—The Board of Trade will hold a meeting to-morrow night. Those desiring to become members are invited by the Board to attend.

—U. B. Crane, 120 West Front street, says he has just received ten dozen of those wide brim straw hats that are being worn so much this Summer.

—The annual field day of the Knights of Pythias will be held at Freehold on labor day. It is expected that about 5,000 Knights will participate.

—There is scarlet fever at Westfield. A daughter of C. F. W. Wittke died Sunday, and was buried yesterday. The house is quarantined. A neighbor's child is also down with the disease.

—Rev. T. Mayhanu, a Methodist minister of Rahway, forcibly ejected a boy named Thomas Fagan from church last Sunday for entering with muddy shoes. The boy's father threatens to bring suit.

—Owing to the fact that not a single case of pleuro pneumonia has been found in New Jersey in over a year, the authorities at Washington, it is understood, have decided to abolish the Bureau of Animal Industries in this State.

—A flurry of excitement was caused about five o'clock last evening when a pony galloped wildly from Pearl street into Somerset street followed by a large horse. The animals frisky played tag with each other until they reached Emily street where they were "cornered" and taken back to the stables on Pearl street from whence they had escaped.

—The Hope and Bethel chapel Sunday-day schools will go on their annual excursion to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove next Friday. There will be two sections of two cars each, one starting from Grant avenue at 7.30, and the other from the North avenue station at eight a. m. and returning leave the seashore at 5.30 p. m., stopping at Long Branch both ways.

—One fireman was overheard to-day making a wager with another that by noon Saturday he would have secured enough ballots, through his own and his friends help to keep at the head of the News list for a couple of days anyhow. That's right, my friend, you have THE NEWS' best wishes in the race. Such another chance for a free week at the great and only World's Fair may never be offered.

—Mr. Jules Bovey, a clever and conscientious Frenchman, has to-day opened a small, but thoroughly first-class, fish market, at 89 Somerset street. He says that above else his stock of fish, soft shell crabs, lobsters and other table delicacies, may be depended upon as fresh and the choicest that can be procured. Housekeepers of this vicinity will undoubtedly be glad to encourage Mr. Bovey with their patronage. His advertisement appears in another column.

GASOLINE STOVE EXPLODES.

An Alarm of Fire Sot to From Box 43.

FIREMEN were called out this morning by an alarm from box 43, corner of Madison and South Second street. A gasoline stove exploded at the corner of Grant avenue and South Second street on the second floor of a house occupied by P. Zimmer. Mrs. Zimmer was in the front room at the time, and Mr. Zimmer just entered to the kitchen as the stove exploded. A bottle was on the stove half full of water at the time and two burners were burning. It shook the whole building, startling the tenants, who ran out into the street.

The wainscoating caught fire but was put out by a pail of water. Mr. Zimmer turned the bottle over the gasoline tank and smothered the flames. The wall on one side of the room was scorched.

The burning oil ran into the next room and burned the carpet. A hole three feet square was blown in the wall behind the stove.

Mr. Fretthook, who is in charge of the store underneath, just left the room when he heard a loud noise. Thinking it was the wind that had forced the window open, he started back and when in the door there was another loud report and about six by eight feet of the plaster was knocked down, tearing the lathes away at the same time. Two large window frames were also broken.

The house is occupied by Mr. Farsburg and Mr. Zimmer on the second floor, and the collision took place, and Mr. O. Neal and Mr. Bahl, who live on ton floor.

The bursting of plaster was in each case followed by closing doors.

Gazelle Engine Co. came very near having an accident as they were turning the corner from South Second street into Grant avenue, one of the front wheels was discovered coming off. The engine was stopped just in time to prevent an accident. Upon examination it was found that the nut had come off tearing the thread.

It was just 3 minutes after the alarm when Alert hose wagon reached the box at the corner of South Second street and Muhlenberg place, No. 45. Gazelle engine arrived thirty seconds later.

PERSONAL.

Mr. D. A. Hines of Grant avenue is visiting in Newark.

Mrs. V. M. Talmadge of Ninth street has gone away for the Summer.

Mr. T. Cardiner of Orange street started to-day for Massachusetts.

Mrs. Frank Hedden of East Fifth street has gone to the World's Fair.

Mr. Jennings of Rockview avenue has gone to Chicago to the World's Fair.

Messrs. John Schorb of Grove street and Emil Berckman of Stelner place started to-day for Europe.

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson of La Grande avenue, accompanied by her son Roland, left to-day for Noye's Beach, R. I.

The Misses Carrie and Minnie Molin of Newark were guests yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dixon of Grant avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Welch of Cottage place are home again after a visit with Mr Welch's brother at Newburgh, New York.

Miss Fawcett of Grove street will be enjoying the sea breezes after this week at Ocean Grove. She will be a guest at Asbury Cottage.

William H. Kennedy, who was famous as the tallest of Bayonne's 25,000 inhabitants, died yesterday afternoon. He was 6 feet 5 inches.

Mr. and Mrs. Casserlier of White Plains, N. Y., have returned home after a pleasant visit with Mr and Mrs. E. A. Vermeule of Duer street, North Plainfield.

Saturday, Mrs. H. H. Connett of Watchung avenue and the Misses Minnie and Elsie Smith of West Front street, will go to Kingston, N. Y., to visit Mrs. Connett's sister, Mrs. Samuel Chappel.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Bartlett of West Front street wishes to state through THE NEWS that she made a hundred and thirty-six pounds of the words "Celery King." She feels quite proud of her achievement and wonders if anyone can surpass it.

Members of the New Jersey State Dental Society are making active preparations for the seventy-fourth annual session of that organization, which will convene at the West End Hotel, Asbury Park, on Wednesday, July 19, and continue for three days.

Mr. Charles Weeams of Vine street is at present in South Carolina superintending the construction of a huge iron bridge for the Pelouoy Bridge and Iron Company. Mr. William Weeams, the father of the former, is manager of the company. He will have charge of the erection soon in New York of the largest building in the world.

Articles of incorporation were filed with the clerk of Union county, Monday, by the Plainfield Commuters Club. The following are the officers: President, Lewis E. Howard; treasurer, J. W. Johnson; secretary, George E. Brand. At the close of the World's Fair this club will ride in the magnificent car built especially for them and now on exhibition at the Exposition.

A TIE TO-DAY.

EX-CHIEF SALTZMAN AND MR. R. B. ROGERS HEAD THE LIST.

Great Interest Shown in "The News" World's Fair Trip. — Many Odd Questions Asked That May be Answered Later.

MEN Saltzman and Rogers are even in the ballot at noon to-day for the Popular Plainsman's World's Fair trip offered by The Evening News, and Mr. R. J. Martin is a close third.

One fireman, whose name may soon top the list, said this after reading last evening's News he began to realize what a great opportunity was being offered someone, and he was going to hustle around among his friends and be that someone, if possible.

The fireman who has received the highest number of votes on August 20, at an hour yet to be fixed, will be entitled to the following privileges, as the winner of The Evening News' World's Fair prize:

First—A first-class railroad ticket to New York to Chicago and return on any railroad desired.

Second—Good accommodations, room and board (not more than two in a room) in a transit or family hotel, select hostelry or fine private house in the city of Chicago for six consecutive days, during the Fair.

Third—Transportation for baggage from depot to house assigned.

Fourth—Admission to the Exposition on the Columbian Exposition.

Fifth—Admission to "Spectatorium," the Celebration of the Great Discovery, the Dramatic Triumph of the Epoch, Orchestra, 120 pieces. Chorus, 600 voices. Stirring round trip pleasure excursion on Lake Michigan. A visit to Lincoln Park (the finest in America), to the Lincoln and Grant Monuments, Conservatory and Zoological Gardens.

Eighth—Admission to "Moorish Palace," containing over 100 Scenes, a Fairy Garden, the original Edition of the Persian Revolution and many Oriental curiosities.

Ninth—Admission to the famous Arctic whaling ship "Progress," built in 1891, fully equipped, containing the finest collection of marine curiosities ever exhibited.

The privileges are obtained and the trip is arranged under the auspices of the World's Columbian Tourist Company, a reputable and solid corporation composed of prominent New York business, railroad officials and business men, whose advertisement will be found in another column. We have every guarantee that all the advantages named above will be carried out to the letter.

From time to time more interesting particulars of what the trip means for the winner will be published. Be sure and get THE NEWS every day.

So far it is anybody's victory.

Record one vote for Fireman

Be a Policeman if you Want a House.

To become the possessor of a house it is apparent that it is only necessary to join the police force and become one of the "finest." Policeman Lynch started the ball rolling by buying a house on West Second street. Then next to become the owner of real estate was Policeman Flannigan, who bought a place on Fifth street. Now Policeman Corn has taken unto himself a home. He recently purchased from the Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company lot 18, on East Second street. But Policeman Corn has a "boost" on the others and has purchased a handsome yielding of a fine breed of poultry.

MAD DOG SCARE AT NILBURN.

The residents of Millburn and Short Hills have for several days been excited from a plague of mad dogs. A few days ago a rabid greyhound ran amuck through the streets and yards and killed 41 chickens, and bit several valuable dogs. A bulldog owned by James B. Pitcher, a New York humorous writer, who has a residence at Short Hills, became mad and ran about the streets, snapping and biting at every dog across its path. The rabid animal was chased by a crowd of men and boys and was finally killed by Frank Barting. Monday a valuable hound was bitten by a mongrel and the greyhound soon became mad. While running along Main street, Millburn, the greyhound attacked an Italian woman, and tore her dress into shreds. The woman was carrying on a washing and she fled to the road to defend herself. She screamed and was nearly exhausted when Lincoln Ellis went to her assistance and being armed with a shotgun killed the greyhound before he had injured the woman.

The dog catchers and the Millburn and Short Hills Committee have been asked to issued a proclamation ordering all unmuzzled dogs running at large to be killed. The Township Committee, it is thought, will take some action in the matter on Friday night.

Somerville's County Fair Refused a License.

The Somerset County Agricultural Society made application to the Bridgewater Township Committee for a license to trot horses under the laws passed last Winter. J. Vredenburg Voorhees, and Rev. J. P. Searle, pastor of the First Reformed Church, opposed the application on behalf of the Citizens' League. They thought it best to hold the fair without a license, as they would hold good for five years, and the present board, however good its intentions, might not be in control. They did not oppose the fair, but believed if a license were granted the bookmakers would enter the grounds and operate. C. S. Hoffman, one of the largest stockholders in the association, denied any intention of allowing gambling on the grounds. The fair was in debt and with good weather this year he thought they could lift their obligations. They would hold no fair unless they had a license, for they feared indictment. The committee refused the license by a unanimous vote. To-morrow an application will be made to the Board of Freeholders.

Base Ball Notes.

On Wednesday of next week the Crescents of Plainfield will cross bats with the Brunswicks.—Home News.

The Cherry Diamonds will be unable to come to Plainfield Saturday, so Manager Keller has secured the Westfields.

The Westfields gave the Crescents a good game when they were here before, and only for the errors of their first baseman they might have won. Manager McLaughlin has strengthened his team for Saturday's game by the addition of Relyea, of the Staten Islands, who plays first base, also Mullen, a hard hitter.

The Crescents play at Middletown, tomorrow. Welch will pitch, Murphy will play left field and Martin will cover third base. McIndoe is still disabled.

THE UNIONS WON.

Close Shooting at the New Jersey League Team Championship.

The grounds of the South Side Gun Club in Kenark were visited by a large number of sporting men yesterday, the attraction being the sixth monthly team shoot in the series for the championship of the New Jersey Trap Shooters' League.

The team contest attracted seven teams, these being the Passaic City Rod and Gun Club of Passaic, Union Gun Club of Springfield, Boiling Springs Fish and Gun Club of Rutherford, South Side Gun Club of Newark, Maplewood Gun Club of Maplewood, Endeavor Gun Club of Paterson City and the Myrtle Park Gun Club of Irvington. Each team was comprised of five men and each man shot at twenty-five blaserock targets, this making the possible score 125 per team. The victory after a hard struggle finally perched on the banner of the Unions, with the South Side and Maplewoods each one break behind. The score follow:

HOLDS PIDCOCK'S PAPER.

He Owes the Somerset County Bank $84,000.

Calvin Corle, who was president of the Somerset County Bank, which recently failed, made a statement yesterday concerning the finances of the bank. He said:

"The deposits last Friday night, when the bank closed, amounted to $160,000; cash on hand $15,000; surplus over money not paid, $10,500; borrowed money by bank, $62,000. Notes amounting to $10,000 were sent to New York. The bank had $15,000 on deposit with a correspondent of New York city. The bank holds Pidcock's paper to the amount of $84,000. Five thousand dollars was paid on this account one week ago. The whole amount of the Director's paper held by the bank amounts to $114,000.

The Somerset County Bank was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey, March 2, 1865. One of the articles of the charter reads as follows: "That no loans or discounts shall ever be made by the said bank on the stock, note, or notes of any stockholder or director, nor on any note or notes that may be drawn by one Director and indorsed by any other Director."

Lawyer William V. Johnson of Trenton was to-day appointed, by the Supreme Court, receiver for the Somerset County Bank.

Wheelmen's Damage Suits.

The first bicycle suits ever begun in the Supreme Court of New Jersey have been instituted by Herbert W. Knight on behalf of bicyclists to recover damages for injuri s received while on the road.

The suits will bring before the court the question whether bicyclists have rights on public highways.

One wheelman was seriously injured by riding over some unplaced planks which were not guarded with a light. Another was the property owner for $2000. Another wheelman was run down by two men in a wagon. He also sues for $2000.

AMONG THE WHEELMEN.

The 25 Mile Road Race Over the Fan-Wood-Scotch Plains Course.

WHEN Captain Kiely of the Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers, takes hold of anything in the bicycling line he usually makes a success of it. Bicycle races in this city were talked of, but it remained for Mr. Kiely to bring about a 25-mile road race over the Fanwood Scotch Plains course. It is not definitely settled yet as to whether the races shall be open to the State or entries restricted to Union, Middlesex and Somerset counties. The latter will probably greet with the most favor. The Lyceum Cyclers will hold a meeting Thursday night to complete arrangements.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A World's Fair Corn Kitchen.

The presence of that inestimable citizen, Colonel C. J. Murphy, at the World's fair suggests that one of the features of the exposition should be a universal corn kitchen, for showing to foreign visitors what delicacies can be made of corn and cornmeal. Colonel Murphy, so to speak, discovered corn bread for many of the inhabitants of Europe. The chief value of the meal there consists in its cheapness and readiness with which it will mix with whatever the natives are accustomed to make the common bread of the country from. The Iowa state commissioners have publicly thanked Colonel Murphy for his efforts and gently hinted to the United States government that he should still be consulted in the foreign service.

But certainly we shall be neglectful in the matter of extending further a market for our greatest crop unless a great and handsome establishment is erected on the fair ground where every foreigner that enters may sample our maize food products. The ladies of Illinois have been more patriotic than the men of the whole country in this respect. They have fitted up among their state exhibits a corn cooking school, which is admirable as far as it goes and very attractive. But it does not go far enough. What we want is for the men of the corn states to co-operate with them and enlarge their kitchen to many times its present dimensions and add to its exhibits in a way that will attract every foreign visitor and tickle his palate.

American Stained Glass.

The United States undoubtedly stands at the head of nations in the production of colored glass decoration. This is largely owing to the effort and enthusiasm of Mr. Louis C. Tiffany of New York. He was one of the earliest to arouse interest in this beautiful art. The aim sought by him and his associates in the start was "color and color only." The American school of stained glass workers proceeded on the plan of the ancient Byzantine artists. They followed the mosaic style, "the arrangement in juxtaposition of small, gemlike bits of glass having all the brilliancy of precious stones." European stained glass artists, however, followed the methods of those who wrought the European stained glass windows in the fourteenth century and made their effects with painted glass.

Another achievement attained by the Americans is the beautiful effects produced by the use of opalescent glass. Mr. Tiffany says this has been used by the American artists in such a way as to almost revolutionize the art.

For all that, however, the stained glass industry is as yet only in its infancy in America. In the opinion of Mr. Tiffany it offers one of the richest and noblest fields to American artists of both sexes.

It is said that in spite of the verdict of the jury and a trial in which the prosecution in vain moved heaven and earth to hang her there are many in Fall River who still believe Miss Borden guilty. The malignity which has pursued the unfortunate girl from the first in quarters near her home is utterly inexplicable. It looks almost as if the frightful old belief in witchcraft was not yet extinct in Massachusetts and that some demoniac influence was in the air working its diabolism against Lizzie Borden.

The latest improvement in roof architecture contradicts all the old notions on the subject. Instead of making a roof high in the center, with a slope to the sides, the new way makes it high at the sides, with a slope to the center. Thus rain and snow flow to the middle of the roof instead of to the sides. They thence are carried off by pipes that run down through the building itself. By this means gutter pipes never freeze, and snow and rain never fall from leaking spouts down the backs of passersby.

Silver was first used for money long ago. Abraham was rich in "cattle, silver and gold." In those days—about 1918 B. C.—it will be noted that silver was placed before gold. Now the yellow metal is placed first.

Gold, gold, gold!
Bright and yellow and cold,
Molten, graven, hammered and rolled,
Heavy to get and light to hold.

And now somebody with a genius for scientific investigation thinks he has discovered that cholera is essentially a poisoning with nitric acid, and that the nitric acid is generated in the blood by Koch's bacillus. What next?

Brooklyn is the fourth American city to reach the million mark. An estimate based on the new city directory places her population at that number.

In former times the value of silver was superior to that of gold. As late as the seventeenth century silver and gold were of equal value in Japan.

Learn to do without the things you cannot possibly have, and don't fret. But you really can get most things you want if you hustle and wait.

There is one office that no American patriot seems to want. The Hawaiian mission has been going around just begging somebody to take it.

DIGGING FOR THE DEAD.

The Full List of the Killed May Never Be Known.

OTHERS THAN FIREMEN PERISHED.

The Columbian Guards Turned Up All Right—Employees in the Building Unaccounted For—The Relief Fund Swells to Over $6,000.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The break of day still found the ruins of the cold storage building unexplored, and it is just beginning to be realized that the full extent of the disaster cannot be ascertained until the mountain of rubbish is sifted and carted away. At some points the accumulation of debris is 15 to 20 feet high, and it is impossible to know how many charred bodies may rest beneath until these heaps have been thoroughly searched. The search is necessarily slow and tedious, owing to the vast amount of iron and machinery that surrounders the ruins and the inextricable network of rods and bars formed by the intense heat.

In all, 18 bodies have been removed from the ruins. Besides these, three firemen died at the hospital. The point near the smokestack, where many of the unfortunate men were seen to jump, is covered with a tangled mass of steel rods and charred timbers, fully 25 feet high. It is now definitely known that a number of workmen employed in the building assisted the fatal power with the firemen, and how many of them were lost no one knows. The last seen of R. A. Drummond he was with three or four other workmen on his way up the tower with fire extinguishers. Before they could get much time to reach the top of the ladders that scaled the interior walls the whole mass toppled over.

The manager of the military tournament now being held in the Black pavilion have informed the director general that they will give a benefit performance for the families of the firemen and Columbian guards who lost their lives in the fire yesterday.

Certain employees having obtained permission from the council of administration, have set apart Thursday, July 13, as a day that all employees and passholders entering the gates of the exposition shall, at their option, drop the usual admission fee of 50 cents in a box at the gate. This contribution is not compulsory, but a donation by sympathetic fair dealers who have been left in want by the conflagration.

Charles T. Yerkes, the street car magnate of this city, has written to Director General Davis, suggesting that the exposition company donate a certain day's receipts to the families of the victims of the fire. If the company will do this, Mr. Yerkes says he will pay $1,000 for an admission ticket on the day the exposition people agree to set apart. He believes other Chicagoans will follow his example.

Resolutions of Regret.

In regard to the disaster the following resolution was adopted by the World's fair council of administration:

Whereas, In the appalling disaster resulting from the burning of the cold storage warehouse, wherein many brave men sacrificed their lives in the performance of their duty, and whereby wives have been made widows and children orphans, it is eminently fitting that the council should express, on its part and on that of the great service committed by the calamity and of its heartfelt sympathy with all sufferers therefrom.

Resolved, That this council expresses its sincere sorrow at the death of the brave men who, with the utmost hazard, so manfully and courageously with the devouring flames, and to whose efforts is due the fact that what the conflagration was not larger and the destruction greater.

Resolved, That we tender to all sufferers, and particularly to those who are now in the dark shadow of bereavement and grief, our sincerest sympathy and condolence, and desire to attest our admiration for and appreciation of the marked manifestations of heroism and personal devotion to duty which were displayed by Fire Marshal Murphy and his associates as well as by the members of the Columbian guard and others in their several lines of effort, whose names are not yet known.

The unknown dead will probably never be known, but efforts are being made today by the aid of powerful machinery to lift the network of freezing pipes, allowing the firemen to delve still deeper for the remains which, if it is conceded by all, are certainly wedged below. Probably by night the anxiously awaited truth will have been reached.

Military Guards Turn Up.

The four Columbian guards who were reported in the list of missing have been heard from. John Malloy and H. V. Brown put in an appearance, while G. H. Irvine and Charles Techter reported to Captain Smith. They were ordered Monday to report to a different captain, but in some manner the order miscarried, and as the guards did not report at the company headquarters to which they had been ordered it was of course concluded that the men had gone down to death in the big feeder box.

One thing seems quite evident, however, and that is that the bodies found are not the remains of the firemen. The locality in which they were found seems to preclude this possibility. All the firemen who lost their lives were killed in the dreadful firetrap at the top of the shaft, and as they fell victims, one by one, to the flames their bodies fell across where within the circle surrounding the smokestack.

Those recovered were evidently not the remains of any who jumped or fell from the tower, they were found in a mass somewhat remote distances from this point and under a mass of steam pipe and machinery that must have fallen from above. Those who fell to their death in the dreadful firetrap at the top of the shaft, and as they fell victims, one by one, to the flames their bodies fell across where within the circle surrounding the smokestack.

The Relief Fund Growing.

Subscriptions and offers of substantial help came steadily to President Higinbotham, who sat at his desk in his shirt sleeves saying little about the calamity, but working hard. He acted as trustee of the relief fund.

The total amount of the subscription fund amounts to over $6,000, but it will not stop there by any means. The spirit of aid for the sufferers is abroad in the city, and everybody is anxious to contribute his or her money. The Cliff Dwellers company will give a performance for the benefit of the sufferers. A substantial sum will no doubt be realized from a special benefit performance of the military tournament at Kenna tomorrow in the Stock pavilion.

Bella Smith at Devil's Lake.

ROUSED THE IRISH.

The Home Rule Discussion Waxed Hot for a Time.

LONDON, July 12.—The house of commons went into committee of the whole discussion of clause 9 of the home rule bill. The clause concerns the question of Irish representation at Westminster. An animated debate had arisen when Wm. Sam Brodrick, Conservative, for the Guildford division of Surrey, remarked that the Irish were both impertinent and ungrateful in their opposition to the bill for reducing their representation in the house to a minimum. Thomas Sexton, anti-Parnellite for North Kerry, interrupted the speaker to say that such language was grossly impertinent and ought not to be tolerated in the house. The chairman shouted "Withdraw!" and the Irish cheered. Lord Randolph Churchill interposed that Mr. Sexton withdraw his words, as Mr. Brodrick's were not intended for him personally.

The chairman told Mr. Sexton that he was out of order and must withdraw his expressions concerning Mr. Brodrick's speech. Mr. Sexton expressed his willingness to obey the chairman in every way. Mr. Brodrick would first express regret for his language.

Timothy Healy, anti-Parnellite for North Louth, said he regarded Mr. Sexton's attitude as quite justifiable. To call the Irish members names and gesticulate was to invite a reply. Irish speech was looked at by the countrymen. The Irish cheered, the Unionists shouted their protests and for two or three minutes the house was in an uproar. The chairman finally called the house to order, Mr. Brodrick would first express regret for his language.

"I am willing to do anything consistent with my duty to please the gentleman," Mr. Brodrick said, "and although the gravity of the insult offered to my countrymen, I have decided not to make any apology. I commit myself to the judgment of the committee."

Loud Irish cheers greeted this statement. The chairman hesitated and finally ordered Mr. Sexton to withdraw. Mr. Sexton shouted back hotly:

"Such a course is unprecedented. Why am I not named and my conduct submitted to the committee?"

Irish cheers, Unionist shouts and cries of "Divide!" followed this challenge. The chairman pulled himself together and with more show of spirit than he had made before, repeated his order that Mr. Sexton withdraw. Mr. Sexton again refused to do so. The Irish acted. Mr.'s withdrawn."

Mr. Gladstone appealed to Mr. Sexton to obey the chairman. Mr. Sexton replied with evident reluctance that he would leave his decision with the prime minister. Cheers and counter cheers were given when he made this statement. As he retired the Irish jumped to the benches, waved their hats and cheered furiously. After Mr. Sexton had gone, Mr. Brodrick withdrew his statement that the Irish were garrulous and impecunious, and order was restored.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The following were appointed fourth class postmasters:

New York—N. S. Gidley, Burtonsville; C. G. Lewis, Cortlandt; A. D. Wheeler, Greenville; R. N. Cooley, Hannibal Center; C. D. Avery, Hastings; John Brockbatner, Little Falls; D. Delaphone, North Hampton; G. B. Sherman, Oneida Castle; J. W. Phillips, West Monroe.

New Jersey—H. J. Mizel, Milton.

Pennsylvania—J. A. Baird, Adamsville; M. D. Wade, Chanceford's Valley; J. H. Brinton, Coatesville; D. Swigart, Dallastown; J. Quigley, Kelly station; S. W. Maloney, Milne Valley; S. P. Heberling, Orwin; M. G. Fleshwaite, West Middlesex; C. C. Shaffer, Wilmington.

Consul Berry Is Missing.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The state department officials are puzzling over the report brought by the captain of the brig Odorilla from Rio, Brazil, of the fearful episode of yellow fever there. Since Mr. Berry's nothing has been heard from Consul Berry, either by the department or by his family, and it has been taking rather serious. The fact that the Odorilla was obliged to sail without consular certificates is taken as an indication that the consul had died before the vessel left. A successor to his place was named June 28 last, but he has not yet gone to his post.

Two Women Burned to Death.

BEATRICE, Neb., July 12.—Mrs. C. H. Vanarsdalen, wife of a well known dry goods merchant, and a domestic, Mary Engelsell, were engaged in cleaning bedsteads with gasoline when the can containing the fluid exploded. Both women were instantly enveloped in flames and were burned so terribly that neither of them were recognizable.

Ardent Love and Industrious Forger.

PORT HURON, Mich., July 12.—Leon S. Smith of Grand Rapids was arrested here for passing nearly $4,000 worth of forged Brown's bonds on a well known family. He left $5,500 in money on his person and paper enough to make $800,000. His capture is due to the fact that he turned too long here bidding his sweetheart goodby.

Pleasure's Morbid Pursuit.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 12.—The simple funeral rites were performed over the remains of the late Associate Justice Samuel Blatchford of the United States supreme court at All Saints' church. The remains were taken to New York, and burial took place at Green wood cemetery.

British Captains Not to Be Tried.

LONDON, July 12.—The Globe says it is authorized to deny the published statement to the effect that all the captains of the vessels that took part in the recent maneuvers of the British Mediterranean squadron off Tripoli, Syria, were to be tried by court martial.

Tinsley Thieves Captured.

PADUCAH, Ky., July 12.—Four officers from this city went up the river and arrested the two notorious river thieves named Tinsley. These men have been terrorizing the river for a long time and have openly defied the law.

SILVER OR BLOODSHED.

Colorado's Populist Governor Harangues a Convention.

WILD TALK OF A REVOLUTION.

Wolfe's Sentiments Were Indorsed by Men Who Shouted Themselves Hoarse—A Free Silver Mass Convention Denounces Trusts of Wall and Lombard.

DENVER, July 12.—The Colorado silver convention was both big and sensational. Coliseum hall, the largest in the city, contained fully 2,500 people when the convention was called to order by Populist Chairman Field. Most of the day was spent in speech-making. The committee on resolutions did not complete its work, and an adjournment was taken until today.

The sensational feature of the day was Governor Davis H. Waite's address, which said in part:

Among other things, he said:

If the money power shall attempt to override the will of the people, they will find a spirit that does burn when it is fanned more so, for it is better, infinitely, that blood should flow in the streets than that our liberties should be stricken by destroyed. If it is true that the United States is unable to carry out its guarantee of a republican form of government for foreign powers, if we are a province of foreign monarchies, then we need another revolution; another declaration of independence. Populist leaders have appealed to the people for peaceful remedies, but if these remedies are denied us, we will send to Holland a far greater army of "Dutch treats," according to our peaceful ideas, than Napoleon sent there after the Revolutionary war.

In conclusion he said:

The battle has begun. It is the same unrelenting struggle that always has existed between the money power and the people. Popular rights have been trampled in the dust by money power. Liberty has been bought and sold in the open market. Republics have been overthrown by money power. Thrones have been established by money power. Crowns have been given to the highest bidder by money power. Judas Iscariot betrayed his master for money. Money power has been the curse of the ages. Money power has been the curse of the ages. Money power has been the curse of the ages.

A number of men believed the governor's sentiments, while others opposed them. J. Cook, Jr., led the opposition. He said:

We are liable to do things we may regret. I appeal to you as men not to do today and you will regret tomorrow. We are united. We should know what we are doing. Let us be reasonable and not be hypothetical. We are being met as men to advocate men in the east. If it is full, there is the time. There is time enough to talk as you feel now.

Ex-Congressman Belford finally secured the floor and said:

The eyes of the world is watching Colorado at this moment. We must be dignified and earnest. No passion should prevail. Remember the responsibility resting upon those in God. I beg of you to adjourn.

This seemed to bring the angry crowd to their senses, and the report was taken. On reassembling, it could be readily seen that the spirit which controlled the delegates at the morning session was not under control, but only awaiting an opportunity to break out again. After order had in a manner been restored the committee appointed in the morning made their report, except the resolution committee, which will report at today's session.

Hon. Charles St. Thomas, Democrat, national committeeman from Colorado, was made permanent chairman. His made a short speech, and at the conclusion of his remarks some delegates called for Governor White. The echo of this one voice was taken up in a mighty roar by 1,000 lungs, which was carried to the galleries, where as many more joined in the demonstration. As the old gray haired governor started down the aisle to the platform the scene presented was beyond the pen's description.

Men whose future depended upon the cause for which they were fighting stood in their seats and yelled until exhausted. This sentiments were indorsed with more cheering.

The Denver cleaning house sent a check for $1,000 to pay the expenses of suitable men to attend the Lincoln, Chicago and Washington, accompanied by the following communication signed by every banker and smelter in the city:

We wish to add our voice to your sentiments because our welfare depends greatly on the prosperity of the trans-Mississippi states. We favor the use of silver as money, that it be freely coined with gold at the present ratio of 16 to 1, without discrimination in favor of or against either metal.

At the Broadway theater Rev. Myron Reed and President Andrews spoke to a crowded house on the silver question. A large number of resolutions were presented to the convention, but they were all referred to a committee without reading, and an attempt will be made this forenoon to get a document which will have weight in the east.

A Split Over Briggsism.

LOUISVILLE, July 12.—The expulsion of Dr. Briggs from the general assembly has caused strained relations to exist between Dr. Breckinridge and Dr. Young, two of the Presbyterian church in Kentucky. Dr. Hamilton has tendered his resignation as trustee of Center college, not caring to be associated with Dr. Young, after the violent attack he made on Professor Briggs at the meeting of the general assembly.

Washed Lynching Party Fell.

FULLERTON, Neb., July 12.—About 20 masked men went to Guy's hotel, where Andrew Jones, the Polish woman murderer, was being kept under guard pending the preliminary hearing and broke down the door and shot a deputy. The guard made a strong resistance, and the balance of the mob, seeing that had work had been done, withdrew.

Fled From Scolding to Death.

PATERSON, N. J., July 12.—Linda Blake, aged 15 years, died at the county insane hospital. A letter written by Linda was found in her room in the parsonage of the Fourth Baptist church, in which she stated that she was a "good girl, but never did have suffer the unutterable scolding from her mother for keeping company with young men she preferred death.

A Scene In the Cortes.

MADRID, July 12.—An exciting scene was caused in the Cortes by Senor Villaverde, recently Premier Sagasta's secretary. Villaverde violently attacked Senor Maura, minister of colonies, and denounced the home rule reforms, and declared in the government's colonial policy.

POISON IN WHISKY.

The Fellow Gave It to the Baby and Then Drank Himself.

STANHOPE, N. J., July 12.—The Methodist church here was filled at the funeral of John Wolverton and his infant child, whose death, it is alleged, was caused by the father's assistance. Wolverton was under 30, a laborer, and lived in the village. On July 4 he drank too freely and quarreled with his wife. Thursday he got drunker and also appeared before Justice Campbell and swore out a warrant for his arrest.

The hearing was set for Saturday. Wolverton, and Saturday morning he secured a quantity of whisky and fed it to his baby. He put paris green in a tin dipper, poured whisky on it, stirred it thoroughly with his finger, coolly placed the dipper to his lips and swallowed the contents. He was in agony several hours and died at 5 o'clock. Justice Campbell held an inquest, and a verdict of suicide was rendered. Mrs. Wolverton testified that she took the paris green away from her husband once and put it on the mantel piece. The jury asked why she did not take it away from him again. She replied: "Oh, well, if he wanted to kill himself I made up my mind to let him do it."

The whisky given the baby was sufficient to stupefy it. Toward night it was seized with convulsions, and Sunday it died.

Miller's Accomplice Caught.

MILAN, Tenn., July 12.—A colored man was arrested here who is found to have been an accomplice of Miller, who was lynched at Bardwell, Ky., last Friday. The man was not only a partner in the crime, but is the one that actually committed the murder of the Ray sisters. The sheriff of Bardwell, Ky., has been notified, and if he proves to be the man it is claimed another lynching is in prospect. When arrested, the man fought desperately, but when finally overpowered admitted that he murdered the girls, and that Miller knew it and refused to divulge it.

This Lynching Postponed.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., July 12.—A number of determined men arrived here from Cando, N. D., and proceeded at once to the county jail. They were followed by at least 1,500 people, who began clamoring for Sam Burgess, the murderer of six members of the Kreider family near Cando. The sheriff, however, made a strong show of force, and the mob slowly withdrew.

Fall River Talks of Shutdowns.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 12.—The cloth market at this place is in an unusual condition. As the stagnation in the market continues, millmen are beginning to talk about the prospect of a shutdown. There are practically no sales or demand for spots, as deliveries are kept down. The scarcity of money seems to be the cause of the depression.

Brazil Entered Up by War.

LONDON, July 12.—A dispatch received from Rio Janeiro says: "The cruiser Republica sailed from this port for Rio Grande do Sul. The telegraphic service between the disturbed district and other parts of the country has been suspended. The situation in this city is critical. All the troops are kept under arms."

Corbett and Davies Sign Articles.

CHICAGO, July 12.—James Corbett and Parson Davies, the latter acting for Peter Jackson, signed articles for a fight between Corbett and Jackson, to come off in June, 1894. The fight is to be for the largest purse obtainable and a side bet of $10,000, the winner to take everything.

Fireworks Must Take Heed.

NEW YORK, July 12.—By the explosion of some fireworks in one of the buildings of the Fain Fireworks company at Parkville, L. I., two lives—Edward Edwards and Joseph Ulrich—were instantly injured, and the building was burned to the ground.

Mr. Eustace Resigns.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 12.—Hon. Alexander C. Eustace of this city, who has represented the Twenty-eighth congressional district on the Democratic state committee for the past five years, sent to Chairman Murphy a letter of resignation.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 12.—The loss by the Fairville fire will amount to $75,000. About 60 families are homeless.

A FAINT HEARTED LOVER

Annoyed by Jokers and Rivals He Sought Out Death.

TOOK RAT POISON IN AN ORCHARD.

All Night He Lay Under the Stars, and Now He Is In a Critical Condition—Told Miss He Was Too Young to Marry—Letter From a Priest.

NEW YORK, July 12.—John Church, the 19-year-old son of a well to do merchant of this city, who lives at Oradell, N. J., became engaged to Miss Euphemia Post, 20 years of age, of Rise, a small village about a mile from Oradell, several months ago. Miss Post is an orphan and lives with her uncle and aunt. When the couple first met, a young man named Charles Lewis was paying attention to Miss Post, but Church speedily ousted him, and a few months ago the engagement was announced.

With this announcement began the troubles of young Church. In the first place, his relatives told him he was entirely too young to be married, and that he must immediately break off his engagement. This he refused to do, and on that account his relatives kept threatening and nagging at him. Then the young men of the village, angry because he had succeeded in winning the heart of the belle, began to annoy him.

They sent him letters, signing different names to them, among them a letter purporting to be from his sweetheart, in which he was informed that she no longer cared for him, and that she desired the engagement broken.

Victim of Jokers.

He rushed to the house of his fiancee, only to find that he had once more been made the victim of a practical joke. This sort of thing continued at intervals.

Several days ago he received a letter postmarked Passaic and signed "C. L." The writer ordered Church to break off his engagement with Miss Post at once or take the consequences, the consequences, according to the writer, being a bullet through the heart.

This letter worried Church exceedingly. He knew the initials were those of Charlie Lewis, and he also knew that Lewis and Miss Post were on at least friendly terms before he made his appearance. Besides, the letter was postmarked Passaic, to which town Lewis had moved. Church took the letter to his sweetheart's uncle and guardian and asked him what he should do about it. The latter laughed and said it was only another joke.

"No, it isn't," said Church; "Lewis will kill me if he can." I know it."

"Nonsense," laughed the other, and went away. The other night Church bought some rat poison and went home. He was not seen again until he was found about half a mile from the Church residence in an apple orchard. Albert Price, one of the searchers, was walking through the orchard when he came across Church.

Found In an Orchard.

The young man was lying unconscious on his back, while beside him lay the box of poison he had purchased. The box had been broken open, and the poison was strewn on the ground. Price summoned help, and while several young men carried the young man home a team ran for doctors. Dr. Simpson of Schraalenberg administered emetics and had the young man put right to bed.

He refused to say afterward, however, whether the young man had taken poison or not. The Churches deny emphatically that the lad took any poison. They say he simply had a fit. It is generally conceded, however, that the young man tried to commit suicide. Miss Post was prostrated when she heard the news. She could give no reason for her lover's act, excepting that she had refused a couple of days before to marry him secretly.

"He will recover," she said to a reporter, "and then we will be married."

Young Church was still unconscious this morning. His condition is said to be very critical.

The Firemen Broke His Neck.

DOVER, N. H., July 12.—A scoot train from Somersworth to this city collided with a freight at Hollisford. Frank Downs, engineer, and Forest Carrish, fireman, jumped. Carrish broke his neck, but was taken up alive.

Cholera In Convict Prisons.

VIENNA, July 12.—Cholera has appeared, and in Moscow the outbreak is most serious. There have been 25 cases and 11 deaths in the convict forwarding prison since July 1.

Pillsbury a Candidate.

BOSTON, July 12.—The City Press association says that Attorney General Pillsbury is at the service of the Republican party as a candidate for governor.

Dr. Deasy Retires.

LONDON, July 12.—In view of the verdict of the jury against him, Mr. Deasy has applied for the stewardship of the Chiltern Hundreds.

REID SCORES INGALLS.

He Makes a Weighty Reply to the Ex-Senator From Kansas.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Whitelaw Reid was interviewed by a newspaper just before leaving for New York. The reporter asked Mr. Reid if he had read ex-Senator Ingalls' criticism of his candidacy for the vice presidency.

"No," said Mr. Reid, with a laugh, "but you know I was not in favor of the nomination myself, as that probably there was one and I could not decline decently."

The reporter showed Mr. Reid the passage where Mr Ingalls sneered at him as "luxurious" and an aristocrat, objected to his wealth, his country seat and spoke of his "unparalleled insults to laboring men."

"That," said Mr. Reid, with more emphasis, "is absurd. I have done a laborer more myself for more than Mr. Ingalls ever has, and he would probably be pained to meet me on the platform of principles I believe in. I never refused to labor or any honest laboring man. All the talk about the hostility of the Tribune to labor was on account of the 12-year-old strike, which was settled to the satisfaction of the labor organizations concerned, I understand."

"What about the 'unparalleled insults and arrogance' urged the reporter.

"Why, nothing," said Mr. Reid. "Whenever heard before of a national man attacked a candidate because he was personally fond of his wife? The idea is absurd. Mr. Ingalls has been in politics long enough to know that such things are not in other communities I not like a gentleman. What, sir, is Kansas, that should make a fellow feel ashamed of it? Kansas, as yet, what he was just a candidate, although he abandoned his supposed principles and came out in the first ballot for me. Mrs. Leased Mr. Reid's letter before them. borders of China. As Tonquin passed into the hands of the French in 1884, it seems that the young Assassins are very anxious to learn French.

Surgeon Major Horquard, who spent many months in Tonquin, says they are intelligent little fellows. He used often to meet them coming out of school, and when-ever they saw him they always addressed him as best they could in French. The letter "r" gave them some trouble, and they spoke it with a broad burr. Whenever one was done talking he lifted his hat and with a grave bow went away.

The Bank of England.

The most celebrated bank in the world is the Bank of England. It is the national bank of the queen's dominions, and more business is done in one day than flows through it every day. "As safe as the Bank of England" is a proverb which is spoken the world over, and one seeking a glimpse of this great institution is directed to the heart of London, where he is shown "The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street," as the bank is sometimes termed.

Today the Bank of England is the most wonderful institution of the kind in existence. Its money is good wherever it is found, and without it the financial standing of Queen Victoria's realm would totter. Few know that it sprang from the fertile brain of a boy who watched his father's sheep on the hills of Dumfriesshire, Scotland, a boy named William Patterson, tells song of an Enchanted Land.

Row, boatman, row, for the land lying yonder
Waits for our coming by welcome home;
Green are the valleys through which we shall wander,
Lovely the glades where our footsteps shall roam.

There we shall dwell in a palace of splendor;
Built of white marble and gold are the walls;
Ceilings of sapphire and starlight tender
Cast a soft luster through all the wide halls.

Raiment as bright as the beams of the morning
Soon shall enrobe us in princely attire;
Glorious forms of immortal adorning
Jewels bedeck us with flashings of fire.

Feasting and music shall fill up the daytime,
Sorrow be banished, and care shall depart;
All shall be pleasure and laughter and playtime,
Mirth and amusement and dancing of heart.

Fain would we come to that beautiful shore
Where no sun rises its enchantments so glowing,
Then we shall leave it again nevermore!

The New Pets.

Maud and Willie and Kate were playing in the barn one day when they heard a cry like a baby's. Kate said it must be a baby who had got lost in the hay, but Maud was old enough to know better than that. She climbed back of some old work benches, and there, lying snug in the hay, were three black and white puppies. They wanted to take them to the house, but John, the coachman, said they were much better off where they were. Besides their mother was the best dog, and she lived in the barn and would grieve very much if her puppies were taken from her.

So the children left them remain. But they visit them every day and watch them grow, and it will not be long before they will be large enough to run about. Then John says that Kate shall have the prettiest for her own, and Maud and Willie shall have the other two.

A Little Minister.

It is, or used to be, the heart's desire of nearly every Scottish parent that one son of the family should be a minister, or, as they said, "wad his gown in a pu'pit." Perhaps it was owing to some such feeling as this that Mr. Ruskin's father and mother were most anxious he should enter the church. Years afterward when the son had grown famous as a writer on art his father declared he would have been a bishop by that time had he taken light orders. When Ruskin was a child, however—and there may have been talk at home of what he was to be when a man—he did not preach at least on sermon. The little boy got a red cushion and then standing up and thumping it he delivered this sermon, "People, be good." And no excellent sermon too.

The Underground Railway.

The "underground railroad" was a figure of speech used in slavery days to describe a surreptitious means of transporting slaves into free territory.

LOOK OUT!

Or you might burn your Shoes. People need to be careful what they handle nowadays, especially in the way of Carriages. Quite a lot of them are made to sell, not to wear. Ours are made to wear whether we sell them or not. Some are made to look well at the expense of good material. Ours are guaranteed to wear well and keep their good appearance. Some are made to allow the dealer an enormous profit and the buyer to be taken in and done by many of them. Ours are offered at a small profit with which we are well content, as we like to do an honorable business. Do you see the difference? If you do, you can also see that it is to your benefit to deal with us.

FEASTING AND FLOWERS.

Table decoration in a general way surpasses anything heretofore brought out. As dinner giving becomes more and more fashionable there is increasing beauty of the floral arrangements and the sight of a perfectly well appointed table with artistic treatment of flowers greatly adds to the enjoyment of the entertainment. The object attained by the present style is to produce a double effect—the flowers rise above the line of vision and also lie in profusion on the cloth in natural clusters.

Many of these ingenuities arranged and florally decorated are quite the thing. Field flower decoration is much admired for these, and poppies, cornflowers, marguerites, goldenrod, etc., in their seasons, afford charming effects, which are greatly enhanced by the use of exquisite glass vases and bowls. The fact that this comfortable meal takes place in broad daylight is in itself highly favorable, as it allows of using many flowers and shades which are incompatible with artificial light.

A useful form of decoration for late suppers consists in having the large fancy baskets filled with growing plants, and a huge one in the center of the table. The roses can then be used in vases the next day, while the plants left in the basket will do duty for other occasions.

For ballrooms hardy flowers that can not only be depended upon to last through-out the entertainment, but can even be of use in the next day, are a special feature somewhat to the exclusion of maidenhair and all other quickly fading foliage and flowers.

Artistic New Table Ware.

The newest center pieces are of old Dutch silver, with branches of three candelabra at each end. They are not more than from 10 to 13 inches in height. The branches spring from the base of the central candlestick, and the silver is exhibited to give to the whole a unique air. When supplied with shaded candles, they light the table very effectively without being unpleasant to the eyes, says the New York Herald, which also notes the following novelties:

Dresden china tea bells are by no means as expensive as cut glass or as durable as silver, but they are dainty, quaint and effective.

Fancy china toast racks are certainly less serviceable than silver ones, but they are pretty and may be introduced on the breakfast table and are fast gaining in favor.

It took the fashionable rose bowl to prove it to the many that nature and art cannot be placed in juxtaposition. And so it is that the most expressive and elegant hand painted jardinieres are fast being crowded out by cut glass bowls filled with masses of graceful shapes, with silver rim and ornamentation.

How to Prepare Pineapple.

This delicious fruit as generally served is indigestible because sliced so as to include the tough core, which fills the center of every slice. By the following method, properly prepared, the indigestible core is rejected and only the palatable and wholesome portion eaten. With a sharp knife cut off all the rough skin and remove all the eyes, but leave the green plume in place to use as a handle. When the work is done, scrape the fruit tightly to the left hand, and with a fresh pull or two it into shreds till only the core is left. Then sugar well with powdered sugar and place on ice for 12 hours at the very least, or better still, for 24.

Flower Boxes For a Fireplace.

One of the housewife's summer problems is how to cover unsightly grate openings. The best way seems to be to fill them full of potted foliage plants and vines. A thrifty friend from the pleasant sizzling of a room it may also be used to cover a stovepipe hole if the latter be not too high up.

HANDSOME AND USEFUL.

The screen here illustrated is a very handsome one, having a central panel in heavy embroidery or brocade surrounded with fancy galloon and gold lace which rests on a horseshoe frame of pale green satin. It is lined with plain satin and edged with a fluffy ruching, which hides the inside wire that gives firmness to the banner. It is suspended with broad ribbons finished off with bows in moire silk. A deep fringe with a netted heading hangs at the lower edge and repeats the coloring of the design.

Raisin Puffs.

Take a cup sugar, 2 eggs, one-fourth cup butter, one-fourth cup sweet milk, a teaspoonful baking powder and flour to make a rather thick batter, a cup raisins and flavoring to the taste. Grease as many coffee cups as your dozen puffs and fill each half full. Place in a steamer over boiling water. Serve with sweetened cream.

Delightful With Baked Shad.

Asparagus sauce is recommended by an exchange as delightful with veal cutlets or baked shad. Boil a cupful of dice of tender asparagus in salted water until done, drain and fry in a little boiling butter; then press through a sieve into half a pint of drawn butter, made with stock instead of water.

TO MAKE OVER DRESSES.

It Is a Simple Matter Now One Has Only to Remember.

In these days of ever-changing fashions some of our readers may feel grateful to know how a "yesterday's" toilette may be made to look fashionable for "to-morrow."

A perfectly round skirt, for instance, can no longer be worn for evening. If you have such a one make it at once. Rip and goes even width, which will of itself form a little train at the back, which you may afterwards lengthen by means of a lace, chiffon, or any device, according to taste and circumstances. The front width must be cut to fit the person exactly, pulled in lined with plain satin and edged with a fluffy ruching, which hides the inside wire that gives firmness to the banner. It is suspended with broad ribbons finished off with bows in moire silk. A deep fringe with a netted heading hangs at the lower edge and repeats the coloring of the design.

If the bodice be high to the neck, you may gather a lace frill round the top, and if it be low, half way to the waist, you lace folds or a flounce round the shoulders. There are so many ways of draping these lace flounces that every lady may follow her own taste.

The top part of the sleeve is still short and very full, and the lower part long and tightly fitting to the wrist; and as the two may be made of different materials, this is very convenient in reviving dresses for modern use.

New Millinery.

Small turbans are worn and trimmed with a facing of velvet and a high bow on the side, through which is placed a quill.

Large Leghorn hats will be worn extensively in the country, trimmed with fine wax white, with trimming of black velvet, and a wreath of daisies, corn flowers and poppies.

There are many hats in fancy straw, in various colors to match suits, or contrast or green. In fact there is no reason why women this season should not wear pretty and becoming hats or bonnets, as there are so many varieties from which to select.

The Lace Cape.

For the summer the lace cape is the correct thing. One of the most attractive capes is of black Chantilly lace, three-quarter length. Fan-shaped epaulettes cap each shoulder and loops of black velvet ribbon are caught with jet buckles, extend in long streamers down the front of the garment. Attached to the two points of the cape are clusters of ribbon loops and ends.

Save Your Temper and Your Beauty.

The lady who is constantly tying in a rage soon has her reward.

Live stretches from each corner of the mouth up toward the nostrils. The mouth becomes downcast, the whole face wearily compressed. Between the eyebrows appear the fretful, petulant frown, and no amount of dress, no powdering, rouging or face-steaming will bring back the lost beauty.

There are more divorces granted in the United States than in all the rest of the Christian world put together. Americans are very discriminative—after marriage.

SUGGESTIONS FOR HOME MANICURE.

Have you a manicure case where bits of polished steel and silver gleam upon a silken case? Keep it as an ornament if you will, but you have the silver emptied down for an ornament and sell the steel to a second-hand dealer, if you prefer that method of disposing of the goods.

Never touch your nails with a steel instrument. Save only the file which is to keep them their proper length. The only things besides the file which are necessary are a polished wooden stick, shaped like a small lead-pencil neatly sharpened, and a chamois-covered polisher. The stick is best made of orange wood, which will not grow rough through use, but which will always be perfectly smooth. Its use is to clean the nails and to push back the skin about their bases. This should be done at least once a day, directly after washing the hands in warm water, when the skin is softened.

This skin about the nails should never be cut, as cutting toughens it, and there will be no necessity for it if the nails are properly cured for from day to day.

Use a polishing powder, but the regular manicure paste is the best thing to use, but rubbing with chamois or even flannel will improve their appearance. The use of glycerine and rose water keeps the skin over the knuckles pliable, and gently kneading the knuckles with the tips of the fingers will keep them from growing out of shape.

All stains should be promptly removed with pumice stone or lemon. To prevent the nails from becoming rough from rough-ening the hands, rub in a few drops of rose water and glycerine.

To Wash Silk Stockings.

The proper washing of silk stockings is a matter of moment, now that they are commonly worn. White silk stockings should be washed in a strong lather made of castile soap or any good white soapand warm water. Lay the stockings in the lather and rub the soiled spots gently with a fine nail brush. Then rinse in very thoroughly to free them from all grease. Wring them dry in a cloth, turning them wrong side out. When they are almost dry stretch and rub them in the hands to make them smooth and bring them in shape, but do not iron them.

Black stockings may be washed in the same way, but should be kept separate from white stockings in the washing. Some people go so far as to rub their stockings when they are dry with a cold iron, always keeping the hands of iron and soft leather, both treatments are ruinous.

When boots are very muddy remove the dirt with a damp sponge or a painter's soft brush. White kid boots, white canvas boots, &c., should be sponged, allowed to dry and then thoroughly polished with a soft rag or handkerchief which is slightly oiled occasionally.

Sent to an Asylum.

I had just taken my seat in the car when an elderly gentleman entered, closely followed by a young man of decidedly fashionable aspect. They secured seats near mine and were soon absorbed in their conversation.

Finally the elder lowered his paper and said: "By the way, Frank, what has become of Singleton? I haven't seen him for some time."

"He was adjudged insane and is now in an asylum," said Frank.

"Can that be possible? Why, what was the cause?"

"Oh, he was a crank, and his mind was continually agitated in his frantic endeavors to start some new society fad. When Mrs. Singleton gave her first dove dinner his actions and efforts to counterbalance it by some new wrinkle of his own were a source of great amusement to all the fellows. He finally dropped that, and everything went smoothly with him until Miss Richly gave a pink tea. Singleton's wheel again started to revolve, and he issued invitations to all the fellows to attend a white trunk fast to be given at his home."

"Did you go?"

"Oh, yes."

"Of what did the menu consist?"

"White bread, celery and stalactite."

"Well," said the old gentleman as he arose to leave the car, "I don't wonder that he was sent to an asylum."—Chicago News-Record.

Mr. Joseph O'Brien of New York spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Duke in this city. Mr. O'Brien has purchased the house adjoining Mr. P. J. Mohogney's, on Brook avenue, will move here in September.

According to the Asbury Park Journal the following Plainfielders have registered at Asbury Park hotels: Mrs. Jas. R. Joy, Alice H. Joy, Geo. R. Corswell, wife and child, Geo. Hallock, O. H. Jenkins and children.

The Rev. C. B. Mitchell is now doubly a doctor, Allegheny college has just added a D. D. to his Ph.D., previously obtained. Dr. Mitchell, who is to be here a week or more next month, on a visit to his old friends, serves a large church in Kansas City, Mo.

Three married women, neighbors, living in the country just outside of the city limits, are deaf and dumb, and so are their husbands. They drive into town very frequently together and are always laughing and chatting briskly with their fingers, which from long practice are very supple. Sometimes whole sentences are expressed by a motion of the arm. They not only talk thus, but make very bright and clever facial grimaces to express their quick thoughts. They are evidently a very happy trio, and their homes are said to be charming.

MAD DOG IN THE BOROUGH.

Mr. Pope's Little Yellow Dog Taken With the Rabies.

A little yellow dog, belonging to Mr. Eugene Pope of Duer street, went mad this morning. It broke loose from its home and ran through the street. Fortunately no one was bitten.

Special Marshal Whitely, who narrowly escaped being bitten, and Mr. Richard McCullough and Special Marshal Dougherty, each with a shot gun, started in pursuit of the rabid canine. It escaped them and took refuge under Mr. McCullough's barn. The three men sat down in the shade of a grape arbor and waited. After about a half hour the dog came out and Mr. McCullough shot it.

Italians Buried Alive.

A gang of Italian laborers were working in a sewer trench on North Broad street, Elizabeth, this Tuesday afternoon, when the sides caved in on them. All escaped but two, and they were buried for an hour, when they were dug out still alive. Some planks which had been used for a platform fell with the landslide and formed an arch over these men so that the weight of earth was not upon them. They were rescued by their fellow workmen tunnelling to where they were entombed. Both men revived when lifted to the surface.

MR. SALTZMAN AHEAD.

MR. C. W. SMITH SECOND MAN AND MR. J. J. STAHL THIRD.

Big Returns Expected the Next Ten Days.—Much Interest Excited in the Contest.—An Additional Gift of $10 for the Lucky Man.—The Contest Closes August 20.—Get Your Friends Working.

MAN Saltzman still has the lead to-day. Mr. Chas. W. Smith, a popular officer of Engine Company, No. 2, is in second place. Mr. Stahl, the popular foreman of Warren Engine Company has moved to third place.

That THE NEWS enterprise is appreciated by the firemen is quite evident. It is early in the race yet, but the men who have friends competing, or are in it themselves, are all talking about it.

THE EVENING NEWS, as is well known, is the strong friend of the fireman.

In Plainfield and vicinity the firemen work for the good of others. No money in it. And our firemen can make a better showing than nine-tenths of the paid departments of other cities.

The fireman that secures the most votes by August 20 will be "rushed in clover."

The vote at noon to-day stands:

A. Saltzman, Alert Hose No. 1	48
Chas. W. Smith, Engine Co. No. 2	32
J. J. Stahl, Warren Engine Co	25
H. B. Rogers, Engine Co. No. 3	20
H. J. Martin, Warren Engine Co	19
Wm. L. Wright, Engine Co. No. 2	14
E. Mosher, Engine Co., No. 2	6
C. B. Clifton, Alert Hose Co	5
G. Dyrier, Engine Co. No. 2	3
T. C. Doane, Gazelle Engine Co	3
G. Greaves, Gazelle Engine Co	2
G. H. Fairchild, Warren Engine Co	2
A. L. Blackford, Gazelle Engine Co	2
J. Krimm, Engine Company No. 2	2
F. L. C. Martin, Alert Hose Co	1
F. M. Tier, Gazelle Engine Co	1
A. Love, Sr., Gazelle Engine Co	1
E. McComm, Zephyr H. & L., No. 1	1
J. Hilman, Zephyr H. & L. No. 1	1
G. Conover, Warren Engine Co	1

From time to time more interesting particulars of what the trip means for the winner will be published. Be sure and get THE NEWS every night.

So far it is anybody's victory.

The general rules governing the awarding of THE EVENING NEWS' World's Fair excursion are as follows:

Any fireman of this vicinity is eligible.

Coupons must be clipped from the columns of THE EVENING NEWS and filled out with the full name of the fireman and the fire company to which he belongs.

If a number of coupons are sent at once and are intended to be cast for one individual, it will be necessary to fill out only one coupon, though all the coupons should be placed in one enclosure.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS WORLD'S FAIR COUPON.

Record one vote for Fireman

Name of Company:

Doctor and Dentists go Fishing.

Doctor Carman and Dentists Theirs and Bedford, and William Theirs, went to Papiac on a fishing trip yesterday. They report having had great luck. The total catch is said to have been five toadfish. A young shark got fast on Dr. Carman's line, and after fooling awhile it swallowed his bait, hooks and part of the line and disappeared.

Kicked Him Out of the Stable.

Last evening as Garret Powers of Somerset street was standing in the stall holding a pail of water for his father's horse to drink, the animal suddenly knocked him down with its fore foot and kicked him out of the stable. His leg and hip were badly bruised and his face cut and bruised.

CHIEF GRANT AFTER BATHERS.

THERE is no use trying to make a bathing resort on Clinton avenue, and those young men and boys who have been in the habit of going there daily to swim, without being provided with the proper bathing resort attire, will probably get themselves in trouble, if the city authorities get hold of them.

The young men and boys who frequent the above mentioned swimming hole in Green brook, near the Clinton avenue bridge, are violating a city ordinance and laying themselves liable to a fine.

Persons who have been out driving, and who have started to drive down that thoroughfare, have been compelled to turn around and drive back, because the bank was covered with boys and young men who had just left the water.

Complaints have been made to Chief Grant about the matter and he will make it lively for the fellows if he catches them. A boy was caught there yesterday and taken before Judge Coddington, who sentenced a second lad, warned him not to go there again or he would give him the full penalty of the law.

A BASKET SALE.

Held by the Woman's Relief Corps, No. 10.

The Woman's Relief Corps, No. 10, had a basket sale, last night. It was in charge of Mrs. Dobbins, Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Smith of the piano committee. They were assisted by Miss May Smith, Miss M. Summers, Miss L. Rockin, Miss May Shultz and Miss May Howlet.

All the baskets were donated by the ladies and friends of the corps. There were baskets of all kinds. They were auctioned off to the highest bidder. Mr. Mattox was the auctioneer. The contents were only made known when bought. It was amusing to see those that brought the highest price only contain a loaf of bread, while others that were sold for less were found to contain cups and saucers, fruits, a pair of slippers, etc. The proceeds are for the piano fund.

A GOOD MAN APPRECIATED.

A Faithful Flagman at Westfield Presented With a Gold Watch.

Manning Clements, a flagman at Westfield crossing, was presented with a gold watch by the citizens people of that city. A meeting was held in Hart's Hall, and the outcome was the present to the flagman. Mr. Clements has been a flagman at the one crossing for ten years and never had an accident happen at his post of the crossing. He has been a railroad employe for thirty years. He was much effected when presented with the gold watch. The Westfield people think almost as much of Mr. Clements as he does of the fine watch he now shows at every opportunity.

[The little "mite" that Mr. Miles sends us is a check for $10, on behalf of the firemen. The NEWS extends to the donor hearty thanks for his generosity.—Ed.]

Base Ball Notes.

Manager McLoughlin of the Westfields will bring a strong team to Plainfield Saturday, and a close and exciting contest may be expected. The following will be the Westfields' batting order: Howe, 2b.; Dowd, c.; MacLaughlin, l.f.; Mullen, s.s.; Francis, p.; Towner, r. f.; Polyes, 1b.; Townley, c.f.; Roberts, 3b.

The Gorhams defeated the Arlingtons on the Park avenue grounds this morning. The score was Gorhams, 28; Arlingtons, 11. Batteries—Dodge and Giles for the Arlingtons, and Peterson and Nelson for the Gorhams.

The Crescents went to Middletown, N. Y., to-day to play a game with the Asylum team.

The Westfields play at New Brunswick to-day.

He Caught "About——."

Several Plainfielders spent yesterday at the fishing banks, among them being Messrs. Charles Smith, Louis MacKintosh, Augustus Smith, John J. Kenney, Michael Winn, Matthew Cashen, Stover and Policeman Kiely. They returned about seven o'clock with the usual fisherman's luck—no fish. When Policeman Kiely was asked how many he had caught, he stuttered "About——" and that was as far as he got, when interrupted by Chief Grant, who told him to tell a good one while he was about it. Policeman Kiely said he was never so glad to see land before, as he was when he struck New York. This probably accounts for his inability to tell the number of fish caught.

Mr. Mulford's Magnanimous Act.

The following letter was sent to this office with the request that we publish same to-day.

WM. M. DAVIS, Esq., Counsellor at Law.

DEAR SIR:—Inasmuch as there is no longer friendship for me, I feel that I cannot let this, the day of his funeral, go by without thus it a word of the recollection of his many long and my deep respect for his memory.

Kindly accept for yourself and extend my sympathy and condolence in this the hour of their bereavement.

I am very respectfully,
EDWARD C. MULFORD.

Boards of Registration.

Governor Werts Tuesday appointed the County Boards of Registration for the State. The boards for Union and Somerset counties are as follows:

Union—Democrats, James T. Wiley, E. D. Moffett; Republicans, William Chamberlain, Edwin C. Woodruff.

Another Victory for Mrs. Gwynett.

The last of six attachment cases was yesterday disposed of in the court of Common Pleas, at Elizabeth, in favor of Mrs. Anna Gwynett. Ex-Judge W. R. Coddington successfully conducted the defense for Mrs. Gwynett in all the cases against her, all of which were decided in her favor with costs. Several suits for damages will now be commenced by her.

A Load of Hay Upset.

A load of hay belonging to W. O. Baldwin was being driven down Grant avenue, yesterday afternoon. At the corner of Fourth street one of the front wheels became caught in the frog of the street railway track in such a manner as to wrench it from the axle, overturning the load at the side of the road, where it remained all night.

The hay was loaded on another wagon this morning.

WEATHER AND CROP CONDITIONS.

Potatoes and Corn Making a Rapid Stride Forward.

The observers and crop correspondents of the New Jersey Weather Service report for the week ending Monday, July 10th, 1893, that in the northern, the central and other extensive counties the weather conditions have been favorable to all growing crops and that a marked improvement in their condition is noted. The nights of the week have been warm, and with the gentle local showers all crops, especially corn and potatoes, have made a rapid stride forward.

The temperature and sunshine during the week has been about normal, while local showers have visited all sections, greatly reviving and stimulating all crops.

PLAINFIELD—Every thing progressing with the farmer in harvesting the crops. High wind of the 9th did great damage, especially to the fruit trees. Rainfall 0.75 inch. JOHN REARDLE.

CRANE TOWNSHIP—The past week has given excellent growing weather. Harvesting well advanced, most of the grain having been cut in good condition. We had a one shower the evening of the 3d. On Saturday evening, the 8th, a shower with very high wind swept over the township doing much damage to fruit and early tomatoes. EDGAR L. SMITH.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD—A nice shower on the 3d helped all crops, especially corn and garden truck. Haying about finished and grain most all cut. Work is up to date. Wheat and all crops getting along nicely. Corn and potatoes are looking well. Currants and gooseberries most all in market, and raspberries in season now. Some cucumbers and squashes were pulled on the 7th.

At the Theatres.

It was a clever scheme of that adroit and skilful manager E. E. Rice to keep the lobby of Palmer's Theatre open while his company is taking the summer vacation, and to put upon exhibition hundreds of photographs of the characters and scenes of "1492." The box office custodian keeps count and states that nearly 2000 people stopped in to see the pictures during the first five days of last week. Incidentally they were impressed by the fact that the gay and gorgeous "1492" would resume at this theatre on the 14th of next month. Manager Rice is already devising new and taking ideas for the second edition of the popular burlesque, which he expects to run at Palmer's all next season.

A chance to see reproduced what will be seen in reality by one lucky fireman, is advertised elsewhere to be given at Music Hall next week.

The Weather.

On Friday, fair to partly cloudy weather will prevail, with southerly winds and continued high temperature, followed by thunder storms, on Saturday, fair, partly cloudy conditions, with local rain and slowly falling temperature.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Arrested for Murder.

DETROIT, Mich., July 13.—(Special.)—Dr. Henry C. W. Meyer and his wife have been arrested at 128 Clifford street on suspicion of having poisoned several people for their life insurance. They are both notorious criminals.

Henry Fleming Lynched.

COLUMBUS, Miss., July 13. (Special.)—Henry Fleming, the negro who stabbed Mr. Mincher to death on Monday night, was taken from the officers yesterday by a mob and hanged.

The Big Fence.

On the Plainfield side the street Commissioner saw that the workmen of the Street Railway Co. made the roadbed in as good a condition as before it was torn up. No extra charge.

In North Plainfield, the street Commissioner several times, acting upon the complaints of Boroughites, saw that the road was fixed right, although he was by so doing, interfering with the duty of another man, appointed for that purpose. Surely an unnecessary expense.

But it's the difference! Political "pulls" ought to have the running over disarranged in local affairs. The people have enough tax to pay.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Midway Plaisance.

Those individuals who are so unfortunately constituted that they never see the sad having any fun in the world have doubtless wondered often what was the good of that vanity fair—Midway plaisance—at the Chicago exposition. If they only knew it, that agglomeration of grotesqueness and variety serves a very useful purpose. After walking his feet off and gazing at miles of windmills, carriages, pumps, cars and locomotive engines, after doing the heavy business in the Fisheries building, the Agricultural building and elsewhere, how does the visitor to the World's fair feel? Exactly as if he would like to hurl a bowlder, and a big one, at the head of the person who asks him to go to the Woman's building or Art gallery or the cow show. He glares about him as if he would like to eat up somebody or something.

At this moment there before his eyes is Midway plaisance. It is a journey around the world, except that, instead of his marching around the globe, the globe marches around him, so to speak. The Amazons of Dahomey, battle scarred and fierce, glare at him. The Irish castle, with the original blarney stone to be kissed and make him sweet tempered, looms up here, with pretty Irish girls making lace near by. In the Algerian village monkeys and baboons chatter, camels and donkeys look wise, here and there dancing girls of the orient go through their paces in a way that is all the more fascinating to him because he is not quite sure whether it is proper or not. Javanese and Jap, Chinaman, Persian and South Sea islander step out from the old story books he has read, and in a moment, as at the touch of a magician's wand, are before him in real life.

He becomes interested in spite of himself. Then he laughs. Then his weariness and grumpiness are gone. This is what the wise men who planned the fair meant Midway plaisance for.

July in Paris.

July seems to be a fateful month in Paris. This year, along with the celebration July 14 of the one hundred and fourth anniversary of the fall of the Bastille, are mingled ominous echoes of gunshot, saber clank and cavalry hoof beat from the police, soldiers and republican guards that were called out to suppress the riots in the streets.

Paris seems ever ready for mischief in the month of July. The rioting that was the beginning of the first French revolution commenced July 12, 1789, the sacking of the Bastille following July 14. July 5, 1792, the French assembly destroyed the last vestige of the power of Louis XVI and put France under martial law. A year later—July 19, 1793—Marat, leader of the terrorists, was assassinated by Charlotte Corday. In a time of frenzied popular excitement. A year later still—July 27, 1794—Robespierre himself was arrested, and next day—July 28—was guillotined.

Seventy-six years later, still in the same month of July, occurred the quarrel which led to the war between France and Germany and the loss to France of Alsace and Lorraine. It was on July 6, 1870, that M. Ollivier declared in the corps legislatif that France could not permit a Hohenzollern to be a candidate for the Spanish throne. A week and a day later—July 14—on the very day of the anniversary of the fall of the Bastille, Prussia withdrew her minister from the French court preparatory to hostilities.

England is of opinion that the march of destiny will in the course of time compel her to take possession of Siam in order to protect British interests. She considers British interests in Siam as paramount to all others. About 100 years ago France opened trade with Annam, on the northwest of Siam. In 1856 France established a protectorate over Anam. There is a dispute between France and the "lord of all heads," as the Siamese emperor is called in his own land, about the proper boundary line between the two countries. Bangkok, the capital of Siam, is situated near the mouth of the Menam river. At Bangkok are now war vessels of both France and England. The world likes to have Siam as well as Annam. England, on her part, would not object to both of them, especially if France wanted them.

If there is any possible solution of the silver question, between the bimetallic league convention, which meets at Chicago July 25, and the extra session of congress, Aug. 7, that solution ought to be found. Senator Sherman himself says of the law with which his name is popularly associated: "The only objectionable feature of the law is the clause requiring silver purchases. I shall vote for the repeal of that clause myself." On the other hand, the expressed object of those who call the bimetallic convention at Chicago is to take measures to influence congress favorably toward silver and fight to a finish the repeal of the present coinage law unless some kind of a substitute is passed in its place.

Whether the Duke of York and Knight of the Thistle is ever king of England or not, his noble cousins of the republic of America wish him and sweet Princess Maymoore happiness than usually falls to the lot of royal married pairs.

IT IS WEST AGAINST EAST

THE APPEAL OF THE SILVER MEN.

DENVER, July 13.—The interest in the silver convention has not in the least abated, and when it was called to order standing room was not to be had. After the appointment of delegates to the St. Louis and Chicago silver conventions and to the "gold bug" gathering at St. Paul, the committee on resolutions presented the following report, which was unanimously adopted:

To the People of the United States—The people of the mining states, in the gloom of impending disaster and representing in condition and sentiment the people of Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada, South Dakota, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico with reverence for the constitution and unswerving loyalty to the general government, call for your calm and candid consideration of the following facts before you give your approval to the destruction of silver as money and to the final establishment in this country of the single gold standard of values, and that as one stroke change all debts to gold debts and inaugurate a never ending rise of gold and a continued corresponding fall in the price of every commodity.

We will not drive without artificial irrigation. Its mines of coal, iron, stone and clay, while magnificent, are worked with such dear labor and are so remote from other local markets that their movement would be feeble and their operation disastrous without the stimulus the mining industry affords.

It supports our foundries, operates our machine shops, supplies our railroads with freights, stimulates travel, keeps bright the fires of the smelters and sends customers to the shops of our merchants. It has invoked in the valleys and upon mountain sides magnificent cities and thrifty towns and villages. Great manufactories of paper, cotton, leather, iron, steel and clays would follow. Then would prosperity and support thousands of prosperous and happy families.

But because agriculture is so limited in area—confined to narrow strips along our few and scanty streams—our labor so high and its handiwork so remote from other than the local markets, the coal is mined, the ore is taken out and rolled, and the grain is grown, the fruit is gathered in the main for the owners and workers in silver mines and smelters, and the proprietors and laborers of the industries and callings are dependent upon them.

The reduction of the price of silver to about 70 cents has shut down 99 per cent of the silver mines of the country, and the smelters must soon follow their example. There were in Colorado today 10,000 idle miners who know not where to turn if work is not restored. There will soon be added to this idle army of labor 4,000 men from the smelters. The stone quarries are nearly all shut down, the railway companies are laying off train crews by the score, the foundries are nearly all out of orders, the farmers and fruit growers will be barely paid for the cost of saving their crops, the merchants are countermanding their orders, the traveling men for eastern houses seek almost in vain for customers. This is no exaggeration.

The destruction of the silver industry will devastate the country as if swept by a cyclone! Reaching from the British possessions to the Mexican border line. This sorrowful picture of Colorado, with its mining industry destroyed, represents the condition of the other mining states and territories with the same calamity upon them.

But though you may do all in your power, whether in ignorance or through selfish motive, to destroy us, we will not submit to the destiny of poverty without a struggle. We shall seek to open up new markets and to build up our silver industry along new lines and with new and more sympathetic neighbors.

If the schemes of the gold kings are accomplished, if the present silver law shall be unconditionally repealed, the great bulk of us will be made paupers, and our beautiful and wonderful state will be set back in its march of progress more than a quarter of a century. Colorado, great in its resources, proud of its business record, filled with brave men and resolute hearts, makes this its appeal for preservation to the open hearted and generous people of the country.

We are confident that it will not be in vain. The atrocity of making homeless thousands of citizens of the chief industries of 1,000,000 square miles of American territory; that the 900,000 men, women and children with all the attendant scourges of enforced and hopeless idleness can never be the work of an American congress with your approval.

Hopeful of speedy delivery from the crushing burdens of a financial system, begotten of the greed of Great Britain's remorseless money power and of the prosperity inseparable from an American system, which includes the free coinage at gold and silver at the American ratio of 16 to 1, we submit to the people of the United States this statement of our cause.

Bankers Bankers Call For Repeal.

BUFFALO, July 13.—The Bankers' association of Buffalo desiring to put itself on record on the important matters coming before congress at the extra session, called by President Cleveland for Aug. 7 next, presents the following proposition:

First—The assembling of such congress the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the compromise silver bill of 1890.

Second—That the present congress repeal further that at the extra session no substitute of any kind be enacted, or attempted to be put in the place of the purchasing clause or any compromise enacted.

Third—Believing that the subject requires the most deliberate consideration by men skilled in finance and aided by experience for the work, this association hereby concurs in the recommendation of the New York chamber, that a committee of experts be appointed to report a suitable system of currency for the United States founded upon the experience of other nations and adequate to the vast business interests of a great commercial nation like ours.

Fourth—The association respectfully calls upon the Members of Congress to hold a conference at an early date to learn the expression of its members and others on this most important subject and to take such further action as they shall deem wise in the premises.

The Repeal Committee Acts.

NEW YORK, July 13.—The chamber of commerce committee for the repeal of the Sherman silver purchase act had another meeting. Members of the chamber will be urged to use their influence with their correspondents throughout the country to induce a general agitation in favor of sound money.

A Free Silver Vote.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 13.—Congressman Bowers, in a public speech, declared his purpose to vote for the free coinage of silver.

THE BIG MATCH MADE.

NEW YORK, July 13.—At the Colemans House, on Coney Island, the Coney Island Athletic club and W. A. Brady, James J. Corbett's manager, met and signed articles calling for a contest at Coney Island next December.

The arrangements were conducted with perfect harmony on both sides. The articles call for a scientific glove contest of 20 rounds for a purse of $10,000 and $2,000 a day to be hereafter mutually agreed upon, between the 5th and 20th days of December next, under the rules of the Marquis of Queensbury, the same to be governed by the official referee in every instance and particular, the winner to receive the full purse of $10,000, without exception. The glove contest shall be of a size similarly mutually agreed upon by the principals thereto, but of not less weight than five ounces.

The articles will be delivered to Mitchell for signature, which must be obtained on or before Aug. 5. By the stipulations in the articles neither Mitchell nor Corbett is permitted to fight with any one else prior to meeting each other.

As Corbett has arranged to meet Jackson in June, 1894, it only remains for Mitchell to put up a forfeit to insure the match being held at Coney Island.

Accuses the Widow.

ORANGE, N. J., July 13.—George Werner, a brother of Martin Werner, who, it is alleged, committed suicide by hanging on May 4, called on Dr. Riddle and asserted that his brother had been murdered by his wife and hung up in the barn in a suicidal attitude. The widow's recent remarriage is given as the motive for the act. After a conference between Dr. Elliott and Prosecutor Crane, it was decided to exhume the body and hold an autopsy for traces of poisoning.

Two Killed In a Mine Explosion.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 13.—Two men were killed, two fatally injured and two badly hurt by an explosion of gas in the Empire mine. The dead are William Risner, aged 25, leaves a wife and two children; Robert Hughes, aged 17, a driver boy. The fatally injured are William Mayo, aged 35, violently hurled against a door side, crushed and badly bruised; John Ford, aged 34, a miner, burned on head and body. His arm and legs were also broken.

Tom Ochiltree to Marry.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., July 13.—A dispatch from St. Louis to this city says that Colonel Tom Ochiltree and Mrs. Wickes, widow of S. D. L. Wickes, a millionaire of this city, are to marry caused a sensation here, where both parties are well known. Close friends of Mrs. Wickes are unanimous in pronouncing the report to be without foundation, but a nephew of Mrs. Wickes states that the marriage is to take place.

A Florida Lynching.

OCALA, Fla., July 13.—A negro named Rosier, who had been arrested by the citizens of Citra and vicinity for assaulting Miss Fannie Alexander. She is a refined young lady, 18 years of age, of the highest social connection. Rosier, Larkin was strung up to a tree near the depot on the edge of the town and his body riddled with bullets. It was a negro who put the noose about the culprit's neck.

The Enterprising Mikado.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Five young Japanese civil and mechanical engineers, the official representatives of the Mikado's government, called on Mayor Gilroy to ask the privilege of inspecting and studying New York's public works. Mayor Gilroy gave the commissioners letters to the heads of the various city departments. The Japanese will go to Boston on Saturday.

Lynchers Chase Scamburger.

CROOKSTON, Minn., July 13.—Scamburger, the Castle murderer, was brought here by Sheriff Fadden of Grand Forks to get him away from the mob, but on arrival he learned that the mob was still in pursuit and would be here on the 2 o'clock. Northern, which comes one hour later, so he left on the same train.

CHURCH FOLK TROUBLED

Sunday School Picnic Disturbed by Beer and Actresses.

DR. POTTER SMITES DR. PUTNAM.

NEW YORK, July 13.—The Sunday schools of the First and Second Reformed churches of Hackensack, N. J., went to Greenwood Lake on their annual picnic. In requisitioned 11 passenger coaches to accommodate the throng, many who enjoyed the outing not being Sunday school members.

Much dissatisfaction was caused among the Sunday school officials by the presence of a large number of beer kegs on the picnic grounds, and the dissatisfaction was augmented later by a number of the young men members engaging in dancing in the pavilion. Pastor Vandewart appeared on the scene and endeavored to put a stop to this proceeding.

The noise was so great, however, that his words of remonstrance were not heard, and he was compelled to pound on the floor with his umbrella in order to gain attention. He asked that the dancing be stopped, but his request was unheeded.

An actor and four soubrettes from New York, who are summering at the lake, were among those on the dancing platform. The actor played lively airs on the violin, and the soubrettes danced a reel and other fancy steps, finishing with a sensational skirt dance, in which high kicking was the principal feature.

The pastor and the church people were grievously shocked by this exhibition, and the women teachers hid their faces in their hands. It was decided that if the Sunday school picnic is held again Greenwood Lake will not be selected as the place for the outing.

Dr. Potter Turns the Tables.

In this city there was a lively time at the Tabernacle Baptist church, in Second avenue, near Tenth street, when the Rev. Daniel C. Potter was excoriated from the pulpit for outright slander by the Rev. James W. Putnam, assistant pastor of the church, and John V. Huiell.

Dr. Potter was charged with misappropriating the church funds, systematically stealing the payment of honor debts, lying, immorality, intoxication and various other things.

The investigating committee, consisting of A. G. Vanderpool, Samuel Cregar, M. Astarian, James Monde, M. S. Peterson, Maximilian Just and Henry Glassford, was appointed by Dr. Potter from among the circle of his own friends.

Mr. Putnam's witnesses were not allowed to testify before it. The committee decided that all the charges were cheap, calling Dr. Potter almost a saint and Mr. Putnam a liar.

The meeting was presided over for a while by Dr. Potter, but at the suggestion of a member of his own committee that his position was indelicate, he retired, and Vanderpool took the chair. Dr. Potter sat beside. A. G. Vanderpool read the report, and in doing so characterized Mr. Putnam as a liar.

Daniel Harding, who has been suspended from membership of the church without the formality of a trial, resented this, and told Mr. Vanderpool the committee had not legally finished its work, as it had not heard Mr. Putnam or his witnesses, and that his abuse of a man behind his back was cowardly in the extreme.

Mr. Vanderpool, Dr. Potter and others then tried to silence Mr. Harding, claiming that he was a suspended member and could not speak.

Mr. Harding said after the meeting that the report of the committee was a bucket of whitewash. Mr. Putnam was summoned to appear before the committee to answer for having violated the rules of the church.

Before the meeting a large crowd had gathered about the church entrance, and police in citizens' dress were stationed at the door to keep out all except members of the church. The members of the press were excluded from the meeting. There were just 98 men and 65 women present.

EMMA VADERS INSANE.

The Popular Actress Again Succumbs to Mental Weakness.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 13.—Miss Emma Vaders, the actress, who for several years was Boucicault's leading lady and afterward served in the same capacity for Joseph Jefferson, while a guest at the Florida House in this city, was attacked with insanity in a mild form, induced by overstudy. She was to have gone out with Thomas W. Keene, beginning her duties on Aug. 28, and was studying hard the role she was to assume.

Her weakened condition, induced by the excessive amount of brain work, caused her physician to warn her against indulging in ocean bathing, but Sunday morning she took a dip in the ocean and immediately after attended services at the Catholic church. During the ceremony she suddenly fainted, and was assisted over to her hotel by several gentlemen and a Mrs. Miller. She had another attack Monday morning and was unconscious for some time. She rallied sufficiently by Tuesday to go out walking, but while on Pacific avenue she dropped over and was assisted home by a policeman.

Yesterday her violence alarmed the other guests of the hotel, and the services of a policeman were called into requisition. His presence seemed to quiet her, and she calmed down somewhat.

In the meantime a friend had notified Miss Vader's father, and he had come down from Philadelphia. He secured a carriage and took his daughter to the Darlington cottage, where she could enjoy the quiet and rest not obtainable in a hotel.

The attacks of weakness have been prevalent ever since two years ago, when she fell in a faint on the stage of the Star theater, New York, while rehearsing as leading lady of Joseph Jefferson. She was obliged to give up that engagement, but she still sticks to her determination to begin work with Keene on Aug. 28.

Bergen County Fears the Sports.

HACKENSACK, N. J., July 13.—The Washington township committee of Bergen county refused to grant permission to the Bergen Driving Park association to hold trotting races on their track near Oradell. The committee feared that after securing the license the owners of the track might accept a big offer from New York sporting men and that bookmakers would soon establish a business. The members of the Driving Park association are reputable residents, and they are indignant.

Why Mr. Eustace Resigned.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 13.—The Hon. A. C. Eustace, when asked about his resignation from the Democratic state committee, said that he had not time to attend to the duties of the position and he was out of politics. Ex-Speaker Bush said, "I do not think Eustace had been consulted much by the state committee since his treachery of last fall."

Another Victim of the Trolley Car.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Another fatal trolley accident occurred in Brooklyn. Maggie Doran, 4 years of age, of 35 Bancroft street, was playing in Fulton street, between Ralph and Howard avenues, when a trolley car of the Brooklyn City Railway company ran over her. She died almost instantly.

A Whole Family Poisoned.

CHARLESTON, July 13.—Isaac Mitchell and his entire family, consisting of five persons, were poisoned. Mitchell and his daughter Ada are dead and the others critically ill. The physicians who made the postmortem agree that the victims died from arsenical poison.

Killed a Deputy Sheriff.

MOBILE, July 13.—The dead body of Deputy Sheriff John W. Thomas was found today in the village of Whisler. There were three bullet wounds on his body, and his skull was crushed. The crime was traced to William D. Deace and John Ryan, who were captured.

Quiet In Rio Grande do Sul.

PARIS, July 13.—Senor Guanabara, the Brazilian delegate to Europe, has made public an official telegram from Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, saying that no conflict has taken place there since the defeated insurgents took refuge in Uruguay.

Spain's Big Exposition.

BALTIMORE, July 13.—Senor Don Carlos Diaz, Spanish consul at this port, has received notice from his government that the universal international exposition at Madrid will open on April 1, 1894, and continue until the following November.

Lord Coleridge Recovers.

LONDON, July 13.—Lord Coleridge, lord chief justice of England, whose sudden illness at the Newcastle assizes yesterday necessitated the adjournment of the court, has entirely recovered.

ACCIDENT ON THE WATER FRONT.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Recent developments, together with the demands of Coroner Hoile, have at last stirred up the department of works, and Chief Burnham had from 100 to 150 men at work upon the ruins today. The debris is being carted away as fast as removed by as many teams as are available, and it is thought that the bottom of the mass will be reached and removed by tonight. It is to be deplored that three nights have passed without the work going on. During this time the meats, lobsters, clams, etc., in the ruins have been decaying rapidly and the stench arising from the ruins is at times unbearable.

If the ruins are not cleared away by this evening it is said the health authorities will take the matter in hand, as the odor is sickening the lodgers in the hotels just outside the grounds on Stony Island avenue, and many of them have threatened to depart.

The list of the victims still increases. The last body recovered from the ruins of the cold storage building swelled the death total to 18, with a large area of debris still unexplored. The remains were those of Ralph A. Drummond, constructing engineer of the Cold Storage company, and were recovered by the victim's two brothers.

It is known that at least two or three and possibly half a dozen more bodies must be yet in the ruins, as the Michigan brewer, the amateur elevator boy and a Columbian guard are still missing.

It appears probable that the families of the victims of the fire will not want for the necessities of life. About $12,000 has been subscribed and subscriptions are still rapidly coming in. It is hoped the total may be swelled to $100,000, as the board of trade promises $10,000, and various large companies have subscription lists well under way.

Crushed Into the Pier.

CHICAGO, July 13.—The arrival of the Viking ship at the Van Buren street pier was marked by an accident that came within an ace of proving the second horror of the week. The small pleasure steamer Imperial, having just taken aboard some 40 or more people for a northbound trip, was hit by the big steamboat Arthur Orr, which came rapidly in behind and crashed full in on the little boat, driving it into the landing for a distance of over 30 feet with a force that made the crunching of the timbers audible a couple of blocks away.

The pier at the time was crowded with people, and their escape was little short of miraculous. One man, name unknown, was caught between the boat and the timbers, and his lower limbs from the hips crushed almost to a jelly.

Several others received contusions of the hands, feet and limbs, but not so serious as to prevent their hobbling away to the nearest drug stores, where they were treated. Henrich Hanson, Mrs. A. Natal and W. Friedrecksen, all middle aged people, were thrown into the water, and rescued only when they were on the point of losing consciousness.

The accident caused a momentary panic among the thousands of spectators, and all the police on duty on the viaduct were massed on the pier to prevent a crash. The injured man was removed in an ambulance to the county hospital.

Warner Holt Reinstated.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Dr. Warner Holt of Missouri, who was dismissed by Commissioner Raum on March 3 last from his position as clerk of class 3 in the pension office because he had stated to Representatives Turner during the last congress that pensions had been granted for baldness, was today reinstated, the substantial truth of his statement having been ascertained.

JAM AT A FUNERAL.

The White Counterpanes Finished to See the Bodies of the Murdered Family.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 13.—The most sensational funeral ever held in this county, if not in the state, was that of Daniel B. Kreider, wife and four children, who were murdered at Cando, N. D., by Albert Bomberger.

The bodies were laid side by side in Rieser's Mennonite meeting house in Mount Joy township, and early in the morning when the doors were opened a steady stream of people poured into the building to get a look at the murdered people.

The roads leading to the church were filled with vehicles, which by the time announced for the services filled every available space within half a mile of the church. It is estimated that there were 3,000 carriages and 15,000 persons present. Owing to the crowd services were held both in and outside the church.

The jam to get into the building to see the victims was so great that many women fainted. Those who got among the crowd were forced in by the pressure, and the only way of exit was through a window. The bodies were laid side by side in one grave 14 feet long and 7½ feet wide.

A Bad, Bad Man on the Beach.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 13.—A peculiar assault was committed on the beach here. Captain Abraham Baker, one of the best known cottagers here, struck an inoffensive young man in the face. In explaining his action, Captain Baker says that he is a man of unusual vigor and vitality and that weaker men are often overcome by him, and that he cannot resist the temptation to punch their heads. The captain says that he is no lunatic, but that he is simply himself at the times. He claims to have killed 16 men in his life, and says he will shoot the first man who attempts to arrest him.

Pennsylvania's Legislatives Salaries.

MANSFIELD, O., July 13.—Sheriff Guthrie of Richland county has been making it lively around the Union depot in this city in levying on rolling stock belonging to the Pennsylvania company to satisfy a judgment for $547,100 issued from the circuit court in the celebrated Coldwater case. He has already levied upon eleven locomotives and eight freight cars and proposes to continue.

A Minister's Tirade In a Barber Shop.

FLEMING, N. Y., July 13.—The worshipers of St. Michael's Catholic church are highly incensed over the utterances of the Rev. Powell Chockley, the new pastor of the First Baptist church. Mr. Chockley was in a barber shop, and while waiting his turn, began a fierce tirade against Catholics and Catholicism.

Kansas to Abandon Prohibition.

TOPEKA, July 13.—In a letter to A. J. Richard of Fort Scott, Attorney General Little intimates that the state administration has thrown prohibition overboard and will use the machinery of the state to enforce it. He says that several cities, unable to meet their taxes, are asking that saloons be licensed.

Sexton Will Appeal.

LONDON, July 13.—Mr. Sexton gave notice in the commons that he would move the adoption of a resolution declaring that the chairman of the committee of the whole had misused the powers of his office in suspending him for resenting the assertion that the Irish were garrulous and impecunious.

Had to Forge Checks or Starve.

BOSTON, July 13.—Herman Haminn, a young German from New York city, is under arrest here on the charge of forgery. He admits forging five checks and receiving goods or money for them, but claims that it was a question of doing that or starving, as he could not get work.

A Woman Commits Suicide.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y., July 13.—Annie B. Boyce, 30 years old, unmarried, and who resided with her uncle at Sprakers, N. Y., while demented cut her throat with a razor. Both her jugular veins and her windpipe were severed.

GOOD HEALTH

CURE FOR CORPULENCE.

A Well Known Parisian Specialist's Course For Useless Fluids.

The following is recommended by Dr. DuJardin-Beaumetz for the reduction of corpulence by persons whose hearts and arteries are sound: Every morning a general bath sponging with hot eau de cologne and water, followed by dry rubbing and massage. A tumblerful of purgative water is then administered. At the end of each meal a dessertspoonful of the following solution is swallowed: Fifteen grams of iodide of potassium and 250 grams of water. The undermentioned regimen is to be rigorously observed: First meal, at 6 a. m., a cup of chocolate and 30 grams of bread. Second meal, two eggs or 100 grams of meat, 100 grams of green vegetables or salad, 15 grams of cheese, 15 grams fruit, 30 grams of bread, one glass and a half of liquid (a light white wine with Vichy water). Third meal, at 2 p. m., no soup, 100 grams of meat, 100 grams of green vegetables or salad, 15 grams of cheese, fruit, 30 grams of bread, one glass and a half of liquid (white wine with Vichy water). No drinking between meals, no tea, coffee, cognac or other alcoholic beverage. Plenty of exercise in the open air.

Poison Versus Venom.

It is common to hear people talk about "poisonous" serpents. Quite to the contrary are the following remarks of a physician quoted by the New Orleans Picayune:

"Serpents are never poisonous; they are venomous. A poison cannot be taken internally by God either; it is venom only. Venoms to be effective have to be injected directly into the circulation, and this is the manner in which the snakes kill. Their venom, taken internally, is innocuous.

"Another popular error is the supposition that a snake bites. Probably no creature in the world provided with teeth and jaws has so little power of biting. The jaws are not hinged, but are attached one to the other by cartilage. Thus a snake can have no leverage in opposing one jaw to the other and could not in this manner pierce the skin. The fangs are driven into the flesh by a stroke and not by a bite. A snake is harmless unless in coil. From its coil it throws its head and body forward, and strikes or hooks its fangs into the object aimed at. The entire work is done with the upper jaw, the lower jaw having nothing at all to do with it. A man striking a boatlook into a pier furnishes an example of the way in which a snake strikes. Biting is a physical impossibility."

To Keep Ice in the Sickroom.

Cut a piece of clean flannel (white is best) about 10 inches or more square. Place this over the top of a glass pitcher, or even a tumbler, pressing the flannel down half way or more into the vessel. Then bind the flannel fast to the top of the glass with a string or piece of tape. Now put the ice into the flannel cup and lay another piece of flannel 6 inches square upon the ice. Arranged thus, says American Cultivator, ice will keep many hours.

Limewater is a safe remedy for the acidity that creates what is known in the old fashioned phrase as "sick stomach."

For catarrh snuff up considerable salt and water from the hollow of the hand every morning. Salt and water, used to gargle just before going to bed, strengthens the throat and helps to prevent bronchial troubles. It is also excellent for sore throat.

For neuralgia rub a small mouthful beef fill it with salt, heat it very hot and lay it against the aching place. It will prove a great relief, as salt retains the heat a long time.

When suffering from oversatisfied and tired eyes, bathe them in hot water several times a day.

ETIQUETTE

AT HOME DAYS.

"As Honored" a Clear Gain as Compared With Calls Paid Against Them.

Afternoon calling is not exactly what it was when the present generation were children and when their mothers paid and received calls. In those days "at home days" were unknown and afternoon at homes singularly few. Afternoon calls were made in the expectation of finding people at home, which explains why so many really realized by the afternoon drive ladies had but few engagements. A change has come over the spirit of the age, and the restless desire to be here, there and everywhere, to be doing something, seeing something or organizing something, leaves little leisure or inclination for sitting quietly at home to be called upon in a desultory manner by friends and acquaintances. Then it came about that afternoon calling gradually developed into afternoon card leaving. Society was seldom or never at home to callers, and they considered it rather a bore when it was. Four calls in one afternoon of 20 minutes' length took up an hour and 20 minutes at least, added to which the distance to be got over from house to house nearly exhausted the calling hours, and a large circle of acquaintances could hardly be called upon within a couple of months at this rate of progress.

Calling became irksome and dull, and society ladies with much to get through were more surprised than pleased to find their friends at home. A short visit was discourteous, a long visit meant a tax upon time, and thus "at home days" gradually came to the rescue. They were at first protested against and pronounced rather bad style than not, but they were a useful institution. They supplied a need. They bound society together. They made the day and became generally accepted. Most ladies have three or four "at home days" to attend every day more or less. They go early to one and late to another and take them all in turn. They know the hostess will be at home to them, and not only can they have a few minutes' talk with her, but they can also see from 20 to 30 friends and acquaintances at each house during their short stay. The host is also not infrequently visible and has a pleasant word to say to his wife's friends. Then, too, agreeable men drop in occasionally. Thus it may be said that "at homes" and "at home days" are a clear gain as compared with afternoon calls paid against time.

LOOK OUT!

Or you might burn your fingers. People need to be careful what they handle nowadays, especially on the way of Carriages. Quite a lot of them are made to sell. Not to wear. Ours are made to wear when we sell them or not. Seems are made to look well at the expense of good material. Ours are guaranteed to wear well and keep their good shape. Our Carriages are made to order to allow the dealer an enormous profit, which has become a nuisance at many of them. Ours are offered at a small profit, with which we are well content, as we have a reputation to keep up. Do you see the difference? If you do, you can also see that it is to your benefit to deal with us.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

MONSIEUR CHANG.

M. Chang, who not long ago was decorated by the emperor of China with the "blue button," is credited with being the tallest man in the world. This, also is 9 feet tall, strangely enough was born in China, the inhabitants of which are a race small in stature. Chang isn't his native country in 1864. He is a great traveler, having visited nearly all the countries of the world, and of all of them he possesses a knowledge that is sometimes startling. His English is as perfect as if to the manner born. His French is that of the Parisian. He also speaks German, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese. Naturally he speaks Chinese, so that in all he can converse fluently and, it is said, without saying, intelligently in seven languages.

ENTEE CHANG, THE CHINESE GIANT.

Chang has appeared before Queen Victoria three times. He has also appeared before Emperor Wilhelm I of Germany and was present at several receptions given by Napoleon III. He is as modest as he is tall and as the following anecdote will show, he possesses a fine share of the quality of magnetism that makes firm friends of those with whom he comes in close contact.

Chang is married. His wife is an Australian woman. She is also 9 feet tall. Of both boys, one 20, the other 14 years old. Chang almost fractures when he tells how his eldest boy reaches to his shoulder, and says, "I believe he will be taller than I am." If he be prouder of anything than the boy, it is of the "blue button" that has been presented to him by the emperor of China. He only wears the cap on which he has placed it on state occasions.

Story of a Dog and Her Pups.

As two men were riding by the side of a stream in California they saw in front of them a dog and her fawn drinking at a point where the banks were steep and the water was deep. Startled at the unlooked for appearance of human beings, the two animals intended to dart off, but in turning the fawn missed its footing and slipped into the river. The current was running very strongly and bore the fawn down stream rapidly.

Instead of the mother following her young, she turned and ran back to the men, and, standing on the bank, looked at them and then at the fawn, which was struggling in the water. Then she STREETS LIKE RIVERS.

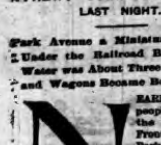
A HEAVY DOWNPOUR OF RAIN LAST NIGHT.

Park Avenue a Miniature River.—Under the Railroad Bridges the Water was About Three Feet Deep and Wagons Became Boats.



NEARLY a dozen people stood at the corner of Front street and Park avenue last night during the deluge, and one expressed the idea of all when he wished for a steam launch to carry him across Park avenue.

The heavy thunder storm was accompanied by terrific lightning. Under the Central avenue, and Watchung avenue railroad bridges the water was from two to three feet deep also.

Under the Watchung avenue bridge the water was so deep that a park phaeton was filled with water as it was driven through by a young man in the employ of Mr. Hedden.

During the height of the storm a bicyclist, hurrying home, turned the corner from North avenue into Watchung, at a high rate of speed. As he struck the water there was a splash and the air seemed to be full of flying legs and arms for a second. He swam ashore, using his wheel as a life preserver. At the corner of Front street and Grant avenue the street was covered with water to the depth of six or eight inches. The street railway tracks were buried in the loose sand washed up by the rain, and as a result one of the street cars ran off the track. Shovels were procured and the sand dug away from the rails.

The Grant avenue road bed was some what damaged with washouts, and the loose dirt covering was completely washed away.

Lightning struck a house on Ninth street, belonging to Mr. James Martine and occupied by a family named Dwyer.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 14.—A cloud burst just over Finderne, one mile east of here, let a great amount of water fall in a few minutes. The roads were washed out and fields of grain leveled to the earth. A passing train was caught in the deluge, and the water forced itself into the cars while all the windows and doors were closed. Not a drop of rain fell here at the time.

The Late Ex-Postmaster Force Buried.

The funeral of the late William L. Force, who was one of the proprietors of the Daily Press establishment, took place yesterday afternoon, from the City Hotel.

The body lay in one of the rooms on the second story, and those who were present to pay their last respects to the deceased were distributed about in the various rooms on the first and second floors. The Plainfield Exempt Firemen occupying the parlor and Jerusalem Lodge, F. & A. M. the dining room.

There was a profusion of floral tributes about the coffin from kindred and friends.

Rev. Dr. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which the wife of deceased is a member, opened the services with the usual scriptural reading, and preached a funeral sermon. He was followed by Rev. Mr. Schenck, who led in prayer, and when he had concluded, those present were invited to view the body, which they did and passed out.

The Free Masons followed in charge of the remains and marched to the grave, with the Exempt Firemen as an escort.

At the grave the regular Masonic burial service was conducted by Jerusalem Lodge.

Immediately after Mr. Force's death his brother hurried to New York to have an official from an accident insurance company come and view the remains to satisfy himself that Mr. Force's death was caused by the runaway accident, as has already been reported.

Deceased had his life insured in favor of his wife for $10,000, according to report, and Mr. A. L. Force's promptness was to save the widow future trouble, in case there should be any question raised as to the cause of death.

The match games will be interesting and a large gathering is expected as many friends of the out of town clubs will attend.

The interchange set of the Plainfield, N. J., club has two or three of the finest snow scenes it has ever been the fortune of the editor of the Dredger to see—and that is saying a good deal. They were the work of Mr. G. H. Babcock. For softness, depth, delicacy and sharpness of detail, they could not be excelled. The two striking pictures were taken just after a heavy fall of damp snow, before the succeeding wind had risen to shake the white masses from the tree branches. The result was an effect very like white foliage, and it was simply exquisite—The Dredger.

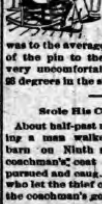
The Weather Yesterday.



HOW hot is it, anyhow? was the constant query yesterday, and the question was answered by almost everybody mopping of face and neck. Now, while yesterday was not the hottest to scorch Old Nick" it was to the average mortal, like the point of the pin to the man who sat on it—very uncomfortable. But it was only 86 degrees in the shade.

Scole His Coat and Pants.

About half-past nine o'clock this morning a man walked into Mr. Herring's barn on Ninth street, and stole the coachman's coat and pants. He was pursued and caught by Jeremiah Moore, who let the thief off after recovering the the coachman's goods.

Woodruff Beats Campbell.

The shooting match for $100 a side between Harry Campbell of this city and Aaron Woodruff of Newark at Trombly Point, yesterday, was attended by a large number of Plainfield sportsmen. Woodruff won, killing 28 to Campbell's 21.

A Hail Storm at Springdale.

Springdale, formerly known as "Dog Watch Hollow," a little village over second mountain, was visited yesterday by a terrific hail storm, which lasted only a few moments. It did considerable damage to growing crops.

Burned by Hot Iron.

A colored man, named Pryor, was badly burned on the foot, at the Pond Works, Wednesday, by molten iron falling on it. He was taken home in an express wagon. The injured man lives on West Third street.

NOW FULLY ORGANIZED.

THE BOARD OF TRADE IS READY FOR BUSINESS.

The By-Laws Adopted as Amended.—The Object of the Board is to Promote Plainfield's Business Interests.—The Building Soon to be Opened.

MERELY completed organization of all the Board of Trade did last evening. President Rockefellow presided. Sixteen members were present, a question of the reading of the minutes was dispensed with. As several changes had been made in the by-laws they were read as amended and adopted.

The objects of the Board are to promote the business interests in Plainfield and the city's good in general. Persons over 21 years of age are eligible to membership. An application for membership must be signed by the proposer and by one other member of the Board. The initiation fee is $10.

On motion the by-laws were amended so that six members of the board of Directors shall constitute a quorum. The by laws were then adopted and signed by the following members:

C. H. Rockefellow, Geo. Hanks,
E. R. Pope, G. G. Tucker,
John Duane, L. B. Woolston,
W. H. Codrington, A. L. Force,
J. H. Coward, P. W. Runyon,
Elston M. French, W. A. McClurg,
C. A. Cox, Geo. Griffen,
Geo. W. Kyle, Geo. D. Halleck.

Ex Judge W. R. Codrington, counsel for the Board, reported that the articles of incorporation had been filed with the county clerk and the Secretary of State.

The Board then reported that they were ready to open the building as soon as the keys were handed over.

The Board then adjourned.

BREVITIES.

—A horse attached to a baker wagon ran away on Cottage place this morning. No damage resulted.

—Weather Prophet Hicks has a storm set down for next Sunday. He pronounces it a big one.

—One of the officers of the Street Railway Company says the cars will be running on Somerset street by August 1st.

—Messrs. Van Emburg & Son find themselves cramped for room sometimes to display all their bargains. See their advertisement

—Ex-ball player William Lee has a yellow card on his house on West Third street indicating that there is a contagious disease therein.

—A small village in the North of Wales, from which, it is said, the parents of a local physician came, is spelled "Llanfearnsalmenmochnent."

—A peddler's horse dropped dead on South avenue, near the Netherwood station, last evening. The animal had evidently been over-driven.

—Saturday is going to be a big day in the Firemen's contest. Get THE NEWS every night. If not already a subscriber send in your name and address.

—The case of Miss Smith against Mr. Lederer for wages, was to have been tried before Justice Mosher, yesterday, but was postponed to Thursday, July 20.

—There is a quartette of singers among the employes of the Metropolitan stables on North avenue which for melody can equal almost anything in the city.

—The last Saturday night dance will be given at the Park Club to-morrow night. The Fourth of July decorations are still in the club house, but will be taken down after to-morrow night.

—"Yes, I believe in the eight-hour system," said a Clark township farmer. "I work nearly eight hours in the forenoon and eight in the afternoon. In haying time I sometimes put in an hour extra."

—The directors have decided that the Waverly Fair will be held the first week in September, and not the middle week as heretofore. They think there is less risk of storm, and perhaps it will be a little in advance of some other fairs.

—The Washington avenue culvert, on the North Plainfield side of the bridge, was stopped up last night. Consequently the water backed up on the sidewalk and flooded the street during the storm. This left the sidewalks covered with mud.

—The great clearing sale at Werner's Mammoth Clothing House is said to be a great opportunity to secure bargains in Summer clothing. There are a few hot months in the long Autumn season yet, during which time Summer clothing is worn.

—"Gamey" Nelson of the alley near the race, had some friends visit him on Tuesday evening, and one of them became so obnoxious to the neighbors that a general fight was threatened. James Scott acted as peacemaker and set things right.

—There was a narrow escape from an accident at the North avenue station this morning. The 11.34 train started off as passengers were in the act of getting aboard. The engineer said the whistle blew of its own accord signalling him to go ahead.

—A prominent lady of Plainfield told a NEWS reporter that she had commenced, Tuesday, saving her coupons and intended to give them to some competing firemen when she had secured enough. She does not know any of them personally, but respects them all, and will give as fancy dictates.

THAT 25-MILE ROAD RACE.

Saturday, August 26 Selected as the Date for the Meet.

WE ARE to have a road race under the auspices of a Plainfield club. At last night's meeting of the Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers, it was decided to hold a 25-mile road race over the Fanwood-Scotch Plains course on Saturday August 26. The start will be made at two o'clock in the afternoon, from Scott's Press Works. Prizes will be offered and are solicited by the Cyclers from all Plainfield merchants. The entries will close Monday, August 21, with Captain Kiely.

The Crescent Wheelmen held a meeting at their new rooms on North avenue last night. Five propositions for membership were received.

The 100-mile road race of the Atalanta Wheelmen will take place to-morrow, and the indications are that it will be a grand contest. The course will be from Newark to Asbury Park, by way of Plainfield, and return. The start will be made from Newark at eight a. m.

—A sister, a cousin, an aunt, a mother-in-law, anyone you wish of the feminine persuasion, residing anywhere in or near New York, or in, or near Plainfield, can make use of Saturday's EVENING NEWS.

Base Ball Notes.

The Middletown Asylum team defeated the Crescents at Middletown, N. Y., yesterday, but not until the home boys had given them a hard fight against great odds. The umpiring was, as is expected by all visiting clubs at Middletown, very much on the home order and several runs were scored on very questionable decisions. The game was lost before the sixth inning, by Wilson, the new pitcher, who was given a trial. Keenan went in to pitch in that inning and held them down to three hits. Sneden distinguished himself with a clean home run, and the team put up an errorless game. The score by innings was as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Crescents	0	0	0	2	0	3	0	1	1—7

The Westfields will be here to-morrow and come, Manager Bolger thinks, ready to get even for their previous defeat. The batting order of the Crescents will be as follows: Smith, s.s.; Martin, 2b.; Turner, p.; Murphy, c.f.; Maldoon, l.f.; Sneden, r.f.; Keenan, 3b.; Jones, 1b.; Fritz, c.

A Plainfielder in a "Boat" with His Best Girl.

"On the night of the 4th, a young man and his girl from Plainfield, who had come to witness the pyrotechnical exhibition, thinking it would be pleasant and more secluded upon the water, engaged one of Oviedi's boats, and after rowing about for some time the young man proposed to go ashore and have some cream, to which the lady readily assented. After refreshments they returned to the shore but the boat had disappeared, and seeing another close at hand they broke it loose and rowed away. Upon returning they found the owner very mad, who demanded two dollars as compensation for his boat. The young fellow pulled a one dollar bill from his pocket and said that was all the money he had, but gave his name and address and promised to send the balance by mail. In due time a letter was received begging to be let off as he had paid pretty well for boating. He was let off."

—If you are not going to New York next week, but have a friend there, get Saturday's EVENING NEWS and send it. Your friend will be obliged to you.

To Install Goodwill's Officers.

District Deputy Edward Bowman of Goodwill Lodge, No. 101, K. of P., assisted by Crescent Division, No. 13 U. R. K. of P. of this city will install the officers of Goodwill Lodge of Scotch Plains this evening. Grand Chancellor Walter Hayhurst of Lambertville will be present, and members of the lodges in this city will go up in stages.

Four Classes of Men.

An Arabic philosopher has classed men into four kinds:

He who knows not, and knows not that he knows not. He is a fool; shun him.

He who knows not, and knows that he knows not. He is simple; teach him.

He who knows, and knows not he knows. He is asleep; wake him.

He who knows, and knows he knows. He is wise; follow him. B. A.

—The "section" in "Letter Carriers' How" is occupied every pleasant evening by a bevy of colored people who discuss Cleveland's proclamation, the silver bill, and the matter of cutting off the pension of old soldiers.

—It is now claimed that the gum on the obverse side of the Columbian stamps is medicated and warranted to cure catarrh, hence up a torpid liver, destroy the appetite for alcohol, morphine and tobacco, relieve that tired feeling, cure warts and kill delinquent somerblue. So says the Paris Jervis Gazette, and the New Brunswick Times believes that it would also kill potato bugs.

A QUESTION ANSWERED

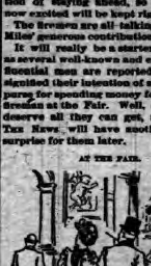
A DECISION REGARDING EXEMPT FIREMEN.

Firemen Saltzman and Smith Still Ahead.—Surprises Expected Saturday.—Possibilities of a Quadruple Purse with the Girls.

MAN Saltzman is still in the lead as soon to day and Mr. Smith is pressing him hard. But there is a contest like this "you can't always sometimes tell," and several firemen are said to be coming to the front in the race Saturday. The present leaders also agree as interested in the staying sheet, so the interest now excited will be kept right up.

The firemen are all talking about Mr. Miles' generous contribution of $10.

It will really be a starter for a purse, as several well-known exempt firemen's Social men are reported as having signified their intention of adding to the purse for spending money for the lucky fireman at the Fair. Well, our firemen deserve all they can get, and perhaps the Tug Wars will have another pleasant surprise for them later.



AT THE FAIR.

The Standing.

August 30 is the date for the Tug-of-War contest, as announced by the committee.

The question is asked us by exempt firemen whether they will be permitted to participate in the contest. We can see no good reason why they should not be. The offer is made to firemen, and no distinction has been made by us as to whether they are exempt or active, so long as they are recognized by the firemen themselves as firemen. We want to have everybody satisfied, and cannot imagine that city recruit would be so unfair as to object to exempts. The contest is done his service faithfully, and earned the honor which the faithful recruit—in other words, the "active"—is striving for. We must not forget those who have served us faithfully, any more than we would forget those who now serve us. It would not be grateful. Therefore until we have some good reason to the contrary there will be no distinction between the firemen, whether active or exempt.

The vote at noon to-day.

From time to time more interesting particulars of what the trip means for the winner will be published. Be sure and get THE NEWS every night.

So far it is anybody's election.

The general scramble among the awarding of THE EVENING NEWS' World's Fair excursion are as follows:

Any fireman of this vicinity is eligible.

Coupons must be clipped from the columns of THE EVENING NEWS and filled out with the full name of the fireman and the fire company to which he belongs.

If a number of coupons are sent at once and are intended to be cast for one individual, it will be necessary to fill out only one coupon, though all the coupons should be placed in one envelope.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Manly Virtues in Youth.

An exquisite little book entitled "Youth" has lately been written by a French author, Charles Wagner. It has been translated into English by Ernest Red wood, and the rare spirit of the original has been well preserved in the translation. To young people who think they have the toughest times anybody ever did have, to the grand young souls full of noble aspiration for the future, to the sensitive boys and girls who are lashed to the quick every day by the coarse grained and ill tempered people with whom they must be thrown, we command the following:

When the fresh, generous, susceptible heart of youth comes in contact with rough and often pitiless life, how it suffers! What an experience it goes through! The youth of to-day has alive nerves but knows it. We say to it: Love it, love this suffering, which comes from the contact of the soul. Do not grow cold into your inmost soul and consider its slightest stirrings.

Let it be the cry of alarm which arouses you to resistance, to combat, to a search for something better. Yes will then know pain as a deliverer. It forces strength from its chains. Through this holy grief of youth, oppressed and suffering from injustice which the strongest inflict upon the weaker, learn to love the best better. Do not act like the new boys at certain schools, who, when they are harassed by their elders, resolve to harass in their turn their juniors. Let sorrow teach you pity and draw you nearer those who suffer and are afflicted—the weak, the poor, all who are forgotten. Then it will unveil grand and hidden things to you.

Pain a good thing to bear the yoke when one is young. The burden of happy days is very heavy to without force. The experience comes to our aid. Let us rather desire a little trouble. It is more salutary. It hardens the will, toughens the skin and makes the heart better. Then it is more manly, more in conformity with what a young man should wish—that is, to labor while he is young. At last the winter of years comes a man. Take the best men of the present and past. They have all suffered hardships and they boast of it. We recall more willingly the days when we have been hungry and have slept on a hard bed, perhaps beneath the stars. I do not wish any one to undergo hardship cold—in short, to suffer—but a little trouble and hardship are as salt for youth.

The Choctaw Nation.

If a weary and disgruntled individual wanted to retire and hide himself from the world, he could not go to a better place than to the reservation of gentle Choctaw Indians in the southeast corner of Indian Territory. There are still 10,000,000 acres of unoccupied land, and the Choctaws welcome the white man, particularly if he will hustle and help develop their country—a work, by the way, which they are too lazy to do for themselves. They are fonder of hunting and fishing than of hoeing corn.

The white hermit would not be crowded. There are only 15,000 Choctaws, counting straight whites, half breeds, negroes and all. Ten years ago the population numbered 14,800. The Indian is vanishing off the face of the earth. Choctaw streams abound with fish of many choice varieties. The woods are full of game of several kinds, which it is the hunter's delight to shoot. Wild turkeys are still to be found there, and in the mountains are bear, deer, panthers and wolves.

The soil is of extraordinary fertility, growing the products of the temperate zone, with an inclination to those of the tropics. The only industry in which the Choctaws engage to any great extent is the rearing of cattle and ponies. When milk is wanted for the Indian family, a cow with a young calf is driven up to headquarters, where the calf and the squaw milk her at once and the same time. This is the jolly Choctaw way of carrying on the dairy business.

It is the boast of the officers of a fully equipped modern steamship that she is safer than a railway train. She is provided with every known appliance for comfort and security. Nothing is more impressive than her array of lifeboats and rafts, gayly painted and sworn up in clean rig. There are gurgoyles on the mats, so called, warranted to stop out the water from any hole. But it takes in some cases 15 minutes to lower these fancy boats. It takes full 10 minutes to get a collision mat into position. In eight minutes after the awful hole was torn in the Victoria's side she had sunk and disappeared forever. In case of sudden danger the beautiful boats and collision mats are of no value at all. It is true that a tremendous blow is required to tear open a steel ship's side, but it has been shown that if the blow comes from exactly the right direction even a wooden ship can knock a hole in an iron steamer. With the great weight of the metal ship, with the huge weight of her machinery, she goes to the bottom before any of the devices of puny man can be made available.

What a ram equipped cruiser can do to an enemy was thoroughly exemplified by what one did to its friend and sister ship in the awful disaster of the Camperdown and Victoria. The ram bow as a weapon of defense and offense is more effective than the torpedo.

The resolution of the Society of the Army of the Potomac, recommending that the United States government buy the Gettysburg battlefield and make of it a national park, is wise. That is what should be done with Gettysburg.

Surgery is a progressive science. Mortality in cases of amputation is now but 6 per cent. Thirty years ago 50 per cent of cases were fatal.

The scientific name for the fast bicycle rider's carved back is "Kyphosis bicyclistarium," and it ought to be an effective cure.

VICTIMS OF THE CRASH

FIVE KILLED, TWENTY-SEVEN HURT.

Those Who Were Killed but Near Each Other In the Fatal Car—The Coroner Solver's His Jury—Names of the Killed and Injured.

NEWBURG, N. Y., July 14.—The list of persons killed by the wreck of the express train in the freight yards here still includes some unidentified bodies. The dead are:

Mrs. Elba Klemm, wife of Antoine Klemm, of Highland Falls, N. Y. She was coming to Newburg to do some shopping. Both her legs were broken and she was internally injured. She was dead when taken from the wreck.

An unknown woman, apparently about 24 years old of Hebrew cast of countenance. She had an open faced gold watch and chain, turquoise ear drops and wore a blue calico dress with white stripes.

An unknown woman with gray hair, stout, about 5 feet high and well dressed. She wore a spotted calico dress with pink and white spots, and blue trimming on the front of the bodice. She had on same hose.

Rose Reilly. She lived as a cook with a family of the name of Smith at West Park and was identified by Mr. Smith.

Mrs. R. Wright of 86 Lee avenue, Brooklyn, mother of Mrs. Mayland, who with several of her children were injured.

In the confusion articles that might have aided in the identification were separated from the bodies, and not until the coroner makes his inquiry will the names of the unknown dead be positively known. A library book belonging to the Working Girls' Club of Newark, N. J., was found among the articles. On the card in the book was the name Miss Mary Mayland.

The following were injured:

Charles Willis of New Durham, fireman on passenger engine; ruptured blood vessel in right breast, legs severely injured. Is expected to recover.

Fred Holland of New Durham, engineer of freight train; had skull fractured at base and injured internally; not expected to live.

John Robinson, 21 years old of 317 West Seventeenth, New York city: left leg broken, cheek bone fractured, shoulder dislocated, ear badly lacerated.

C. G. Staines (refused to give address), about 30 years old: internal injuries. Recovery doubtful. He is a large man with a black mustache. He is thought to be a commercial traveler.

Five members of a family of Italians, all of them of 50 Lee avenue, Brooklyn—mother and four children—were also more or less injured. Mrs. Michael Cassi was cut on the head: Fannie was bruised on the cheek; Julia, 10 years old, arm and leg fractured; Lilly, thigh fractured and bruised.

Judge Charles F. Ruh of Union Hill, N. J., who was on the way to Catskill to meet his family: scalp wound and leg broken.

V. E. Hardy of 287 Hart street, Brooklyn: leg broken.

Mrs. W. H. Harvey, whose husband is in business at 128 Pearl street, New York: leg broken and head cut.

Minnie Everly (colored) of Charleston: head cut and bruised; internal injuries. Recovery probable. She was on way to Cornwallis.

Burnham Riverson and wife of Setauket, L. I., parents of the child killed. Mr. Riverson had one of his arms broken and severe bruises, and Mrs. Riverson's left knee was fractured and she was cut on the head. Their child's body has been kept from them on account of their condition.

H. G. Beauchamp, editor of the Fayetteville (N. Y.) Recorder and wife were thrown over six seats, but escaped with slight injuries.

The Rev. E. D. Curtis, colored, pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Catskill; hurt about head.

Frank C. Berger of West Haverstraw; severe bruises on the leg and cut on the head.

George C. Horobin of Cornwall: foot seriously injured.

John Foster of Cornwall: thumb wrenched.

Walter Brundage of Cornwall; slightly cut about body.

Edward Pierson of Cornwall: leg hurt.

George W. Kent of Cornwall; slightly cut about the body.

Twenty-one of the wounded were taken to St. Luke's hospital, in Liberty street, this city, where the surgical staff, headed by Dr. E. H. Nove, is affording all possible relief. The nurses are assisted by a number of ladies and gentlemen of Newburg. Several who were slightly injured walked away and their names were not obtained.

Coroner John Corwin was notified and proceeded to hold an inquest. Division Superintendent Watson of the West Shore railroad hurried to Newburg on a special locomotive, and took charge of the work of clearing away the wreck. He visited the hospital afterward, and in behalf of the company told Dr. Borst to give the wounded all possible care, and provide whatever was needed for their treatment. The dead bodies were removed to the undertaker's establishment and held to be claimed by friends.

It was one of the most extraordinary accidents recorded in the annals of railroading. The train was composed of five cars—a baggage car, smoker, two day coaches and a parlor car. Of the 32 passengers on the train nearly all of those injured occupied the middle car.

The train was slightly behind time leaving Cornwall, the first station below Newburg, and was running at a high rate of speed approaching the latter station. The switch that runs into the freight yards at Newburg leaves the main track about 200 feet below the south end of the West Shore tunnel and takes a sharp curve. The switch to some mysterious way was responsible for the accident.

Coroner Corwin empaneled the following jury: James Hastings, foreman; John S. Wilson, Joseph Hampson, Richard Samuel, James Fitzgerald, Charles H. Van Gorden, William H. B. Sands, William H. Pope, Boardman S. Brown. The jury held a session, looked over the ground at the wreck and adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Another Wash Out Discovered.

MILWAUKEE, July 14.—James G. Jenkins, the United States circuit court judge who is under indictment here on the charge of bank wrecking in connection with the directory of the Plankinton bank, said that he had no idea he was to be indicted. Had he received the least intimation of the fact he would have immediately resigned his seat on the circuit court bench.

Dr. Mayham's Arrest.

RAHWAY, N. J., July 14.—The Rev. Dr. L. C. Mayham was arrested for assault and battery on a warrant issued by Police Justice Fraser. Several complaints of Thomas Fagan, the 16-year-old boy whom the Rev. Mayham is alleged to have kicked and abused on Sunday, are on file. The latter was at work in the new Second Methodist Episcopal church.

THE CHICAGO VICTIMS.

The Funeral Services Over the Unidentified Dead.

CHICAGO, July 14.—Preparations for the funeral of the unidentified dead of Monday's fire have been completed. The funeral procession will leave the fire engine house, corner Cottage Grove avenue and Forty-third street, this afternoon. There will be eight caskets placed on a catafalque of black, drawn by eight black horses. A detail from the fire department will be present, and a company of the Columbian guards under Colonel Rice, who will be marshal of the procession. Fine music will be furnished by the exposition. Besides citizens there will be such civic societies in which the dead had membership. Ceremonies of the Catholic church will be held at the church of Rev. Father Hischen, on the corner of Oakwood avenue.

Over $50,000 has thus far been raised for the relief of the widows and orphans.

The seventeenth body recovered was positively identified as that of Charles Ivy. Four men were put at work at the presence of guards was really superfluous, because the odor from the ruins is sufficient guard against the entrance of visitors.

CARL SCHURZ'S NIECE.

CHICAGO, July 14.—A sensation was caused in the insane court here by the case of Henry Schurz, who, it was testified under oath, is a niece of Carl Schurz, former secretary of the interior. The young woman, a sister to the wife of Schurz, was shipped from Pirmesburg, Germany, by relatives, and arrived in New York four weeks ago, where she wandered for 14 days without food. At last her brother, Fritz Schurz of that city, sent her on to Chicago, and she was found in a pitiful condition by the police.

When examined, Henry Schurz of 913 Clybourne avenue, was apprised of the fact he brought her to the Detention hospital. As she was not a resident of the county Dr. Henry refused to send her to an asylum. Her brother Henry refused to care for her, but the judge gave the brother the choice of doing better or being indicted for abandonment. The woman has been insane for years, it is said. The brother finally took the woman away.

Ward's Bank Safe Contained Little.

BUFFALO, July 14.—The safe in Ward's bank at Forestville has been opened at last. Only $11 in cash was discovered, mostly in silver and pennies. Very few securities were found. Certificates representing several thousand shares of mining stock, which are considered valueless, are all the assets now known. The known liabilities are somewhat over $100,000. It is doubtful if the depositors will ever receive over 10 or 15 per cent.

Wrecks and Men In a Wreck.

COLUMBUS Ind., July 14.—At Henryville, Ind., a special freight ran into a regular freight. George Shirley and Brookbank, engineer and fireman, were fatally hurt. A carload of horses from the racecourse here were mangled in the wreck. A man named Rayburn of New Albany, in charge of another car of horses, was killed.

Searching For Dead Outlaws.

RICHMOND, July 14.—As a result of the battle between a posse and the Flemming outlaws in Wisconsin county, Va., Cal and Hennen Flemming, the leaders of the notorious gang, are dead. Both of the dead men are being kept in hiding by their pals. Officers are searching for the bodies and hunting down the rest of the gang.

A Man Fatally Burned.

CINCINNATI, July 14.—At the Richmond street branch of the convent of Notre Dame several of the nuns returning late from a picnic desired to prepare refreshments. One of them, Sister Cotavia, lighted a gasoline stove, and it exploded, burning her so terribly that she cannot survive many hours.

A Rapid Transit Ultimatum.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The rapid transit commissioners decided not to grant the 60 days extension asked by the Manhattan company's committee, but to fix Aug. 17 as the day on or before which the company must either accede to one of the two propositions on hand or break off negotiations.

Nicaragua Canal Company Stop Work.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The Herald says this morning that the Nicaragua Canal Construction company is out of funds and has stopped all work upon the Nicaragua canal. It has been known in this city that the company has been affected by the general stringency in the money market.

PROGRESS OF TWO BILLS

Home Rule Clauses Forced Through.

MAJORITY FOR THE ARMY BILL.

LONDON, July 14.—The galleries of the house were crowded with persons eager to watch the work of the government in forcing through clause 9, 10, 18, 23, 24, 25 and 26 of the home rule bill. The peers' gallery was filled even earlier.

Chairman Mellor applied the closure to the debate on an amendment proposing the omission of the "in and out" provision, which forbids Irish members of the imperial parliament to vote on Irish questions. The closure was carried by a vote of 328 to 286 amid loud opposition cheers. Clause 9, which provides for the representation in parliament of Irish counties and boroughs, was then adopted by a vote of 328 to 287.

As Chairman Mellor proceeded to put the question on clause 10, the first of the financial clauses, the Conservatives, after clearing derisively, left the house in a body.

The government's proposal that the consideration of clause 10 be postponed was then passed by a vote of 302 to 69. The clauses numbered 11, 17, 20 and 21 were postponed by almost equally heavy majorities. By the time clause 18, concerning the powers of the Irish, was reached the Conservatives had returned. The clause was carried by a vote of 328 to 294.

Clause 23, concerning the Irish exchequer judges; clause 24, concerning appeals from Irish courts; clause 25, concerning provision for the decision of constitutional questions; clause 26, concerning the office of lord lieutenant of Ireland, and clause 27, concerning the use of crown lands by the Irish government; clause 28, concerning the tenure of future judges.

Then the house in committee began discussing clause 37, which, with the 13 following clauses, must be got out of the way before 4 o'clock next midnight or else next Thursday evening, if the government programme is to be executed.

There were no exciting scenes during the closing hours of the session. Mr. Gladstone voted in every one of the numerous divisions. While the house was quite mild, excitement pervaded the crowd in the outer lobby, and the police there were obliged to make special provisions for preserving order.

The closing scenes of the evening were observed from the gallerien by Thomas F. Bayard, United States ambassador, and the Duke and Duchess of [illegible].

The Times says that the government, following the precedent set by the Tories in 1887, will cut short the report stage of the home rule bill.

Gunboat Threatens Bangkok.

LONDON, July 14.—The Times' correspondent at Bangkok telegraphs:

"Despite the most pacific assurances from the French minister, who undertook to stop the advance of the gunboats and accompanied by all diplomacy, the Comet and the Inconstante slipped across the bar and exchanged shots with the Paknam forts. The two steamers then proceeded to Bangkok and now are anchored with the gunboat Lutin opposite the British legation. One sailor was killed and two others wounded in the exchange of shots at Paknam. The king is now holding a council. If it comes to fighting fearful scenes will probably be witnessed."

The Army Bill's Progress.

BERLIN, July 14.—The first vote taken by the reichstag on the first article of the army bill was passed by a vote of 198 to 187, a government majority of 11. Count Herbert Bismarck supported the government. The article then fixed upon the peace effective at 479,229 men. The volunteers for the year are not included in this number.

The Conservatives are jubilant at this result, which practically amounts to the passage of the whole bill.

Fighting In Samoa.

AUCKLAND, July 14.—The last Samoan mail contains reports of the outbreak of hostilities. Five blood wars ago while Malietoa was marching on Mailee. He captured a rebel outpost after a short fight. His followers now outnumber the rebels five to one. Many of the rebels have deserted to him. Apia is severely excited.

Bad Bank Bankoks.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 14.—The British embassy has received news that 300 police and Bashi Bazouks were sent out from Cesarea in Pitcharry to arrest so called refugees in Erzerk. They looted every Armenian house in the town and abused the women. The Armenians were too weak numerically to offer effective resistance.

Belgium Wants the Congo.

BRUSSELS, July 14.—The chamber voted today such a revision of the constitution as will enable Belgium to acquire colonies. The government is known to contemplate the annexation of the Congo Free state.

PASSED FOR A MAN.

The Fifteen Years Abode Maverie Had Been Found Out.

Frank Blunt.

MILWAUKEE, July 14.—A simple arrest by the police on a dispatch from the Fun de Lac authorities has brought out quite a romantic story. Chief Janssen arrested one Frank Blunt, who was wanted at Fon du Lac on a charge of grand larceny. The search developed the fact that Frank Blunt was a woman.

For 15 years Blunt, as the masquerading woman was known, had dressed and acted as a man, drinking, smoking, gambling and swearing with the rough crowd whisk her life was passed, and not once was her identity known.

When taken before Chief Janssen, the erstwhile Blunt said her name was Annie Morris. She is a native of Nova Scotia. Her family lived at 42 Blower street, Halifax, N. S. Annie 14 years ago ran away, accompanied by her brother, who was two years younger. She was at that time 18 years of age. The mother of the children was dead, and the cruelties of the father, the girl says, caused them to leave home. Annie put on a suit of her brother's clothes, and from that time until now has passed for a man. She was adopted by a man named Jones Blunt. The two traveled through New England for some time, finally coming to Milwaukee.

SIR WILLIAM STEINWAY.

The First New York Citizen to Be Knighted by the German Emperor.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Mr. William Steinway of 26 Grammercy park has received from Emperor William of Germany the insignia of the Order of the Red Eagle of the third class, carrying with it the honor of knighthood, the first order of the kind ever sent to an American citizen from the fatherland.

The honor was conferred in recognition of Mr. Steinway's benevolent energy, exercised not only in America, but also in his native country. The star is of ivory and gold, bearing the crest of the red eagle and the emperor's initials surmounted by a crown.

The Bond Skills Responsibility.

NEW HAVEN, July 14.—The management of the Consolidated road have decided that the fires in their freight yard last Saturday night, by which some 60 or more cars, most of which were loaded, were destroyed, was due to a stroke of lightning, and that being an "act of God" or the action of the elements over which they have no control, consequently they hold that they are not responsible for the damage done and will not make good the loss. It is not improbable, however, that the company's decision may be contested in the courts by some of the heavier losers.

Horse Disinfected Drunk.

ALBANY, July 14.—In May, 1889, James Burns was sentenced for a term of 18 years for robbery in the first degree committed in Herkimer county. On Jan. 10 last Governor Flower pardoned Burns on condition that he abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors for five years from that time. Last week Burns was arrested in Rochester for being in a state of beastly intoxication. The attention of the judge was called to the proviso in the governor's pardon, and he accordingly sent Burns back to Auburn prison to serve the remaining 10 years of his sentence.

Gatling Gun Battery Disbanded.

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 14.—Major General Plume, in command of the New Jersey national guard, has issued an order disbanding Gatling Gun Battery Company A. The organization was composed of veterans under command of General J. Madison Drake and was made famous by a trip across the continent a few years ago. The state board declared that as at present organized the battery was detrimental to the service.

The Red Sea Is Fast at Last.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The long expected steamer Red Sea has arrived with all well on board. None have been sick; none died. In fact the month was mild during the voyage. About two weeks before sailing two cases of smallpox broke out among the passengers designed for embarkation on board the Red Sea. The steamer was ordered at Bremen for 14 days. The passengers are from Russia, Austria, Hungary and Roumania.

Cardinal Gibbons' Getting Rests.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 14.—Cardinal Gibbons left Narragansett pier after a week's sojourn for New York. During his stay at the seashore his eminence has devoted five hours a day regularly to work upon a book which he is writing. His final hours at the pier were passed at Matunuck in calling on Edward Everett Hale and Susan Hale.

SAGINAW, Mich., July 14.—Rolfe N., the handsome toy stallion at the head of the Oakland farm, record 2.20, a brother in blood to the famous Nelson, dropped dead on the track at Union park. He was worth $10,000.

One of the Stanford Heirs.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 14.—Mrs. H. S. Kinmouth, wife of Dr. Hugh S. Kinmouth of this city, has bequeathed $150,000 by her uncle, the late Leland Stanford, the California millionaire.

Struck a Dead Whale.

QUEBEC, July 14.—The toghoot Beaver, while coming up the river, struck a dead whale off Metis. The whale is supposed to have been struck and killed by a passing steamer.

WOMAN AGAINST TIGER.

The Circus Audience Saw a Desperate Fight For Life.

IN A CAGE WITH THE MAD BEAST.

It Was the Tiger's First Appearance—Miss Berg Rescued by Three Trainers After Being Badly Injured—Other Animals In the Cage.

CHICAGO, July 14.—Miss Marcella Berg, the woman trainer at Hagenbeck's circus in Midway plaisance, was fiercely attacked by a half wild tiger. Before the enraged beast could be torn from the body of his victim the woman's arm was nearly bitten and blood was streaming from three ugly wounds in her right thigh.

The exciting encounter took place in the arena before a large audience. Five women fainted at the sight. The opening act had just been finished, and the house with a lion on his back had galloped out from the big round iron cage, about which the seats for spectators rise in successive tiers like an amphitheater.

The audience, which numbered several hundred, were bunched mainly in that part of the hall nearest the entrance. The stage manager stepped forward and announced that a change in the program as it would be made and Miss Berg would exhibit some animals which had never been shown to the public before.

They have been in training for months, but this was to be their first appearance before an audience. Then Miss Berg tripped through the opened door leading from the cages in the rear to the barred arena.

She made a graceful little courtesy and then turned, with a lash in hand, to watch the animals file into the arena behind her. On each side of the doorway were five small, square platforms.

They were fixed to the bars which walled in the arena and about a yard apart. On them the animals sit when not performing feats themselves and watch the action of the others. First to enter is the cage mama a tiger. The beast was a medium sized animal, with dark stripes of a rich, glossy fur.

Caged With the Tiger.

No sooner had the tiger got fairly inside the cage than he stopped short. There he lay, at the very entrance to the caged arena, crouching and lashing his tail with vigor from side to side. Miss Berg stepped up to him and struck him two or three sharp blows with her rawhide across the face and back.

The beast obeyed the whip, though with evident reluctance. He crawled into the cage with his white belly close to the floor until he reached his platform. Then, instead of jumping upon the platform and holding out his neck to be chained, as he ought to have done, the big cat crouched underneath. For the second time the woman trainer walked over to the beast and gave him a couple of smart cuts across the head.

The tiger only snarled and showed a row of white shing teeth. A third blow aroused his wild nature, which does not seem to have been more than half trained. He crouched lower still and, gathering himself together, with a sudden bound sprang forward. Straight at the defenseless woman he flew.

Miss Berg half turned to flee, and the beast landed upon her side. He made a fierce slap at her right arm, which was raised in self-defense, but with the unnatural strength born of the excitement and terror of the moment the half frenzied woman pushed him off. Crouching low again the tiger sprang for his victim.

This time the beast's hold was too firm to be shaken off. One strong fore paw dug its claws deep in the gay yellow dress of the performer, while the other caught her leg. The tiger buried his teeth deep in her thigh. The woman uttered one low shriek and then made no sound. She did not faint, but silently and pluckily fought to make the beast loosen his hold.

Fought With Her Whip.

Her only weapon was a thick rawhide whip about three feet long. The tiger did not seem to mind the blows which the little woman rained fast and furiously upon him any more than he would the tickling of a straw.

Three men were in the arena by this time. One was Trainer J. H. Mehrman and the other two were his assistants. All three sprang to the assistance of Miss Berg as soon as they saw the tiger attack her. Careless of themselves, these men bravely seized the tiger and began to pull him off the bleeding woman.

Twice by main strength they succeeded in tearing him away. Each time the tiger, maddened by the taste of human blood, dashed the men away and leaped upon the woman.

The third time the three men dragged him away, and one of the assistants hurried Miss Berg out of the arena, while the other two beat the beast into submission.

The injured woman was immediately taken to the hospital. The fight was over in two minutes, but to the terrified audience each second seemed an hour.

All the while the struggle was going on the other members of the show had to take part in the performance were filing into the arena.

There were lions, leopards, hounds and another tiger. No trouble with them occurred.

To show that he had completely conquered the angry tiger, Trainer Mehrman took Miss Berg's place and at once went right on with the performance as if nothing had happened. But few of the audience remained to see the performance finished.

For Prom Office Seekers.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 14.—President Cleveland enjoyed another quiet day at Gray Gables. He had no callers and passed a full day's rest with his family. The president has nearly recovered from his attack of rheumatism, and the absolute quiet and escape from the trills of office seekers which he has had here have done a great deal toward giving him the rest he desired. There has not been an office seeker here since Saturday, and the government headquarters has thus far been kept from him. The president's sister, Mrs. Hoyt of Boston, has left.

Mrs. Bing Is a Missionary.

TACOMA, Wash., July 14.—The grand jury returned an indictment against Rev. Thomas Bing for violation of the Geary act in attempting to land 20 Chinese laborers from the steamer Mogul on the pretext that they were actors for the World's fair. Bing claims to be a missionary of the Methodist church.

Fans For Empire Gowns.

The beautiful rococo empire fans, from old designs, in silk, gauze and chicken skin for using with the empire gowns of today, are among the novelties, and there are some lovely fans to be had in shaded pinks or pale green, but the most enticing are the more inexpensive ones in gauze, and among them are the bridesmaids' dahlia fans. Each fan, whether in white or color, has a row of detached single dahlias, life sized, of white gauze set round the edge partly overlapping, with "eyes" of the color of the fan and petals touched with silver. Another style of fan is in painted colored gauze, with an undulating edge finished off with applique white lace. Another has ribbon of two colors run in, not as formerly in straight rows, but in alternate links of color in three rows. Some of the mounts have a design of tendrils and small birds carved on them enameled in color, which is very novel and beautiful.

Plain Linen Gowns.

Plain linen gowns are an English fashion this summer, and it is likely that they will take the place of the blue serge skirt and jacket of last year—at all events on the river. These linen gowns are plainly and sensibly made, with a fairly full skirt and open coat adorned with wide lapels. Shirts to wear with them are fashionable as ever, and certainly they are very becoming to all, except the abnormally fat.

WOMAN AND HOME.

REV. DR. THORPE OF HARTFORD PICTURES THE MODEL WIFE.

Ways of Earning a Livelihood—A Poet's Opinion of Women—Careless Expression in the Home—The Love Between Daughter and Father.

She looketh well to the ways of her household (Proverbs xxxi, 27).

The elements going to make up a model wife are usually quite as important to be found in the model husband, and five letters say that the model wife makes herself an interested partner in all the affairs of the husband. Not to be supported, but to support in every laudable way by sympathy, commendation and real and manifest interest should be the constant aim of the wife.

The model wife should have larger faith in the husband, magnify instead of minify his ability, his good qualities. Let him feel constantly that whatever the world may think of him or disbelieve in him, the wife at least has large faith in his ability and disposition to succeed. The model wife will try to make the home the best and brightest place on the earth for the husband. The home may be humble, but it can be clean and bright with the light of love. The wife should study the art of homemaking, which enables the husband to say, "Home is always where my wife is."

The model wife makes herself an intelligent companion of her husband. She sets out to know something of the husband's daily work—mechanical or professional—and studies to comprehend somewhat the course of thought upon which his mind is for the most part severely bent. The wife of the newspaper man learns something of newspaper making; of the merchant, something of the store; of the mechanic, something of machinery; of the lawyer, something of law, thus making herself an intelligent companion of her husband.

The model wife studies to make herself attractive to her husband. Especially does she do this quite as much after marriage.

Many a wife was a perfect butterfly before marriage, who through neglect of her personal attire becomes quite uncomely, not to say repulsive, after marriage. The model wife always puts on her company attire for her husband. She never allows herself to talk to others of the frailties of her husband. That the husband has frailties, makes mistakes, comes short of the highest ideal, will doubtless be quite apparent to all; it is not necessary nor best that the wife should go peddling them along the street or among the neighbors.

The model wife will always avoid the habit or spirit of fault finding. Probably there will be enough to criticise, faults plenty if you look for them, but it rarely pays to dwell upon them or make them to appear prominent in the home life. Better to forget and forgive. The model wife is a Christian wife. She has come to love God, the giver of all good, and she desires and tries to follow Jesus Christ, his Son, the highest model of human life. She is richly possessed of the spirit of charity, and she lives, or tries to so live, that she can take her husband along to heaven.—Hartford Courant.

Ways of Earning a Livelihood.

A writer in the Ladies' Pictorial makes some suggestions for those who want a new way of earning a livelihood. After asking her applicants a few questions she usually finds that they have not been educated for any particular branch of industry, but are willing to try anything. The more ambitious ones aspire to writing stories for magazines. Of course they have had no special training for this, but some of their friends have flatteringly suggested a latent talent for literary work, so they produce a manuscript and submit it with a more or less confidence in their own ability. Some women can do leather work, wood carving and water color drawing, while others wish to be companions to nice old ladies who will pay well to have some one sing and read to them.

It seems that in Ireland there are some employments for women which are not overstocked with workers, such as genuinely good cooking, laundrying fine things, repairing delicate laces and accompanying vocal and instrumental music at sight in an efficient manner. A lady skilled in the art, who will go out and cook special luncheons and dinners in a cleanly, economical, punctual and satisfactory way at a reasonable cost, can be a great success and of inestimable value to many families in this country as well as in Ireland.

Laundrying is not high art enough to tempt many women to perfect themselves in it, but it requires a certain amount of intelligence—much knowledge of fabrics not usually found in the ordinary domestic—such as when its perfection demands that linen fronts and cuffs be starched as pure white and as soft as new, the backs of muslin fabrics ironed into perfect shape, such flannels put through processes that will not necessitate transferring them to the smallest, most attenuated doll, the business becomes worthy of consideration. Mending lace so that the stitches cannot be detected exacts a special skill which would seem to be easily acquired by ladies who are fond of dainty work.

A Poet's Opinion of Women.

Kate Gannett Wells writes interestingly of the society girl and of the college girl. One is charming and the other is intellectual, she says, and she adds that both are noble and both desirable as wives.

Here is her opposition, Sister Wells.

That man (young or old) is fortunate who can interest a woman in him. We do not wonder that man is attracted to woman, for to woman kind are accorded the gifts of personal beauty, of amiability, of grace, of tenderness, of spirituality, of delicacy, of gracefulness in fine, of every sweet and delectable thing. Therefore to be drawn toward one of these divinely endowed creatures is a result easily to be understood, but it passes all comprehension why upon her part woman tolerates—nay, even becomes associated upon man. How little, compared with the transcendent charms of woman, is there to be found in the awkward, rough, homely, hairy, uncouth, illkempt, selfish males of humankind.

So he is happy who has a woman to love, and he is blessed who finds a woman that will love him. Be she a society or college girl, it matters little and it differeth not; she is a woman and therefore to be beloved and honored and reverenced and cherished as one whose companionship is a delight, a solace and help, and who is a fitting and a preparation for further companionship in the better life beyond.—Eugene Field in Chicago News-Record.

Careless Expression In the Home.

Oh, the unutterable slovenliness of expression into which the inmates of the daily home life fall! Not in slang, that healthful outcropping of new leaves on the lingual tree; not in mannerism, that sparkling freshener of constant intercourse, but in the clumsy lostness of transparently thoughts which leaves the hearer to do all the thinking.

What is it very well when the hearer is strong. You willingly translate the lisps-tages of a child, help the limping tongue of the tongue-tied foreigner as to the fated, disjointed whispers of the sick. But for a full grown, healthy native to hand out to you an aborative mess of words to disentangle and comprehend as best you may, and then to resent your error or impatience, is unreasonable.

Some amiable and long suffering member, generally the mother, is skilled in understanding the rudimentary osteries of her young and her mate, and by so doing perpetuates their weakness. An immovable standard of accuracy maintained from the very beginning would be far kinder. Refusal to answer until the question was clearly expressed, refusal to notice an irrelevant statement, refusal to do other's work for them—this policy, riddly pursued by the mother, would be far wiser, far kinder than the "Yes, dear, mother knows!" which is so comforting at the time, but which prevents any one else from ever knowing.

If the desire to be understood is not motive enough, if the laws of common courtesy are not motive enough, if there is no claim of Christian kindness to be acknowledged, what of the artistic conscience, whose authority?—Charlotte P. Stetson in Kate Field's Washington.

The Love Between Daughter and Father.

There are countless examples of devoted affection between father and daughter today. Young girls have so tied themselves to business that they might be better able to aid the parent whom they so love and honor.

Some years ago one of the best pupils in a school of mining, connected with one of the western universities, was a young girl who chose mineing as her profession that she might delightfully associate herself with her father, who was a wealthy mine owner.

There are similar examples to be met on every hand, and in the new regime it is fitting that the daughter who has so defined to be the stay and support of the father in his old age, as the son has monopolized the responsibility in the past. To thousands of women the father is the ideal of all manly virtues, the pattern and model by which all other men are judged. It sometimes happens that no exalted is this ideal in the mind of the daughter that it is never approached, much less surpassed, by those destined to come within the circle of her friendship. Fathers seldom realize the height and depth of this type of daughterly affection.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Woman's Wit.

This is the way one woman extricated herself and another from an embarrassing situation. A young girl under the woman's chaperonage came to the house one morning with a direful tale of a moonlight walk rather late the night before and the accidental encounter with some sad old gossips of the neighborhood. Then, "Pop into bed," she said briskly.

"But I am dressed for the day," cried the other, horrified.

The only response was to repeat the command. Lying down on the bed, she was closely covered up, after which the jolly little matron kissed her and broke out into a laugh of satisfaction.

"That story will be brought to me first of all," she then explained. "I can reply, 'I don't you see, that I tucked you up myself as usual before 10 o'clock.' I did—before 10 this morning. The occurrence will pass for a case of mistaken identity. But don't do it again."—New York Times.

Pegasus's Little Sweetheart.

The "little sweetheart Rosalie" of John Howard Payne's correspondence was a pretty child whose heart always panted and fluttered when she met him, especially at her marriage for the purpose of cruelty with which she had thrown over her old admirer. The saddened man never forgot the bright young girl who had lived such a long life at the birthplace of both these oddly mastered friends in the quaint old seaport town of Southampton. Rosalie has been for many years the pretty, over behind Pleasant, Magnolia Baker, whose body is buried in the little graveyard in the village green. When the anniversary of "Romeo Street Home" was held in rest in his native land a few years ago, Mr. Corcoran sent a formal invitation to Mrs. Baker to attend the public funeral. In her reply she playfully remarked that she was sorry to go to Washington would accordingly be accepted as railroad fare. By return mail came a check for her entire expenses most delicately proffered.—Exchange.

Only Wealthy Women Should Have Hats!

A poor woman has no business with a lot of hats. Only a maid or a French barber can keep a woman's head full of hats in order, and this luxury is not within the means of the average woman. Mothers of large families who are obliged to do their own work; girls who are employed in shops, factories and offices all day; dressmakers and operators on clothing who have long hours of confinement, and the latter to his worry; girl students who are obliged to help with the housework after school hours, and professional women who are fighting their own battles, should wear but one minimum "crowns of glory." It takes a great deal more time to keep a head of hair clean than the aforesaid woman can possibly spare, and the head cannot be properly cared for it should be shorn. A bald head is not a beautiful object, but an untidy mop is a sore infliction of low breeding.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Lace For Walls.

An excellent effect for wall and ceiling decoration was recently brought out by a clever fellow, who pasted cheap nottingham lace over a plain colored wall paper. The materials, both the lace and the wall paper, were cheap, but when finished the wall had a most esthetic appearance. Of course all lace patterns are not desirable, but by cutting the borders and combining proper details of the curtains the effect of the scheme, if done carefully, is excellent. In handling lace the decorator should catch one end to the wall and carry the rest of the fabric along by allowing it to drape evenly over an ordinary broom handle, pushing the broom handle along to the face of the ceiling. The lace is then applied perfectly even.—Philadelphia Times.

The Etiquette of Calling.

"The proper thing to do" if a girl wishes to have a few especial visitors (a man) informed that she wishes to have him come as a visitor to the house where she lives is to ask her mother or whoever is at the head of the house to send him a card inviting him to come on a fixed evening or on a set evening, such as "Friday evenings," any week. That is sufficient announcement to the man that his call will be welcome. It is not good form for her to invite him herself, but it is quite correct for him to ask if he may have permission to call on her. He will generally do this if he has any sense of propriety at all, and in no case will he or should he expect her to invite him to come to her house "out of hand."—Philadelphia Ledger.

98 Satisfactory Sofa Cover.

How often do we find the cover on the sitting room lounge is an untidy wrinkle? We rejoice that we have at last found a cover that will stay where it is put. Wishing to protect our brocade plush lounge from soil we procured one yards of figured cotton flannel. As the figures were stamped on both sides the wrong side was just as pretty as the right, except that it did not have that soft look. We spread it over the lounge merely to keep the right side bright and clean. To our surprise and delight it stuck to the plush like bark to a tree, and though the lounge is in constant use there is never a wrinkle on the cover. The long nap of the cotton flannel will adhere to mohair or brussels carpeting also.—Housekeepers' Weekly.

Flower Decoration.

An abundance of flowers is by no means a necessity for arranging either a mantel or a table for festive occasions. Sometimes the most perfect long stemmed roses are put altogether and then in vases, glasses, showing their beauty much better than when massed. The attraction of a dinner table that was much admired was just one magnificent rose in a rare vase of Venetian glass.

The Japanese secure the fine poise their flowers have when arranged by putting them in sand instead of water. The beauty of the stems is, however, lost by this arrangement, and the flowers fade sooner.—New York Post.

Marking Handkerchiefs.

There is a decided effort perceptible to get away from the very common and illegible letters and monograms formerly so much employed. But the opposite extreme is reached when the name or initials are merely written in a running hand and outlined in the embroidery cotton, which practice, although certainly indulged in by a few, is hardly to be recommended in comparison with the employment of simple, artistic forms. As a substitute for the satin stitch, if preferred, the letters may be outlined and filled in with French knots.—Exchange.

Spain's Regent Is a Great Swimmer.

The queen regent of Spain is a magnificent swimmer and very fond of the exercise. Every day in the season at San Sebastian, when the members of the royal family spend their summers, the harbor is thronged with spectators to witness her majesty's really remarkable feats. She is always accompanied by two men in a boat, who watch her closely for fear of accidents. It often happens that they find it impossible to keep up with her movements, and nothing affords the swimmer more amusement than a race with and to distance them.

Care of Silverware.

A careful woman that I know permits neither her silver spoons nor the knives and forks to be laid upon dishes of china or glass when the table is being cleared. This care often prevents delicate places of tableware from being broken or scratched, and also keeps the silver in better condition. Knives and forks are placed in one common earthenware pitcher, with the handles standing, and the spoons in another. Treated in this way the handles of knives do not become stained and the silver needs less frequent cleaning.—Exchange.

Children's Fare.

"I never give the children any dessert but fruit, except fruit jellies," writes a practical mother, "and I do not indulge dessert at their dinner. I provide a salad, lettuce, cress or some green, which I do not think is often enough included in children's fare. Pure olive oil is good for them, a valuable nourishment, and the fresh green is most wholesome and corrective."

Beware of Underdone Bread.

It is the belief of Dr. Cyrus Edson that many diseases come from eating underdone bread. This contains germs which get into the blood through the hands of bakers or cooks. Bread raised by pure baking powder without kneading he regards as the nearest approach to sanitary bread.

Very Handy In Any Sickroom.

A convenient article for the sickroom is a long, low shelf supported at either end by broad stanchions to span the invalid's lap without touching her and enables her to eat, when propped up in bed, with the same convenience as though she were not deprived of dining room comforts.

Mrs. H. H. A. Beach of Boston, who composed a jubilate for the Columbian celebration, is authority for the statement that between the years 1815 and 1885 women composed 150 musical works, including 25 serious operas, 6 cantatas and 23 comic operas.

The weatherwoman who understands her business never has happy moments. Her secret is told in a few words. She first mixes the flour with water, then removes the boiling water from the fire for a minute before stirring in the mixture.

The dowager Duchess of Sutherland claims the distinction of being one of the few women who have made on the directorate board of a public company, and report says she displays considerable ability in the management of a coal mine.

Silk stockings should be cleaned, not washed. Their neatness can be prolonged by bathing the feet before putting them on. If a bath is inconvenient, they may be washed in a bottle of scent, aromatic vinegar or toilet water.

In order to keep a pointless hat and soft as long as possible lay over it a piece of oiled silk or gum tissue, then a layer of cotton batting. If placed where it will be apt to slip, fasten the whole by a band of some kind.

Sister Gertrude, a nun in the Loretto convent at Dublin, has written a drama entitled "Nemesis." It is dedicated to the memory of the martyrs of the catacombs and has been performed at Loretto abbey.

To the stout woman exercise is generally a burden, but begun in small doses and increased gradually it will soon grow to be a pleasure and a benefit as well if she is really determined to reduce her size.

Brio-a-brac should not only afford pleasure by its own beauty, but should also serve a decorative purpose, breaking severe outlines of walls or furniture or introducing dashes of color at certain points.

The three essentials for a pleasant room, says Alice Donley, are space, the opposite of crowd and clutter; form, the opposite of chaos and confusion, and color, the opposite of black.

Enough on the Doctor.

Mrs. A.—Doctor, what is the amount of your bill?

Doctor—My dear madam, as your finances are not in very flourishing circumstances, I have concluded not to make any charges at all.

Mrs. A.—That all right as far as it goes, but I want to know who is to pay the apothecary.—Texas Siftings.

One of the Lastest.

The lastest man existing within the borders of the Empire State lives along the shore of Third lake, Fulton chain, and spends his time fishing. He reclines on the bank in the shade, ties the pole to the dog's tail, and when he sees the lobber disappear he kicks the dog and the animal lands the fish.—Herkimer (N. Y.) Democrat.

Better Untold.

Merritt—You shouldn't have told Brown that the garden plot was trimmed just right.

Giles—Why not?

In Training.

"Has young Spilpark had much experience in addition, Bob?"

Bob—Oh, yes; he has been jumping his board bills for months.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

FROM HEAD TO FOOT.

That's what's the matter with the most of us. What's the reason? Poor circulation of the blood. The cause? The neglect of the feet. We have known severe colds to be called from incipient pneumonia, rheumatism, weak joints, backache, &c., &c., to suffer so much disease in a short time by the use of Anti-Tire. Get up good circulation, healthy action, and a decrease in the breaking nerves outlines of walls or furniture or introducing dashes of color at certain points. Trial size, 15c. Family size, 25c. A LIVE CITY'S RECORD.

A LIST OF IMPROVEMENTS FOR A SINGLE SEASON.

The Estimated Value Nearly $500,000—Can Any City in the Country Equal this Record?—Something Our People Can be Justly Proud Of.

LAST season THE NEWS gave a list and description of all the improvements in progress in this vicinity. The aggregate exceeded a quarter of a million of dollars in value. To-day we give the list for this season, which aggregates nearly half a million dollars, and if there is any place of similar size, or even double our size, which can equal this, we would like to know it. We have a live locality and no mistake, and every inhabitant thereof has good and lawful reason to be proud of it.

The third story of the Babcock business block is now under way. The building, when completed, will cost about $60,000. This, of course, does not include the land. It will probably be the most elegant store property in New Jersey, but that is to be expected when one considers the man who is having it built, and his architect, Mr. Teale.

The new Y. M. C. A. building will cost at least $40,000.

Mr. J. W. Reinhart of Netherwood is having a costly and beautiful home built on Belvidere avenue, to cost about $25,000.

Mr. C. I. Ames will have a residence original in almost three things—architecture, beauty and price—when the one now being erected corner of Plainfield avenue and Eighth street is completed. White brick will be the prominent building material and the price is put at $20,000.

Mr. F. O. Herring's residence on Park avenue will soon be ready for occupancy. It will vie with several other homes in this vicinity in elegance and finish. $20,000 is a conservative estimate of the cost.

Mr. Clifton is now hurrying the work on his business block at the corner of Park avenue and Fourth street. It will be three stories high, and will contain two stores and six flats. The building will be of pressed brick and will cost about $20,000.

Work is being pushed on the residence of Mr. A. D. Cook on East Seventh street, next to Grace church. It will cost $20,000.

Mr. Cole of the firm of Terrill & Cole is building a business block on West Second street at a cost of $16,000.

Mr. H. C. Abbott's new residence is one of the select homes in Plainfield. It is on Central avenue and cost in the neighbor hood of $16,000.

And then there are other buildings; the addition to the Borough public school $16,000, the new freight depot $6,000.

Mr. F. H. Andrews and his charming family are duly installed in their new home on Central avenue. The building is of Queen Anne architecture. Cost about $13,000.

Mr. B. A. Mumford has moved into his handsome new home, recently built at a cost of $18,000. The dwelling is on the corner of Central avenue and West Ninth street. There are three prominent attractions: the house, the lot, and the price of each.

The beautifully located plot of ground at the corner of Myrtle avenue and Crescent place, North Plainfield, has been selected as the choice spot for a home by Mr. Samuel Townsend. Mr. John Abbott, the builder, is now erecting for him a "modern old style" dwelling with all known improvements. It will be a model of elegance and comfort when completed. The cost will be in the neighborhood of $10,000.

Mr. J. C. Peck of Rockview avenue is also a judge of real estate. He will be the next door neighbor of Mr. Townsend. His new home will hold even honors in beauty with his friend's,and, when completed, will cost between $6,000 and $8,500.

Mr. W. D. Murray will soon occupy the pleasant home now in course of erection between Madison and Arlington avenues on Ninth street. Messrs. Pearson & Gayle are the builders and the residence will cost at least $6,000.

Mr. J. De Graff will have a little palace on Central avenue and Tenth street, that will probably cost when finished something over the builder's estimate of $6,000.

The $6,000 Engine House for company No. 3 on East Second street is well under way. The first story has been completed. The firemen are greatly pleased with it.

A $4000 addition has been made to the property of one of our most enterprising dry goods merchants on Front street, Mr. Edward White, for the accommodation of his rapidly increasing trade.

Mr. O. T. Waring of the corner of Park avenue and Ninth street is having built upon plans drawn by Architect Smith what will be, when finished, one of the handsomest and probably the coolest porch in Plainfield. It will be large and roomy. The foundation will be of fine yellow gray stone. The tall pillars will be of stone and will have ornamental terra-cotta tops. The base stone is a single piece, five feet by twelve and eight inches thick. The dining room, library and hall are also being remodeled in a most artistic manner. In work where wealth and good taste are combined, as in this instance, the result is always gratifying.

Mr. E. C. Mulford's $4,500 Queen Anne residence on Park Place will be completed in a few months.

Mr. J. E. Buckle's new $8,000 abode on Westervelt avenue near Front street will be completed by Fall.

Mr. C. B. Ten Eyck of Westervelt avenue is a man of ideas. He has built a dwelling on Westervelt avenue at a cost of about $6,000 and the foundation is a trench 2x2 feet filled with stones which is to be used as a drain for the cellar. The house is 100 feet from the brook. Mr. Ten Eyck owns the adjoining land, and if his idea proves satisfactory he will erect another house on the lot nearest the brook.

Mr. J. B. Mills has built a Queen Anne cottage on Norwood avenue at a cost of $4,000.

A model operating room is to be built at Muhlenberg Hospital. The first plans drawn were not satisfactory and others are now being prepared. The addition will be fully equipped with all modern and necessary appliances and will cost between $3,000 and $4,000.

Mr. James Clark of Seventh street has had his commodious home remodelled and painted and is is now quite in keeping with the season and the man.

The new church building of the Heavenly Rest parish is rapidly approaching completion. It will cost $3,200.

Mrs. Schorb's $8,000 building on Grove is nearly finished.

Mr. F. G. Lounsbery of Plainfield avenue has had his residence moved from one lot to another and has also improved its appearance by a spacious porch. He intends to build at once on the lot vacated.

Mr. Morton has had two $3,500 buildings erected on Sanford avenue.

Mr. Jonathan Doty is the builder and also the owner of a new two story frame building just finished on Elmwood place. $2,000 is the cost.

Mr. Regan's new $3,000 dwelling on the corner of West Fourth street and Lee place is now about completed. It has a cosey, homelike look and is an attractive setting for that corner.

Mr. McDonald has just had completed three two story stave roof houses on Arlington avenue at a cost of $1,500 each.

Mr. A. J. Huff is about to build a handsome dwelling on Park avenue, near Ninth street.

Mr. J. T. Dunham's residence on Park avenue was to low to suit him, so the foundations were raised five feet higher and a new porch further beautifies the appearance of the building.

Mr. M. Harrigan is having an attractive cottage built on Richmond street. It will cost about $1,200.

Mr. Samuel Dollner, to get needed room and to further adorn his home has had a substantial addition built on his house corner of Madison avenue and Ninth street.

The corner of Richmond street and North avenue is now occupied by a house recently erected by Mr. Thomas O'Leary at a cost of $1,200.

Mr. J. Kelly is having a cottage built by Messrs. Pearson and Gayle on West Fourth street near Plainfield avenue at a cost of $1,500.

Mr. Winckler will soon have two frame houses erected on Linden avenue, North Plainfield. They will cost about $1,200 each.

Mr. Frank M. Whitely of Steiner place, North Plainfield, has entirely remodelled his home, making a comfortable seven a room house out of the original four room dwelling. It cost him in the neighborhood of $1,000.

Mr. Dreier's home on New street has been entirely remodelled and painted.

Mr. J. H. Stevens is improving his residence at the corner of Washington avenue and Second street by the addition of a large porch. Mr. Force's building on the opposite corner is being likewise beautified.

Mr. M. S. Taylor of Rockview Terrace is having a large and costly extension added to his house which will greatly enhance its beauty.

Mr. H. Hicks has recently built a store on Grove street showing his enterprise and thrift.

Mr. Green has also built, on West Fourth street, a two story frame building, slate roof, at a cost of $1,800.

Mr. Schlick has helped improve the appearance of the neighborhood in the vicinity of West Third street and Grant avenue by the erection of a comfortable $1800 residence.

Dr. Simpson is having his residence on Liberty street moved further away from the corner to make room for a new dwelling he wishes to build.

Mr. J. C. Smalley has had a shop built on South Second street in which he will conduct a supply business.

The street grade made it necessary for Mr. Muir's store on Richmond street to be raised several feet.

Elm place is having some new houses. Mr. Bird is the moving spirit.

Plainfield is constantly growing.

BREVITIES.

—To-night there will be a song service in the W. C. T. U. rooms.

—Peter Blumm will take a stage load of Plainfielders to Florida Grove to-morrow.

—Street Commissioner Meeker has a force of men at work cleaning the streets of refuse washed up by Thursday night's storm.

—Within a few weeks Dunr street, from Craig place to Emily street, is to be macadamized by Street Commissioner Gavin.

—This season's fruits have been very good in flavor, and Randolph's fruit crushes, with ice cream soda, are just delicious.

—The letter-carriers' degree is growing more and more popular, each one adds a new recruit. The latest, victim being William Bray.

—The flag crossing at corner of Somerset street and Mountain avenue was broken by the laborers when laying the sewer pipe, but Mr. H. Van Kenlen, "street inspector of the now [illegible]" soon replaced. The company will be required to replace it.

—Chatham street is nearly macadamized, and when finished will be greatly improved. The fence along the Baker estate on the south side of the street is to be torn down and placed back seven feet, so it is said, and a sidewalk will also be cleared. The fence is an unsightly affair and has long encroached on the street line.

—J. W. Linneman, one of the scratch men in the 100 mile handicap bicycle road race, will probably be the winner. He passed this city at 1.45 o'clock. T. F. Walsh, No. 17, with 15 minutes handicap passed here at 1.39 o'clock. H. Van Kenlen, No. 28, 30 minutes handicap passed here at 1.55. At three o'clock thirty-one men had returned having completed this far over eighty miles.

PERSONAL.

The Petries of West Fifth street go away to-day for the Summer.

Mrs. J. M. Martino of Park avenue is at Asbury Park for a few weeks.

Mrs. R. G. Butler of East Front street goes to-day to San Francisco, Cal.

Mr. William Hagan of Prospect place left this morning for Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Mac Intyre of Central avenue started to-day for Asbury Park.

Mrs. F. Garrigan of New Brunswick is visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilson of West Third street.

Mr. David Snediker and family of Grove street are at the Fairview House, Chatham, N. J.

Mrs. T. S. Burr and daughters of La Grande avenue went to-day to "Highland Dell," Stroudsburg, Pa.

Mr. G. F. Randolph and family of Dare street arrived home Thursday, after a week's stay at the sea shore.

Mrs. Arthur T. Stryker of New street has returned home from a visit with Mrs. Chamberlain of Jersey City.

Mr. A. T. Gallup, book-keeper at the Potter Press Works, is spending his vacation with friends at Norwich, Conn.

Mr. Herman Dieke of Grove street is adding to the borough improvements by laying a ten-foot stone walk in front of his place.

Mrs. Charles McCutcheon and her daughter, Miss Margaret, started Thursday for Lake Pisgid, N. Y., instead of Henry Randolph's Mountain, as previously stated.

There will be a special musical service at the First Baptist church to-morrow evening. The choir will be under the direction of Mr. E. J. Pitzkugh, who will be present and preside at the organ.

Master Willie McCutcheon of Rockview Terrace, after spending two weeks at the World's Fair, at Chicago, with a party of friends, started Thursday for Winona, Minn., where he will spend the remainder of the Summer.

According to the Asbury Park Journal the following Plainfielders registered yesterday at Asbury Park Hotels: T. J. Murphy, B. O. Newman and wife, Minnie L. Newman, Miss Netherton, F. V. Van Arsdale and wife, F. V. Van Arsdale, Jr., E. Rogers Thorne.

REGULAR BRUTES.

FIERCE FIGHT BETWEEN TWO COLORED MEN.

One Used a Cleaver, Badly Cutting the Other's Forehead.—Might Have Resulted in Murder but for Prompt Interference.

Because both were sweet on the same girl William King and Harry Alexander, colored, tried to kill each other this morning. Both are employed at the Hotel Grenada, the former as cook and the latter as waiter.

It seems that last night Alexander was walking along the street with the girl, when King had something to them, which Alexander took as an insult. Nothing was done about it, however, until this morning when the rivals met in the kitchen. Then a fierce fight ensued. Alexander was not in a half dozen pieces on his forehead with a cleaver by King.

They began biting each other terribly. King's teeth were apparently the strongest, for he tore his opponent's nose and severed his thumb between his teeth. Before he could be made to loosen his hold he had bitten clean through the thumb. Alexander was not so good at biting, but he managed to tear a piece from King's ear.

Murder would no doubt have been the result of this fierce fight for the interference of several of the other waiters who were trying to get possession of the cleaver which the infuriated King had.

Policeman Kiely arrested them both.

A Special Service.

To-morrow evening the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Congregational church will hold its special meeting for July. Miss Sanford berg will have charge. There will also be five minute talks by members of the society. One of the talks will consist of five minute talks by "What Particular Mission Work should We as Individuals Attempt and Endeavor to Perform."

The meeting begins at 7.45 p. m. An invitation is extended to every one to be present.

The Weather.

On Sunday warmer, clear weather will prevail, with southerly winds, possibly followed by local thunder storms, and on Monday fair weather, with slightly lower temperature.

EDITORIAL NOTES

If a late newspaper letter tells the truth, then Governor Tillman has obtained some genuine spook photographs, the first on record about which there can be no doubt. He is designing a new seal of arms for South Carolina, and the correspondent says he is having three female figures prepared for representation upon it, the figures in question being each one "copied from a correct photograph of one of the Revolutionary heroines of South Carolina."

Even with the present vacancies all filled by Republicans, the Democrats would have in the senate of the Fifty-third congress 44 members, exactly half. This, with Vice President Stevenson to give the casting vote on a tie, makes the senate Democratic.

GUNS FROWN ON BANGKOK

The Siamese Nervously Await the Bombardment.

FRANCE SAYS IT WAS A MISTAKE.

Another British Gunboat Arrives and an Ultimatum Considered.—The Palace Guarded by Troops.—There Are American Missionaries In the City.

BANGKOK, July 15.—Last night passed quietly, the Inconstante and Comete dropping downstream to a better anchorage where they remain today cleared for action. Neither the forts nor the gunboats were damaged in the skirmish yesterday, but one Siamese gunboat ran down the French pilothoat and, it is said, sank it.

The French minister, M. Pavie, has informed the Siamese government that the commanders of the Inconstante and the Comete refused to accept his order not to enter the river. He states that he is awaiting instructions from Paris as to the next development of this extraordinary position. The Siamese warships are ready for action and 4,000 troops are under arms around the palace. The city is tranquil, but intensely nervous.

Other French and English gunboats are expected. British subjects are awaiting anxiously news of the steps which England is taking to prevent the great calamity of a bombardment of the city.

It Was a Mistake.

In accordance with article 15 of the treaty of 1856, French men-of-war have the right to enter the Menam river and anchor off Paknam, but must give the Siamese government 48 hours notice of the anchorage in case of the intention to ascend the river to Bangkok. As, however, no other than British vessels have ever ascended the river, Siam has objected to the presence of more than one foreign vessel, France, while reserving her formal treaty rights, instructed Rear Admiral Humann not to cross the bar of the Menam river, and notified the Siamese government accordingly. The order was received too late by Dupuis and the gunboats ascended to Bangkok.

The French minister has informed the Siamese government that the commanders of the gunboats Comete and Inconstante misunderstood the situation when they first upon the Paknam torts and ascended the Benam river. Their instructions contemplated no such action. The anxiety which prevailed throughout the city has been partly allayed by the arrival of another British gunboat.

The announcement was made that an armistice had been concluded and that the incident might possibly be explained by France as regretable.

PARIS, July 15.—A semiofficial note explains the Bangkok incident thus:

France, learning that England and other nations were sending war vessels to Bangkok, ordered the Siamese government on July 8 of her intention to increase the French naval force at the mouth of the Menam river, where only the gunboat Lutin afforded protection to the French residents.

England Relies on France.

LONDON, July 15.—In the house of commons Mr. Gladstone stated in response to questions that the foreign office had received news of the ascent of the Menam river by a French fleet, but it had not received any information between the French and Siamese. The prime minister added that he relied upon the assurances on the matter given to Great Britain by the French government being kept. Mr. Gladstone's statement was greeted with cries of "Hear!" "Hear!"

Sir William Harcourt read in the house of lords the reports of the Bangkok affair communicated by the British minister to Siam and the commander of the British gunboat in the waters near the mouth of the river, commenting on the dispatches he said:

"The government is disposed to believe the French naval officers acted without the authority of the French governments, as M. Develle, French minister of foreign affairs, has repeatedly promised to give England timely notice if any fresh action should be decided upon. We must await, however, further reports and France's explanation before we form a definite action."

The French Capital Quiet.

PARIS, July 15.—The celebration of Bastille day was quite devoid of popular enthusiasm, and of nature was everywhere apparent. The grand boulevards were illuminated so as to represent something like the usual Fourteenth of July appearance. The cafes were crowded. A large crowd gathered at the ball in front of the Opera. The other outdoor balls and supper were fairly well attended.

The government offices were illuminated and fireworks were set off at the Pont Neuf. There were no illuminations of private houses. The people on the streets have been exceptionally docile and not a sign of disorder has been shown. Cooperage early free at the usual holiday dance were out, however, and in the heart of the city cabmen drove their horses at a trot without risk of running anybody down.

Allgeld's Foreign Friends.

BERLIN, July 15.—The police dissolved a meeting of Berlin anarchists held to celebrate the release from prison of the Chicago socialists from prison and to honor Governor Altgeld. The police commissioners took a small riot in the hall as a pretext for dissolving the meeting. When he announced his decision a general fight ensued. The police drew their sabers and drove the anarchists into the street.

Ives to Play Roberts Again.

LONDON, July 15.—Frank C. Ives, the American billiard champion, and John Roberts, jr., the English champion, have signed articles for another billiard match. They will play in Chicago next September.

Austria Makes Concessions to Labor.

VIENNA, July 15.—Count Taaffe has prepared and will introduce in parliament a bill to create 18 labor chambers, which will be empowered to return 24 deputies to the Austrian lower house.

The Grand Duke Sates the Jews.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 15.—The Grand Duke Sergius, uncle of the czar, has persuaded the czar to postpone indefinitely the expulsion of the Jews from the Caucasus.

Conferred the Black Eagle.

BERLIN, July 15.—Emperor William has conferred the Black Eagle upon Count Bothe an Lubenburg.

Jews Secretly Expelled.

BERLIN, July 15.—Advices from Warsaw state that the expulsion of the Jews is continued secretly.

STARVING IMMIGRANTS.

Suffering Among the Poor Poor Cooped up For Two Weeks.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The tale of hardship and privation which the passengers of the steamship Red Sea told, shows that those who took accommodations on that vessel were exposed to cruelties scarcely less intolerable than those they were fleeing from Russia to escape. Not only was their money taken, according to the plain statements made by the passengers to Assistant Commissioner McSweeney, but those who paid for luxuries were deprived of them after they had given up their money.

The mention of life, which on even the poorest class of passenger steamships are liberally furnished, were not forthcoming. Bread and water was certainly the least the passengers hoped to get, and yet for two days at a time they walked the decks and slept through the night without either touching their lips.

The charges were denied by the captain and officers of the steamship, but while Mr. McSweeney was on the vessel he saw half a dozen of the passengers faint away. They were on deck at the time enjoying the cool air which was wafted across the bay to Woodruff stores.

To the question of Mr. McSweeney the women said they had not partaken of food for two days. When an official in the government service reported that he had used the women and been flight for the month of bread which were distributed, the deputy commissioner ordered a supply of food to be distributed among the passengers at once. They will be returned to Ellis Island for inspection, and while many of them will be sent back to Europe they will, for a time at least, escape the hardships of the past three weeks.

C. D. Richards & Co. notified Dr. Senner that they would give bonds for the passengers. Dr. Senner was unwilling to state how many passengers would probably be sent back. From his conversation it can be inferred that 250 to 300 must return to Europe. Healthy passengers without money who have friends here will be landed.

KILLED ON THE CROSSING.

WALTHAM, Mass., July 15.—Henry J. White, town treasurer of Weston, and his son are at the Waltham hospital dangerously injured, while his wife lies dead and terribly mangled in consequence of being struck by a train at the Hastings crossing at Kendal Green.

The railroad at this point makes a turn, and the occupants of Mr. White's carriage were unable to hear the approaching of the train. The horses, after being driven upon the track, suddenly balked and could not be started again before the engine had crashed into the vehicle. The woman was picked up dead, and Mr. White was insensible from a severe cut upon the head and other injuries, while the boy's body was badly cut and bruised.

From the stories of the trainmen there was no one to blame in the matter, as the crossing is a "blind" one, and the engineer could not see the obstruction upon the track in time to avert the accident.

Delay In the Dissolver Indictments.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—No indictments have yet been returned in the cases of the persons charged with the complicity in the disaster at Ford's theater last month, although the grand jury had been expected to make its report ere this. The master of the grand jury said he to rushing the jury, for it is known that District Attorney Birney has been in communication with Attorney Neoll of New York in regard to the famous Buddenieck cases. The precise delay is said to be because of the sickness of a witness.

The Postmaster Was a Sprinter.

ROCHESTER, July 15.—The Barnum and Bailey show was followed by a large crowd of boosters and tramps. Shortly after the parade a stranger entered the post office and engaged Postmaster Greenfield in conversation, during the interruption of a letter. Meanwhile a confederate entered the back door and snatched a tin box from the safe, obtaining $450 worth of stamps and $50 in money, and started on a run through a back alley. Mr. Greenfield gave chase and the thief was captured and the money recovered.

Sorrowful Act of the Borden Sisters.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 15.—It is learned that the daughters of the late Andrew J. Borden have transferred to Mrs. George W. Wilbur of this city and Mrs. Flint of Hartford some $4,000 worth of property which belonged to the late Mrs. Borden. The beneficiaries, under the transfer, were to support the old man during the term of a brief trial determined the fact that Mrs. Borden died first, but it is understood that the transfer was voluntarily made.

Outlaws Taken to Fort Smith.

DENVER, July 15.—Henry Starr, the Indian territory outlaw, and his companion, Kid Wilson, arrived at Fort Smith, Ark., where they will be tried for murder and train robbery. They were securely shackled together and had a heavy guard over them. There was some secrecy about their departure, as it was feared that Starr's wife with some of his old gang may arrange for an attack to rescue the prisoners.

County Officials to Be Indicted.

PATERSON, N. J., July 15.—The grand jury, which has been investigating the affairs of the county officials for the past 20 days, will report its findings today noon. It is stated on good authority that 28 persons will be indicted upon charges of bribery and conspiracy.

WARRING WOMEN THESE

And They Are Members of the Peace Societies Too.

BELVA LOCKWOOD ENTANGLED.

The Famous Fight Breaks Out In a New Quarter, and There Is Much Trouble For Mary Frost Ormsby.—Peace Congress May Not Be Very Peaceful.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The smoldering fires of war in the New York branch of the Universal Peace union broke out over a very sharp letter that a prominent peace woman had sent to Belva Lockwood returning to serve on a committee with Mrs. Mary Frost Ormsby of Baltimore club fame. Mrs. Ormsby was a delegate to the Peace congress in Rome in 1891.

Mrs. Lockwood, who lives in Washington, was authorized a few weeks ago by the Universal Peace union, which has headquarters in Philadelphia, to appoint a committee to receive and entertain in New York the foreign delegates en route to the International Peace congress, which meets in Chicago in August.

Mrs. Lockwood thereupon wrote to a certain lady prominent in peace circles in New York. By the next mail Mrs. Lockwood received the following letter:

DEAR MRS. LOCKWOOD—I have received your invitation to serve on a committee to welcome foreign delegates to our Peace congress. I see, however, that on that committee you have placed Mrs. Mary Frost Ormsby. I cannot serve on any committee with her. Whatever power for good my influence in Brooklyn Peace society may have had was utterly destroyed by the manner they secured in the press last spring. Besides, the New York Peace society has been quietly overlooked.

Here is the committee as constituted to which this lady, who does not wish her name quoted, took such sharp exception:

The Objectionable Committee.

William O. McDowell, Newark, N. J.; Elias K. Wendell, New York; Mrs. Lucy Stone, New York; Mrs. M. Louise Thomas, ex-president of Sorosis, Webster avenues, Pearlman, N. J.; Mrs. Mary Wilmarth Phillips, Brooklyn; Sarah T. R. Earnman, M. D., Philadelphia; Joshua L. Baily, Philadelphia; Rev. C. B. Smith, Boston; Rev. Edward Eggleston, Lake George; Allen W. Flitcraft, Chicago; Mrs. Thomas J. Lawrence, Chicago; Mrs. Frederick A. Smith, Chicago; W. Jo. Wilkinson, Washington; Belva A. Lockwood, Washington; Dr. Thomas A. Bland, Washington; Mrs. Dr. Mackey, Mrs. Mary Mary Frost Ormsby, 135 West Ninety-sixth street, New York; Rev. S. C. Bushnell, Acton, Mass., and Rev. N. L. Upham, Philadelphia.

The first sign of war in the Peace ranks was last fall, when Mrs. Ormsby through Lucy Stone Blackwell, Hindoo brought suit against Victoria Woodhull and Lady Cook, her sister, for $1,200 back salary due, she claimed, for defending their characters in Madeira three years ago while the sisters were in England. Victoria published a letter which she said Mrs. Ormsby had written her of a blackmailing tone. Both ladies are members of the Peace union. Great consternation struck that body when what came to be called Mrs. Ormsby's "Character Bureau," was discovered, everywhere "Mrs. Ormsby went to President Love in Philadelphia to get his aid in securing payment of her claim against Victoria.

The latter's partisans also promptly went to Philadelphia, and in despair Mr. Love washed his hands of the whole affair. The suit was settled out of court. Lawyer Hindoo was seen and said he hadn't heard from Mrs. Ormsby for six months.

The present trouble over the Lockwood letter had scarcely subsided when the famous triangular fight broke out last spring between Hamilton Willcox, Mrs. Ormsby and Gen. Rose Hooper, secretary of the Democratic Influence club. Mrs. Hoey charged Mr. Willcox with inspiring and aiding Mrs. Ormsby to disrupt the Influence club.

The Fight Reached Par.

The fight was so fierce that it threatened to disrupt Sorosis. Then it gathered in the New York State Suffrage party, of which Mr. Willcox was president, and also threw the Influence club into chaos.

It finally reached out and took in the New York Peace society as well in this way: A call was sent out for a meeting to form a new peace society in New York to take the place of the one, of which Miss Sarah E. Fuller is president. At that meeting which was held in the African Methodist mission rooms in the Bible house, Mr. Willcox was elected chairman on Mrs. Ormsby's motion, and she was elected secretary on Mr. Willcox's motion.

Then a member who was present as a representative of Mr. Love asked if the meeting was not irregular, since there was a regular peace society in New York then. Mrs. Ormsby said no, that she had received a letter from President Love telling her to go ahead with the meeting.

She was asked to product the letter, she said she left it home. Then Miss Sarah E. Fuller was written to a few days later and denied that he had had any correspondence with Mrs. Ormsby or Mr. Willcox on the subject, and declared that the holding of the meeting Miss Fuller's friends rallied around her and proposed to hold the fort. She has calmly gone on since with her peace work, confident that the Universal Peace union would not see her forced out.

When it was found the other day that she had also regular New York society had been omitted from the committee to receive delegates in this city, her friends became indignant and the letter to Mrs. Lockwood called forth the storm. The neglect was written by a lady who resented the slight put upon the regular New York Peace society.

Sneak Thieves Made a Rich Haul.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 15.—Sneak thieves stole a tray containing $10,000 worth of diamonds from the jewelry store of T. V. Dickinson in the Hotel Imperial block. The robbery was discovered by the store keeper when he returned to his room at noon. Detectives are at work on the case, but no clue has been found.

ENGLAND CHECKMATED.

Russia to Station a Big Fleet at New York.

MANY BIG WARSHIPS COMING OVER

The Czar's Move an Important One to This Country.—Protection Assured to the Atlantic Seaboard.—John Bull's Boats Will Be Far Outnumbered.

NEW YORK, July 15.—It is learned from high Russian source that the Russian government has decided to maintain a permanent fleet of warships in United States waters, and that the port of New York will be made Russia's western naval center.

Acting under instructions from St. Petersburg, a board of naval officers has been engaged the last week in making a careful inspection of the big Erie dry docks to ascertain the exact number of Russian warships the docks will accommodate.

It is further announced that representatives of the Russian government have made overtures to the Erie dry dock's establishment to undertake the care and overhauling of all warships maintained by Russia in American waters.

General Superintendent Dickey of the Erie dry dock's establishment intimates that the facilities of the Erie basin would soon be at the disposal of the Russian government.

"Already," said Mr. Dickey, "we have undertaken to look out for the Admiral Nachimoff, Dimitri, Donski and Rynda, the three Russian cruisers now in port, and we are at present overhauling the machinery of these vessels."

England Would Be Overshadowed.

The opinion was ventured in naval circles that in view of the likelihood of the Behring sea case going against Great Britain, and the late announcement that England is re-enforcing her naval force at Esquimalt, B. C., the proposed action of Russia was of great importance to the United States.

With a Russian fleet constantly in and about New York the ability of the powerful British fleet on the North American station to easily upon exposed Atlantic ports of the United States would be greatly lessened. Russia, should she desire it, could send into American waters more than 100 war vessels.

If Great Britain desires, in view of the intention of Russia to maintain a powerful fleet in American waters, to offset and equal at all times the naval strength of the United States, backed up, as it will be, by Russia, it will be necessary for the British admiralty to detail for duty on the North American station a fleet equal in power to that of the British channel squadron.

Meant to Shoot the Governor.

CADDO, L.T., July 15.—The conference between Governor Jones of the Choctaw nation and Inspector Falason of the interior department took place as arranged. Governor Jones broke very little English and his private secretary acted as interpreter. Those present at the conference refuse to say what took place, but it can be stated with confidence that Aug. 5, the date which the execution of the death sentence upon the nine will take place.

Knights In a Smashup.

VINCENNES, Ind., July 15.—A special passenger train bearing a delegation of Knights of Pythias to this city to attend the banquet ran into a caboose at the Evansville and Terre Haute yards and injured several Knights, one of them fatally. The injured are Albert Jones of Fort Branch, fatally hurt; Samuel Miller of Mount Vernon, Henry Schell of Mount Vernon, O. M. Tichener of Princeton and Samuel Bert.

Shot the Judge In Court.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 15.—A sensational tragedy occurred in the court room at Tabasco. An outlaw named Sanfrancisco Rodrigues had been tried and found guilty, and the judge had just finished reading the sentence when the prisoner drew a pistol and discharged it at the magistrate. The bullet took effect, killing the judge instantly.

MEYER'S WICKED PAST.

He Is Denounced as Having Lived In Newton, Mass.

NEWTON, Mass., July 15.—The notorious Dr. Henry Meyer lived in Newton about two years ago. He had obscure lodgings on Washington street. The doctor was liberally supplied with money. He spent most of his mornings in Boston, and would return at noon with elaborate dinners prepared and packed in a tin case at a Boston hotel.

After the first two weeks the doctor brought a woman with him, who, he said, was his wife. The supposed Mrs. Meyer was a woman of fine presence and was beautifully dressed. She wore a great number of jewels. After a residence of a few months in this place Mrs. Meyer became ill and a physician announced that there was no hope of her recovery. On the day before she died Dr. Meyer brought a gentleman and a young lady to the house and took them to the room of the dying woman.

From conversation that was overheard it was learned that the woman who had been living with Meyer was not his wife, and that he had brought her real husband to visit her on her death bed. The jewels which the woman wore were given to the visitors. Soon after the death of his companion Dr. Meyer left Newton.

DETROIT, July 15.—Dr. Henry C. Meyer will be turned over to the New York police as soon as officers arrive from there with the necessary papers. The prisoner intends to fight the requisition. Chief of Police Ralts of Toledo and detectives from Chicago also came to Detroit with warrants for the prisoner and his wife charged with the New York police had the first call on the prisoners.

FEAR FOR MISSIONARIES.

Those Are no American Warships Bound back to Protect Them.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—There are about 20 American missionaries in Siam, mostly Presbyterians, and their friends in this country have become concerned about their welfare, now that actual hostilities have broken out between the French and the Siamese.

Rev. Dr. Gillespie of New York, representing the Presbyterian mission board, telegraphed Secretary Gresham to inquire what provision would be made for the safety of these missionaries and the numerous children in their charge. In view of the present war outlook, Secretary Gresham replied as follows:

I am informed by secretary of navy that there is not at present on Asiatic station any vessel capable of entering Siamese waters. Minister Sloane should communicate with legation at Bangkok for usual diplomatic protection.

RUN WAS TOO HOT.

On the National Bank of Kansas City, Capital $2,000,000, Suspended.

KANSAS CITY, July 15.—The National bank of Kansas City has suspended payment and is now in the hands of the examiner of the treasury.

The assets, President Chick says, will be $3,592,000 and $2,000,000 on the liabilities. He estimates that $1,000,000 of this will be paid dollar for dollar. President Chick said that the suspension was due to the stringent withdrawal of deposits since the beginning of the financial stringency.

"We began to lose deposits early in May," he said. "The demand to us went along until the failure of the 10,000,000. We paid out $1,000,000 every day since then the withdrawals have been heavier. We thought we could get through today, but we were not. We paid just five cents on the usual time. A few minutes before we closed we received demands for $50,000 more than we could meet. We closed and called Gay's run and there was only one thing left for us to do, and we did it."

Thursday night we asked the clearing house for help, and that fact was telegraphed to eastern and depositing city of money and caused a run on us to-day. We asked for ample aid from the clearing house and we received $2,000,000. The reason we asked was to be heavily, however, that we could not possibly fill them.

The National bank of Kansas City was an outgrowth of the bank of Northrup & Chick, which was the pioneer banking establishment of Kansas City. It had a paid up capital of $1,000,000. In 1887 the firm removed to New York city, where in 1890 it failed in the panic of 1873, but afterward went on its feet. The following year Northrup & Chick returned to Kansas City, and in 1875 they organized the National bank of Kansas City.

Another Bank Follows.

KANSAS CITY, July 15.—As a result of the failure of a National bank of Kansas City the Franklin Savings bank made an assignment for the benefit of creditors. The latter bank cleared through the Kansas City National bank, and considerable of its money is tied up in the latter failure.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance was duly introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed for adoption by the Common Council, that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

F. W. RUNYON, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., June 7, 1893.

AN ORDINANCE

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the road-bed of North avenue, extending from Richmond street to Berckman street be repaired and spread with broken stone for a width of twenty feet on each side of the center of said street, and for a depth of six inches, at the general expense of the city, to be paid for, after such repairs the street committee of the city shall report to the Common Council the amount of money due for the said improvements in the road-beds of the streets, at the general expense," approved May 1st, 1893.

Section 2. That before any work shall be done under this Ordinance, the property owners along the line of the proposed improvements shall deposit with the City Treasurer a sum equal to one dollar per linear foot for the entire distance along North avenue covered by this Ordinance.

ENTERTAINING MEASUREMENTS.

A Mechanical Method of Solving a Geometrical Problem.

Here is an interesting way of making a comparison of measurements which would usually be worked out geometrically. With very simple means we may ascertain how the surface of a sphere compares in extent with a great circle of the sphere. A great circle is the section made in a sphere by a plane passing through its center, and the radius of the great circle is consequently equal to the radius of the sphere.

THE SURFACE OF A SPHERE.

Let us saw a croquet ball or any sphere made of wood through the center. Let us take one of the halves or hemispheres thus obtained and fasten thereon the end of a cord by means of a nail driven into the pole of the great circle—that is to say, at the point of the ball which is most elevated when we place the flat part on a table. (See upper hemisphere in our illustration.)

Now let us wind the cord around the nail, then on the surface of the ball, just as you wind a cord on a spinning top, so that it exactly covers all the curved surface of half the ball you hold in your hand. Then let us stop and cut the cord at the point where we have ceased winding.

Now let us take the other half of the ball and a piece of cord of the same thickness as the preceding. Let us fasten the end of it to a nail driven into the center of the circle, which is a great circle of the sphere since the saw has passed through its center. Now roll the cord spirally around the nail, pressing it closely on the flat surface of the circle. Stop when the circle is entirely covered and cut the cord at the point where you have to stop. Now unroll both cords, and you will find that the first is exactly twice as long as the second, from which we conclude that the surface of a hemisphere is equal to twice the surface of a great circle, and consequently that the surface of an entire sphere is four times that of a great circle.

Colored Photographs From Nature.

The possibility of photographing colors directly from nature seems to be at last proved. The theory of the process belongs to M. Lippmann and its practical application to M. Louis Lumiere of Lyons. By means of his special preparations, the secret of which has not transpired, M. Lumiere is enabled after an exposure of about half an hour to obtain a faultless photographic reproduction of colors. Among the things thus chromatically photographed were boxes of matches, liqueurs, screens, stuffs, nosegays—nay, even landscapes from nature, looking for all the world like very clever studies in water colors, the dull gray of the houses, the browns of the soil, the various shades of green of the grass, fruit and foliage, the deep blue of the sky and the light, laughing blue that peeps surreptitiously through rifts in the fleecy clouds—all colors, hues and tints were there.

A Clock With Neither Weight Nor Spring.

The Jewelers' Circular tells that a Colorado jeweler has, after nine years' work and constant study, invented a clock with electricity for its motive power which has neither weight nor spring, but consists only of three wheels, a pendulum, two electro-magnets and a battery. Unlike any other clock, the motive power is not transmitted to the train, but to the pendulum, and only enough power is required to overcome the lost motion of the pendulum. The two electro-magnets are arranged similar to a motor.

Plate Glass Bricks.

These are made from the sand used in glassmaking and heretofore considered worthless after having served that purpose. A peculiarity of these plate glass bricks, which are perfectly white, is that they withstand frost, and are not attacked by acids. They will also resist a crushing force of from 800 to nearly 1,000 pounds on 0.155 square inch. They are stated to be much superior to others not only in point of durability, but in appearance.

Paper Stockings.

A Berlin trade journal announces a new German invention—that of paper stockings. It is told that the stockings are made of a specially prepared impregnated paper stock, which has an extraordinary electrical power of resistance. The moisture is absorbed by the paper as rapidly as it is formed, and the feet remain dry and warm, while the constant temperature maintained in the shoes is said to be a great preventive of colds.

To Keep Iron Pipe From Rusting.

Ohio Valley Manufacture says a simple and economical way of tarring sheet iron pipes to keep them from rusting is as follows: The sections as made should be covered with a coal tar and then filled with light wood shavings and the latter set on fire. It is declared that the effect of this treatment will be to make the iron practically proof against rust for an indefinite period, rendering future painting unnecessary.

Scientific Brevities.

A glass factory in Liverpool has glass journal boxes for all its machinery, a glass floor, glass shingles on the roof and a chimney 108 feet high built wholly of glass bricks each a foot square.

Rubber velvet is a new material made by sprinkling powdered fish of any color over rubber cloth while the latter is hot and soft. The result looks like felt cloth, but is elastic, waterproof and exceeding light.

Thunderstorms are said to be more frequent in Java than in any other part of the world, there being an average of 97 days in each year upon which they occur.

An electrical fishing apparatus is one of the latest and most ingenious of electrical devices. An electric light attracts the fish within the net, the opening of which is then closed by an electrical mechanism.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP

THE BAMBOO.

Of all the magnificent plants and trees that adorn an oriental landscape none excels in beauty the bamboo, of which there are more than 20 varieties, the smallest being a tiny thing barely 4 inches high, the largest a most tremendous fellow reaching 120 to 150 feet from the ground. With few exceptions all grow in clumps and bear seed only once in seven years. When the old stems die off and fall to the ground, the seed naturally sown soon begins to grow, and in the early spring the pale new shoots make their appearance through the mass of old stems, dead poles that lie along the ground, frequently in heaps six or eight feet from the earth. Where the forest is extensive, as it often is, an enormous amount of rotten wood lies about. It is so soft that one cannot walk on it, and in among the damp pile all sorts of snakes, scorpions, centipeds, ants and other reptiles and insects hide. Now and again the heap will catch fire, and there is a tremendous blaze, the flames rising to as much as 60 and 80 feet high, roaring like an eruption from the crater of a volcano, while the stems and roots that have not had time to quite rot away with loud reports like muskets going off. The forest may keep burning for a whole week, and at night the sight is a grand one.

It seems that the people who live in the more savage countries of the east would hardly get on without the bamboo. The natives of Burmah build with it, from the cabin a good mosk; the smaller poles make fishing rods, bows and arrows and spears, the outside bark cut into thin strips is plaited into hats for sleeping on, and these mats form nice cool sheets and can be washed and dyed all manner of colors. The same pieces of bark would become fine paper when split and plaited makes much stout walls that bullets will not go through them. Boat down and made into traps, it will float and has been pressed into use to hold the biggest Indian deer. But the many uses to which the bamboo can be put would take up too much space to describe. Wheels or in single clumps or in large forests it presents a grand sight.

A Strange Sort of Ferry.

Although the ancient Romans bordered the Mediterranean, the great highway of commerce between east and west, civilization has been made much progress in the land. They may be noted, among other things, in the simple means of travel still in use. Outside of a few big towns on the Roman plains and valleys are everywhere horses, camels, mules and donkeys being employed for riding and for carrying baggage. Even ferries are seldom found at the street, and when Dr. Robert Brown was in the country he had to cross the Tiber, one of the largest streams, on boats which pushed himself from bank to bank by upper and lower sort of ferry common in many of the villages in the heart of Africa.

Why Foam is White.

The question as to why all foam is white is not an easy one to understand, but an exchange explains as follows the fact that foam is always white, whatever may be the color of the beverage itself. The froth produced on a bottle of the blackest ink is white and would be perfectly so were it not clouded to a certain extent by the presence of the ink which has failed to coat the chemical corpuscles. As to the cause of this whiteness it is sufficient to say that it is due to the large number of reflecting surfaces formed by the bubbles of foam, these surfaces which by reflecting the light produce upon our eyes the impression of white.

If we remember that all bodies owe their colors to the rays of light which they cannot absorb and all bodies which reflect all the light they receive without absorbing any appear perfectly white, we shall be prepared to understand how the multitudes of reflecting surfaces formed by the foam and which do not absorb any light must necessarily give the effect of the absence of color. It is for this same reason that any very fine powder appears white, even the blackest marble when ground to dust losing every trace of its original color.

Doomsday Book.

All the counties shared away with England's domain in the celebrated doomsday book, which contains a record of the survey made by William the Conqueror of the lands of England and the names of their owners. The text is in Latin, the writing being beautifully clear and the letters being made with a degree of exactness that could not be exceeded today.

The original doomsday book has been lost bound, but the old leather covered boards are also preserved. The second book, contemporaneous with the first, contains a survey of the counties not entered in the first. There is also an abbreviated doomsday book compiled in the reign of Edward I. Even in those early days the barons of England seemed disposed to dispute the temporal power of the pope, as is shown by a letter of Edward I's barons to Pope Boniface VIII. in which they say that the king and not the pope is the proper authority to decide between England and Scotland.

Grave to Gay.

Formed by thy converse happily to steer
From grave to gay, from lively to severe.

Walsh says that Pope plagiarized the thought from Boileau and much of the verbal structure from Dryden's paraphrase of Boileau:

Happy who to his verse can gently steer
From grave to light, from pleasant to severe.

THE HOUSEHOLD

JELLY MAKING.

A Number of Essential Points In This Delicate Art Briefly Stated.

The first detail which it is important to mention here is that all fruits are best for making jelly when first ripe. The reason why fruit juice jellies is that it contains within itself a gelatinous substance. Until the fruit ripens, we are told, this substance is not of any value. After it has once ripened its tendency is to grow weaker every day. Wet weather weakens it also; consequently it is easier to make jelly in a dry season than it is in a wet one.

Currants and small soft fruits intended for jelly making should not be gathered immediately after rain, for the juice is then less rich and less full of flavor. Hard fruits, indeed, such as apples and quinces, must be boiled with a little water to draw out the juice, and so great an authority as Francatelli is of opinion that half a pint of water should be put into the kettle with 25 pounds of soft fruit, like red currants, to help to make the juice flow.

A quick way of drawing or expressing the juice is to put the fruit into a preserving pan and stew it gently, stirring it well, until it has dissolved. Another plan is to set it in a cool oven until it attains the desired condition. Whichever method is adopted it is to be remembered that the juice of soft fruits is not at this stage to be cooked; it is merely to be made to flow.

The juice that is to be converted into superior jelly should not be squeezed or pressed, but simply allowed to drip. The cloth or bag used for straining may be made of flannel or of worsted stocking net. It is a good plan to express the juice as soon as the fruit comes in, then leave it to drip all night. The juice should be allowed to drip into a basin or earthenware bowl, never into a tin vessel, for the action of acid on the tin would be injurious to color and flavor.

Only the best loaf sugar should be used for making jelly.

For ordinary fruit juices the quantity of sugar required is a pound to a pint of juice. This is the "rough and ready" rule, and it is a fairly safe one, although fruits which yield a thick juice, like black currants, blackberries and quinces, are none the better if a smaller proportion of sugar be used. If a little water be put with the fruit when the juice is expressed, it amounts to the same thing as using less sugar. Thus with Green grapes, on the other hand, need 1¼ pounds of sugar to a pint of juice.

The time required for boiling jelly is the point on which it is more easy to make a mistake than on any other. If underboiled, it goes mouldy or softens or will not turn out in a shape, yet if overboiled it candies to stone or does not leave the spoon in flakes.

A favorite way of making jelly with experienced housewives is to squeeze the juice and boil it quickly for a few minutes after it has begun fairly to boil. Meanwhile the sugar is divided into small portions and heated in the oven until it is so hot that the hand cannot be put into it. The sugar then is thrown into the boiling juice and stirred rapidly till it melts, the spoon being withdrawn when it is dissolved. After this the jelly is allowed to boil once and perfectly, immediately into hot glasses. When success fully managed, jelly thus made is exceedingly delicious and of good flavor.

Practicable and Pretty.

There is nothing intrinsic about the making of this attractive and really useful pocket for the wall.

ARTISTIC WALL POCKET.

The palette shaped back is covered with light green plush, and the gauffered pocket of brocade and satin somewhat recalls a fan in shape. The whole is finished with gold cord, which also forms a loop by which to hang it upon the wall.

Delicious Canned Cherries.

Few canned fruits are more refreshing and grateful to a jaded appetite than cherries. Here is a simple and excellent way to put them up. Select the cherries carefully and remove their stems. The stems may be removed or left in the fruit, as preferred. Make a syrup, allowing a half pound of sugar to a pound of cherries and just enough water to cover the sugar. Boil for 10 minutes, add the fruit, allow it to boil up once, then can.

A Queer Bill of Information.

Somebody has alleged that the buffalo bug's principal food is found in the golden cup of the lovely common field daisy that everybody loves, and a lady tells The Upholsterer that, determined to investigate the matter, she looked into some daisy cups growing in a field, and sure enough there she found in several daisies the detested insect comfortably taking its ease.

Dainty and Refreshing Sandwiches.

Cut very thin slices from a loaf of bread. Cut these into rounds with a large cake cutter. Butter with soft butter. Have on half the rounds of bread crisp lettuce leaves. On each one put a spoonful of salad dressing, add the other buttered rounds, and dainty, delicious sandwiches will be the result.

A Shrewd Scheme.

An ingenious housewife tells The Brunt New Yorker that her hard pine floor in the dining room is polished with equal parts of turpentine and turpentine varnish was melted, the turpentine added into it. This is rubbed on with a cloth and polished by boys with their feet wrapped in woolen cloths sliding on it.

Cure of Pallor.

Pallor should have a good suit—such as would grow corn well. They need but little rest room and repairing but seldom. They should have plenty at light, but too strong a sunlight is apt to discolor the leaves. They should be given an abundance of water, especially in the summer, but should never be allowed to dry out. Want of water destroys their health and takes away their green color. Use water of the same temperature as the room in which they stand. Sponge both sides of the leaves with tepid water as often as they become dusty. They do not require a high temperature, but like many other plants do best in an equable one. Too hot and dry an atmosphere will usually turn the leaves brown. Keep them out of drafts, which are very injurious.

Lemon Meringue Pudding.

Scrape two cupfuls of bread crumbs in a quart of milk, add the yolks and juice of two eggs with one cupful of sugar and half a cupful of butter rubbed to a cream, and the juice and half the rind (grated) of one large lemon. Bake in a buttered dish. When firm and slightly browned cover with a meringue made with the whites of the eggs whipped to a cream with three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and a little lemon juice. Brown very slightly, sift powdered sugar over it and serve cold.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

$6 per Year in Advance. T. W. Mershon, Editor and Proprietor. Office, No. 21 Somerset street. Printing of All Kinds. 10 Cents per Week, Delivered.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," MONDAY, JULY 17, 1893. PRICE TWO CENTS.

TO ABATE A NUISANCE.

ENDANGERING PUBLIC HEALTH IN BOTH CITY AND BOROUGH.

How the Offenders Were Located.—The Penalty is $1,000 Fine, or Two Years' Imprisonment, or Both.—Plainfield Merchants Interested.

The North Plainfield Board of Health has entered an investigation and located certain sources of pollution of Greenbrook, which, between Somerset street and Grove street, is only about 200 feet from Front street. The pollution is a constant menace to the public health.

Considerable trouble was experienced in finding just where the pollution came from and finally a special officer, suitably attired, traversed the race, way that runs under French's mill and along the Plainfield side of the brook for some hundreds of feet and finally empties in to Greenbrook near Grove street. The officer was compelled to use an axe at one point to demolish a barricade of boards that blocked his further progress.

The race was honeycombed with pipes from the business section of Plainfield. Many of them were unused, as spider webs across their mouths and the dryness of the pipes themselves testified. Many were in full operation when the investigation was going on.

By an ingenious idea of measuring the special officer, by a tape measure above ground and closely following the entries in his note-book, could, now, in a short time, locate any drain and the building from which it comes.

Acting upon the report of this investigation the Borough Board of Health has had papers prepared and will soon, it is said, serve notice on the Plainfield Board of Health for a prompt suppression of the nuisance.

The penalty for a continued violation of the Health laws is $1,000 fine or two years in State Prison, or both.

BREVITIES.

—Music Hall, to-night.

—The case of the city against Lorenzo Pisoli, for alleged Sunday selling, has been postponed until September.

—The removal sale prior to going into the new Babcock building makes trade lively at Edsall's" is what the proprietor says.

—Two Italians were fighting Saturday night, and Policeman Cooney placed one of them, Justin Peas, in the lockup. He was discharged.

—At the Hillside Tennis Court Saturday afternoon the Jersey City Club defeated the Bergen Point and Hillside Tennis Clubs. The Hillside Tennis Club defeated the Bergen Point Club.

—James O'Donnell applied to Justice of the Peace Nash, this morning, for a search warrant for a watchman's house for his wife, who has been gone two days. Justice Nash informed him that he couldn't issue a warrant under the circumstances, and O'Donnell went in search of another Justice of the Peace.

Ernest Marx Confesses Judgment.

Ernest Marx, who keeps a restaurant at 108 Mercer street, New York, has confessed judgment for $14,000 in favor of his father, Felix Marx, on account of the purchase of a restaurant from the latter on June 12, 1890, at 79 Mercer street, for $10,000, and for $2,000 money lent on Feb. 14, 1893. At the office of Horwitz & Hershfield, his attorneys, it was said that Felix Marx established the business many years ago, and the son succeeded to it three years ago. The trouble is attributed to stagnation in business and want of patronage. The Sheriff has taken possession.

Mr. Ernest Marx and his father reside in this city, the former on Leland avenue and the latter on East Front street.

A Wheel Collapsed.

Yesterday afternoon as a party of four were driving along West Front street, in a survey, and when near Plainfield avenue, one of the hind wheels collapsed. The wheel was evidently beyond repair. It was placed in the wagon, after the party had alighted, and the possession of one of the four drove the horse, the axle of the wagon dragging on the ground, while the others took the sidewalk and resumed their journey on foot.

Mr. Westphal Injured.

Mr. William Westphal of Central avenue was injured by a peculiar press last Wednesday. He was printing some cards and his right arm was caught in such a manner as to severely injure the bone above the elbow. Dr. Simpson dressed the wound and says if the injury had been two inches lower his arm would have been seriously hurt. As it is he will soon be able to use it again.

A Frightened Horse Falls Down.

About six o'clock Saturday evening George Steward's horse became frightened at an electric car at the corner of North and Watchung avenue. Mr. Steward, in order to hinder the horse from starting to run away, gave a quick jerk on the reins, throwing the animal down. It was bruised by its sudden fall and had to be unhitched.

A HOUSE BURNED.

THE OLD COLE HOMESTEAD REDUCED TO ASHES.

It was Occupied by Lawyer John K. Van Nest, who, With his Family Was Away at the Time.—The Cause Unknown.

FIRE destroyed the old Randolph Cole homestead on East Front street, near Green Plains, Saturday night. The house was part of the property willed to Somerset Hospital by Lawyer John K. Van Ness, who lives there with his family. The family went to Papino Saturday to spend the day and had not yet returned when the fire broke out.

Both the Plainfield and North Plainfield alarms sounded, but only the city apparatus went to the fire. Warren Engine Company started but when it was seen the fire was out of their district they returned. Before Gazelle's engine arrived, the Scotch Plains fire department was on hand and had connected hose to lay hose to a pond back of the house. As they hadn't enough hose to reach the entire distance, the line was finished with Plainfield hose. The burning building was too far gone to be saved, but the Scotch Plains firemen deserve credit for the saving of a story and a half building within a few feet of the burning one. They did the work with a chemical engine.

Gazelle's firemen kept a stream of water on the smouldering pile until all danger of its again starting up was over.

The sending in of a second alarm was a mistake. It was not done by an order from any official, but by the person who sent in the first alarm. It called out the other two and left the city unprotected in case of another fire in the other direction.

Chief Doane wishes the NEWS to state that anyone sending in an alarm should only open the box and pull the hook, the "box does the rest." He thinks we have a system of sending in a second alarm, if needed, and for an outsider to send it in mixes things up.

Mr. Van Ness is unable to estimate his loss yet. He had $6,000 insurance on the building.

—A little point of great value. See next Saturday's EVENING NEWS.

AT HOTEL NETHERWOOD.

A German Bulletined For To-Morrow Evening.

A large number of guests are registered at the Hotel Netherwood from New York and other cities, and the outlook for one of the most brilliant seasons ever noted in the annals of Netherwood is bright. A german is bulletined for the evening of Tuesday, the 18th inst., and the subscription list already shows a large number of subscribers for the event.

The Sunday evening concerts so favorably received last season by the guests at the hotel are continued this year and are thoroughly enjoyable.

The most delightful driveways in and about the vicinity of Netherwood are thoroughly enjoyed by the guests of the hotel.

A large number of prominent families from New York, Brooklyn, and other places are now domiciled there for the season, and from the booking further accessions will be made to the list.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Scely Edsall is hunting cool weather in the Pennsylvania hills.

Mr. James Clark of New York was the guest yesterday of his uncle, Mr. David Clark of Morris avenue.

Miss Depew of Franklin place started Saturday for Philadelphia to join a party of friends en route for Chicago.

Mr. H. Hinson of Harrison street is building a large addition on the rear of his house, corner of Harrison and Cedar streets.

William Edmondson, a plumber, died at his home on West Third street yesterday. Death was due, it is supposed, to rheumatism of the heart. He had been an sufferer a long time from that cause.

The engagement is announced of Miss Antoinette Allison of Somerset street, North Plainfield, to Mr. August Trost of Front street. The young couple are well known and very popular, and congratulations are, therefore, numerous and hearty.

Saturday, at White House, occurred the death of Mrs. Ann M. Naylor, mother of Mrs. David Weaver of Manning avenue, North Plainfield. She was eighty years of age and had been suffering for some time. Mrs. Weaver had been a constant attendant at the old lady's bedside for a month past.

The many friends Hattie Oblinger will be surprised to learn of her death, which occurred Saturday evening, having been sick for several weeks, yet death came quite sudden and unexpected. Her bosom friend and constant companion, Will Hooper, in the memories of those who knew her, she had been blind for the past few years from a severe attack of brain fever. The funeral will take place from the residence of her parents, Third street, this afternoon at the usual hour. The Rev. D. J. Yerkes will officiate.

CRESCENTS WIN AGAIN.

THEY DEFEAT THE WESTFIELDS FOR THE SECOND TIME.

Four Five Innings it was an Exciting Contest.—The Visitors Made Several Bad Errors in the Sixth Inning and Lost the Game.

HE reorganized Crescents, under Captain Smith, beat the Westfields Saturday by the score of eight to three. For five innings it was a close game, the score being 1—1. Then the Westfields made a number of errors, and this, coupled with some heavy hitting by the Crescents, won the game. Monday, McLaughlin and Fowler are slated to be in readiness each other in the ball plays. The former had a fly ball right in his hands and dropped it. Ben Howe started after a high fly, but stopped just before getting under it and let it drop to the ground.

In the seventh inning McLaughlin, who seldom loses a put out when the ball comes within his reach, was given two chances, and missed both. This helped the Crescents to get two more runs. "Mac" had a long run for the two flies he missed.

"Gentle Willie" Murphy again occupied a position on the Crescents and delighted his old followers by playing a fine game. He was short in the field, and at the bat he put right at home.

On third base was another old Crescent player, "Jack" Martin, who used to play short stop, on the old grounds, when Wiegand was captain. He proved a valuable acquisition to the team and played a very creditable game, having eight assists. The score:

SHOOTING AT BLUE ROCKS.

Good Scores Made by Five Members of the Climax Gun Club.

THE gun club grounds, South Plainfield, on Saturday, Neal Apgar, Charles Smith, D. H. Terry, Thos. H. Brantingham and E. Miller, representing the Climax Gun Club, contested, as a five man team, for the shooting and fielding national championship. The people of the vicinity turned out in large numbers to see the contest, and from the booking further accessions will be made to the list.

The contest was a close one, and the following bad score of 38 shells and brings in 19 pair of doubles in clever style. The scores individually was as follows: C. Smith, singles, 20, doubles, 16, total, 36. Brantingham—singles, 20, doubles, 17; total, 37. Apgar—Singles, 20; doubles, 16; total, 36. Miller—Singles, 20; doubles, 16; total, 36. Terry—Singles, 20; doubles, 16; total, 36. The team score was 219 out of a possible 225. Different clubs in this State competed and should the Climax Club win the State contest they will be entered in the national shoot against the winners of the other States.

The regular monthly shoot, which was postponed on account of the death of Secretary Force, will take place Tuesday afternoon, the shooting to begin at one o'clock.

Mayor Gilbert Presides in the City Court.

Mayor Gilbert acted as City Judge, Saturday evening, at City Judge Oehlinger's request, and Lawyers Scott, Stillman, Dunn and Alexander, who were arrested Saturday for fighting, to $10 and $5 fines, respectively. He also fined Adrain Bergen $5 for drunkenness.

Yesterday, John Hogan was arrested for creating a disturbance at Mother-wort. He pleaded Policeman Myers. Hogan was fined $3 this morning by the Mayor.

AMONG THE WHEELMEN.

J. W. Linneman Won First Prize in the Century Run Saturday.

WHEELMAN Jacob W. Linneman of the Press Cycling Club of New York won the first prize in the century run of the Atlantic Wheelmen to Princeton and return, Saturday. The victorious rider's 100 miles were covered in 6 hours 46 minutes. He started from scratch, and made a and spectacle of the one-hundred-mile American road record which Thomas Jeffrey, a year ago at Memphis, established at 6 hours 42 minutes 30 seconds.

For his feat Linneman not only wins the handsome Columbia wheel for coming in first, but also captures a diamond medal, the prize for the best net time. J. T. Marshall of the Atalanta Wheelmen finished ten seconds behind Linneman, but he had the advantage of a thirty-five-minute start. Third man in was A. W. Evans of the New York Athletic Club, who won the prize for making the second best time.

The order in which the first ten men finished, time of start and arrival, together with the net time made, follows:

	Time Start	Time Arrive	Net Time.
J. W. Linneman P.C.	8.10	2.56.26	6.46.21

Probably the handsomest trophy ever offered in a bicycle contest is now on exhibition in the Gorham Manufacturing Company's store in 37 Maiden lane. It is the $1,000 silver trophy presented by Henry L. Saltonstall of Elizabeth, N. J., to the Chicago Race Meet Committee, and will be competed for at the World's Fair on August 11 and 12 next, the race to determine the championship of the world. Yearly races will be held hereafter for the same trophy and same honor.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Public School Question in Question.

To the Editor of The News:—Dandelion is now in a state of excitement and indignation because of the action of the school board. Prof. Johnson, a graduate of Johnson College and of Johns Hopkins University has been principal since the graduation of Prof. Roberts last Spring. Where he was prepared it was with the understanding that if his teaching was satisfactory he should be continued during the coming year, and as 182 nearly the close of the school year, he was instructed to make arrangements for such continuance. Since that time one of the school board is reported to have changed front and to have demanded his removal, and also to have worked with such vigor that his object was partly accomplished when it reached the ears of the public. Steps were immediately taken to prevent such supposed action, but unheeded by a majority of the board.

When it appeared in the fall (which is said by this same member of the Board) that a new principal had been selected, the citizens demanded a reason and were told that it was for the purpose of building up the school. They immediately started inquiries concerning the proposed new principal, and learn that he is Mr. Whitney, who has been principal at Manley, back of Newark, and that he leaves his old position because the people wish to raise the grade of their schools, and Mr. Whitney is not sufficiently advanced to do it.

Now the people of Dandelion also wish to raise their grade they feel that it is a step backward to remove a competent principal for one who it seems could not reach the required grade in a much smaller town.

The Crescent Wheelmen will have a run to-morrow night. The start will be made from the club's room's, on North avenue.

Cadmus will be replaced by Umpire Daly, who has been umpiring the New England League. Good umpiring is a necessity, and while Cadmus is a gentlemanly honest, he seemed unable to judge the height of the balls thrown over the plate.

The next base ball attraction will be the strong Asylum team from Middletown. This team defeated the home club at Middletown last Thursday in a friendly game of ball. The home team seemed evenly matched and a good game should result.

The Cortlands defeated the Shampoo new-mill team, Saturday, July 1, by a score of 32 to 12, and Saturday, July 15, by a score of 22 to 5. Saturday the Cortlands play the Shampoo new-mill team, Hewitt and Cortland. We are now ready to play any amateur team in the city or vicinity.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Edison's Way For Inventors.

Apparently Thomas A. Edison spoke out of the depths of unpleasant personal experience when he told a New York World representative not long since that secrecy was better than a patent in protecting an inventor's rights. If a young man invented something useful, he should not apply at once for a patent on it and then let all the world know what he was making, in Edison's judgment. He should simply construct the machine he chose to make and then himself go into the manufacture of the articles he designed by its aid. By this means he will gain much advantage over others in the field who have not his machine that he will want them and hold it himself.

This is practical wisdom indeed. Edison himself has always said he never made any money from his patents, only from manufacturing. He instances the management of Millionaire Carnegie in the Homestead affair. The Carnegie system is to be on the lookout constantly for labor saving machinery, and when it is found employ it even at high cost. Labor is the most expensive item in the manufacturer's accounts. Whatever will cut down the number of men he is forced to employ will save him that much money.

To the young inventor, therefore, Edison says: Find out some great labor saving tool, for that is the demand of the times. Copy its plan and process as absolutely secret and begin operations with it yourself. Chemistry is a good field for inventive genius. Edison mentions various manufacturing secrets that have been kept for years and have made fortunes for those who owned them. One of them is the London method of dyeing sealskins, which has never been successfully imitated elsewhere in the half century that these skins have been fashionable. By the way, it was a Yankee, not a Vermonter, who discovered sealskin dyeing. Another example is found in the article known as Bristol steel. Its manufacture is known mostly one family, and in this the secret is handed down from generation to generation. Mr. Edison says: The wealth of the modern world has been created by labor saving machinery, but no matter how much labor saving machinery may be invented there will always be enough work for mankind. The great inventor outlives the power of the Pittsburg iron kings as follows:

"Gould has used to be a telegraph operator and he followed the most enlightened business policy. He has surrounded himself with the brainiest men who are hustlers, and he has spared no expense to procure labor saving machinery. That combination cannot be beaten in the manufacturing world.

The Silver Coinage.

The United States government took the money coinage of the country into the coils of law in 1792. From that year till 1873 only 8,049,899 silver dollars were coined altogether. From 1873 to 1878 silver coinage was stopped. In 1878 it was resumed, and from 1878 till 1890 $378,166,873 were coined in silver. In 1890 our coinage legislation was again changed, and what is called the Sherman act was passed in deference to the growing power of the silver monin congress.

The 1890 law required the secretary of the treasury to purchase every month 4,500,000 fine ounces of silver bullion and pay therefor in the notes now known as silver certificates. When these certificates were presented for payment at the treasury, the secretary was to pay out gold coin if he chose for them, at his discretion, but such has been the state of public sentiment that his discretion has always been to pay in gold. In addition to the issuance of the silver certificates the secretary was required by law to coin $2,000,000 a month from July 1, 1890, till July 1, 1891.

Since the assumption of silver coinage in 1878 419,284,835 silver dollars have been issued from the mint. Of this number only $378,018,019 are in actual circulation. Of outstanding silver certificates there are $338,489,165.

One is called on to pity the poor senators and representatives who must assemble in the seething hot city of Washington in August. Their discomfort is added to by the fact that the capitol is undergoing repairs which cannot be completed before they convene. There will be dust, pounding and hammering until then, and even mortar may be sprinkled over the sacred senatorial person as it wabbles to and fro in the marble halls. Congress can reflect, however, that the building over its head is not in the condition in which it allowed Ford's theater to stand, year after year, while hundreds of its faithful employees risked their lives there daily.

In the latest model for fort building no flat stations work entersin any quantity. The hastily extemporized sand bag and cotton bale defenses during the civil war opened the eyes of military engineers to the resources in that direction. Sand bag works and cement will furnish the environment for batteries and guns of all kinds in the new forts.

We know already we had the greatest World's fair that ever was. The attendance early in July shows also that we have the greatest crowd to visit it when we shake up our minds to go there in force. Already the number of visitors for one day has reached 360 000, which is larger than the heaviest days at the London exposition.

KANSAS ON THE BRINK.

Reports That the Populists Are Plotting a Revolt.

THEY NOW CONTROL THE MILITIA.

A Statement That a Deep Laid Conspiracy With Governor Lewelling at the Head Is on Foot—Cries For Vengeance on Some One Marked Under a Free Silver Howl.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The Times has the following alarming story from Topeka, Kan.:

But few people are aware that preparations are being made for a revolution in Kansas—one that will attempt to override all law in the effort to give the "starving class" that which they have not earned. There are more than enough men in Kansas to realize what is now being done. Last night a gentleman who came to this state in 1854, who participated in many of the early struggles, and who has the reputation of feeling the pulse of Kansas as no other man can, said:

"We are slumbering over a volcano. Few people seem to realize what is going on daily, though there are some who believe they see a return of the days when blood was to be found in every settlement. All that is now being done by the Populist administration is not the accidental outcome of modern politics.

"There is too much system in the movements of the state officials and the leaders of that party. I am by no means an alarmist, but I see all the evidence of a conspiracy to wreck the state if possible.

Populists Control the Militia.

"The secret of the control of the militia is but a portion of what is going on. Governor Lewelling, the other state officers, the leading papers of the party, and its influential men; all seem to be guided by one impulse, and are working with an understanding that is not mere chance. The governor has been 'squaring himself' with the most vicious element in the state.

"Not only has he, through his subordinate officials, directed the strike among the coal miners, but within a month he has invaded the penitentiary and has pardoned men who have returned to their former homes to terrorize all who were influential in securing their incarceration. Did you ever notice that in all these pardons the criminals had been guilty of grave offenses, and that they have come from communities in which the Populists have the strongest hold? Take the entire list, and you will find this to be the case. Then, too, these pardoned are the ones who have the most influence with a certain class.

"Every energy of the Populist is now being directed to secure the various county clerks and sheriffs. In many offices will be traded off for these two. There can be but one object in this. The clerks can make much trouble for the state, upon which certificates of election will be issued. There will thus be not only all the state officers and members of the house of representatives pledged to the cause, but the slight members of congress as well.

"Long before that time the militia will be fully reorganized, and prepared to enforce the commands of officials who have shown in the past that they are unscrupulous and ready to shed blood to accomplish their ends. When that time arrives no one who is not to be seen in a building under military rule, and only such persons will be admitted as may bear the credentials issued by Governor Lewelling. Each body will be organized with every corridor of the state house well guarded.

They Long For Blood.

"The time has come when citizens should awaken to what is going on about them or we shall have a struggle that can end only in one way, the spilling of blood, and much of it at that. The people do not care for precedent or for the good name of the state, and they hope to involve other states in the struggle. Their cry for free silver is not honest. They have added this as a popular thing in the states which they hope to control and thus blind the people to their real purpose."

The situation in Kansas is much more serious than eastern statesmen seem to realize, the distance concealing and apparently toning down many of the workings of this new party. Their efforts to capture the judiciary might have been added to the things spoken of by the gentleman interviewed, for there is no longer a question but that every energy is being bent in that direction.

While the Democrats and Republicans are quietly waiting for next year before those parties begin their work, the Populists have commenced their campaign, and every school district is being as actively canvassed as though the election were to-morrow. Literature, speakers and local clubs are doing their work, while the utterances of those of the other parties are never permitted to reach the ears of the faithful, who are fed on the poison that has become so attractive to their minds and to their taste.

Served as Human Prisoners.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Margaret Willis, one of the insane prisoners on Blackwell's island broke from the keepers, rushed to the river and jumped in. Her demented companion in misery, Maddened by frenzied cries, and for some moments the attendants tried in vain to calm them. Daniel O'Neil, 21 years of age, one of the prisoners, jumped into the river, struck out for the woman and managed to catch her by the right arm. The frantic creature seized him by the left and in an instant both were under water. They came to the surface and she struggled hard to pull O'Neil down again, fighting him as he held her. He was rapidly becoming exhausted and Edward Foley, aged 21, another convict, jumped in. He managed to hold the woman's hands and O'Neil towed both to the shore of the island.

An Italian's Treasure Trove.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Diomago Arfelli, an Italian laborer, while cutting away the lawn in front of the old Mifflin mansion, struck his pick into an earthern vessel. Another stroke brought shining gold to light, and the Italian and a chum stuffed their pockets and dinner pails full of coins. The pot is said to have contained English sovereigns and Spanish doubloons valued at $5,000. Arfelli has gone to New York to take a steamer for his native land.

Killed His Wife With a Hoe.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The best caused Daniel Monahan of Yonkers to drink too much, and when he drank rendered him ill tempered. The result was that at little or no provocation he kicked his wife. She was in a delicate condition and died 20 minutes afterward. Monahan was arrested and locked up.

A BRAVE MAN GONE.

NEW YORK, July 17.—General Edward Jardine, who has been critically ill for some time, is dead. His death was not unexpected, but shortly before the end came the physician left the sick chamber. A few moments afterward the veteran suffered a recurrence of the sinking spells which have pulled him down at intervals during his illness, and he succumbed from sheer exhaustion.

His wife, who has been collapsed under the prolonged strain of attending her husband, bore up wonderfully, and was busy sending dispatches to relatives and comrades of the dead soldier. The funeral will be held Tuesday morning under the auspices of F. and A. M. at Greenwood cemetery.

General Jardine was 65 years old, and was a military man since he was old enough to carry a musket. When the civil war broke out he raised a company at Fort Lee at his own expense and put them into Colonel Ellsworth's regiment to go to the front as a captain in May, 1861, and his first battle was at Big Bethel.

Afterward he was in command of the landing force which attacked Fort Clark and Fort Hatteras. He fought at South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Cambria, Va.; Roanoke Island, Elizabeth City, Suffolk and in other hard engagements, and was several times wounded. He came back from the war a lieutenant colonel in 1863, and when the draft riots broke out he gathered some of the Seventh regiment war veterans and some members of the Hawkins zouaves and marched against a mob of 15,000 persons. He received in a skirmish that followed wounds which caused his death, a full charge entering his left knee and thigh. Since then General Jardine has been forced to undergo nine operations on his thigh, the last one being made in October, 1892.

For 24 years the general attended to his duties as a weigher in the custom house, but was never without crutches. Four months ago he was obliged to give up and take to his bed, and has never since left it.

BANKER CLEWS' SCHEME.

He Would Issue Notes Against the Surplus of National Banks.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Comptroller Eckels has received the following letter from Henry Clews, the well known banker:

"The present national bank act certainly should be amended to provide for notes being issued up to the par value of United States bonds, and such amendment would also be wise to provide for an issue of notes against the surplus capital of the national banks to the extent of 75 per cent thereof.

"These two changes in the law would make an additional currency amounting to about $250,000,000 and would provide the nation with enough new money for its needs, and it would be the best and most legitimate kind besides. The New York banks now have a surplus capital of $75,000,000. The national banks of other cities and elsewhere have probably $100,000,000 in addition.

"This banking in cash or its equivalent in the shape of bonds, would soon make them the strongest and most legitimate character of money in circulation. No stronger kind of money could be devised, and any capital which the issue of these notes would be made would be under the direction of a responsible man. They were together with a party of friends drinking. One of the party paid for a bottle of beer with a $5 bill, and when the change was returned Williams and Cooper Boyle quarreled over the amount. Then Ryan took sides with Boyle. Williams left the room and waited for Ryan to come out of the saloon. When he appeared, the murderer pounced upon him with a large clasp knife, and before any one could interfere had severed the jugular vein, cutting Ryan's heart in two, cutting his throat and laying open his breast and abdomen. All the parties connected with the affair are employees of bridges owned by the Union Pacific and Burlington roads.

The Murderer Had a Fifle.

JACKSON, Miss., July 17.—Henry Pennington, a negro serving a life term at the penitentiary, killed Lulu Payne, a female convict, by stabbing her repeatedly with a file. He made the attack while the female convicts were getting water at the cistern.

Ex-State Treasurer Hemmingway, a convict, who is also a trusty on account of a guard, disarmed him, as they thought, but he drew a razor and cut his own throat repeatedly. He will probably die. Jealousy prompted the attack.

Labor Now Ready to Break Out.

TOPEKA, July 17.—It will be difficult to prevent bloodshed in the southeast Kansas coal mine strike. Strikers march from left to shaft demanding the mine owners and shaft bosses leave the mines. The wildest harangues. Walters, leader of the strike, openly advises bloodshed, if necessary to gain his point. He has incited strikers to seriously beat several men who wanted to work. Dispatches from Pittsburg say that trouble is expected. Captain O. S. Cook, commanding the militia company at Pittsburg, has received orders to hold his men in readiness for any possible contingency.

An Unlucky Snake Charmer.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Dot Sowell, the handsome young snake charmer, has been taken again. This time she will probably die. It will be remembered that Dot was bitten about three weeks ago by a rattlesnake and would have died had not prompt medical attention been given her. Dot remained in the New York hospital until Friday and decided to resume her performances. Yesterday afternoon she took a fierce rattler from a box in the presence of the spectators. The reptile was vicious and fastened his fangs behind Dot's ear.

WILD WESTERN DEEDS.

A Reign of Terror Follows the Closing of a Mine.

MOB PREPARED TO ROAST A WOMAN

One Man, In a Jealous Rage, Cut Another Man All to Pieces—The Same Motive Caused a Male Convict to Murder, With a File, a Female Convict.

HELENA, Mon., July 17.—The closing down of the silver mines at Granite and Phillipsburg, where the Granite Mountain and Bimetallic mines, two of the greatest silver producers in the state are located, has resulted in the inauguration of a reign of terror in two camps.

Some 6,000 men have been employed in the mines and mills there, and a large majority of these are of foreign birth. When the mines first closed the miners made a run upon the banks. Many were paid their money, but one of the Phillipsburg banks, thoroughly solvent, but without enough ready cash to meet an immediate settlement, was forced to close its doors.

Having got their savings in hand many made no better use of it than to squander it, others hoarding to hiding it. One man with a sum of nearly $200 placed it temporarily in possession of a woman at Granite for safe keeping. Subsequently calling for it the woman denied all knowledge of it. Enraged at the owner and several companions proceeded to force the woman, using barbarite methods to compel restitution.

Her hands were tied, her face slashed and disfigured and as a final resort coal oil was poured over her and the torch of burning her alive was about to be carried out. Then the woman weakened and divulged the hiding place of the money and recovery by her was effected.

Two days ago an unprotected woman named Ivy about midnight heard a loud knocking at the door, and on opening it she was confronted by two masked men with revolvers who demanded her money and valuables. One hundred and ninety-five dollars belonging to a roomer, Mitchell, who was boarding at the house, had been left with Mrs. Ivy for safe keeping. This money they compelled the woman to hand over, threatening to shoot her if she refused.

Cut His Heart in Two.

OMAHA, Neb., July 17.—Andrew Ryan is lying at the morgue, the victim of a cowardly murder. His slayer is George, alias "Bonny" Williams, now in a cell in the city jail.

The murder was committed in front of a disreputable house in the lower part of town. Ryan was literally cut to pieces by his assailant. Death was almost instantaneous. Williams fled, but was captured by the police.

When he had sobered sufficiently to realize what he had done, he broke down and made a confession. He said he and Ryan had been rivals for the affections of a woman. They were together with a party of friends drinking. One of the party paid for a bottle of beer with a $5 bill, and when the change was returned Williams and

KILLED BY FIREWORKS.

An Explosion at a Picnic With Frightful Results.

A BOMB EXPLODED IN A CROWD.

Several Persons Instantly Killed and Many Severely Burned—Grand Stand Loaded With People Falls and Causes a Panic in Which Many Are Injured.

CHICAGO, July 17.—By the premature explosion of a fireworks bomb at an Italian picnic several people were killed and a number of others injured.

The bomb was fired from an extemporized mortar and was intended to explode high in the air, the explosion to be accompanied by a shower of brilliant fire. Just as the charge was about to be fired there was a deafening roar and the liquid fire and the burning explosives, together with the pieces of the mortar containing the bomb, were hurled in every direction.

Hundreds of persons were standing about the spot, and the flash and report were followed by the cries of those stricken to the earth. No lights were at first to be had, and the dead and wounded lay together beneath the feet of those who were able to escape. Many fell bleeding and bruised, and before they could be saved from all the lights on the grounds were extinguished and increased darkness added to the panic. The explosion took place in a small park where an Italian picnic was being held during the display of fireworks, which was a part of the programme.

Carelessness Caused the Explosion.

The premature explosion was caused, it is supposed, by the carelessness of the man in charge of the display. The entire supply of fireworks became ignited, scattering the burning powder in every direction. Two of the men in charge of the fireworks were instantly killed and two of the spectators were fatally injured. Half a dozen others were badly burned.

Those present concentrated near the spot from which the display was to eminate. Much confusion had been taken to keep order among the onlookers and an effort was started to keep all save those in charge removed from the stand, where the unexploded fireworks were stacked. This was partly successful, and those killed and injured were chiefly the persons in charge of the display.

Those known to be dead are Richard Marphal of 2,095 Morgan street, Michael Snow, Sixty-eighth and Wood streets.

Grand Stand Gave Way.

MONTREAL, July 17.—A grand stand containing 1,000 men, women and children collapsed at the Park Royal. It was the third day's celebration of the fall of the Bastile, under the auspices of l'Union National Francaise. The stand, with its human load, crashed to the ground without a crack or the slightest sign of warning. A terrible panic ensued among the 10,000 people who thronged the park.

The unfortunates who went down with the stand lay piled in inextricable confusion amid the wreck of beams and planking, while over them rushed and trampled the fear maddened crowd who filled the reserve seat inclosure. Cries of pain and terror filled the air and for many moments men seemed to have lost all presence of mind, even the gambling booths and bars being deserted.

A general call for help was telephoned to the city, and six ambulances from the General and Notre Dame hospitals with a corps of surgeons responded. In Montreal the wildest rumors spread, it being reported that 50 lives had been "sacrificed on the altar of Sabbath desecration."

The following is a list of those most seriously hurt: Miss. Roper, Ellen and Mary Purton, Charles Bandet, Mrs. D. Umochal, Arthur Payette and Percy Livermore.

The performance was resumed, and an hour later, while a net was being spread for a trapeze performance, a support broke and another panic and stampede ensued. Fortunately this time, however, no one was hurt, although the ambulances were again called to the park.

McGlynn In Public Again.

FORT RICHMOND, S. I., July 17.—The Rev. Father McGlynn made his first public appearance since his return from Rome in the auditorium at Prohibition park, Fort Richmond, Staten Island, and received a hearty greeting from nearly 5,000 persons.

SWIMMING FATALITIES.

Many Persons Lost Their Lives While Bathing.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 17.—Henry C. Bellows of New York was drowned in the bay off Wings' neck. He was 18 years of age and a son of the late Rev. Dr. Bellows, the eminent Unitarian minister. With his brother, Robert, 16 years old, Henry was returning from Marion in a boat. On the way over the craft was capsized and Henry was drowned.

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 17.—Joseph W. Thompson, 20 years old of 2,000 Reed street, Philadelphia, while bathing here was drowned in the presence of many colegers and brief guests. Thompson could not swim and was carried out to sea by the undertow.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Mitchell Moran, a soldier at Fort Myer, was drowned while bathing at Little river, an arm of the Potomac, in front of the fort.

Howard M. Quander, a white boy, 13 years of age, was drowned in Rock creek, near the National zoo.

DETROIT, July 17.—Several boys were bathing in the river off the head of Belle Isle when two of them got beyond their depth. One boy named Addison was saved by a playmate, and John Vick, father of the other, attempted to rescue his son. The boy grasped his father around the waist, and both went down together.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 17.—Christopher Keppell, 18, and John Keppell, 22, residing in Central Falls, were drowned in Cranberry pond, North Attleboro, while bathing.

FORTS FIRED FIRST.

What Is What the French Have Admitted Reports.

PARIS, July 17.—Rear Admiral Humann, who was in command when the gunboats Incomtantes and Comete crossed the bar of the Menam river and proceeded to Bangkok, has made a brief report of the incident to the government. The gunboats did not fire on the Siamese forts at the river's mouth, he says, when the forts, without any previous warning or demand, had fired on the gunboats.

M. Pavie, French minister resident to Bangkok, has been instructed to protest against the firing from the forts as an indefensible act, constituting a violation of international law, inasmuch as the friendly relations established between France and Siam by the treaty of 1856 had remained unimpaired up to that time.

The secretary of the Siamese legation in Paris denies in an interview that the Siamese were the aggressors in the affair. The conflict was due he says to the fact that the French commanders misunderstood the orders of their government not to cross the bar.

Jews Defied the Czar.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 17.—The Jews of Yalta, in the Crimea, refused to obey the decree to retire within the pale. For several days the clergy exhorted the rest of the population to rise and expel them. An anti-Jew mob took possession of the streets, broke into houses occupied by Jews, and tried to drive the occupants from the town. The Jews fought back. Dozens were dragged into the streets and were beaten. Many were killed. The houses owned by Jews were plundered and wrecked. Troops were called to the town to restore order.

Miners Guarded by Armed Men.

PITTSBURG, Kan., July 17.—Striking miners sent a committee, headed by President Watters, to the Midway mines to induce the miners to cease work. The committee finding the miners guarded by armed men applied to the management to get access to the miners. The permission was readily granted them, and a number of the workers were induced to join the strikers.

STAR GAZERS DISAGREE.

Professional Astronomers Mix Up the Answers Regarding the Comet.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The comet which is now the object of so much search and speculation, suddenly developed an enormous tail Saturday night, which to the unpractised eye was taken to be a display of the aurora borealis. Professor Pritchett of the naval observatory was studying the comet through the nine inch glass. He noticed a long streak of greenish white light shoot out from the comet and extend itself almost to the zenith. At first the nucleus of the comet being at that moment hidden by a fleecy cloud, it was thought that the streak was a meteor and cost an advance notice of a brilliant engagement, but as there was no flickering, and as the light came steadily from where the comet had been for weeks, the professor concluded that he was seeing a comet in process of development.

The tail of the comet was 20 degrees in length, a distance about 80 times as long as the moon is wide, and extended from 12 degrees above the horizon almost to the zenith. It was plainly visible to the naked eye.

GENEVA, N. Y., July 17.—Professor Brooks reported the observations of a fine display of aurora, the most magnificent seen for months. The display was of great brilliancy, reaching from the western horizon up past the zenith toward the eastern sky. It resembled a broad and bright ray of great length, for which a few minutes before the real cause of the comet, he said, was considerably to the north of this and is becoming fainter.

MEYER COMING EAST.

Two Detectives Are Escorting the Alleged Wholesale Poisoner.

DETROIT, July 17.—Detectives Von Gerichten and Trainor of New York city, who came here to arrest Dr. H. C. Meyer, the alleged wholesale poisoner, and his wife, went to Lansing to secure requisition papers. The governor granted the papers, and the officers started for New York with Dr. Meyer alone, as Mrs. Meyer is not yet able to travel. She is under guard at the hospital.

Dr. Meyer received a number of visitors before leaving. Many people thought they could identify him. His most interesting visitor was Daniel Gillette, head of the department of investigation of the New York Mutual Life Insurance company.

Mr. Gillette came to Detroit to identify Meyer. To recognize him at once as the man who a year ago last June introduced himself as William Rentier and said he had come from the widow of Gustav Joseph Baum to assist her in securing the insurance on the latter's life. Mr. Gillette recognized Mrs. Meyer as the woman who called at the same time as the widow of Baum to claim the insurance on her husband's life.

Navajos Imprisoned Detectives.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 17.—What threatened to be serious trouble among the Navajos, has been nipped in the bud by the prompt arrival of the troops from Fort Wingate, at Houck's Tank, I. T. Two Atlantic and Pacific railroad detectives shot a Navajo Indian who resisted arrest on the charge of throwing a switch. The detectives were surrounded by a band of angry Navajos and sought refuge in a store. The Indians held the detectives prisoners within the store until the arrival of the troops on a special train.

Again the Wind Shifts.

CHICAGO, July 17.—The vote of the World's fair directors that the gates of the exposition be closed to the public Sunday it appears does not finally settle the question. A temporary injunction obtained several weeks ago by Charles W. Billington, one of the stockholders in the Exposition company and a taxpayer of Chicago, compelling the gates to be kept open, still stands in the way.

Failure Led to Suicide.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—John A. Lyndall, 52 years old, of 2,000 Reed street, a Fruit Jar company, which was involved in the failure of the Spring Garden National bank, and was the defendant in suits brought by receiver of the wrecked institution, was found dead with his throat cut at his home, having evidently committed suicide.

Denied Mr. Dunn's Statements.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Secretary Morton exhibits great surprise and indignation at the interview with Forecaster E. B. Dunn of New York recently published. "It is absolutely untrue," he said, "that I have asked Professor Harrington for his resignation nor have I any intention of doing so."

Got Tips for a Policy "Pick."

An old colored man was standing at the corner of Eleventh street and Sixth avenue, grinning to himself and not interfering with anybody, when a drunken man staggered along. The sight of the other seemed to enrage him and he hit out, knocking the negro down.

The old fellow stumbled to his feet and four teeth fell into his hand. The blow had caught him fairly in the mouth, knocking them out.

"Tas in luck," he cried, counting them, "one, two, three, four. That makes four, this is Eleventh street and my son's forty-four years old today. That's 4-11-44. If that 'pick' doesn't win I'm an old black hoodoo man."

And hastily shaking hands with the drunkard, who seemed amazed at the turn affairs had taken, he started on a foot race for the nearest policy shop to play the "pick." His face beaming with delight.—New York Herald.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

We and Miss Lollypop Fudge,
Three happiest people in earth or in sky,
We and Miss Lollypop Fudge!
We, my darling, me, you and I.
And she is your darling Dolly.
Oh, but for a heedless way and away,
Where the fields are green at the grass is May
And the flowers are scattered from left to right,
Like stars in the sky of a summer night;
And the trees are growing so high, so high,
You would think that their green tops touched the sky.
And the birds are singing the whole day long,
Their happiness, happiness, song after song;
And the butterflies—such gay butterflies—
How their wings would dazzle your laughing eyes!
And the big honey bees that hum through the flowers,
And the wee humming birds that sing in the showers;
And that ripple of water from brooks that eat near—
Listen! today you can almost hear.
The plash of their music. Oh, say, but today
If we could only ramble away and away!
There never before was in earth or in sky
Two happier people than you and I:
We and Miss Lollypop Polly!
We, my darling, that's you and I,
And she—your darling Dolly.

We could not leave her at home today,
She with the dancing curls;
She the fairest of queens in May,
And you the sweetest of girls.
So, come and bring with you Miss Lollypop Fudge,
Bring her with you her coach and her new parasol,
And you in your hat with its bunches of lace
And bows of bright ribbon that match with your face.
For we will be finer than England's queen
In all her most dresses that ever were seen;
We shall have crowns of the fairest of flowers
We shall have sceptres of tulips from the bowers,
And walk in those fields as on cloth of gold,
Holding such honors as never were told.
The birds shall perch on our hands and sing.
The butterflies flit with their golden wing
And light on our cheeks fain,
And beauty and music shall fill the air,
So, oh! ho! ho! for a ramble today
Where the fields are green at the grass is May—
We shall be home when the night dew falls,
We shall be here when somebody calls.
Ho! ho! where are you, Miss Dolly?
Jeppers then where are you and I,
Safest and gladdest in earth or in sky
Are we and Miss Lollypop Polly!

Little Daisy's Bravery.

My little sister Daisy is 9 years old. She is a quick, nervous child, and, as is common in these cases with willful children, is very much afraid of all my everything and all that she takes a fancy to.

A year ago last July I was sick, and as he was very weak the doctor ordered port wine for him. They let Daisy try it, and she took a great fancy to it, so that she wanted it wherever papa had it.

About two months ago there was a large number of pledges for temperance given out at our church, and Daisy signed one. I don't think she quite realized at the time what it meant, for when a bottle of port wine was brought in the house a week ago Daisy wanted some right away. I said, "Daisy, remember you have signed the pledge." She thought a moment and then turned resolutely away, and when they offered her some to eat or she would take it she would not even look at it. It was a thing many a grown person would not have done, and with a willful nature like hers it was, I think, a heroic act.—Cor. New York Press.

A Dog That Deserved Death.

While Herman Richard, who is employed in the south yards of the Northwestern Railway company, was driving from his home, 479 Twenty-eighth street, Milwaukee, one of the buggy wheels struck a sidewalk approach and he was thrown forward, and Richard was thrown out. His left leg and one of his arms were sprained. The horse broke loose and continued down Broadway on a gallop. Mr. Richard has a Newfoundland dog which usually follows him down town, and this morning when the dog saw his horse break away he started in pursuit. At various places between Michigan street and the Broadway bridge the faithful dog grabbed the trailing lines, only to be jerked off as he lost his hold. But the dog succeeded in slacking the speed of the horse somewhat, and some men caught it near the bridge. When the dog got back to where his master lay, he was utterly exhausted, but afterward picked himself up and followed the ambulance containing his master to the Emergency hospital.

Little Bobby's Fraction.

Little Bobby—Mamma, the boys is going to have a circus. May I not?

Mamma—Oh, I suppose so. What are you going to do?

Little Bobby—Nothing much. They is going to have a pyramid of 16 boys, an all I has to do is to stand on top.—London Tit-Bits.

What One Little Boy Did.

The children were rollicking on the soft grass, and all could turn a somersault except little Josie, who tried in vain, but after awhile he accomplished the feat and shouted, "I did turn a willow pile."—Exchange.

A WOMAN'S HAND.

O, woman! in our hours of ease
Uncertain, coy and hard to please,
Though capricious, changeful, trying, bold,
Thou wishful, treacherous, deceiving
Still
In your strong and blessed.

Rich stores of tenderness confessed,
Brave loving in your hours of grief,
Love, sympathy and hope befall
A woman's hand.

In tryings of the cradle sent
In sweetheart's thrilly smile blent,
In mother's touch or mother's hold—
Wherever hearts meet be controlled,
Earth's holds decayed, reversed powers invest
A woman's hand.

—C. M. Harger in Worthington's Magazine.

Good Health.

Live as near the top of your house as you can. It is the most healthful part of the whole building. There is more air, a freer circulation and less of the unwholesome dust from the street.

People often wonder at the ragged health of servants in spite of their constant and careful attention. It is a great misfortune to the fact that they usually sleep in a poor atmosphere than any other compartment of the house.

The attic, generally devoted to storage and servants' rooms, is far more valuable than the second floor bedroom pre-empted by the whole families. The servants obtain pleasure which before their habitual bedding taken way up stairs at the beginning of autumn.

In the average flat house the top floor is always rented for a smaller sum than any of the others, and yet it is sure to be light-ed, airy and cheerful. The rooms are larger, rooms and halls burn gas all day. No one passes your door or tramps over your head, and you can have the roof for a garden.

Every whole child should be taught to get the benefit of every leak in the roof. But there is deep consolation in the fact that no one can be legally compelled to pay rent when the roof leaks.—Donahoe's Magazine.

Wisdom in Discipline.

A will may be broken in childhood by a government too severe. The discipline, failing to recognize the individual nature and aiming to thoroughly control, may retard the development of moral responsibility in a child so that no determining will be developed, and the will be kept suppressed or overcome. That such a government of children cannot be too severely decried can readily be perceived by logically following the results. We have seen and women who cannot determine any action for themselves, but always depend on the judgment of developed natures in guiding them. We can see no reason and women have through the strong will that makes fearless the obedience to good principles.

If children are compelled to submit to anything except as they comprehend, the contradiction is found on a larger when such a training is applied to them, their impetus—they are retarded in their development. It is the true duty of parent or guardian to so train children that their whisking confidence, the most essential duty to be worthy the confidence gained.—Home Helper.

The Ubiquitous Whisky.

Cases are not infrequently reported in which children and sometimes grown persons are poisoned by by free use of insecticides, it not being generally known that this article or common household use is really a deadly poison. This is true, in fact,

LOOK OUT!

Or you might burn your fingers. People are apt to be careless, and there is no telling what they handle some day, possibly in the way of Carriages. Quite a lot of them are made to sell, not to wear. Ours are made to wear, and we sell them; or not. Some are made to look neat at the expense of good quality. Ours are not at the expense of good looks. Ours are made to wear well and look well.

Some Carriages are good to advertise the factory, others to represent. We make it, because we want to make it. Quite a few others of a small grade which we are not well content. Which do you want? Which do you buy? Which do you do an enormous business. Do you see the difference? If you do, you can also see that it is to your benefit to call on

WHITE, of Plainfield,

Every Girl Should Be Taught to Sew.

Every girl should be taught to darn with silk as well as with cotton and yarn. There should be infinite joke for a mother on the disgrace of wearing a stocking with even a broken thread, while a darn well put in has a beautiful appearance. It is also by no way deteriorates from the value of a good stocking. Darning is a lady's occupation akin to embroidery in deftness and gentleness of touch. The finest stuff and jolly ment to adopt the thread, which should be but a trifle coarser than the web of the stocking, or, in case of cloth, than the thread of the goods. Where a cloth may be easily raveled it is better to darn it with the ravellings, unless it is in a place where more than ordinarily strength is required in the goods. The cloth should be darned between the layers, and when done by a skilful hand and well pressed the work becomes practically invisible.

Importance of a Child's Diet.

The food of children should receive special care. During the time of rapid growth digestion is very active and is enabled to supply the enormous amount of nutriment necessary for the building up of the body. Comparatively few parents realize the important part which diet plays in the production of physical robustness.

A child who is puny, pale and sallow is likely to become an adult of inferior mental and physical capabilities, and excessive fatness in childhood is quite as much to be dreaded. Either condition invites disease, and per—as should know that much may be done to avoid both excessive leanness and excessive fatness by an intelligent and persistent attention to the child's diet.—Youth's Companion

HELP THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

IS THE WELL DEFINED PURPOSE OF THIS COLUMN.

Show Well in Publicity the Mission One Only to Learned by Reading It—Many Labor Saving Suggestions and Valuable Recipes.

Publicity requires a tuition about to develop these the fabulous mentions that makes them at once so palatable and so easy of digestion, and should never be lacked except in those whose stomach will stand a handful of salt. This means a very simple thing, but you will find on inquiry that not one cook in ten ever boils her potatoes in this way. Then, after they are boiled, try fifteen minutes drying, and you will have perfectly cooked potatoes which may be eaten as they are (and will need before they are) or may be delicious way), or prepared, in the numberless different fashions in which we are want to serve this vegetable of vegetables.

HER FIRST MARKETING.

The Young Housekeeper Has Considerable Fun Picked at Her.

Nearly every young housekeeper, married to young housekeepers, and there is another that might well be added to them: "I shall want some lamb to-day," and then the conscientious wife, the brother as she entered his shop on the morning rounds to the "butcher," the latter, and the conscientious wife, "I want ten," said one, "of those nice little tails the consumers?" "No," said the little lady doubtfully, "I think that will be too much; two quarters would be quite enough for our family." "Yes," the husband afterward, quite proudly, how the bowels was thought to avoid impose upon her, but that she knew well enough that the butcher was only trying to get rid of whole quarters of lamb. "Why, it is the whole sheep," she continued indignantly. "Indeed!" was the reply, accompanied by a gross his mirth, told her that she was too delicious for anything."—N. Y. Tribune.

ART NEEDLEWORK.

A Revival of this Neglected and Beautiful Accomplishment.

In a recent exhibition of artistic needle craft, considerable improvement was shown indicating that there is a revival in the much neglected accomplishment.

For a generation or more it has been taught only in convent schools, while in assigned it no less than eight days among the Royal School of Art Needlework in South Kensington, where the finished beautiful work was made.

We give you five beautiful designs which are copies of old embroideries.

One is a very pretty Louise Seize design applied to the decoration of one of the corners for handkerchiefs and the long gloves. These sets, beautifully embroidered and most delicately made up, are sure to find favor for birthday and wedding gifts, and, like all artistic work of this kind, will be retained as heirlooms in families for generations.

PRETZELS CURED.

Complacency in this exhibiting were the handsome portfolios, of which the choice, both in design and coloring, is practically unlimited. One very pretty one with a conventional design in shades of orange and the leaves in shades of green. This is worked in gold-colored silk, couched with gold thread on a foundation of brown silk, and is a capital example of the monochrome coloring, in which many of the designs are executed.

The Best Potatoes.

The chain dish-cloth for pots and kettles is an indispensable kitchen convenience. It consists in the first place of a ball of less links on the end of a handle long enough to reach to the bottom of an ordinary pot, and coarse just too coarse. It does not have the fine links to prevent the food from presenting an unpleasant appearance, but allows the cooking vessels much more thoroughly than cloth.

Cream of Orange.

Three-fourths of a pound of Coffee A sugar, eight eggs, the grated rind of two oranges and one ounce of cornstarch. Stir constantly in a double kettle until it begins to thicken; remove from the stove and beat a few minutes. Pour into custard cups or sherbet glasses, place on the ice and serve with fancy cakes.

To Freshen Leather.

Leather chair seats may be revived by rubbing them with well-beaten white of eggs.

The most delicate way to boil an egg is to pour boiling water over it and let it stand to remain, without boiling, for ten minutes. It will be found to be perfectly cooked.—Food.

To prevent a mould in salt, infuse a piece of salt the size of a hazelnut in each quart.

Keep flowers fresh by putting a pinch of soda in the water.

For fruit stains, dip the spots several times in hot milk.

What He Had to Face.

"Twas midnight as he passed along
The city's silent street;
And not a soul he met and none—
And earth's joys are fleet.

Nor filled with misery was he sad.
Filled he the very letter;
He looked as with was waiting up
For John.

CITY COMMON COUNCIL.

AN ADJOURNED MEETING HELD LAST EVENING.

The Board of Fire Underwriters Recommend that the City Procure a Chemical Engine.—Hydrants Ordered Placed Near the Pond Tool Works.—Other Matters.

President Gimus, and Councilmen Bird, Erickson, Fisk, Frazee, Millington and See were present at an adjourned meeting of the Common Council last evening. The minutes of the regular July meeting were read and approved.

Several residents of Watchung avenue petitioned Council to have a crosswalk laid at the intersection of North and Watchung avenues. The matter was referred to Committee on Streets, with power.

Mr. H. E. Rider and Mr. J. E. Daily petitioned for hack and truck licenses, respectively. They were both granted.

Mr. Erickson, of the Fire and Buildings Committee, stated that he had received a communication through the mayor from the National Board of Fire Underwriters, stating that the Board's general inspector had visited Plainfield and had found that the city was in need of a chemical engine for portions of the city where there were no hydrants. Oftentimes fires could be extinguished without water. The inspector also found that the fire department needed 2,000 feet of hose, and recommended that the fire alarm service be divided in two districts. The matter was referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings.

Two notes amounting to $1,075 were ordered paid. The first payment on the new engine house of $500 was ordered paid to Mr. W. C. Smith.

In a communication, Corporation Counsel Marsh informed the Council that the original copy of the contract of the City of Plainfield with the Plainfield Water Supply Company had been filed with the City Clerk and that the contract with the old Water Company had been rescinded, in compliance to the request of the Water Supply Company.

Mr. Fisk said that as the fire department needed more funds he had prepared a resolution empowering the borrowing of $1,500 for the use of the fire department. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Erickson said that as Architect Smith had complained that the brick used in the new engine house were not first-class, several competent men had been asked to inspect them. The inspection had been made and in all cases the reports agreed that the brick were first-class in every respect. Mr. Erickson also stated that Mr. Smith had taken down and rebuilt a portion of the wall, which had been objected to. Besides this Mr. Smith had, in one case, made the wall twelve inches when the contract only called for an eight inch wall. This was done at the suggestion of the Fire Committee. President Gimus said, as he was going to have some building done himself, he thought he would investigate the work of the new engine house. He went there on the Fourth and examined the material used, and it was, in his opinion, superior to what he had been able to obtain.

By resolution a vacation of one week was granted to each driver in the fire department.

Mr. Fisk reported that the storm of Saturday, July 8th, had done much damage to the fire alarm system and it was with difficulty that the trouble had been located. He offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the placing of two switches—one at the corner of North and Park avenues and the other at the corner of Third and Liberty streets.

Mr. Erickson presented a resolution directing the Plainfield Water Supply Company to extend its mains and locate hydrants at the following places:

TWO-WAY HYDRANTS.

At Lee place and South Second street.
" Stebbins " " " "
" Prescott " " " "
" Monroe avenue " " "
" Manning place " " "
" Morris street " " "
" Grant avenue and West Third street
" Third street 200 feet northeast of Grant avenue.

FOUR-WAY HYDRANT.

At Pond place and South Second street.

On motion the rules were suspended to allow one member of the License Committee to sign the license applications.

Mr. Fisk reported that during the storm of July 8th the following streets were blocked by trees: Park avenue, Front street, Sixth street, Fifth street, Second street, Madison avenue and Watchung avenue. He thought that much credit was due Street Commissioner Meeker for the promptness with which he had cleared the streets. In all fourteen trees were down in the streets. By twelve o'clock Mr. Meeker had them all carted away.

In a communication Assessor Hubbard informed the Council that a mistake had been made in assessing a lot on Hillside avenue. For three years it had been assessed as two lots. It was resolved that the assessor correct the mistake in his books.

Monday, August 7, at eight o'clock, was designated as the time when all property owners on Madison avenue should have an opportunity to express themselves in reference to the Madison avenue widening.

The clerk was instructed to serve notices of the above action of the Council on each property owner on the line of the proposed widening.

Council then adjourned.

ANOTHER NUISANCE.

THE BOARDS OF HEALTH WILL EXERT THEIR AUTHORITY.

A Sewer at the End of Watchung Avenue, Intended Only for Draining Surface Water, is Tapped by Several Buildings.—The Stench from the Sewage at its Outlet into Greenbrook is Excessive.

There is still another source of pollution of Greenbrook. It is at the end of Watchung avenue.

There is a big pipe there about two feet in diameter. It was originally intended only as a drain for surface water, but it has been tapped in many places and now carries the sewage of several large buildings.

The flow is continual, and, especially on these sultry nights, the stench in the neighborhood of Greenbrook at that point, is said, by those who live there, to be so unbearable as to necessitate the closing of windows and doors. What the stopping of ventilation means on nights such as we are now having can be well imagined.

What a source of danger to public health must Greenbrook be, with the constant pollution of this Watchung avenue sewer and the 19 other places between Somerset street and Grove street flowing into its sluggish, shallow waters!

Prompt measures are to be taken to suppress this nuisance.

PERSONAL.

Miss Albertson is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. C. C. Cokefair of Crescent avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ridley of Second place are at Pine Bush, Orange county, N. Y.

Mrs. D. M. Van Vliet of Grove street and Mrs. Foster have gone to Avon-by-the-Sea.

Miss Ida May Talisay of West Sixth street has gone to spend the Summer with friends in Readington.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bigelow and Miss Kate E Bigelow of Central avenue have gone to Asbury Park for the Summer.

Among the Plainfielders registered at Asbury Park hotels are the Misses Amy Dix-Hall, Carrie M. Burt, and Edward Wilson.

Mr. Greendyke of Mercer avenue is enjoying life at the Mahook Hotel, Lake Mahook, N. Y., during the sizzling period.

Mrs. Cornelia Mitchell and her niece, Miss Lydia Colton of Grove street left to-day to spend three weeks in New York State.

Mr. Frank Cokefair of Crescent avenue arrived last evening at Chicago. He will spend several weeks about the World's Fair grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. French and only cousin of the immediate French family to still a big stage, went off to-day for a picnic at Papino.

Mr. and Mrs. Canfield of Jersey City have returned home after an enjoyable visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Townsend of Evona terrace.

District Deputy C. W. Tallman and staff installed the officers of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., last night. A collation followed the ceremonies.

W. C. Tallman and his installation staff went to Perth Amboy Friday night, and installed the new officers of Lawrence Lodge 83, I. O. O. F., of Perth Amboy.

Messrs. Charles Smith, F. Millington, D. MacIntosh, I. Stover, J. Blimm, H. Huff, Alonzo Ayers, Alexander Ayers and E. Oestridge went to the fishing banks Sunday.

Gen. Eli Long and family of Grove street started to-day for Bluff Point, Yates county, New York, where Gen. Long has an extensive vineyard. They will remain all Summer.

Civil Engineer Alfred B. Nelson of No. 109 East Front street has been chosen engineer of construction of the Passaic, Rutherford and Carlstadt electric Railway and will have a branch office in Passaic.

Mr. W. W. Coriell of West Front street was surprised Friday to see at Asbury Park, his Summer home, Wm. Lyons, Wm. Granash, George Moore, Wm. Baldwin and M. E. Brewster. The quintette went down on the excursion, and nearly cut him out of house and home.

Mr. A. Barpending and family of West Seventh street have given up their residence and gone to the sea shore. Long Branch is their destination. The family has stored the furniture, and may again locate here. A family by the name of Baker has leased the house for the Summer.

A Bicycle Race for $10.

A bicycle race has been arranged between Fred Miner and Frank Hart of this city to take place Thursday afternoon, at three o'clock. The race is for $10 a side. The course is to be from Bonner's road house, on South avenue, to Netherwood station and return.

The Weather.

On Wednesday clear weather will probably prevail, with slowly rising temperature and light variable winds, becoming mostly southerly; and on Thursday considerable warmer, fair weather.

MR. STAHL WITHDRAWS.

A Popular Borough Fireman's Reasons for Not Contesting.

To the Editor of The News:—As I would be unable to take the trip to the World's Fair, if elected, I take this method of informing my friends that I have withdrawn from the contest, and thank them for the votes received.

J. J. STAHL.

[Although Mr. Stahl has withdrawn, on account of business demands, his record must stand, as an acknowledgement of votes received, and should any votes be received for him later they must also be credited. Mr. Stahl is very anxious that Warren Engine Company should make a good showing, and, as he feels that he could not go if elected, he generously withdraws, as then his friends may help the friends of the Company, he says, may unite for another representative, who is near the head of the list to-day. Ed.]

WARREN'S NEW PARLORS.

The Firemen Have Fitted it up in Great Style.

Warren Engine Company's new parlor is about finished. It has been elaborately fitted up. One dozen new quarter oak chairs line the room on each side, besides three arm chairs and a rocker of the same wood. In the center is an oak center table, on which will be a 4-tempay album and stamped in gold letters thereon is the following: "Warren Engine Co." A large glass case, containing the beautiful silver trumpet won at the G. A. R. contest, will be placed on the center table. The president's table is also of light quarter oak.

Two smaller desks have been ordered to be used for the secretary and treasurer. From the center of the room hangs a large combination chandelier of four electric lights and four gas jets. Behind the president's, secretary's and treasurer's desks is also placed an electric light. The walls are prettily papered, around the bottom being linen crusts with a border of cream colored dado. A white and gold moulding encircles the ceiling. The floor is covered with a new body Brussel's carpet.

On the wall is a large framed picture of the engine. It was drawn by W. E. Stahl. The rear room is to be fitted up as a waiting room. It is also all done up by the money realized at the Brenan's fair last Fall and will cost about $200 when completed.

"HOKE" GOT HIS BATH.

But Not Until his Master Also Took One.

"Hoke Smith" had a bath yesterday in the race way back of French's mill. It was not the "Hoke" Smith of political fame, however, who is a member of President Cleveland's cabinet, but a little dog, owned by Mr. S. E. Flower.

The day being intensely hot Mr. Flower decided to give "Hoke" a bath. "Hoke" followed him to the raceway, but refused to enter the water and ran home. Mr. Flower had made up his mind to give doggy a bath, so he secured him with a rope and again took out Mr. Flower and "Hoke" "went near the water."

It is not known whether Mr. Flower slipped or whether "Hoke" pulled him in, anyway Mr. Flower, landed in the water beside his pet canine and received an impromptu bath. Ask him for further particulars.

IF YOU LIKE LEMON PIE.

The Receipt Given is the Secret of a Delicious Dish.

To the Editor of The News:—I send you a recipe that I hope others may make use of and enjoy:

LEMON PIE.

Three quarters of a cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of flour, yolks of three and white of one egg, well-beaten; the juice and grated rind of one lemon, one half cup of water. Bake in one crust and cover with meringue of the two whites of eggs, and one half cup powdered sugar. Brown.

MRS. "FRANCES COQUELIN."

PAWNED HIS EMPLOYER'S GOODS.

Norman Linbarger Taken Before Justice Nash and Held for Trial.

Norman Linbarger of Orange, an agent for an installment house in Newark, it is alleged, recently pawned $20 worth of his employer's goods in this city for $2. He also sold, it is said, 26 articles for 75 cents. The head agent came to Plainfield yesterday and on his affidavit Linbarger was arrested and taken before Justice Nash, who held him on his own recognizance to appear for trial.

Linbarger, it is claimed, says he was intoxicated at the time he pawned the goods and did not realize what he was doing.

A LITTLE BOY BITTEN.

John Hyman's Dog Attacks Six-Year-Old Harry Robinson.

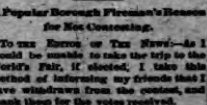
Last evening as six-year-old Harry Robinson of Willow avenue was playing on Harrison street with several companions a dog belonging to Mr. John Hyman ran out of its owner's yard and bit him severely on the leg.

Dr. Carmen was called and dressed the wound, which is not thought to be serious as the dog was not mad, only vicious.

Later in the evening the dog was killed by Marshal Pangborn.

Base Ball Notes.

The Crescents go to New Brunswick to-morrow afternoon. A stage will leave from corner of Park avenue and Front street, at 1.15 o'clock. Those who desire a seat for can be accommodated, the round trip costing 50 cents, to pay for the stage. The game will be called at 3.30.



EDMUNDSON—In this city, William W. Edmundson died July 18th, 1893. Age 48 years 8 months.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A Leader In Arbitration.

When the United States congress some time ago authorized the president to conclude treaties of arbitration with other nations, it probably builded far more grandly than it knew. It is quite possible this action of American congressmen will give the United States the proud distinction of being the initiator and leader in the path of international arbitration for the settlement of all disputes.

In the British parliament a member made mention in highly commendatory terms of this action of congress. At the same time he offered a motion that the house of commons express the hope that the British government would open negotiations with the United States with the aim of having all differences between the two countries settled by arbitration. Mr. Gladstone himself pressed in the hour of battle for home rule long enough to amend the motion so that it would read, "The house of commons, cordially sympathizing with the purpose in view, hopes that her majesty's government will lend a ready co-operation to the government of the United States." The amendment was seconded by no less a distinguished member than Sir John Lubbock, and the resolution was adopted without a dissenting voice.

The United States and Great Britain are the two greatest nations on the globe. With the settlement of all questions between them by peaceful arbitration an example and precedent will be set before the excitable Latin races and the feverish, fussy, little emperor of Germany that may be the beginning of universal disarmament. Perhaps the twentieth century will see that ideal realized, and that through the enlightened initiative taken by the United States.

Chautauqua.

An event in many minds second only in importance to the Fourth of July is the annual opening of the great Chautauqua assembly. The summer course of instruction, which has since expanded all over the world, began in 1873. Bishop Vincent of the Methodist church and Mr. Lewis Miller started at Chautauqua a two weeks' course of instruction in Bible study. From this two weeks of summer Bible study the course developed, year by year and step by step, into more classes in sacred literature and in branches especially pertaining to Sunday school study.

Now there are two months of regular summer schooling. As to the branches included in the course, it is much easier to say what is not, tackled in that Chautauqua assembly in the way of study than what is. Among the departments are mentioned the following: Schools of music, physical culture, industrial drawing, art and artistic work, china decoration and tapestry painting, wood carving and clay modeling, photography, elocution and oratory, kindergarten, cookery, shorthand and typewriting and business practice.

The most distinguished lecturers from Europe and America are heard every summer. The only limitation insisted on closely is that the lecturers shall say nothing opposed to the authority and claims of the present orthodox Christian faith. But about everything but heterodoxy can secure a hearing, including Delsarteism and cookery.

Tesla believes he has advanced one more step toward the explanation of electricity. He says its effects may be controlled by the number and kind of vibrations. Tesla's own particular contribution to electrical science was the discovery of how to produce exceedingly rapid alternating currents. He says of these currents: "By their help we may cause a body to throw out more light while at a certain mean temperature than it would emit if brought to that temperature by a steady supply. Again, we may bring a body to a point of fusion and cause it to emit less light than when fused by the application of energy in ordinary ways. It all depends upon how we supply the energy and what kind of vibrations we set up. In one case the vibrations are more in the other less adapted to affect our sense of vision."

The Christian Union has changed its name and will hereafter be known as The Outlook. It will still be a Christian family paper, but in the judgment of its proprietors and editors the former name identified it too closely with the religious press and stamped it rather as a denominational journal, while it was exactly the contrary of denominational. Henry Ward Beecher in 1869 laid down the principle on which he determined it should be conducted—that of promoting unity and brotherhood among Christians of all denominations. Since Beecher's death Dr. Abbott has carried the paper along the same road.

The last words any human being heard from A. J. Drexel were remarkable. They were a key to his whole career. When Mr. Haskins, the last person who conversed with Mr. Drexel, said to him as he bade him goodby, "Cheer up, old friend, and have pluck," the millionaire philanthropist replied instantly, "I have plenty of that."

The number of deaths officially reported on account of the Ford's theater disaster at Washington is 22.

MEYER IS IN THE TOILS

The Alleged Wholesale Poisoner on the Rack.

HE SAYS HE IS CARL SHAFFER.

The "Doctor" Refuses to Answer Any Questions Until He Sees His Counsel—Anxious About His Wife—He Wanted a Needle. Taken Before the District Attorney.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Dr. Henry C. W. Meyer, the man who is alleged to have poisoned people by wholesale for insurance money, spent last night in a cell at police headquarters and today is on the rack at the district attorney's office.

He arrived here handcuffed to Detective Sergeant Trainor, with Detective Sergeant Von Gerichten on the other side of the prisoner, on the Chicago limited train from Detroit.

The alleged poisoner is a slender man, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, and weighs in the neighborhood of 135 pounds. He wore a red beard of about three weeks' growth, and was shabbily dressed. His red hair, which looked as if it had not been cut for many months, fell over his coat collar, and his heavy eyebrows, almost white in places, fell over cold blue eyes. His cheeks deeply marked and lined. He has a heavy mustache that defies cultivation, and a large, square lower jaw. His nose is prominent and his cheek bones are high. Meyer walked along sheepishly with the detectives, and was taken before Inspector McLaughlin.

"What is your name and residence?" inquired the inspector.

To this the prisoner promptly replied: "Carl Shaffer, 55 years old, of 122 Clifford street, Detroit."

"Is that your right name?"

"Yes."

"Were you not also known as Dr. Henry C.W. Meyer?" asked the inspector.

"Well," replied the prisoner, "I would rather not answer that question until I see counsel."

He Refused to Talk.

The inspector asked the prisoner several more questions with a view of drawing him out, but Meyer refused to answer any of them. He said he would say nothing about his case until he consulted counsel. He did not know who attorney he would engage. When the inspector saw that further questioning was useless he ordered Meyer to be locked up.

The detectives said that nothing of any interest passed between themselves and the prisoner on their way from Detroit. Meyer was asked a few questions. He said he would talk about nothing but commonplace matters.

The detectives said that the news of the prisoner being on the train had gone before them, and at every station the curious gathered to gaze on the man. The train on which the detectives with their prisoner first started from Detroit would have carried them through Canada. This would have resulted in complications, and they were therefore obliged to rest for a few hours in Toledo, where crowds flocked into the car. Meyer is also wanted in Toledo for a crime similar to that committed in New York, and the authorities there were anxious to have him. Inspector McLaughlin got ahead of them, however, and the Toledo chief of police had sworn out his warrants for nothing.

Meyer seems worried about his wife, who is in a Detroit hospital. His first question when he reached police headquarters was for his wife and whether any word had been received from her.

When asked about Meyer's alleged wish to commit suicide Detective Von Gerichten said that Meyer had simply asked for a needle. The detective knew nothing about the wish that Mrs. Meyer is said to have expressed in the hospital that she might live to death. Mrs. Meyer is watched closely by two policemen in the hospital, and she will be brought here as soon as her condition will allow.

The Crime Which Came to Light.

The indictment upon which Meyer has been brought on to this city was found for the poisoning of Lodwig Brandt, the son of a general in the Norwegian army. Meyer met his alleged victim while in Chicago, where he had been tried and acquitted on the charge of attempting to poison his wife's father and forging the latter's name to insurance papers.

Brandt was in jail on a charge of forgery, and when both were released Meyer resumed his practice in Chicago and employed Brandt as his collector.

In 1891 Brandt was insured under the name of Gustav Marie Joseph Baum in several insurance companies—namely, in the Washington Life of New York for $5,000, New York Life, $5,000, Mass Life, $1,000, and the Mutual Life, $3,500. Up to that time Brandt was a willing tool of Meyer and readily entered into the scheme to defraud the insurance companies. He believed that his part of the plot was merely to feign sickness.

Then it was to be given out that he was dead, and the amount of the policies issued on his life could then be collected.

Meyer decided that in order to carry out the plot successfully it would be necessary for Brandt to marry Mrs. Meyer, and in February, 1892, the marriage actually took place. Rev. Z. Werner of Chicago performing the ceremony. Some days later all three removed to New York, renting a small flat at 320 West Thirteenth street.

Almost immediately Brandt or Baum, as he called himself, began to fall in health, and it is charged that he was dosed with minute but continuous doses of antimony.

No physician was called in until the man was beyond recovery, and then Dr. Simon Minden of 118 East Twelfth street was sent for. He treated the patient for 12 days, but died finally on May 5. Mrs. Meyer had been active attendant upon him up to the last.

The Washington Life company paid the policy without question, and so did the Mutual Life, but the officers of the latter threatened to make an investigation, whereupon the conspirators fled. They had forgotten to cremate the body, and afterward it was exhumed and traces of the antimony were discovered.

WHITE HOUSE WORK.

Many Improvements Being Made While the President Is Away.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The absence of the president and his family at Beaumont's Bay is being taken advantage of to thoroughly renovate the White House and to make some domestic changes in the arrangement of the interior. President and Mrs. Cleveland's sleeping room will be in the future the one on the north side of the house, a favorite room with them before, and the same room used by President Arthur in his day. The smaller room at that corner was used before by Mrs. Cleveland as her boudoir, and has again been arranged for the same purpose. These two rooms were the nursery during the last administration, and were entirely dismantled after the sickness of little Marthena Harrison. Both are now decorated according to Mrs. Cleveland's taste.

The president's bed chamber is now a red room. Mrs. Cleveland's boudoir is being decorated in a light shade of blue, with curtains, hangings and other accessories. Ex-President Harrison's old bedroom, known as the Prince of Wales' room, is to be set apart for the use of the president's little daughter Ruth and her nurse.

The other rooms on the south side of the mansion are reserved for visitors.

On the parlor floor the red room is being prepared for an entirely new decoration from floor to ceiling. All the crimson wall paper is being scraped off, and electric light men are shaking the wires in the walls for the new fixtures.

A MURDEROUS PLOT.

The Conspiracy of Convicts at the Clinton Prison Revealed by a Prisoner.

ALBANY, July 18.—Walter N. Thayer, warden of Clinton prison at Dannemora, came to Albany and related to Governor Flower a brutal scheme of a number of long term prisoners to gain their freedom, which included the cold-blooded murder of several of the prison guards.

One of the prisoners who was asked to enter into the murderous attempt to escape refused, and it was through him that the prison authorities became aware of the plot. The governor immediately pardoned the prisoner who had the courage and manliness to prevent human slaughter.

In Clinton prison as the prisoners filed through the prison corridor in lockstep on their way to dinner Principal Keeper McKenna to obtain their rations for dinner one of the prisoners slipped into the hand of the principal keeper a piece of brown wrapping paper two inches long by four wide, which was written upon on both sides in lead pencil.

The letter told just how the plot was to be carried out, with every detail. An investigation proved the truth of the story, and two of them confessed. The plot was frustrated, and the conspirators will be punished. The convict who furnished the information will be released today probably.

Attempted Suicide of a Convict.

PITTSBURG, July 18.—P. A. Stout, one of the most trusted convicts in the western penitentiary, made an unsuccessful attempt at jumping from the door of the rotunda of the prison into the yard below. He fell on a pile of broken stone and received probably fatal injuries. Stout's crime was the murder of his son while under the influence of liquor. He was serving a sentence of 15 years. A petition for his pardon is pending. Stout was the maker of the model of the western penitentiary, now occupying a prominent position in the Pennsylvania building at the World's fair.

Bet He Could Take Poison and Live.

NEWARK, N. J., July 18.—Theodore Sonn, 28 years old, two months ago made a paris green and when discovered suffering from the poison in an open lot, he said that he took the poison because of a bet. The friend with whom he bet said that he would not take the poison and live. Sonn does not seem to be anxious about winning the bet and is altogether too willing to die.

Found a Columbian Guard's Saber.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Workmen engaged in removing the debris from the ruins of the cold storage fire found a Columbian guard's saber. This would indicate that the body of some guardsman may yet be found in the ruins. Up to this time nothing has been given out that no guards are missing.

Perry Denies His Insanity.

NEWARK, N. J., July 18.—John B. Perry, who was a patient in the insane department in New York, escaped from the Essex County Asylum for the Insane. A letter was received from Mr. Perry by the doctor in charge of the asylum in which he stated that he would not go back to the asylum.

The Cullen Rumor.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The Brooklyn Eagle says Congressman Thomas F. Magner says that President Cleveland has tendered to Justice Edgar M. Cullen the appointment to the supreme court of the United States in the place of the late Justice Blatchford.

Foy's Death Day to Be Set.

BALLSTON, N. Y., July 18.—Martin Foy, the murderer, securely ironed, was brought here from Dannemora by Sheriff Worden and Deputy Fryer. They arrived by train from Plattsburg. The date for his electrocution will be named today by Justice Stover.

Excitement For Summer Guests.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., July 18.—During a small hurricane, Rustic Lodge, a resort on upper Saranac lake, suffered much damage. Front pianza was blown away and part of the roof torn off. The house was filled with guests, but no one was injured.

ESCAPE OF A REFUGEE.

Under the Stars and Stripes He Fled From Salvador.

ALMOST CAPTURED ON A STEAMER.

General Pon Tells How the Plans of His Enemy, President Ezeta, Went Awry. Now the Outcast Will Go to Paris and Plot a New Revolution For Spain.

NEW YORK, July 18.—General Geronimo Pon, formerly Salvadorian minister to Mexico and until three weeks ago in command of the military department of Sonsonate, Salvador, arrived here from that republic by the Colon line steamer Alamo and is at the Hotel Espanol in West Fourteenth street. He tells the story of his escape from Salvador and how a repetition of the Barrundia affair on an American steamer was narrowly avoided.

General Pon, who is about 40 years old, dark, of slight build and with a pointed beard, is a Spaniard by birth, and until 1883 was an infantry officer in the Spanish army. He, with other officers, favored the republican cause under the leadership of Ruiz, and for this reason he became known to the government he was forced to flee from Spain to escape imprisonment.

He went to Salvador in 1885, and becoming a favorite of President Carlos Ezeta, was placed in command of the military department of Sonsonate, one of the largest in the republic.

"It was while I was stationed at Sonsonate, toward the close of June, that President Ezeta became my enemy," said General Pon, "for reasons which I am not at liberty to explain at this time, but I have sufficient proof to convince me that Ezeta intended to seize me and that my fate would be death. I therefore determined to flee the country at once. This was made possible because the steamer Colima, on her way from San Francisco to Panama, was due at the Salvadorian port of Acajutla, about 65 miles by railroad from Sonsonate, on July 1 and on the night of June 30 I quietly left Sonsonate and went to Acajutla.

Telegraphed to Ezeta.

"The nature of my departure was at once telegraphed to Ezeta. I knew that this would be done and made my arrangements accordingly. The time at which passengers were to go on board the Colima was in the afternoon, as she was to sail that evening. The authorities, no doubt, counted on my not boarding the ship at that time but I knew better than to do that. Instead I put off in a small boat and was on the vessel's deck under the American flag before the commandant of the port and his aids knew it. They were chagrined enough. I promise you, but they quickly telegraphed the news to Ezeta. An order was returned to demand from the captain of the steamer that I should be delivered up to the government authorities.

"On reaching the vessel I had told the captain about my situation and asked him to permit me to hide until the vessel left port so that the commandant and his men would not find me. He declared he was unable to grant the request. Then I begged him not to consent to my surrender when the demand should be made. He replied that he would do all he could. Barrundia incident, and replied that he could do no more than remain neutral.

"Fortunately there were among the passengers some of my supporters, Spaniards, who were not afraid to die in an attempt to save the life of a countryman. They promised to join me in forcible resistance to the demand of the military, kill or be killed before allowing me to be taken from the ship.

"Sure enough, during the afternoon the commandant and a boatload of soldiers came on board with the intention of taking me away. The commandant showed the captain his authority and asked that I be surrendered to him. The captain told the commandant he intended to remain entirely neutral. The commandant pleaded most earnestly, but in vain.

Ready to Fight.

"That brought matters to a point quickly enough. It was a moment of suspense for everybody. With our fingers on the triggers of our revolvers my friends and I remained in the main cabin, fortified as well as was possible, and awaiting the attack of the commandant and his men. The officer was eager to get possession of me and lost no time in carrying out the president's orders, but I am fully convinced that I was not treated in a cowardly manner simply because the president knew that in such an event the affair would create so much comment throughout the world that the investigation which would follow would disclose the motive of having me put out of the way, not to speak of possible complications with Spain.

"At last the commandant and his men left the ship and returned to shore. Soon afterward the Colima sailed for Panama."

Speaking about his plans for the immediate future General Pon said:

"I sail for Paris on Saturday, where I shall join my former chief, Zorrilla, and interest myself in the course of the Spanish Republican party. That a revolution by the Republicans will take place in Spain is, I believe, a certainty. It is done not come this year it certainly will in 1894."

An Army of 140s Men.

PITTSBURG, July 18.—The financial committee between them, mill operatives and representatives of the Amalgamated association held in this city re-united in a total disagreement. Pending this conference most of the mills in the Pittsburg district, so-called, including the valley of the Monongahela, besides the mills in the Shenango valley in this state and the Mahoning valley in Ohio, have been shut down. Meanwhile 40,000 workingmen are idle.

THE UPPERCUT KILLED.

Death Followed a Knockout Blow In a Glove Fight.

THEN THE TOUGH WHO DID IT FLED

The Victim Had Been on a Spree Since the Fourth and Was Not Sober When He Began to Fight.—Only Lived to Reach the Hospital.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Frank Egan, who has the reputation of being a tough, killed John J. McDonald, 24 years old, a meat carrier, who lived at 313 Tenth avenue, in a glove contest. Egan escaped after the fatal blow had been struck, and McDonald died in Roosevelt hospital.

At the rear of Kilpatrick & Rylance's store, at Fifty-ninth street and Eleventh avenue, in the quarters of an athletic club which is said to be the resort of all the toughs and loafers of the neighborhood. It was here that McDonald and Egan put on the gloves for a four round contest. The men had fought one round, in which honors were about evenly divided.

In the second round Egan gave a vicious uppercut, which caught McDonald on the jaw. McDonald fell like a log and lay on the ground unconscious. Time was called, but McDonald did not move. The spectators then began to be uneasy, and when some one cried out, "He's dead," Egan, who struck the blow, disappeared. Various means were tried to bring McDonald back to consciousness, and at length a slight flutter of the eyelids showed that the man was still living.

The crowd who had been witnesses of the boxing bout left the premises and gathered in the street to discuss the merits of Egan's knockout blow. Policeman Purcell heard the conversation and went to where McDonald was lying at the rear of the store.

His found the man still comatose and sent in a hurry call for an ambulance. McDonald was removed to Roosevelt hospital, and two hours after he had been admitted died.

McDonald was not quite sober when he entered the ring to box Egan. Since July 4 he has been on one continual spree. On Sunday night he was in a saloon between Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth streets, near the North river. He spent the greater part of Monday there. In the evening he left to go to the athletic club and had scarcely shaken off the effects of the drunk he had been on the previous night.

THE SIAMESE SITUATION.

Englishmen Are Rapidly Getting Out of the Country.

BANGKOK, July 18.—Many Englishmen with their families are leaving the country. They are taking with them all their portable property. The captain of the French gunboat, Forfait, seeing the Siamese flag floating above the French on the captured steamer Jean Say, himself hauled down both flags, thus creating another incident. The Siamese afterwards rehoisted their own flag.

The Siamese have long been massing troops on both sides of the Mekong river in order to stop the passage of the French gunboats. They were especially energetic in building forts on the left bank, and showed a disposition to attempt a fresh blockade of the French forces on the island of Khong.

With a view toward preventing this, Captain Villet, on July 14, took Dontane Taphum. After a severe struggle he routed the natives and captured 33 prisoners. Considerable military operations continue to be necessary to maintain Khong as a basis from which the work of preserving free passage for the gunboat and small craft is carried on.

The President Goes Yachting.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 18.—President Cleveland has not gone to New York as was supposed when he sailed on the yacht Oneida in company with Commodore Benedict and Dr. Bryant. It is authoritatively stated here that the party have gone on a short cruise and fishing excursion, to be absent from here about two days.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 18.—President Cleveland is on the steam yacht Oneida, which is anchored in the outer harbor. No one but the steward has been ashore.

The Prince Shakes Up.

LONDON, July 18.—The Prince of Wales met with an accident which gave him a bad shaking up while riding in his private hansom cab through St. James' street. The prince's horse fell, and the prince himself was dashed against the side of his hansom. He was not at all injured.

Ghastly Freak of Lightning.

ATLANTA, July 18.—At Cumberland Island Corporal John W. Burke, Jr., of the Macon volunteers was struck by lightning, which ran down his tent pole, and he was thrown out of the tent a corpse.

Fell 200 Feet.

NEWBURG, N. Y., July 18.—Mrs. Samuel Corwin of Marlborough, aged 60, while throwing ashes from a 200 foot embankment, was precipitated to the bottom and instantly killed.

Miss Windsor's Engagement.

BOSTON, July 18.—The engagement is announced of Miss R. Jay Windsor, daughter of the late secretary of the treasury, and Mr. Bentley Warren, a successful Boston lawyer.

HUNG BY THE ARM.

For Three Days Herdsman Was Suspended In His Own Trap.

MERIDIAN, July 18.—A young man near Shubuta, Miss., named Charles Hardaman, had been troubled a great deal by the cows raiding his cornfield, and not having a steel trap young Hardaman improvised a snare by bending down a tall sapling and tieing a rope to the top of it, fastening the rope, which had a noose to it, by a trigger to the ground.

While the young man was adjusting the bait on the trigger he accidentally sprung it. The noose caught his arm, and he was jerked off the ground just high enough to keep his feet from touching. All efforts to release himself proved fruitless, and he remained there, suspended in midair by one arm for three days before he was discovered. He was taken down and medical aid summoned. He will recover, but it is thought he will lose the use of his arm.

France's War Fleet.

PARIS, July 18.—The ministers have resolved to disavow in the chamber any intention to interfere with Siamese independence. At the same time they decided they should insist that the treaties between France and Siam be respected, and that no intervention on the part of a third power should be tolerated. In case it should become necessary to bombard Bangkok, warning should be given to foreign powers so as to enable them to protect their subjects in that city. In case Siam should decline to give complete satisfaction for her offenses against France's treaty rights, the Mekong river should be blockaded.

"Your good digestion and appetite.
And health as best."

To assure both the above ends, good, wholesome, palatable food is necessary. It is next to impossible to procure a sufficient variety of supplying bills of fare for our meals without a liberal allowance of pastry and other food in which shortening is required. How to make crisp, healthful, digestible pastry has puzzled the cook. Cottolene is all good cooking in the past has been lard. Always tackle, never uniform, most unwholesome, and has always been the bane of the cook and the obstacle to "good digestion."

COTTOLENE

comes now into popular favor as the new shortening—better than even the best of lard with none of lard's objectionable qualities. And

SHE IS ONLY A WOMAN

SOME OF THE "MUSTS" AND A FEW OF THE "MUSTN'TS" ONE MEETS.

Custom Forever Seems to Bar Her From Things She Would So Much Like to Do.

Tyranny Begins Very Early In Life and Never Ceases Relaxing.

It is delightful to be a woman.

Perhaps you men don't think so, or perhaps you do, but no matter how much you do, you know nothing about it from the simple fact that you've never tried it.

Whoever did know what toothache was until he had through an entire winter night sustained a solo in opposition to the neighbor's dog, on the occasion of a throbbing molar in his own mouth—not his wife's?

Now, I never knew just how dreadful beings a woman was till last week, though I have been serving in that capacity for more years than I shall tell you.

I began to feel that there were a few trifling inconveniences attached to the office at the age of 9 years, when my brother and cousins took to "their native element," the millpond, and I was informed, to my great surprise and indignation, that it was "not the thing for girls."

I have been hearing that same phrase every day since applied to something new and something nice, of course.

If it was not nice, it would be "just the thing" for a woman.

You may try to do everything except steal, and even the law against your doing that has its modifications, for provided you do it on a sufficiently extensive scale and are successful you may even steal.

Now, shoplifting is about the only branch of this profession open to us women, and even that, you know, has its disadvantages.

From the time a girl is old enough to understand that she will one day be a woman she is informed of things by the score that she must do and by the hundred that she mustn't.

In the first place, a woman is made to understand that she must forbear all work or be eternally disgraced.

Work does not mean getting up at day light, cooking breakfast, washing dishes, making beds, sweeping, dusting, scrubbing, sewing, cooking dinner, washing dishes again, darning stockings, nursing sick folks and babies, cooking supper, washing dishes again and yet again.

Oh, no; a woman may do all these things from New Year's day to the 31st of December, Sundays and legal holidays included, and still be respectable in the eyes of all sensible people.

But let her do anything by which to earn she where withal for buying herself a decent gown and gloves, and all of you, the very best of you, feel that she has gone just a little beyond the bounds assigned her.

Don't you feel that's so, for in your secret souls you know it is true. Suppose for instance a woman to be a teacher, and the more successful she is the worse for her in your opinion. You know that you are shy of her.

If by her pen she supports herself, all the nice many would have, even those who are far beyond her in the literary world—not from any jealousy. It is just because they don't "care to meet that kind of a woman."

She may be the truly noble soul, strong of will, with many struggles of many sorts, in order to take some of the burden from her father's tired shoulders, or to help her mother and sisters, and still you have a feeling against it. the very manliest one among you, and perhaps the manlier you are the more helpless you like a woman to be.

There is one exception to this rule, however. A woman may work to make a living when she has a husband who approves her doing so by disapproving most strongly of any manner of labor for himself.

Even then some of you feel a kind of pity for him, and think he might have been a different man, poor fellow, if he had had a different wife.

A woman mustn't vote (I don't know one who wants to), she mustn't whistle, she mustn't be independent, she mustn't smoke, if she will work, she mustn't expect big wages, she mustn't own a temper, and mustn't go across the street after dark, although attended by seven other women, unless there is some poor little man along to lend respectability to the party.

These are a few of the things she must not do. Then the musts—oh, the musts!

She must know how to cook, for the cook may and does leave without warning; she must have tact enough to "get along" with everybody, from her mother-in-law to her washerwoman; she must sing or play whenever asked, regardless of her mood; she must always smile, no matter what the state of her head or heart or her temper; she must have a variety for selling everything that's lost, from a boot jack to a collar button; she must always be faultlessly dressed in very inexpensive material; she must be pretty; she must always have her bangs curled, if her hair happen to be straight, and if she be blessed with curly locks she must keep them in some sort of order; she must know a little of everything and not much of anything, in order that she may at once be helpful to the male members of the household and patronize by the same individuals; she must—but the list is already too long and the biggest must is yet to come.

She must get married or bear through life the profound pity and I had almost said contempt of all men, especially all women and most especially the grass widows and those women who have drunken husbands and six or seven ragged, neglected children.

All this is bad—worse than you can imagine—but, as I told you, I never reached the climax till last week.

I was going, with a certain man of the family (I won't tell you how he was related to me), to the country.

I had been ready and waiting to start a full half hour, but his cravat wasn't tied or something, and as we hurried into the station the bell of our train began to sound.

That wasn't the only bell there, however. There was a bell skirt, which "dipped," of course, and I was arrayed in it. So, while I was getting myself into shape for running, the train pulled put. Then I heard the words:

"If you had been a man, we would have caught that train."

I realized what it was to be a woman then.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Rhoda Broughton.

One would never judge from the plain, straightforward face of Rhoda Broughton that she was the author of books with such sentimental titles as "Cometh Up as a Flower," "Not as a Hose Is She," "Not Wisely, but Too Well," and "Goodby, Sweetheart."

Miss Broughton lives just outside of London, at Richmond, with her sister. They live in a quiet, comfortable little home standing back from the road, which commands an extensive view of the river, winding serpentlike through a forest of trees.—Exchange.

HIS LOVE LETTER.

It Was from His Best Girl and He Let Them Read It.

He hurried up to the office when he entered the hotel, and without waiting to negotiate inquired eagerly, "Any letter for me?" The clerk sorted over a package with the attention that comes of practice, then threw one—a very small one—on the counter.

The traveling man took it with a curious smile that twisted his pleasant looking face into a mask of joyful expectancy.

He smiled more as he read it. Then, oblivions of other travelers who jostled him, he laid it tenderly against his lips and so tenally kissed it.

A loud guffaw startled him. "Now look here, old fellow," said a voice, "that won't do, you know. Too spooney for anything. Confess now, your wife did not write that letter."

"No, she didn't," said the traveling man, with an amazed look, as if he would like to change the subject. "That letter is from my best girl."

This admission was so unexpected that the circle of friends who had caught him said no more until they had eaten a good dinner and were seated in a chum's room. Then they began to badger him. "It's no use; you've got to read it to us, Dick," said one of them. "We want to know all about your best girl."

"So you shall," said Dick, with great confidence. "I will give you the letter and you can read it yourselves; there it is," and he laid it on the table.

"I guess not," said the one who had been the most persuading. "We like to chaff a little, but I hope that we are gentlemen. The lady would hardly care to have her letter read by this crowd."

"But I insist on it!" was the answer. "There's nothing to be ashamed of, except the spelling. That's a little sticky, I'll admit, but she won't care to have it read. Read it, Hardy, and judge for yourself."

Thus urged, Hardy took up the letter, shamefully enough, and read it. There was only a few words. First he laughed, then swallowed suspiciously, and as he finished it threw it on the table again and rubbed the back of his hand across his eyes. "Pshaw!" he said, "if I had a love letter like that"—

"Fair play," cried one of the others, with an uneasy laugh.

"I'll read it to you, boys," said their friend, seeing they made no move to take it. And this was what he read:

Mi own dear Pa Pa. I so ml Pllairs every nite and wish I kis yure Pictshure I Ask got to bless you good Bi Pa Pa. yure best girl.

DOLLY.

For a moment or two you would have said the whole company had hay fever.—New York Recorder.

Superfluous Information.

"It's quite a heavy shower we're having," he said cheerily to the man who had entered with his clothes soaked and his umbrella dripping.

"Yes, sir," replied the stranger tautly, "it is a heavy shower, but you have failed to remark also the interesting facts that the water is falling downward from above, that it's a wet shower and that it is raining on both sides of the street. Also you have neglected to observe that this is the year 1893 and that the 400th month of Columbus discovered America and that there are four seasons each year. But I'm obliged to you for your information about the weather." And the stranger walked away with a glitter of vindictive triumph in his eye.—Chicago News-Record.

LOOK OUT!

Or you might burn your fingers. People need to be careful what they handle nowadays, especially in the way of Carriages. Quite a lot of them are made to sell, not to use. Ours are made to use, whether you sell them or not. Some are made to look well at the expense of good material. Ours are guaranteed to look well and keep their good appearance. Some Carriages are made to allow the dealer an enormous profit. He needs it, because he cannot sell many of them. Ours are offered at a small profit, with which we are well content, as we do an enormous business. Do you see the difference? If you do, you can also see that it is to your interest to deal with us.

UNEXPECTED ANSWERS.

Some Specimens of Reporter Gathered from Many Sources.

Unexpected answers have been given by many little children at one time and another. Lord Hanmer relates an anecdote of a lady friend who was somewhat famous for this kind of retort. An acquaintance was condoling with her on the fate of a relative who had made an unfortunate marriage, and concluded: "What would you do in such a case? I am sure I should die." "No, I should kill," was the brisk rejoinder.

One of the most startlingly unanticipated replies on record was that of the "Mitch Miller" type. Some lady friends of a certain very fine female attainments, who, in reply to the address, "I want a person of some experience in the nursery; do you know much about children?" cheerfully retorted, "Oh, dear, yes; I've dissected a baby."

Kindly people who attempt to pay compliments are often rebuffed by unexpected replies. Such was the case with a good natured minister who complimented an old Highlander on his extraordinary memory. "Yes, but I only remember things here and there—such things that take my fancy," said the old Gael. "Why sir, if you were to preach to me for an hour I should not remember a word of it next day."

"Do you know, Johnny, I am often afraid I shall never meet you in heaven," said a Sunday school teacher to a refractory urchin. "Law, miss, whatever bad things have you been a-doin of?" retorted the scandalized Johnny.

There are some occasions on which it is gratifying to hear an unexpected reply. Nothing is more irritating than to converse with a person who "knows exactly" what he is going to say, is about to say, and who "takes the words out of his mouth" with exasperating readiness. The American poet has suffered from the description of his appearance in his account of how "an aged man" calls on a devoted adherent of the north during the civil war and commences, "I was with Grant." "Yes, go more," cries the eager host, forcing hospitality and honors upon the supposed companion in arms of the Federal leader. The visitor vainly struggles to explain that he is no such thing, but only after a banquet and an ovation is he permitted to finish, "I was with Grant in Illinois three years before the war."

Many an interesting illusion has been shattered by an unexpected answer. A party of tourists at a well known ruin asked the custodian if they might carry away some of the fragments of stone which were lying in the embrasure of an historic window. "Oh, dear, yes," was the reply; "it does no harm to the window. I put fresh bits there every day on purpose for visitors to take." Equally disappointing was the reply of the famous chef who, when invited to reveal his secret for "roasting a turkey," coolly replied, "Vel, sare, I no roast him at all; I put him in de oven and bake him."—London Standard.

WHITE, of Plainfield,

A SUMMER DREAM.

I dreamed I was a little boy
Like Master Tommy there,
I loved to wander by the sea
My lags, like Tommy's, bare.

I shaped my boats and rigged them up
With bonnyrig, mast and sail,
And launched them from the shingly beach
To see them scamper down the sea
Before a summer gale.

Often with Jack and brother Tom
Upon the sands I played,
And, with my wooden spade and pail
Towers, towns, and castles made.

Then sitting down we watched the tide
Come flowing up the bay,

To beat our splendid buildings down
And sweep their walls away.

Better Than the Eye.

The rapidity of animal motion is sometimes far greater than can be detected by the human eye. It is a favorite amusement of country boys, when they can find an owl sitting on a stump in a field, to walk around the bird at a considerable distance, and see him "twist his head off," as the observer circles round the creature seeming to follow him by turning his head, and then gives the impression of moving his head continuously round in a circle.

As a matter of fact, however, as soon as the owl's neck is twisted sufficiently for comfort to turn his head suddenly in another direction, but so quickly that the eye cannot detect the motion. The sing-gillish toad is sometimes quicker in his motions. The observer will sometimes notice a toad sitting at a distance of two or three inches from a fly. The insect vanishes and sometimes the looker-on is wanted to tell how or why. The toad has simply poked out its tongue and taken in the fly, but the action had been so quickly performed that the eye failed to detect it.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Beware of Dear Sir Young Folk.

Be honest. "Honesty is the best policy," quizzotically speaking. Be honest.

Be plucky. The faint-hearted rarely know what it is to win place and power. Be plucky.

Be earnest in doing good and just as earnest in not doing anything bad. Be earnest.

Be watchful of yourself as well as others, for "all will bear watching." Be watchful.

Be patient, and don't allow impatient folks to draw away your own stock of patience. Be patient.

Be content. If "a contented mind is a continual feast," be careful not to go hungry from discontent. Be content.—Good Housekeeping.

Towser's Song.

Towser was a blithe dog,
Happy as a king,
And his song was "bow, wow, wow!"
He knowned the rags and cushions,
And the tasty bones,
And his song was "bow, wow, wow!"
He spied a little rustic
Hid beneath a rose,
And his song was "bow, wow, wow!"
But the little bustle pinched
Mister Tom on the nose,
And his song was "yow, yow, r-r-r-o-w!"

Little Johnny on Gambling.

I never play marbles for keeps, 'cause that's gambling. Gambling is gettin' somethin' for nothin', and that's sumthin you ought to work for. It. When I play marbles and win a lot I tell the other boy I'll brush his clothes off if he'll give me the taw. I never win, 'cause he won't be brushed my clothes and I pay him in marbles. You can have lots of fun without gambling if you only try.

The Mighty Question.

The rent has dropped behind the trees,
The chickens roost in lofty boughs,
The birds and butterflies and bees
Have vanished every one.

You tell him this, and with sleepy eyes
He listens and nods his head;
And then with a weary yelp he says,
"Why must I go to bed?"
—Harper's Young People.

He Played "Hookey" when a Boy.

A correspondent in an Alabama town sends the Constitution a "poem," on the question of whether or not eating lobsters is sinful. "Do you Think I will Ever walk a Hitch?" The Constitution then comments: "You may. But you are liable to have a bad spell of it."

Afraid of the Water.

Little Boy (pointing to window of rubber store)—What's them? Mamma—Those are diving suits, made all of rubber, so the diver won't get wet. Little Boy—I had enough of that yesterday. Why, what for, my dear? Little Boy—To wash when you wash me.

A Monster of Industry.

Hicks—What did you put that pin to Mr. Blenchim's chair for, you young scamp?

Dick Hicks—He looked for one every time he came and I thought you wouldn't want him disappointed if you knew it.

A Stampede.

They were sitting on the sofa in the parlor in a corner somewhere. He was holding her hand and telling her of the love which was overflowing his heart for her. He had been talking for some time when she interrupted him, saying in a shy, I've-never-been-talked-to-like-this-before way, "And are you sure you have never loved any other girl, Clarence?"

"Quite sure," he replied, as he slipped his arm around her waist. "I've met thousands of girls in the course of my life, but never until I met you has my girl ever known what it was even to be kissed by me."

And as their lips met under the pale moonlight, in one of those experiences, we've-both-been-there-before-many-a-time, long drawn out osculations, a large picture of the father of his country which was hanging on the wall over the sofa broke from its fastenings and fell upon the fabricators with a dull, sickening thud.—New York Herald.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING.

John Martin Shoots Himself in the Breast.

John Martin, the sixteen year-old son of Adam Martin, who works the Fritz farm in North Plainfield, was seriously wounded while handling a revolver, yesterday afternoon. The lad was working on the Smock farm, near Evona. He was sent out in the patch to gather some green vegetables. The lad had a seven-calibre pistol, and on the way out he tried to discharge it, but it failed to go off. Pointing the revolver to his stomach, the weapon was discharged, the ball striking the breast bone and lodging in the left side near the heart. His condition is critical.

Escapade of Two Young Men.

Two young men went to Wheatsheaf, near Roselle, from here, Sunday night. They had a hired rig from a local livery-man, and everything went along smoothly until they started on the return trip, when their steed became unmanageable and ran away. The buggy was smashed and the young men were left by the roadside along with the wrecked vehicle. After bemoaning their fate for some time, it was finally concluded that the only thing left for them to do was to walk. They started for home. Before going far they caught up with their livery steed, which stood innocently by the roadside eating grass. The couple took turns leading the horse, and reached here in the "wee sma' hours" of the morning.

THE CLIMAX GUN CLUB.

March and Sweepstakes Shooting Yesterday Afternoon.

The gun club grounds, in South avenue, yesterday, the Climax Gun Club held a club shoot and sweepstake shooting.

The sultry weather kept a number of the members from attending, but enough turned out to make the shooting interesting. The regular club event and several optional sweepstake matches were contested, with the following result:

Club event, at 25 blue rocks, Association rules, unknown angles, August Trost scored 23 out of 25, and John Derby the same number out of 25, thus tieing first place, the extra number of birds shot at being given as a handicap. T. Brantingham and Chas. Smith, scratch men, and J. Robinson handicapped at 23 birds, tied on 22. T. H. Keller, scratch, Harry Campbell 22, and S. Terry 21, each scored 21; W. Terry 20 birds, scored 19; D. Terry, scratch, scored 18; W. G. Squires, 20, scored 17; and A. F remfi 23, broke 12.

In the first sweepstakes C. Smith won first honors with 14 out of 15. Brantingham, Keller, S. Terry and A. Trost second, with 13, A. Soper 12 and D. Terry, J. Darby, W. Squires and A. Frantz each scored 11.

In the second event, at 10 birds, T. H. Keller took first money with 9. Derby, scored 8, Trost, W. Terryand S. Terry tieing or 6 each.

WEATHER AND CROP CONDITIONS.

Report of Crop Correspondents for the Week Ending July 17.

The observers and crop correspondents of the New Jersey Weather Service report for the week ending Monday, July 17, 1893, that the weather conditions of the week in all sections have been favorable to harvesting; large crops of wheat and rye have been gathered and housed in fine condition. In some districts threshing has been done. The hay harvest is finished and the yield is considerably below the average. A large acreage of millet is being sown to make up the deficiency in hay. Corn, potatoes, late oats and buckwheat have been greatly benefited by frequent local showers and high temperature. The condition of these crops shows a decided improvement over that of last week. The second crop of clover has also gained several points and is now promising. Considerable buckwheat has been sown during the week. Early potatoes, harvested by drag, indicate that the crop will be a small one, both in size and quantity.

UNION COUNTY.

PLAINFIELD—The rain and sunshine have been beneficial to the remaining crops. Harvesting is completed. Rainfall, 1.51 inch.

JOHN NEAGLE.

CLARK TOWNSHIP—Harvesting about finished. The warm nights have stimulated all growth, especially melons, tomatoes and corn. A fine rain on the 12th helped all growing crops, but more is needed, as the ground is very dry.

EDGAR L. SMITH.

The First Baptist Excursion.

The Excursion Committee of the First Baptist church is striving to surpass all former efforts to make the excursion, Friday July 21st, the most enjoyable. Special arrangements have been made with the officials of the railroad. The first section will leave promptly at 8 a. m. The second section will leave at 10 a. m. Each section will have a committee in charge to look after the tickets and baskets, etc. Gentlemen going will have a car where they may smoke if they so desire. The Infant Class and their Mistress will be accompanied by the Grace Church Sunday School. The committee in charge will see to every one they will do their utmost to give an enjoyable day. Already the sale of tickets has commenced and they are all their friends to take a day of pleasure with them.

Why is This Thus?

Plainfield has but one third the population of Elizabeth, and yet it is called upon to pay more than half as much tax as Elizabeth, as may be seen by the figures in another column. This is a matter which ought to be explained so that the people do not object to paying their share, but it looks very much as if we were called upon to bear a considerable portion of Elizabeth's share, too. She ought to be big enough to take care of her own portion.

The Garwood Car Wheel Company in Trouble.

Chancellor McGill of Jersey City Saturday, appointed John C. Paul of the city receiver of the Garwood Steel Works. The company manufactures Bolton concave, and made steel car wheels. The works are at Garwood, between Westfield and Cranford. The $600,000 has been lost in following a new process. The company will probably be re-organized.

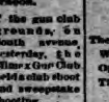
Base Ball Notes.

The manager of the Middletown Asylum team telegraphed to Manager Conger on Saturday, that he cancelled dates for them to play here this Saturday. Manager Keller immediately secured the Plainfield team. The latter has a record of but two defeats this season and these were by Pennsylvania league teams. The Asylum team will be here at an early date.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE GREAT QUESTION OF THE HOUR "GOLD OR SILVER?"

The Extra Session of Congress will Wrestle with it.—An Expert's Opinion on How Matters Stand.—The Result a Matter of Doubt.



WE GIVE below probably the most intelligent view on the questions now before the country. It is from our special correspondent, who seems to understand the situation too well to become such a rainbow chaser as many others not so well informed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 16, 1893.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—The more the coming extra session and its fight over the silver question is discussed, the more evident it becomes that the fight is to be a hard one and is likely to awaken many hostilities. What the result will be nobody can more than guess and very few are willing to venture a prediction. Only the 101 Democrats who voted in the last house on the silver question only one-half are to be in this Congress. So it is impossible to form any accurate estimate of what the sentiment of the House is to be. Only about a third of the membership of the House has any record on the silver question. Of the 114 Democrats who voted with the silver men, or were paired in favor of free silver in the vote of last February, only 62 are in this Congress, and of the 103 which went on record as against silver at that time, only 34 are in this Congress. So nobody can form any accurate estimate of the house. Nothing is known to warrant the belief, however, that the house will pass a bill repealing the Sherman law. Whether any other legislation will be attached to this cannot of course be accurately foretold. The silver men who are good fighters will insist upon substituting some other favorable legislation before the repeal of the Sherman law, but whether they will be able to enforce that demand cannot be told until the House meets and is organized and adopts rules and some test of the strength of the various propositions made.

It is to the Senate, then, that most of the silver men look for encouragement in their belief that they will be able to prevent the repeal of the Sherman law. Not that they are attached to the Sherman law itself. They would be willing, for it if they could have free coinage in its place, and it will be to that end that they will work. Those who are silver men in theory and who favor silver simply because they feel that there should be a silver dollar as money, and it is believed that they would be willing to increase the ratio so that a silver dollar would contain about a dollar's worth of silver. The mine owners, who are the greatest sufferers by the fall in silver, might be enough it would reduce largely the value of their productions, but the record of its members on the silver question would seem to warrant a very strong fight by them against the repeal of the Sherman law could pass that body unless something more favorable accompanied it as a substitute.

The last vote in the Senate on the silver question was in February last, a few days before the adjournment of Congress. There were sixty-five votes cast on that occasion and sixteen other senators were paired, leaving 81 senators voted against taking up the bill, which proposed to repeal the Sherman law, and eighteen more were paired against it. Of the fifty senators who thus expressed themselves and put themselves on record as averse to repealing the Sherman law at the time, forty-four are now members of the Senate and will be when it assembles a month hence. Thirty-one senators put themselves on record before that time, either by their vote or pairs, against silver and in favor of the Sherman law; of these thirty-two there are twenty-eight now in the Senate. In other words forty-four of the men who are now in the Senate voted less than two years ago to keep the law in force

Slang.

We knew it! The best slang is American, western American at that, we are told by Professor Brander Matthews in Harper's Magazine. Professor Matthews traces out forcefully how slang is first a colloquialism; then, if it has staying qualities, it is after awhile regularly adopted into the language, and the next new dictionary gives it a place of honor alongside the verbal Four Hundred, so to speak.

Professor Matthews divides slang into four classes, of which we are only concerned with the two that contribute words permanently to a language. This is one of the ways in which a language grows—by the adoption into it as classic words and phrases of various utterances that began as slang. One class includes the wornout English words that have had a long rest—sometimes for centuries—and have waked up and come again. The other class embraces the wholly new words and phrases.

Some of the western Americanisms which the writer believes will stay and become altogether proper are to "jump on," or, more emphatic still, to "jump on with both feet." To "fire out," our author finds, is an old English expression used with precisely its present meaning. But we are astonished that Mr. Matthews appears not to know the origin and meaning of the phrase "working the growler," now so commonly heard in our large cities. Originally tramps and beggars carried an old tomato can for the stale beer they got cheap. The sound of the beer gurgling out of the tin can down the thirsty throat suggested a growl to some imaginative rogue; hence the can was christened the growler. To catch the poetic force of the phrase one has only to recall the sound of water flowing in jets out of a narrow mouthed jug.

On the other hand, the writer explains very neatly the source of the expression so puzzling to our British cousins, "getting a jag on." In the west and south a "jag" is a light load of anything. The man who begins to be intoxicated has a moderate load of alcohol to carry; hence he "has a jag on." If he goes deeper, however, the load becomes a very large jag." The word "boss," we are told, is now quite a proper word, because it is a necessary one.

Chrysanthemums at Home.

Thousands of individuals will visit the World's fair this fall and gaze with eyes full of wonder and admiration at the great chrysanthemums which fitly crown the time of year. They will picture with a sigh of envy what a home must be like with plenty of these beauties all around it. Yet few flowers are more easy of cultivation than the chrysanthemum, none repine less with neglect, and none respond more generously to good treatment.

Suppose, for instance, you have a small yard with these flowers growing in it. You would like to have some of them to pot off to bloom late—well on till Christmas, say. Select now a few fine plants and enrich and cultivate the earth carefully around them. Pinch back the first flower buds so that they may not bloom too soon. Nip off likewise the scrubby, scrawny, small shoots from the plant so that it may be thrifty. Then from the first to the middle of September pot the plants you have been tending and prepare them for the late blooming. When the roots are firm, you may let the flower buds grow preparatory to their mission. Then give plenty of light and sufficient water, and the chances are that in early winter you will have a house plant that is a thing of beauty whether you have a World's fair chrysanthemum or not.

The Japanese varieties now bid fair to supplant the old hardy ones in the fashionable taste, but no fringed Japanese blossom, however big and gorgeous, can be more beautiful than exactly some of these brilliant flowers that of old graced the country and village dooryard in autumn.

When the founders of the old Economite society in Pennsylvania came together and drew their followers apart from the world and its ways in order that they might not be tempted to save for earthly wealth, but should give their time to cultivation of spiritual things, they little dreamed that these followers would split the organization at last on the very question of dividing up the immense amount of worldly gear the brethren had accumulated.

Lieutenant Peary will be better equipped than ever arctic explorer was before. The carrier pigeons which he will domesticate in his winter quarters and take with him in his journeys across the ice cap will enable him to communicate frequently with the home camp.

Notice what the British commissioners to our World's fair write concerning it: "To say that it surpasses in size, beauty and grandeur any previous international exposition is to repeat a threadbare platitude."

"Will some friend kindly tell us what this means? "The Mormon church has raised $1,000,000 to secure a majority in the next congress for admitting Utah as a state." How can $1,000,000 applied to congress make Utah a state?

A worthy old saying is this, To boast of good luck is to tempt ill luck.

A FINANCIAL FLUTTER.

Denver Still Somewhat Uneasy After the Panic.

THREE BANKS EXPECT TO RESUME.

They All Promise to Pay Depositors Dollar For Dollar, But It Will Take Time to Collect the Dollars—A String of Runs Weak Down.

DENVER, July 19.—The financial situation here this morning was decidedly uneasy and feverish. Nothing else could have been expected after yesterday's panic when three national banks—the Union National, the Commercial National and the National Bank of Commerce—closed their doors owing to the heavy demands of excited depositors. The Mercantile bank, a small private institution doing business in the Ernest & Cranmer building, also suspended, owing to the close of the Union bank, through which its clearances were made.

The suspension of three savings banks on the day before had so alarmed the community that at the hour for opening the banks crowds had gathered in front of nearly all the financial institutions. At the German and City National banks the run was heavy, although the First National, the People's and one or two others felt the unusual pressure to some extent. The streets were full of people discussing the situation.

It was an orderly crowd, however, and there was much sensible and conservative talk. The run on the People's bank soon exhausted itself and affairs resumed their normal condition. At the City National the run was over by 10 o'clock, and at the other banks, except the German, the excitement was all over by noon. At the German National the crowd kept in line in front of the teller's window all the afternoon.

There was posted on the front and side doors of the Union National bank the following notice, signed by R. W. Woodbury, president:

The Union National bank is in the hands of the comptroller of the currency. We have paid to the depositors in round numbers $1,000,000 in the past two months and have $1,000,000 in assets over our pressing liabilities, which amount to about $800,000. We have realized on our assets as rapidly as we could, and enough depositors have been paid to-day to-night of the week to enable us to take care of depositors again. If then paid and the comptroller satisfied we shall then reopen. In the meantime every depositor may be fully assured that he can by no means lose a dollar of his deposits.

Crowds Around the Bank Doors.

No sooner was the notice posted than crowds began to gather at each door, and for hours, though their component individuals were constantly changing, the crowds swarmed upon the steps, reading the statement of President Woodbury, and putting a variety of interpretations upon it. Nothing could be more reassuring, however, and the universal sentiment was that the deposits were perfectly safe.

The Commercial National bank did not open its doors at all, preferring to await the inevitable run. This notice was posted:

This bank has gone into liquidation by order of the board of directors.

There was no excitement whatever. Those who stopped to read the sign chatted quietly about the prospects, and all seemed confident of an ultimate settlement in full.

At the National Bank of Commerce there was a long line at the window of the paying teller within a minute of the time the doors were unlocked. A great pack of gold was at the teller's hand, and for 30 minutes he passed out the money as fast as checks were presented.

By that time a number of waiting depositors had increased to nearly 100, and the officers decided to take time by the forelock and save what actual cash was still in the bank. Therefore a notice was hung at each of the doors reading as follows: "This bank is closed. By order of the board of directors."

Then, inside quietly filed out, with little trace of excitement, and in a few minutes the corner was clear of any crowd, though many paused to scan the announcement.

The Mercantile bank, recently incorporated, with a capital stock of $100,000, and located in the Mining Exchange building, closed its doors, with W. F. Robinson as assignee. C. E. Gird, the present chief editor, is the president of the bank, and the directors of the concern are considered as being among Denver's most substantial business men.

The suspension of payment was brought about by the closing of the Union National bank, through which the Mercantile had made clearances. It is confidently stated that the bank's depositors will receive every dollar due them. This bank had been in operation only a few months and had comparatively few depositors, consequently its suspension caused very little excitement.

The First National bank received $100,000 at a little after 1 o'clock and $200,000 more at the closing hour. This came from New York. It was money the President Moffatt for bullion he had sold.

Think the Runs Are Over.

D. H. Moffatt, president of the First National, stated that the deposits at his house during the day greatly exceeded the withdrawals. This bank has always been most conservatively managed and is most extensively owned by Mr. Moffatt.

The general opinion among the bankers and business men is that the panic is over and that no more banks will be obliged to close, although the run in a mild way may continue against two or three banks for a day or two.

It is believed by financiers that the run will result in the people having more confidence in the strong banks; that the money withdrawn will at once be redeposited and a better feeling be established in financial circles, which will make money easier.

The suspended banks expect to resume business in a short time.

The constant drain on the banks by scared depositors is what brought about the crisis. It is stated by bankers that no less than $8,000,000 has been drawn from the banks during the last three months. Of this $3,000,000 has gone to the east in regular lines of business, but there is $5,000,000 hoarded in the city. The safety deposit vaults are full, and there is reason to suppose that the homes of workingmen contain secret places in which their savings are carefully hidden. It is feared that what was let into circulation the stringency in Denver would cease.

Estate Talked to the Bankers.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Comptroller of the Currency James H. Eckels was a guest of his predecessor ex-Comptroller A. B. Hepburn at dinner at the Union League club. The affair was stated by the distinguished diners to be a purely social affair, given as a compliment to the new comptroller and not for the purpose of explaining him to meet the New York bankers.

The gathering of so many of the leading financiers of the country at this particular time had the appearance in the city of the comptroller of the currency attracted much attention, and the meeting between Mr. Eckels and the bankers was regarded more as a conference on the monetary situation and the prospective measures for its relief than for a merely social gathering.

Among the notables in the parlors of the Union League club the dinner was given in the names of Henry W. Cannon, president of the Chase National bank, and Frederick D. Tappen of the Gallatin National bank. Present, George G. Williams of the Chemical National bank and president of the Clearing House association, and

ACCUSES RUSSELL SAGE

The Sister of His Cook Sues Him For $100,000.

SAYS THAT HE BETRAYED HER.

She Waited For Twenty-five Years Before Making the Charge—Now She Is In the Country, It Is Said, to Make Herself Presentable in Court.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The World says today: The fact that Russell Sage, the many time millionaire and "I" road magnate, is defendant in a suit to recover $100,000 for betrayal under promise of marriage was revealed by proceedings in Judge Bookstaver's part of the court of common pleas. The case came up on a motion, which was denied by the court, that an order extending the defendant's time in which to file an answer to be vacated.

The complaint in the case was served April 29 last, and a partial answer was filed June 26. Several conflicting motions have been made in the court, apparently for the purpose of concealing from the public the nature of the action.

The plaintiff in the case is Miss Della Keegan of 425 West Thirty-ninth street. In her complaint, which was served April 29 last, she states that she came to this country from Ireland in 1868.

Her Sister Was the Cook.

Her sister was then employed as a cook in Russell Sage's home and Miss Della went there to stop temporarily with her while she was looking for a situation. She alleges that Mr. Sage, who was at the time a widower, there betrayed her under promise of marriage.

No reason is given why the plaintiff allowed a period of 25 years to elapse before bringing the present action.

Of the different parties concerned in the suit some are absent from the city and those who are here are loath to talk. Russell Sage said at his office that he would leave all explanations to his lawyer, H. B. Bennett.

Mr. Bennett was seen, but said that he disliked to speak of the matter on account of its extraordinary grossness. He declared that Mr. Sage made an absolute denial of all the allegations made in the woman's complaint, and in the lawyer's opinion it was an attempt at blackmail nicely paralibled. Mr. Sage would never give up a cent as tribute to such a scheme.

Mr. Bennett added that his client had not seen the woman for nearly 25 years and that he had no recollection of her personal appearance, as she was only a visitor of a servant in his house. Mr. Sage told him that he had learned, however, that the woman had spent a good part of the last 15 years on Russell's island and was considered hardly responsible for her actions.

Mr. Bennett said that a motion would be made in the case next Monday, and intimated that decisive action of a surprising nature would be taken then.

The house where Miss Della Keegan makes her home is one of a long row of tenements on Thirty-ninth street, west of Ninth avenue. It was ascertained there that Miss Keegan had lived for several months in a furnished room on the ground floor, but that about three weeks ago Mr. Marshall, accompanied by two others, took her away in a carriage, as was believed then, either to a hospital or to a private retreat.

The Plaintiff In the Country.

It was explained that Marshall was Miss Keegan's lawyer, and that he appeared to take a great interest in her. She was said to be a good natured, harmless person.

Mr. John Baptist Marshall, counsel for Miss Keegan, has an office at 96 Broadway, but he was absent in New Jersey. His brother, William Marshall, was seen at home by a World reporter. Mr. Marshall said that, although he was his brother's proxy, he had no statement to make about the suit against Mr. Sage.

He said that Mr. Sage had pronounced the scheme an attempt at blackmail, but Mr. Marshall would only repeat that he had seen Miss Keegan a few times, but would say nothing about her relations to Mr. Sage.

The reporter asked Mr. Marshall if it were true, as alleged by the people in Thirtieth street, that his brother had taken Miss Keegan to the country to prepare her for a possible appearance in court, but Mr. Marshall refused to answer. His brother had gone away, he declared, but he did not know where, nor did he know when he would return.

Bitten by a Copperhead.

DERBY STATION, Pa., July 19.—Miss Annie Brant, who lives at the entrance of Ridgeview park, two miles east of here, was bitten four times by a copperhead snake. Miss Brant stepped into the kitchen, when the snake bit her twice on each foot. She was in her bare feet. It is feared that she cannot recover.

A Sharp Storm In Connecticut.

OFFICIALS HELD.

The Coroner's Jury Places the Blame In the Chicago Disaster Inquest.

CHICAGO, July 19.—After its prolonged investigation, the coroner's jury investigating the World's fair cold storage calamity reached a verdict. The jury held to the grand jury the following persons:

D. H. Burnham, director of works of the World's fair.

Fire Marshal Edward Murphy of the World's fair Department.

J. S. Skinner, president of the Hercules Iron company.

Charles A. McDonald, secretary and treasurer of the Hercules Iron company.

The jury reached its conclusion much more quickly than the time they were out would indicate, as there were 16 deaths, the causes of which they were called to consider, and each represented a separate case.

The verdict was the same in all the cases and read as follows:

We, the jury, find that the deceased came to their death from injuries and burns received at a fire of the cold storage building at the World's fair grounds on July 10, 1893, and we, the jury, from the evidence, do unanimously find that Charles A. McDonald, John B. Skinner, D. H. Burnham and Edward W. Murphy be held to the grand jury without bail, and that the said deceased came to their death while employed by the owners of land.

The indicted men did not give bail, but were expected in court today.

Director of Works Burnham said:

This is a great surprise to me. I was never officially notified of the unsatisfactory condition of the cold storage building, and Engineer Hamilton never reported the tower as dangerous.

There was no order of arrest made following the verdict. All four were allowed to remain at liberty on personal recognizance. The inquest has been continued through several days, the evidence on which Director of Works Burnham was held by the grand jury stating that he was aware of the faulty construction of the building and still permitted it to be erected within the exposition grounds.

Skinner & McDonald are held because they built the building and Murphy because evidence was given that he did not fully investigate the fire before sending the men into the fatal tower. Murphy himself swore that the men were already in the tower when he arrived, having been led up there by Captain Fitzgerald.

A THEATRICAL COMBINATION.

Hammerstein, Koster and Bial Will Join Forces In New York.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Oscar Hammerstein, owner of the Manhattan Opera House, on Thirty-fourth street, and Koster & Bial, the well known managers, have formed a corporation, to be known as Koster, Bial & Co., which takes over the Manhattan Opera House and converts it into what is claimed will be the most gorgeous and commodious music hall in existence, surpassing the famous Empire and Alhambra of London.

On the stage of the Manhattan, ballets, with the best artists to be secured, will be given. There will also be a high class of vaudeville entertainments. The house will be known as Koster & Bial's and will be conducted as a place for refined and high class amusement.

Many improvements and alterations will be made in the Manhattan. Koster & Bial will close their Twenty-third street hall on Aug. 26, and the new Koster & Bial's will open on the same date with "Versailles" and an augmented ballet, together with many European novelties.

Four Boy Murderers at Large.

CHICAGO, July 19.—The dead body of Michael Twohy, 10 years of age, was found in the Calumet river. He was last seen alive playing with two brothers named Coffey and two Polish boys, all of whom have now run away from home. A playmate of the Coffey boys informed the police that the Coffey boys had told him that they had a quarrel with young Twohy, and with his assistance of the two Polish boys had drowned him. The police found the body at the exact spot where the Coffey boys had said the tragedy occurred.

DASHED DOWN TO DEATH

Miss Garrett Jumped From a Chicago Hotel Window.

SHE WAS A TEACHER OF THE BLIND

Her Sister and Two Friends Saw Her Dash Herself Through the Window—Full Five Stories and Was Instantly Killed—Overwork Caused Temporary Insanity.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Miss Emma Garrett of Philadelphia, principal of a deaf mute school at Morristown and Ward avenues in that city, committed suicide by jumping from the fifth story of the Briggs House. Miss Garrett came here with her sister, Mary S. Garrett, and Miss Viola Wilcox of Philadelphia. Miss Garrett was feeling unwell and lay down upon the bed. Her sister and Miss Wilcox were back in the room when the suicide took place. A window, which was open, and jumped out. The window opened on the court of the hotel, and Miss Garrett fell four stories, striking upon a glass skylight which covers the office. Her skull was smashed and she died instantly.

Nervous prostration that had been brought on by overwork in preparing the blind children's exhibit had unbalanced her mind. She was to have been taken today to a private sanitarium at Geneva Lake, Wis., for treatment.

The little party had been at the hotel only an hour. Miss Garrett was unusually morose, and her sister had been trying to cheer her up.

Although Miss Garrett had been hovering on the borders of insanity for several days her sister never dreamed that she would kill herself. She was extremely nervous and began to pace the floor.

Suddenly she stopped.

Clasping her hands to her forehead she exclaimed:

"Sister, my head is burning."

She then threw herself on a couch and asked for a drink of water. Miss Wilcox noticed that there was a strange light in the invalid's eyes.

A few minutes after this Miss Emma, who was sitting on the edge of the bed, suddenly sprang to her feet and bounded across the room to the open window. Her sister and Miss Wilcox heard the sash raised that the invalid meant to jump to her death, and they ran to the window to stop her.

They were too late, however, for Miss Garrett had plunged headlong, and a moment later her body struck with great force on the skylight. Miss Wilcox and the sister were overcome by the horrible sight, and they ran shrieking from the room down to the office.

When the body of Miss Garrett struck the skylight it cracked one of the beveled glass panes. Clerks Adams and Henriksy, who were in the office at the time, stood directly beneath when Miss Garrett fell.

Strange to say she did not break through the glass was that owing to her long sickness her weight had been reduced to about 100 pounds. The framework of the skylight is iron, and her head struck on one of the metal beams.

Miss Garrett was about 40 years old and had been engaged in teaching the blind all her life. She and her sister had entire charge of the Pennsylvania blind children's exhibit, which is one of the most interesting in the fair. The two sisters had worked indefatigably to get the exhibit in shape for the opening of the fair, and last March Miss Emma Garrett broke down from exhaustion.

After a few weeks of rest she resumed work against the advice of her physician. She came to Chicago about June 1, and with the assistance of the two Polish boys had drowned him. The police found the body at the exact spot where the Coffey boys had said the tragedy occurred.

ELOPING GYPSIES CAPTURED.

The Romantic Young Couple Lured Each From Comfortable Homes.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 19.—Eddie Evans, son of Chief Evans, leader of a gypsy band now camping near this place, was arrested, charged with abduction. Eddie is the young fellow who about six weeks ago eloped with his sister-in-law, the daughter of Chief Lovell, of a gypsy tribe now camping near Elizabeth, N. J. The pair went to Canada, and would have remained there were it not for the fact that a few days ago Evans' father telegraphed him that Lovell was satisfied to take his daughter back and that if he would return all would be forgiven.

Young Evans, thinking that all was "straight," arrived here with his sister-in-law. A big reception was given them in the camp and all went well until the camp was taken by storm by a dozen policemen, who surrounded it and captured the girl and her runaway admirer, not, however, before the entire camp was aroused and showed fight.

Chief Lovell had deserted Eddie's father in order to lure the couple back and had then betrayed them to the police.

IN GINGHAM GOWNS.

YOUR SUMMER WARDROBE AT A SMALL EXPENSE.

The Variety of Goods Is Almost Endless. The Price Is Within the Reach of Everybody—Suggestions For Making Several Stylish Garments Suitable.

This is the time for the woman of forethought to buy her gingham gowns. At present the shops show a most fetching variety of ginghams, which have taken the foremost place for summer wear. Scotch gingham is the most expensive, but it can be had in a variety of prices, ranging from 12 to 40 cents a yard. In patterns they are seen from the dark Quaker gray to the real old fashioned Scotch plaids in shades of red, green, blue, black and yellow, which are so cleverly woven as to form a delightfully artistic result. Stripes are used in all colors, such as lavender and white and pale pink, blue, etc. Some of these stripes are an inch wide, while others are the tiny hair stripe. Some dark blue is seen, with a heavy white cord through it, and polka dots are always effective, particularly in the dainty white and crimson combination.

An inexpensive gown, the New York Recorder says, can be made, and with good effect, of 10 yards of gingham, which will cost $1.60, and the trimming, of coarse lace, about $1 more; linings, etc., 75 cents, and the remainder of the expense depends on the charge of the dressmaker. Their charges range from $3 to $12 for making a suit. A good seamstress can be found for $1.50 a day, or it can be made by a skilled home woman.

A pretty gown is of electric blue gingham made with a full skirt 5 yards wide and finished at the edge with three narrow ruffles of the same material, which are so arranged that the third will reach as high as the knee. The waist is a full, round one, with huge sleeves, and as a finishing and combination a navy blue belt encircles the waist and is fastened with a butterfly bow at the back, the loops of the bow being stiffened.

A gown for a dark eyed brunette is of cherry and white gingham. The skirt is the conventional width, with a flounce 7 inches wide, around the edge of which is a small ruffle of embroidery. The baby waist has the yoke and sleeves of embroidered muslin, finished with belt and bows of scarlet ribbon, most chic in effect. With this gown a broad brimmed sailor hat should be worn.

Another gingham, which is more dressy in effect, is of narrow pink and white striped. THE FULL SKIRT HAS ROWS of insertion reaching to the waist, and at intervals pink satin rosettes are placed around the edge of skirt. The short bodice is trimmed with a coat effect of white embroidery, reaching to the waist line and finished with three folds of pink satin ribbon. The sleeves are full to the elbow and then tight at the wrist, this space trimmed with three rows of insertion.

For a mourning gown a black and white striped gingham can be had and most becomingly fashioned with black chantilly lace and black satin ribbons. The favorite combination this season is white and black—that is, a white ground with a hair stripe of black through it.

The ribbons used on these gingham gowns are as lavish as one's purse allows. Nothing is more summery in effect than a mass of fluttering ribbon ends.

Satin ribbon is used entirely, sometimes with a heavy corded edge. In fact, out of the variety of the shops any clever woman can make her summer wardrobe attractive by a little discretion and timely purchasing.

Cocoanut Cake.

Beat 4 ounces of butter to a cream with 1 pound of caster sugar and the yolks of 5 eggs, beating it all together till quite light; then mix into it a half pint of milk, and next beat into it well a half pound of flour and the juice and finely grated rind of a lemon, and lastly add in about a half pound of grated cocoanut. Beat the whites of the eggs to the stiffest possible froth and stir this with a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder into the cake and bake at once in two square flat tins, buttered and dusted with sugar, for three-quarters of an hour.

The Girdle.

A lovely girdle is of fine braided gold, which fills over the hips to a point in front. Here it is fastened by a diamond shaped bit of filigree, studded with emerald and ruby crystals. These pretty accessories of dress lend such touches of elegance to the simplest toilet and are so effective they are sometimes really worth more than the gown or costume itself.

HOUSE LINEN.

How to Care For Bed and Table Linen, Towels and Blankets.

To every woman who takes a pride in her home the house linen is a very important matter. Good linen, though expensive at first, is far more economical and satisfactory in the end. A complete list of the linen should be neatly entered in a book, with a space left for remarks in the future. This book should hang inside the press. A tall cupboard, with shelves that can be pulled out, is perhaps the most convenient place in which to store linen, but a large chest with drawers answers very well. Between the linen bags of lavender should be placed.

It is necessary, of course, that everything should be marked. The sheets should be folded in pairs, and a band of wide, colored elastic on which a card is sewed repeating the marks and the name of the bedroom to which the sheets belong passed round each pair. This will enable a new servant or stranger to find what is required in a moment. Pillowcases should be arranged in sets for every room, with an elastic band round each set and marked in a like manner. Towels should be kept on another shelf of the press, with their distinctive bands. They should be in half dozens, and should also have marked on their bands whether rough, half or fine quality.

The tablecloths should have on the card attached to the band surrounding them particulars as to size and quality, which saves the trouble of unfolding and refolding. Servettes can be kept in pretty colored American cloth or silk cases, or a good plan is to get two or three square baskets without covers—the size of the servettes when folded—and line these prettily with an muslin, sewing a flap cover on to one side. This could be embroidered with a monogram.

If there is a spare shelf, the blankets out of use can be stowed there. They should be tied in pairs and put into a clean linen pillowcase, with a piece of camphor between the folds. A reference to the bed to which they belong should be inscribed on the card which is sewed to the case.

Sheets, pillowcases, tablecloths and servettes should be embroidered with initials in white. If the top sheet is an ornamental one, it looks well to have the owner's monogram worked in the center just below the hem. Towels should be doubled lengthwise and marked in large outline letters in colored flax thread at one end.

To Brew a Good Cup of Tea.

In China they pour boiling water into a cup and turn some tea into it, and when the leaves sink to the bottom, which happens in a few seconds, they pour the water off and drink it. We, on the contrary, let the tea "stand" sometimes, even in the drawing room, while in the servants' hall it is allowed regularly to steer on the hob until a brown decoction of equal strength and bitterness is ready to be served, to the detriment of the nerves of all who drink it on account of the tannin squeezed, so to speak, out of the stewed tea leaves. Now, the remedy for this is very easy and consists in never allowing tea, when made, to stand for more than three minutes at most, or better still, to have it made in one teapot and poured off into another.

Women's Age.

"What is the most interesting age in woman?" was a question recently discussed by an artist, an author and a woman of society. The artist said that he did not like to paint the portraits of those between the ages of 25 and 40. Before 25 the face has an expectancy which charms. It is looking forward with joy. Its freshness and hope and is full of puzzling promises. At 40 years the character is formed, and the lines of the countenance are strong for the painter's study, but in interweaving years the face has lost its expectancy, is apt to be indifferent and has no particular interest. The author differed from the artist. He liked to study women between the ages of 30 and 40. They had then the expansion of the world and the joyousness of youth. In those years they were brightest and most interesting. The society woman thought that it was impossible to make general answers to the question, as individual questions. Her in regard to the most attractive age. Some are most charming at 60 years, while others have passed their prime at 30. The best answer would be that women are always beautiful to the friends who love them.

Palm Leaf Fan Table.

For a table take three palm leaf fans, cut off the handles, paint them white, full white satin ribbon about them and overlap them in the form of a clover leaf.

ALL HOMEMADE.

Tack them together with white silk and get a carpenter to make a thin board, which must be just that shape. Paint it white and take three broomstick handles painted white, cross them, wire them at the crossing and screw the wooden top to them. Upon this tack with small tacks the three palm leaf fans, painting the heads of the tacks white that they may not be seen. The white satin bow where the sticks cross, and you will have a very unique and pretty little table.

Lockets have new inspiration with the return of the Victoria fashions.

WHITE, of Plainfield,

OUR WHIPPINGS.

Come, Harvey, let us sit awhile and talk about the time

Before you went to selling clothes and I to peddling rhymes—

The days when we were little boys, as naughty little boys

As ever worried home folks with their never lasting noises!

Egad! and were we so disposed, I'll venture we could show

The scars of wallopings we got some forty years ago.

What wallopings I mean I think I need not specify—

Mother's whippings didn't hurt, but father's oh, my!

The way that we played hookey those many years ago—

We'd rather give 'most anything than have our children know!

The thousand naughty things we did, the then and there and we told—

Why, thinking of them makes my Presbyterian blood run cold!

How often Deacon Sabine Morse remarked if we were his

He'd tan our "pesky little hides until the blisters rise"

It's many a hearty thrashing to that Deacon Morse we owe—

Mother's whippings didn't count—father's did though!

We used to sneak off swimmin in those cavelon, boyish days,

And come back home of evenings with our socks and backs ablaze;

How mother used to wonder why our clothes were full of sand,

But father, having been a boy, appeared to understand.

And after tea he'd beckon us to join him in the shed,

Where he'd proceed to tinge our backs a deeper, darker red;

Say what we will of mothers, there is none will controvert

The proposition that our father's lickings always hurt!

For mother was by nature so forgiving and so mild

That she inclined to spare the rod although she spoiled the child;

And when at last in self defense she had to whip us, she Appeared to feel those whippings a great deal more than we!

But how we hollowed and took on, as if we'd die, to please!

Poor mother really thought she hurt, and that's what made her cry.

Then how the youngsters snickered as out the door we slid,

For mother's whippings never hurt, though father's always did!

In after years poor father shriveled down to five foot four,

But in our youth he seemed to us in height eight feet or more!

Oh, how we quivered when he quoth in cold, suggestive tone,

"I'll see you in the woodshed after supper all alone!"

Oh, how the legs and arms and dust and rust and wool on bottoms flew—

What florid vocalisms marked that vesper interview!

Yes, after all this lapse of years, I feelingly assert,

With all respect to mother, it was father's whippings hurt!

The little boy experiencing that tingling neath his vest

Is often loath to realize that all is for the best.

Yet, when the boy gets older, he pictures with delight

The lickings of childhood—as we do here tonight.

The years, the precious years, have smoothed and humbled the ways

That to our little feet seemed all too rugged in the days

Before you went to selling clothes and I to peddling rhymes—

So, Harvey, let us sit awhile and think upon those times.

—Eugene Field in Chicago News-Record.

Waited for an Answer.

There was a loud ring at Mrs. Blank's door bell one evening last week. The one domestic had gone up to her room, but came down and opened the door.

It was a messenger boy and he brought a note to Mrs. Blank. He said:

"Tell him to wait until I see if there is any answer," said Mrs. Blank over the balcony.

The girl handed the note to her mistress and went to her room in the back part of the house, leaving the lady to answer the note and dismiss the boy.

The note was from Mr. Blank. It ran thus:

DARLING—They were recently married—A customer of the house is in the city, and has asked me to go to the theater with him. I will not be home till late, but do not sit up or feel uneasy. Hurriedly, Your Own Tom.

Mrs. Blank sat a long time with the note in her hand, trying to analyze her feelings. She was disappointed, lonely, a trifle jealous and somewhat ill-natured. This mixture of emotions made her forgetful. She feared it was the beginning of the end. If Tom had loved her as he once did, would he—would he—ho, he wouldn't. The customer could have got to the theater as best he might. Tom would have returned to his Nellie.

Then she cried a little, and after that, like a sensible little woman, she went to bed and to sleep.

Tom got home at 11. He unlocked the door, and, seeing something in the hall chair, turned up the gas to look at it. It was a boy, and he was sound asleep.

"I—I—hope I'm waiting for an answer," he stammered, as Tom wakened him without ceremony.

"Well, you've got it," said Tom, and forthwith he bounced him.

But the next day he went down to the office and settled like a little man.—Detroit Free Press.

What He Could Do.

It was at the time that Albert Sidney Johnston was in command at Bowling Green, Ky., and General Hardee was ordered with his command to that place from Columbus, Ky. At that time the bridge over the Tennessee river at Danville, Tenn., had not been completed, and the general and his command had to be ferried over the river to cars on the opposite side.

When General Hardee had crossed the river—supposing, of course, that a special car had been provided for himself and his military staff—he accosted a brakeman belonging to the train with the question:

"Where shall I and my staff go?"

The brakeman, having no idea who the general was, or of what his staff consisted, after surveying him and his sword thoroughly and somewhat contemptuously, replied:

"You can go into that car there, and you can stick your old staff out of the window!"—Youth's Companion.

Counting the Enemy.

In the old days of impetuous warfare caution was not regarded as so much a virtue on the part of a military commander as it is at present.

In a battle between French and Austrians, in which Marshal Bugeaud commanded the French forces, an officer of the staff said to the marshal:

"The enemy are advancing. Shall I send a party to reconnoiter and see how numerous they are?"

"Sir," said Bugeaud, "we'll count 'em after we've beaten 'em."—Youth's Companion.

The Worst to Be Done.

The snowy heads were bowed and the wrinkled faces were wet with bitter tears. A great crushing sorrow had come to the aged couple and they clung to one other helplessly.

"Mother!"

There was a world of pathos in the aged husband's tender, solemn manner of address.

"I have seen our boy in—in"—

The loud upon his mind was too great to permit him to proceed at once. His voice sank to an inarticulate whisper.

"Jail"—

The word seemed to wring his soul.

"And he confessed to all."

"Oh, James!"

The venerable mother trembled and would have fallen but for the support of her helpmate's strong right arm.

"James, James, to think that it is all true."

"Yes, mother, he admitted it all. Oh, that I should live to see this day!"

In utter misery they rocked to and fro in each other's arms.

"And, mother, the worst of it is yet to be told."

She looked into his face in unspeakable horror.

"James."

"Our boy confesses that he stole the money to—oh—to buy cigarettes."

It seemed as if their grief must kill them.—Detroit Tribune.

They expect to take a tent and camping utensils with them, and will stay a week. On Monday, several other young men will go by train to join Messrs. Carey and Taylor at their camp.

The Athletic Club in Trouble.

The Plainfield Athletic Club has been compelled to give up its rooms on West Front street, and take smaller quarters on Park avenue, owing, it is said, to financial difficulties brought about by "crooked" work on the part of one of the members, whose arrest is likely to follow.

HIS SCALP BADLY CUT.

DENNIS MOODY MURDEROUSLY ASSAULTED THIS MORNING.

John Norwood, a Fellow-Waiter at Hotel Netherwood, Struck Him in the Back of the Head with a Bottle.

—His Assailant Fined $25.

Dennis G. Moody, a waiter at Hotel Netherwood, was struck in the back of the head with a bottle by another waiter named John Norwood, this morning. Moody's scalp was badly cut, leaving a gash two inches long, from which blood flowed freely. A physician sewed up the wound, which was an ugly one. He had been hit hard enough to kill an ordinary man, but Moody said it didn't even stagger him. The blow was of such force that the skull was also injured.

Norwood after he struck the blow ran out of the Hotel and hid in the bush es, where he was caught by Policeman Fredericksen, who lives near there, and taken to the lockup.

It seems that the trouble originated over an apron. Moody missed his apron, and after hunting all around for it he finally found that Norwood had taken the apron and given it to the "linen man" to be laundried. When Moody got his apron back he and Norwood had an argument as to the ownership of it. They quarrelled and were kept from coming to blows by the head waiter, who ordered the colored "gemman" to go into the waiters' room and stop quarreling. As Moody was passing through the door he was struck as above mentioned.

When arraigned in court Moody's assailant told such a mixed up story about the affray that Judge Cedarstrom adjudged him only fined $25. In telling his story Norwood acknowledged that he ran out into the street after the assault. When asked by the Judge why he did that he replied, "do I would have plenty of room to fight him if he attacked me, and then if he got the best of me I could run."

BREVITIES.

—The Day Nursery will be closed until Monday, August 7th.

—The ocean breakers come in swell and grand and go out broke.—Pleasure.

—Try a little saltnetre or soda or a rusty nail in water to keep flowers fresh.

—There will be some fast trotting on the Park avenue track, Saturday afternoon.

—The street commissioner is digging up the gutters and grading West Third street near Grant avenue.

—The greatest number of people ever killed by an earthquake was 100,000, in the year 1703, at Yeddo, Japan, and vicinity.

—Bicycle races at Asbury Park to-morrow. Full description of the Excursion train starts at 8 o'clock, second section at 8:10.

—Queen City Lodge, No. 228, I. O. O. F., will meet and install its officers on Monday evening next. The usual banquet will follow.

—A party of Plainfield fishermen have gone to the fishing banks to-day. Fish Tales will probably be more numerous than fish to-night.

—Cypress Commandary, U. K. T. had a drill in the Vermeule building, Monday night. They are rehearsing for a big "blow out" in the Fall.

—Camp meeting services will open in Vail's grove, West Fourth street, on Sunday next. Rev. J. W. Hamilton will conduct the meetings for two weeks.

ALL ON ACCOUNT OF A HORSE.

Neighbors Hensey and Haynes Have a Fight, and Windup in Court.

Last Friday, John Hensey of Sixth street went away for the day. While he was away his horse got loose from the stable and wandered around the street. Patrick Haynes took the horse and placed it in James Mair's lot on Leland avenue. Mr. Mair turned the horse into the street. He sent to A. Mr. Van Ness' place who placed the wandering steed in his stable. When Mr. Hensey returned home at night and found his horse gone he started for Haynes' house, who, he was told had taken it.

Mr. Haynes told him his horse was in Mair's pasture. After spending half the night searching, without success, for his missing quadruped, Hensey returned to Haynes' house and the two men had a fight. Mr. Hensey, who is an older man than his adversary, got the worst of it. He had a warrant issued for Haynes' arrest. The matter was aired in the court this morning. As both told conflicting stories the Judge adjourned the case until more evidence could be produced.

Water Police Protection.

The residents of Evans say they want police protection, as they have been annoyed by men loitering around and frightening people as they pass along the street. On Sunday night, as Miss Dixon was going to New Market, to her home, she was passed by a man in a buggy who, she claims, jumped out and chased her. She ran into a house nearby for protection, while the man returned to his buggy and dashed by before it could be learned who he was. The other evening as a young man was going to his home, a man sprang out of the bushes near South Second street and Clinton avenue and followed him for some distance. The young man turned into a house nearby, and the other man ran down Clinton and disappeared. He wore a slouch hat pulled down over his eyes so that it could not be seen who he was.

The First Baptist Excursion.

The Excursion Committee of the First Baptist church is striving to surpass all former efforts to make the excursion, Friday July 21st, the most enjoyable. Special arrangements have been made with the officials of the railroad. The first section will leave promptly at 8 a. m. and the second section will leave at 8.10, as. Each section will have a committee in charge to take care of lunch baskets, etc. Gentlemen will have a car where they may smoke if they so desire. The Sunday school and their friends will be accompanied by the Grace Church Sunday School. The committee in charge of the excursion say they will do their utmost to give an enjoyable day. Already the sale of tickets has commenced and they expect all their friends to take a day of pleasure with them.

Clifford Schorb Bitten by a Dog.

Clifford Schorb, of this city, who is spending the Summer with his grandmother, at Rahway, was bitten in the leg last night by a spitz dog owned by Ernest Bruns. The dog showed no symptoms of being mad. Dr. Rudolph cauterized the wound and the dog has been killed.

Instantly Killed by a Train.

Mrs. Johanna Pare of 461 Court street, Elizabeth, was struck and instantly killed yesterday morning while picking coal on the Central Railroad tracks.

She was about thirty-five years old and leaves a family.

SMITH AND MARTIN.

FIRST AND SECOND AND MR. SALTZMAN THIRD IN THE FIREMEN'S CONTEST TO-DAY.

Firemen Talking of a "Dark Horse," Who is a 7—The Victory Anyone's per.—Coupons by the Hundreds Coming in.

MAN Smith is still in the lead to-day. Mr. Martin has gained considerably on him, however.

Mr. Saltzman has moved to third place. Hundreds of coupons are received now every morning and from such varied sources as to show the wide-spread interest taken in the contest.

Numerous letters favoring certain of the competitors are also received, but, from a desire for a fair and square contest, are not published.

Over 200 votes, representing subscriptive secretion of the "Boulevard," were received for one man to-day. The firemen do not fully realize what friends they have.

In sending in coupons observe the following rules:

Get your votes in by noon, if credit the same day is desired. Votes received in the afternoon are held until the next day. All coupons are cancelled, by perforation, when received.

To save ourselves unnecessary labor it has been found needful to make the following rule. All coupons, hereafter, will be dated, and must be sent in within six days after date of issue to be credited. All undated coupons must be sent in this week. The rule about coupons being sent in promptly is having a good result as may be seen by the increased list below.

Be sure and get THE NEWS every night. Further particulars about the contest will be given later:

The Potter's and Pond's base ball teams will meet on the Park avenue grounds Saturday afternoon. On the following Saturday, July 29, the married men will meet the single men on the same grounds, both teams being from Scotch.

The Weather.

On Friday fair, warmer weather and light southerly winds will probably prevail, with a further increase of coolness, and these conditions will probably continue through Saturday and Sunday, with but slight and local modifications.

SMALL POX AT ALDENE.

Supposed to Have Been Taken There by an Italian from New York.

The health authorities of Elizabeth were informed Tuesday that there was a small pox or some other contagious disease being concealed in a house occupied by a number of Italians at Aldene between this city and Elizabeth.

The Health Inspector at once began an investigation, and found that it was small pox, but it was known to the township authorities, and some precautions were being taken to guard against its spread.

Guards have been placed around the house, which is situated in an isolated position, and no one is allowed to enter or leave the place without permission from the health authorities. The family until a week ago lived in the Ryan house on Westfield avenue. About two weeks ago an Italian left here from New York went to board with the family, and it is supposed the infection was taken there by him.

Resolutions of Condolence.

WHEREAS, Our Heavenly Father in his infinite wisdom has permitted the last earthly good-bye, and has called from our midst our beloved brother, Theodore J. Collins, and

WHEREAS, We the members of the Prompt Fire Company, No. 1, of Plainfield, mourn his loss, but in sympathy with the deep sorrow of the bereaved family, it is hereby

Resolved, That we extend to those nearest and dearest to him our heartfelt sympathy and assurance that his memory will be cherished in their greater love,—a loving husband, a kind father, a faithful friend, and we mourn the loss of one who was respected in his official capacity, beloved in his social relations, and honored for his character and kindly deeds; and further brother honored with knightly virtues, and a member of this company who accepted from him duties, its pleasures and adversities.

Resolved, That in fidelity to his memory our charter be draped in mourning for thirty days, and that these resolutions be spread upon the private book of the Association, also

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the afflicted family and published in the daily papers.

G. THOM,
R. W. LITTELL,
S. C. HUBER,
Com.

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God in his wisdom to remove from our midst our brother, Stewart Milligan, of our fraternity and Masonic Union, No. 14, of Plainfield, of which he was a member, and desiring to bear testimony to the expression of the brotherly love we had for him, be it

Resolved, That in the death of Brother Milligan the lodge mourns a loss, with his sorrow on, doing daily work by hand and brain, but with his eye upon, and the glory of God. It is, therefore,

Resolved, That the lodge extend to the family bereaved, with its sorrow on, doing daily work by hand and brain, but with his eye upon, and the glory of God. It is, therefore,

Resolved, That the lodge extend to the family bereaved, with its sorrow on, doing daily work by hand and brain, but with his eye upon, and the glory of God. It is, therefore,

Resolved, That a copy be sent to the afflicted family, and that it be published in the local newspapers.

Wanamassa Y. M. C. A. Camp.

Wanamassa Y. M. C. A. Camp, where the local association gave each Summer, consists of fifteen acres of land, contained in two plots embraced by Deal Lake, a picturesque and attractive sheet of water located close to the northwestern boundaries of the city of Asbury Park.

The larger portion is covered by a natural forest of pine and oak. Each plot is a peninsula, one containing most of the buildings, and the other being a splendid athletic field.

The former plot of eight acres lies reserved, and has a delightful walk from the railroad depot at North Asbury Park, and the best electric road to Ocean Grove and Asbury Park. The bathing houses and the long board walk can be reached by a walk of fifteen minutes, or by driving, and the grounds are of convenient combination.

The association grounds cover seven acres and are located a short distance west of the camp. This plot has a fine border of forest trees along the shore of the lake.

It will be open for guests on July 22.

EDITORIAL NOTES

In a Strange Town.

When you are in a strange city and waiting for a steamer or train, go out upon the street to make time pass quickly, especially if you have considerable money in your possession. Make up to the first well dressed gentlemanly looking man you see who also seems as if he had plenty of time on his hands. Confide all your plans to him, tell him where you came from, where you are going. Particularly inform him just how much money you have and what you are going to do with it. There is no trait of human nature so touching as trust in our fellowman.

If the stranger wants you to take a little walk with him, just to pass away the heavy moments, go with him by all means. He is so nice and gentlemanly. If he casually introduces you to a friend, or whether he does or not, have implicit confidence in him. Soon he will whisper to you that he can let you into a little scheme for making a lot of money—in plenty time to catch your train too. All it wants is that you just put up a few dollars first, a mere trifle. It is astonishing how kind perfect strangers are to a fellow, a country fellow, too, when they find him alone in the city.

Let your new acquaintance have the money. He will go to get a check signed and leave you to wait for him, or perhaps he will ask you to meet him at a lawyer's a few minutes' walk away. At any rate he goes. If you have followed instructions implicitly, by that time you will have learned something indeed, just as a sailor man on the dock at New York did a few days ago when he was most effectionately swindled out of $400 in about half an hour. It was all his savings from a three years' cruise, and he was just starting home for Scotland with it when he met the disinterested stranger who wanted to help him make a little more money.

Jolly Polyanders.

Just at this time, when so many ladies are apparently finding even one husband too many, Mrs. Isabella Bishop contributes to Leisure Hour a chapter on how the women of faraway Thibet are happy as the day is long with four or five husbands apiece. Their determination to stick to many husbands instead of one is thus far the insurmountable obstacle to converting these Thibetans to Christianity, Mrs. Bishop says.

The Thibetan eldest son is the principal member of the family. When they reach a certain age, even his father and mother must step down and out and go into a small house, leaving him the main establishment. There he takes his bride. He is her "first man," so to speak, but along with him she takes as husbands all his brothers, be the number great or small. The more brothers he has, the more husbands she. The women all like it and declare they would not have it otherwise for the world. "We have three or four men to help us instead of one," they say. The stupidity and monotony of living with just one husband, European fashion, are appalling to them, and they pity the European sisters sincerely. Here is their unanswerable logic: "If I had only one husband, and he should die, I would be a widow; if I have two or three, I am never a widow. Feel"

It is the custom for all her acquaintances to make a present of money to the Thibetan bride. With this she leases a field for herself, and its occupare thenceforth for her one use exclusively. It is rather odd that polyandry was introduced among the Thibetans originally as an economic measure, so that the population should not outrun the means of subsistence.

American hay is now being shipped to Europe at freight charges of $2.62 per ton by large steamers. The trade has only begun as yet. Cargoes will be sent at intervals through the summer in sailing vessels. One German vessel has already left New York carrying 1,500 tons of hay. It is pressed into tight bales by hydraulic force. Precaution must be taken to pack the cargo in clean, water tight holds, to prevent its spoiling. Perhaps here is a new opening for American agricultural products.

One of the results of the development of electric lighting is very interesting. Formerly small towns and country villages could not be lighted by gas because it was so expensive and because it was exceedingly inconvenient besides. Now almost any town can be brilliantly illuminated by electricity at moderate cost. This will tend to increase the population and attractions of country towns all over the Union, especially those in the vicinity of large cities.

A model of the lost battleship Victoria is on exhibition at the Woolwich fair. She was one of the heaviest of British naval vessels. The Victoria disaster will certainly set naval architects to seriously considering the question whether ships of war have not reached almost to the danger point in size and weight and whether it will not be better to have a larger number of smaller, lighter vessels that can be handled readily.

Queen Victoria is never so truly great as when officiating at either the wedding or the christening of some of her numerous royal descendants.

ANOTHER DAY OF PANIC.

Many Denver Business Firms Go Down In the Crash.

THINK THE BANK RUNS ARE OVER.

Nine Six National Banks of Denver Are Closed, but All Claim That They Will Resume—The Situation In Kansas a Little Better—Results Are Far Reaching.

DENVER, July 20.—The timorous feeling among depositors in the Denver banks, which has resulted in closing a number of these institutions this week, seems at last to have reached its limit, and the people are now preparing to think, with the result that more money is being deposited than is withdrawn. The German, State and People's national banks closed their doors in order to forestall the heavy demands that it was evident would be made. As soon as the doors had been taken, depositors in other banks seemed to take new courage, and during the day the talk on the streets was much more conservative and rational. The five national banks that are still open for business showed no signs of any unusual excitement among their patrons. Indeed, their banking houses were quieter than on many days during ordinary times, and everybody seems to feel that the end of the unjustifiable excitement has been reached.

The run which was started on the First National bank was completely broken, and quiet was restored.

The run was caused principally by those who were near at hand when notices declaring the suspension of the German and State National were posted. These people at once became panic stricken, although the remarkably strong condition of the First National is a matter of common knowledge. Around the Denver National, Colorado National, Colorado National and City National banks all was quiet. There were very few calls for money, and a few of these who had withdrawn their money from the suspended banks were depositing in the banks that yet remained open.

Among the officers of the banks which were open for business the expression was unanimous that the flurry was at an end, and that the people would now see the folly of their actions in forcing a suspension of the banking institutions by all withdrawing their deposits at once and taking from circulation all the money that would ordinarily flow through the regular channels and help in sustaining the business public and the banks.

The suspended banks all had much more than enough money to be endorsed a perfectly safe guaranty in ordinary circumstances and with business at its normal condition would have laughed at the idea of a run.

Business Firms Go Down.

The Tucker Shirt and Furnishing company, Sixteenth street, assigned to Charles H. Burpie. Assets, $25,000, and liabilities $12,000.

The Hallack-Sayre Newton Lumber company assigned to Frederick Sayre, as a result of the closing of the State National bank.

The Blake Lumber company assigned to Emmet D. Angell.

The Palace drug store, Sixteenth and Curtis street, made an assignment to P. F. Sayre.

The Hallack-Sayre lumber yard on Fifteenth street, assigned to Simon T. Hon.

The Stanley Shoe company attached the Union Clothing company.

An assignment was made by the People's Coal company to John O'Neill.

Establishments of 1,000 saloons and restaurant keepers on Larimer street, were closed on a chattel mortgage.

August Werble, jeweler, assigned to Otto Schneider.

The Harrison Hannahs, millinery store, Fifteenth and Welton streets, assigned to William F. Sherry.

Dennis & Co., dealers in gentlemen's furnishing goods, made an assignment to A. E. Demange.

Silas B. Jacobs, gentlemen's furnishing goods on Seventeenth street, Star Curtis, assigned to F. J. White.

The Denver, Lakewood and Golden Railroad company has been sued by the General Electric company for $5,765.63, and a writ of attachment was issued out of the district court.

The Denver failures have affected other Colorado points. At Aspen the Wheeler Banking company, the pioneer bank of the city, closed its doors.

At Loveland, Colo., the bank of Love land closed. Its assets will largely exceed the liabilities.

At Sterling, Colo., the bank of Sterling closed. No schedule died.

A run was made on the First National bank of Aspen, and the greatest excitement prevailed. One thousand people were in line when the bank closed for the day.

Another Kansas Bank Suspends.

HUTCHINSON, Kan., July 20.—Owing to financial stringency, making it impossible to secure currency sufficient to meet its demands, the Hutchinson National bank did not open their doors, but posted notice of suspension of payment. Assets, $251,000; liabilities, $151,000. The bank was in good condition, and under ordinary pressure would not have experienced any difficulty. It is the first bank failure in the history of the city.

Due to Western Failures.

SHARON, Pa., July 20.—Sheriff Burnett of Mercer at the instance of Attorney Ingersoll of Cleveland, O., served writs of attachment on the Douglass Furnace company of Sharpsville, foreclosing judgments which aggregate $200,000. The failure is perhaps directly attributable to the recent assignment of Forsyth, Hyde & Co. of Chicago, by which firm the furnace has been operated.

New York State Banks All Right.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Charles M. Preston, state bank examiner, was in this city. He spent most of the day in Wall street, calling upon a number of the bankers, with whom he discussed informally the condition of the banks in this city and state. "The banks of this state," he said, "generally are in good condition. I anticipate no failures."

Could Get Retreat to Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, July 20.—A feeling of confidence is growing daily in Kansas City. People flow realize that the flurry among the banks is over, and at every bank receiving tellers were busier than the tellers who pay out.

Two Oklahoma Banks Go Under.

OKLAHOMA CITY, O. T., July 20.—The Bank of Oklahoma City and the Oklahoma National bank closed their doors. There was a heavy run on the First National, but it withstood it all right.

Caused by the Denver Failures.

CREEDE, Colo., July 20.—The C. E. Ewing Grocery company made an assignment. The failure was precipitated by the failure of the Denver banks.

GALLAGHER'S CONFESSION.

He Implicates In the Homestead Poisoning Cases Pinkerton Detectives.

PITTSBURG, July 20.—At the Western penitentiary District Attorney Clarence Burleigh, Attorneys H. K. Porter and W. J. Brennan, Notary Public C. C. Lee and Stenographer J. Beal met to take the depositions of Gallagher and Davidson, serving time in the Homestead poisoning cases.

Gallagher was the first to come over two hours. Davidson's examination occupied about 20 minutes. The district attorney conducted the examination, but declined to give out anything for publication.

It was learned, however, that Gallagher's confession in regard to Hugh Dempsey and the Homestead poisoning cases is much more sweeping in its details than had been imagined by the general public. A gentleman who has heard (the whole story says Gallagher's statement not only implicates Pinkerton detectives, but several men much more prominent in business and professional life.

He stated positively, the gentleman said that every word he said against Dempsey on the stand was false. He implicates Detective Ford of the Pinkerton agency and gives the names of others who were instrumental in Dempsey's conviction. He further states that he never administered poison or croton oil to the men at Homestead, and that Dempsey never proposed that he should.

He sticks to the story that the $25 Dempsey gave him was to induce him to do this nefarious act. To substantiate this the defense will show by members of the firm who sold him the furniture that they were publishing him for the money.

Davidson made a statement similar to the Gallagher story, except that he was not in the plot as long as the man who convicted Dempsey. They both seemed willing to make their confessions under oath and stand by it even if it means a lengthening of their terms of imprisonment. Both attorneys have matters in such shape that they will corroborate the confessions by other witnesses.

Thousands of Miners May Strike.

LONDON, July 20.—Delegates representing 360,000 coal miners in various parts of the country met in Birmingham to consider the proposal of the mine owners to reduce wages 25 per cent, the cut to go into effect on July 28. After a somewhat lengthy and heated debate a resolution was adopted declaring that the conference was opposed to the reduction. No decision was reached on the question of a strike, but decisive action will probably be taken before Friday. The general opinion is that the Miners' federation will order a strike. The strike, should one occur, will be the largest movement of the kind that has ever taken place in the United Kingdom.

The President Back From His Cruise.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 20.—E. C. Benedict's yacht Oneida, having on board President Cleveland, Dr. Bryant and the owner, came here with the party had been cruising since Monday along Long Island and Narragansett bay, and in the meantime doing more or less fishing. At Gray Gables the president was found well and ranula. He expressed himself as having had a most enjoyable cruise, and that he did not contemplate another during his stay here. He said he was in splendid health and the rheumatic trouble had entirely disappeared, for which he was truly thankful.

Pastor Adams Formally Deposed.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The Rev. Henry A. Adams, until recently rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Eighty-second street and Park avenue, and formerly assistant minister of Trinity church, this city, and rector of St. Paul's church, Buffalo, whose conversion to the Roman Catholic faith was recently announced, was formally deposed from the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal church by Bishop Potter.

Mohican Story a Newspaper Hoax.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., July 20.—It is known that the story of the United States steamer Mohican having been fired at by the natives near Alert bay and she herself disabled by a return fire is a canard pure and simple. The story was started by correspondents of Seattle papers.

Cool Weather on Top.

ABERDEEN, S. D., July 20.—The International Cold Wave company, with a capital of $2,000,000 and a surplus one-third that sum, has been organized by local capitalists and enthusiasts, who expect to make untold wealth in the next few years. The company alleges that it has discovered a secret, the potency of which, if applied at night in the area under favorable conditions, will vitiate and destroy the hot winds which arise in Kansas and at times have been known to sweep this country, burning and killing the growing crops. This secret will be placed on sale and revealed to residents of townships, counties and other political dividons who put up the money. When the wind is blowing hot and strong from the south, the company will undertake to bring a counter wind from the north for a few hours. Just how what process has been solved or to whom the marvelous discovery is to be attributed are not matters for publicity.

Nine Hundred Million Bushels Short.

ST. LOUIS, July 20.—The Journal of Agriculture of this city, treating editorially of the condition of the present wheat crop, says the best American and European authorities agree that the world's deficiency will be at least 100,000,000 bushels.

A Mob of Train Robbers.

ATOKA, I. T., July 20.—Twenty-three men, believed to be identively about participated in the attempt to rob the train near Springstown a short time ago, have been brought here by Deputy United States Marshal W. W. McCall.

A Banker Murders a Lawyer With Panther Like Ferocity.

KANSAS MINERS ARE DESPERATE.

They Are Willing to Face Revolvers Rather Than Starvation—The Cold Wave Company Prepares to Meet Hot Kansas Winds With Artificially Cool Breezes.

KANSAS CITY, July 20.—The little city across the state line from here was shocked by the murder of one of its most prominent attorneys by one of its most prominent bankers.

A. W. Little, cashier of the First National bank of Kansas City, ex-president of the Armourdale bank, vice president of the McNeal-Little Banking company of Guthrie, O. T., and director of the First National bank of Medicine Lodge, Kan., shot and killed Benjamin E. Johnson, one of the most prominent of the rising young attorneys of Kansas.

Little, in company with United States Commissioner Hanks, was walking down Minnesota avenue, the principal street of the town. When they approached Ostellay's drug store at 626, Mr. Little was seen to walk in advance of Mr. Hanks. Mr. Johnson was sitting on a bench in front of the drug store with a number of friends.

Mr. Little hastened up to him, and with an oath exclaimed, "You shan't hound me any longer."

Jumped on the Dying Man.

Then he deliberately drew a revolver from a pocket, and pointing it at Johnson fired. The bullet struck Johnson in the left side and caused instant death. He fell to the sidewalk, and Little ferociously jumped on the prostrate man and beat him repeatedly over the head with the butt of the weapon.

Then he coolly arose and in explaining the fact action said to the crowd which had gathered, "I was afraid I had not killed the scoundrel."

He then gave himself up to the police and is now in jail. The cause of the tragedy is not known definitely. Johnson's friends say it was due to a financial difficulty between the two men, and Little's friends say that the killing was in self defense, the facts of which fully justify the shooting. Little and Johnson were interested in a new coal company which was recently organized at Hunter, Kan. Its affairs became tangled up, and it is said that Johnson was responsible for Little losing considerable money in the venture, and that Little took this way to get even.

Johnson leaves a young wife and baby. He was prominent in society of Kansas City, and was a prominent Knight of Pythias. The murder has caused much excitement, and there is some talk of lynching. It is not believed, however, that violence will be attempted. Nevertheless the jail in Kansas City, in which Little is confined, is being strongly guarded.

Desperate Kansas Miners.

TOPEKA, July 20.—The strike situation in southern Kansas is serious, and but for the appearance of a sheriff's posse at Weir City a bloody battle would have been fought. In the Kansas and Texas coal company mines a number of men have been working for two weeks. President Walters of the company has determined to make them quit work at all hazards. All Friday night striking miners were gathering east of Weir City, and by 6 o'clock Saturday 1,000 strikers were ready to commence the march for Shaft 16, belonging to the Kansas and Texas Coal company, for the purpose of forcing the men to quit work.

The No. 18 men, about 25 in number, were heavily armed, and when warned to return to their homes they declared that they would face death rather than see their families want for bread, and with drawn revolvers marched into the mines. The sheriff had been deputized for and was on the ground with a posse.

WILD GEORGIANS.

They Showed Their Distaste For Negroes While in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 20.—A crowd of southern excursionists from Atlanta terminal No. 4 train on the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad within the city limits, severely beat J. E. Lewis, a colored messenger in the employ of the Santa Fe road, and forced another railway employee to jump from the swiftly moving train. At the Ninetieth street crossing Lewis and a switch foreman boarded the rear car, which was occupied by the excursionists, intending to ride to the depot. Through the car door the party inside caught sight of the negro standing on the platform and ordered him to come inside.

On the advice of the switch foreman Lewis paid no attention to the command. This angered the Georgians, and a number of them, with revolvers in their hands, advanced toward him, shouting, "Kill the nigger."

After striking him a number of times on the head with their revolvers they forced him to walk down the car, while they beat him with their fists and guns. In the meantime a number of the party attacked the switch foreman, who was still on the rear platform, forcing him to jump from the train.

Lewis, finally made his escape to the front cars, where the passengers protected him from further assault. On the arrival of the train at the depot Lewis complained to the police, but they refused to do anything, saying they had no business to interfere.

A Sane Man Sent by Mistake to an Insane Asylum.

LIVED WITH LUNATICS FOR WEEKS

Because Sonntag Could Not Make Himself Understood He Was Hounded Off to Bellevue—A Lawyer Finally Got Him Out, but His Wife Was Not Believed.

NEW YORK, July 20.—William Sonntag, formerly an employee of the Eagle Pencil company in East Fourteenth street, and living at 801 First avenue, was discharged as cured from the Ward's island insane asylum, having been committed, he declares, on an entirely inadequate examination by Dr. Matthew D. Field at the insane pavilion of Bellevue hospital on May 3. He says his mind was then perfectly clear, but a stay of two months and a half in a madhouse has ruined his health and shattered his nerves.

Sonntag does not understand English. He is an excitable German, about 50 years old. He quarreled with his wife while under the influence of liquor on May 3 and beat her. She had him arraigned before Justice Meade in the Yorkville police court on May 5 on the charge of assault.

To Frighten Him Into Epilepsia.

Sonntag had never been a prisoner before. He speaks the Baden dialect, which is hard for ordinary Germans to understand, and he was so frightened he could give no intelligible explanation of his conduct to the interpreter. Sonntag is rather sickly looking, and the justice remanded him to Bellevue hospital for examination.

Mrs. Sonntag believed her husband was in the hospital until she received a letter from Ward's island telling her he had been sent to the insane asylum because the doctors at Bellevue considered him insane. Mrs. Sonntag says she called at the asylum with her children at least 10 times, protesting her husband was absolutely sane, but the officials took no heed of her. She then went to the mayor and to the department of charities and correction, but her efforts were unavailing. Next she engaged Lawyer M. Strassman of 92 Second avenue, who procured Sonntag's discharge.

The examination as to his sanity in Bellevue Sonntag says was absurd. An interpreter asked him among other similar questions whether he could see the Holy Ghost flitting about. To this he replied that if the interpreter were suspended in midair he would doubtless see him, but he could not see the Holy Spirit. Many of the questions seemed so ridiculous to him he laughed. This he asserts caused his commitment to the island.

Says He was Treated Badly.

He expressed himself bitterly on the treatment he received while at the asylum. The constant association with madmen almost drove him into insanity. At the insane pavilion of Bellevue hospital Mr. Sonntag is put down as insane on the records and as committed to the asylum by Drs. Matthew D. Field and Allen Fitch.

A reporter saw Dr. Field at his home, 113 East Forteith street. He said he examined with other physicians about 2,000 patients in a year. Out of this number there were about 800 concerning whom the public nearly lost its own mind through maudlin sentimentality.

It was safe to say if Sonntag had been committed to the island by himself and Dr. Fitch the diagnosis was correct, especially so if the patient had been confined on the island since May 5. What the recorded minutes of the case were he did not know, but if there were any they could be found at Bellevue.

Lawyer Strassman says his client is and has been perfectly sound of mind. Sonntag, he declares, was detained in the asylum because he could be made use of as a cobbler, at which trade he worked in Baden.

More Evidence Against Meyer.

TOLEDO, July 20.—Acting on instructions from Detective Julian of New York a local police officer made a search of the Schulz residence in this city, where the alleged poisoner, Dr. H. C. W. Meyer, alias Wagler, and his wife stayed after coming here from Indianapolis. There was found among other effects of Meyer a receipt given by Julius Blood & Co. of New York to J. Baum in May, 1892, for rent of piano and for cartage. This paper will be sent as evidence against Meyer in the case now pending in New York.

TOWN CHASED A TRAMP.

After His Midnight Assault on a Citizen the Five Bells Were Rung.

PALMER, Mass., July 20.—A cowardly and brutal assault that may prove a murder and result in the death of one of Palmer's wealthiest and most prominent citizens was made on W. S. Lawrence at a farm about 1½ miles from the village. Mr. Lawrence had recently purchased the farm and was calling on a neighbor when a tramp appeared and asked for work. Mr. Lawrence said he could give him a job unloading hay in his barn, and would go and show him where to put it.

While standing on the barn floor giving the fellow directions he was suddenly struck on the back of the head with a stone in the hand of the tramp and nearly knocked down.

He recovered his equilibrium, only to receive a fearful blow in the mouth, followed by another on the left eye, and more on top of the head. He ran for the house, followed by his assailant. A young man at the house saw him and ran out with a shotgun, and as the tramp came within reach of him, wounding him in the leg.

An alarm was at once given and the neighbors turned out in pursuit of the fellow, who had taken to the woods. The fire bells were rung and a large company joined in the chase, but so far the fellow has eluded his pursuers. He is described as a mulatto of short stature, rather thick set, slightly gray, and between 30 and 40 years old.

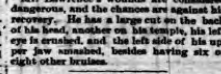
Mr. Lawrence's wounds are considered dangerous, and the chances are against his recovery. He has a large cut on the back of his head, another on his temple, his left eye is crushed, and the left side of his upper jaw smashed, besides having six or eight other bruises.

The Funeral of Rear Admiral English.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The funeral of Rear Admiral Earl English took place from St. John's P. E. church. The pall bearers were Admiral F. A. Roe, General R. C. Drum, Commodore J. H. Faraphar, Captain B. P. Lamberton, Medical Director A. A. Hoehling, General B. C. Card, Commodore T. D. Wilson, Pay Director J. A. Smith, Chief Engineer Thomas, Marine Liaison and Paymaster A. K. Mickler. The interment was at Oak Hill cemetery. At the request of the family a company of marines fired a volley of musketry over the grave.

A Fisherman's Fatal Nap.

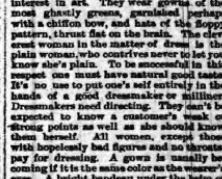
FAR ROCKAWAY, N. Y., July 20.—The body of Edward Tyman was identified as that of Michael Tyman, who lived at 99 Walworth street, Brooklyn. Tyman was fishing Saturday night at Elder's dock, Hallett's, and is thought that he went to sleep and fell into the water.



SUMMER MILLINERY.

The Colorless Woman, the Art Patron and the Clever Woman In Matters of Dress.

It is a curious thing that the colorless woman—the woman with no mind of her own, that is—generally goes in for gowns to match. She usually affects the most insipid, most uninteresting shades of gray, fawn grays and drabs. Her taste in dress, like her character, is indefinite. She is a vague woman. Quite as despairing as the colorless woman is the matter of fitness are the women who profess to take a profound interest in art. They wear gowns of the most ghastly greens, garnished perhaps with a cabbage rose bow, and hats of the floppy pattern, thrust flat on the brain. The clever woman is the matter of dress is the plain woman. She contrives never to let you know she's plain. To be successful in this respect one must have natural good taste. It's no use to put one's self entirely in the hands of a gifted dressmaker or milliner. Dressmakers need directing. They can't be expected to know a customer's weak or strong points as well as she should know them herself. In the right line of dress or a hat is apt to have an improving effect. Good taste is a thing to be thankful for.



FRENCH MILLINERY.

There is no one article of a woman toilet's that so greatly makes or mars the effect as a whole as does the hat or bonnet worn. A thing of beauty on a milliner's block may prove a frightful object on the wrong woman's head. This season one may wear exactly whatever headgear she likes and still be in fashion. The only excuse then for an unbecoming bonnet is the lack of good taste. Bonnets are for the most part small, though not so grotesquely tiny as they have been at some of our extremes of fashion. Leghorn is much in favor, and in direct contrast to it the roughest and most rustic looking straws also find much favor. Many of these are woven in two colors and with capital effect. Toques are of course in order. A pretty one is principally composed of the ribbon straw, the Admiral Markham braided straw woven in several tints, which is now being turned to such excellent account. In a word, fashionable headgear includes every sort of hat and bonnet, from the simplest of sailor shapes to the most elaborate of picture or garden hats. Great license is also allowed in the trimmings, and the milliner is at liberty to indulge in various notion and one of the latest novelties in millinery.

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN

Has come not a little knowledge as to cookery—what to do, as well as what not to do. Thus we have learned to use the most pure and perfect and popular cooking material for all frying and shortening purposes.

COTTOLENE,

PROGRESSIVE COOKING

is the natural outcome of the age, and it teaches us not to waste, but rather the new shortening,

COTTOLENE,

The success of COTTOLENE has called out worthless imitations under similar names. Look out for these! Ask your Grocer for COTTOLENE, and be sure that you get it.

WOMAN AND HOME.

HOW A YOUNG ENGLISH WOMAN DOES GOOD WITH HER LEISURE.

Interesting Items of Information Concerning Women Who Are Known to Readers. Gems of Thought From the Experienced For the Benefit of Their Sisters.

On the English coast there is an old fashioned, detached, whitewashed house, standing on the edge of the cliff at Tynemouth, Northumberland. It overlooks a little bay and the rugged path of promontory on which the lighthouse and old priory stand. The glorious North sea dashes against the rocks a hundred feet below and at ebb tide leaves a little zone of golden sand, which is the delight of those of the invalid children who are strong enough to play there. About ten years ago Miss Atkinson rented this old house from the lord of the manor for a children's convalescent home. It was terribly dilapidated. She repaired the roofing, woodwork, plumbing, paint, etc., at a large cost and reopened and painted the whole house with bright and charming colors and made it a delightful little home.

She organizes, manages and pays for it entirely herself and takes the keenest interest and pleasure in her ever changing family of 60—girls and boys of various ages. There are 10 little cribs, painted bright red, and the bedrooms are large, bright and airy, the healthful sea air coming in at every window. The 10 beds are always full and would be if 10 times the number. The playrooms are bright, sunny and full of toys, and as one enters the garden gate there is always a rushing crowd of happy faces at the playroom windows to see who is coming. The children are kept at the house as long as Miss Atkinson considers she can do them any good, or help the helpless ones and those who have very miserable homes, but she finds it best to fix three weeks as the usual time.

The home was opened in June, 1891, and since then 152 children have been received and cared for. Miss Atkinson has an excellent surgical nurse-matron. The doctor knows this and often sends her complicated cases which would be refused in an ordinary convalescent home, but as Miss Atkinson has no committee to consult she resolves, cares for and pets them all. There must be in this richest of countries many women of leisure and means who are casting about for something to occupy their time and maybe their hearts. It is quite a simple affair to buy or take an extra house and have 10 or more little red cribs. The will to do it makes it simple. It occupies time and is very heart filling.—Woman's Herald.

Education of South American Women.

The City of Mexico has a normal school for women teachers in which free instruction in a four years' course is given to students. The government has also provided for the education of women in a literary institute of the institute, which has a high grade of study. A lyceum for women was also founded in 1878, which takes up subjects that are considered essential to the proper training of women. In the school of arts there are many busy students, from the young girl to the women of mature years, all of whom receive free instruction in such branches as painting, bookbinding, sewing, fancy work, knitting, trimmings, fringes, making cords and tassels. Piano and vocal music is also taught. The Mexicans did fair to rival the United States as well as Europe in educating their daughters for that higher sphere for which nature intended them.

In Nicaragua the education of girls has become quite popular, and in the city of Granada there is a college where several hundred young ladies are enrolled.

In Brazil boys and girls are now being educated together in the higher grade schools. When one can easily date back to a period in that country when girls were kept under lock and key, "where they should remain until husbands had been obtained for them," such an attempt at coeducation means the beginning of a new life for women.

Chili has the Instituto Nacional, where there are among the many male students two or more women studying law. This, however, is looked on with more disfavor than if they had taken up the study of medicine. In the Colegio Norte Americana over 200 girls belonging to the higher classes of society are studying the higher branches.—Boston Commonwealth.

Hints About Delicate Needlework.

An authority on needle painting says of embroidered roses: "An artist in embroidery does not stop at embroidery silk for color. Whatever she feels she needs in her work she must find in some way when it is impossible to get it by mixing colors or in the regular grades of any of the different makes or dyes. Sometimes a color is too bright. Wash it and hang it in the sun for days, and it will soften. Ravel dress silks, ribbons—any material that is in the right. Furniture textiles often have charming colors that cannot be found anywhere else. To be sure, these will not do for work a whole leaf or petal, but they will serve admirably for shading or touching in places. Another rule for the good workwoman is to employ more than one kind of silk. Use floselles or flo floss, as well as roman floss and twist floss—this last being for turnovers, which, if well done, give beauty, depth and expression to your work.

Some of the dacca silks are exquisite in coloring, but they must be split, and as they are twisted it leaves a little crinkle which is not objectionable in a leaf. It is well also to remember that after your roses are finished, whether merely a spray or quite of roses, a delicate work in touching up must be done. To do this the piece should be fastened up about as a picture is placed and examined. Take it down, put a stronger touch in a bud, a darker shade in a petal, deepen the heart or raise a turnover or shade it."

Wash the Face at Night.

Material injury is done the complexion by going to sleep with a dirty face. Nothing is more conducive to blackheads and a dull color than retiring without removing the accumulation of dust and powder from the skin. These impurities clog the pores, impeding perspiration as well as the discharge from the sebaceous follicles which supply the natural oil, and pimples and eruptions frequently result. There is only one way to keep the functions of the skin active and the surface of the body healthy and beautiful, and that is by frequent bathing.

Washing the face with hot water and pure soap is the quickest and surest way of getting it clean. There are plenty of good soaps in the market, but what is agreeable to one face is irritating to another. Castile is always to be depended upon, and a little tincture of benzoine will make a basin of water as white as milk and cleanse, brighten and preserve the face. Women in far too beautiful to make a luxury of soap and water or to economize in clean linen. Frequent bathing will keep the skin in perfect condition, and frequent bathing means two clips a day. Water is nature's beautifier and purifier. You can't use too much of it internally or externally. It is only weakening to people who are not in the habit of using it. A warm bath is restful, a tepid bath is cooling and refreshing, and a cold bath will make eyes sparkle and the flesh firm and tissues tense.—New York World.

For Young Mothers.

A lady recently returned from a long residence in England brings with her a "nursery card," which might well be introduced into this country. It is about 3 feet long by 2 wide, printed like a wall map and is intended to hang in the nursery. At the top of the card is a blank space in which is to be written the name and address of the nearest doctor or the one you would wish to have called in case of an accident. Then follows a list of accidents most common with children and the remedies to be applied—bites, sores, cuts, burns, bruises and sprains, burns, convulsions, croup, cuts, drowning, fainting, falls, fits, nose bleeding, poisons, scalds, stings, substances in the eyes, ears, nose; swallowing coins, buttons, etc., wounds. Accompanying this card, which is headed "What to do and how to do it," is a small box containing the remedies, some court plaster, absorbent cotton and lint.

The idea is admirable, for when the mother is at home she is frequently so frightened by an accident that her wits desert her, and she is as helpless as the most ignorant of servants. "I have kept this nursery card hanging on my nursery door for four years," said the owner, "and I am beginning to believe it is a preventive of accidents. One thing I have been careful to observe, and that is not to allow the scissors or the compbor to be taken out of the box except for an accident."

Mrs. Kendall's Room.

A writer gives this account of Mrs. Kendall's (the actress) morning room or "den": "Bright sunshine and the scent of mignonette greeted us as the door opened on a quaint, charming room, with a wonderful yellow paper and predominating tints of old gold and bronze green. On the walls are some portraits of Mrs. Kendall's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson. The doctrine of heredity is well supported in the irresistible twinkle of the eye, the sensitive nostrils and the keen intelligence of expression handed down from father to daughter, and the clever, kindly face of Tom Robertson seems to hold us welcome to the sanctum sanctorum of his youngest sister. The younger generation is represented by charming portraits of Mrs. Kendall's daughters—Marjorie, Ethel and Dorothy. An excellent portrait of Mr. Kendall, by Sarony, completes the gallery. All the charming trifles which constitute the atmosphere of a feminine room surround us on all sides. And, boon of all boons, when the double doors which divide this little sanctuary from the rest of the house are closed perfect stillness reigns. The bustle and roar of London might be miles distant. All is beauty and peace."

To Fit a Sewing Room.

A most desirable adjunct to a house where much sewing is done is a room set apart exclusively for a sewing room. It need not be large, and it should not be carpeted or contain more than the necessary furniture, but the convenience of such a room where one can sit and sew, keep needles and thread, pieces of gowns, braid and all the accessories of dressmaking and tailoring can hardly be overestimated. The floor should be smooth and varnished, so that the daily brushing up will be easy to do. The sewing machine should be placed in a strong light by a window, from which on the wall should depend all the family piece bags, the pieces carefully sorted. Shelves should be put up to hold boxes of buttons, ribbons, trimmings, etc.

A cutting table or lapboard is of course indispensable, as is a low rocking chair without arms. A long mirror in which the full length of one's gown may be seen is the greatest possible convenience, and if cutting and fitting is accomplished without the aid of a professional dressmaker a dress form saves the time and temper of some member of the family who must otherwise serve as a dummy.—Philadelphia Press.

Give Babies Plenty of Water.

Well babies and sick babies, young babies and babies of high and low degree, babies fed on the bottle and babies fed naturally may have water to drink in moderation if they want it. The water should be boiled and covered, not very cold—even warm if the child prefers it so. This is the opinion of a successful medicine man under whose treatment have come hundreds of babies. "So thoroughly," says this authority, "have I become convinced of the great benefit derived from giving water to sick babies that I now order it in nearly every case with fever, and it is astonishing to me how the restlessness and fever of the symptoms we are apt to attribute to the pain and fever disappear when it is freely given.

"By freely I mean from one-half to two ounces in the early days of life between the feedings. If given immediately after the feeding, a sufficient quantity will of course be required to be given again. I have seen infants with measles, scarlet fever or pneumonia after a period of great restlessness fall into a quiet sleep when a couple of ounces of cool water had been given."

When Massachusetts Women Vote.

A Boston woman, returning from Europe with a wardrobe from Paris, landed in this city. In transporting her trunks to Boston by rail they were lost and never recovered. She accordingly brought suit for a substantial sum. The railway company's defense was that she owned no clothes. The wearing apparel, the value of which she was endeavoring to recover, belonged to her husband. It also had a million dollars in her rights. This was found to be a legal fact, and her suit was thrown out of court. The knowledge that Massachusetts women vote will wring their husbands' clothes ran like wildfire through the state. Town meetings were held. In three years by agitation, eloquence and importuning the legislature gave to women the ownership of her clothes. On that day, the date of which all Massachusetts women remember, nihilism it is not recognized as a state holiday, every woman went out proudly for the first time in her own garments.—New York Evening Sun.

Lace For House Decoration.

One of the most elegant laces used for home decoration is the Marie Antoinette, which has a medium fine mesh, with small bowknots and single flowers wrought on a ground of net tulle. The net is so durable that it will outlast the pain on it will last for years. It is to be had in white, cream and ecru and costs $1.75 a yard. The usual width is two yards. On this net foundation the pattern selected is applique, duchess braids, cords, rings and buttons of white or ecru linen being used. The lace is very effective in such large pieces as bedspreads, curtains or for vestibule doors, and there is very little fine work that is

Got It "Sweet."

"Tell me, dearest, what is it?"

As Bertram Calloway uttered these words and gazed down into the face of the fair young creature at his side, he felt intuitively that she would not speak to give him some new proof of that great devotion which she had so often revealed to him.

"I was thinking, dearest," she said softly, as she shyly looked up into the great, passionate eyes bent so lovingly upon here, "that when we were finally settled down and married, how much I could save you in neckties."

Half an hour later there might have been seen walking swiftly through the almost deserted streets of the great metropolis a young man who muttered strangely to himself as he passed underneath a friendly lamppost to gaze at a glittering object that he held in his hand. "It's all right," he whispered hoarsely to himself. "That's the same ring."—Cloak Review.

More Restful.

"Don't you think this suit is more becoming than my last?" he asked.

"Now I know you are worried dreadly. "It would please me better, George, if you would always wear black."

"And why," he asked tenderly, bending over her to catch the low word light to her eyes.

"Because," she replied with a far away look in her great hazel orbs, "I don't get so tired looking at black."—Clothier and Furnisher.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1893. PRICE TWO CENTS.

THAT SEWER NUISANCE

THE ALARM OF THE HOUSE OWNERS WHO ARE EFFECTED.

"The News" Sounded the Danger, and now Suggests a Remedy, to Help all out of the Dilemma.

The property-owners on North avenue and elsewhere are somewhat alarmed by the disclosures in THE NEWS of last Monday and Tuesday, when the danger they were in was for the first time brought to their notice.

The investigation which led to the discovery was made several weeks ago. Reference to it in THE NEWS was deferred at the request of one of the officials of the Board of Health. The reason given by the official was that the Board was preparing a statement, and would prefer to have its statement appear first. A similar request was, we understand, made of the other local papers, but, if so, it was disregarded by one of them, though this may have been through inadvertence.

The danger of fine and imprisonment from unlawfully sewering into the brook was first pointed out, however, in THE NEWS, and has caused quite a stir, as it ought, being a very serious matter.

One of our contemporaries devoted nearly a column editorial to the subject Wednesday, and again last evening, in which it proceeds to blame the Plainfield Common Council for not taking some action at the last meeting to afford relief.

The matter has not been brought before the Common Council officially that we are aware of.

We are not sure that it has been even brought before the Plainfield Board of Health.

THE NEWS stated that the North Plainfield Board of Health was preparing a compilation of the Plainfield Board of Health to have the alleged nuisance abated.

When that is done the Plainfield Board will be compelled to act.

Its first act will probably be to serve notice on Common Council, calling its attention to the alleged nuisance, and requiring the Council to abate the same.

Permission for the railroad company's cesspool and overflow sewer to the brook was granted by Common Council, before most of the numerous big buildings on North avenue were built, if even thought of.

To shut these buildings off now would make an even greater nuisance, since the owners have no place on their lots in which to erect cesspools. Some of the owners say that the city—which at the time it first gave authority to connect with the sewer alone had the authority, and has continued to receive pay from them for the privilege ever since—is bound to protect them.

THE NEWS does not see, in the view of the law, how the city can protect them, except by providing that such an abundance of disenfectants be used as will make the sewer no longer a nuisance.

This can be done, and the property-owners say they would not object to paying double what they now pay, rather than be shut off.

Meanwhile the Council Committee do not wish to be making much headway in their efforts for a sewerage system for the healthiest city in New Jersey. A sewerage system alone is supposed to solve the difficulty permanently.

BREVITIES.

—Be sure and get the NEWS regularly. But get the NEWS Saturday, anyhow.

—The Sagmon of the Central Railroad have had their wages raised to $2.10.

—More crushed stone is being put along the Somerset street car tracks.

—What Brennan will be hissed Saturday? Be sure and get THE NEWS. A full report will be found therein.

—The Children's Home is being greatly improved by the addition of a large verandah on the South side of the building.

—A bicycler named Cox was arrested last evening by Policeman Meyers for riding without a lantern. He was fined $1.

—"I shall not give you bread," declared the lady, "unless you go to work." "In other words," sighed the tramp, "you deprive me of my toast."

—The electric lights in the Grace M. E. church on Park place have been changed from the street circuit, or Edison, to the Thompson and Houston circuit.

—Mr. Spencer of Somerset street calls attention to the giant parcel, white plum, golden dwarf, half dwarf, and rose celery, mentioned in his advertisement.

—Willie—Pa, what did the pastor mean when he spoke of a "thirst after Righteousness"? Pa—He means that Right after service is the best time to take a drink.

—The comet in the northwestern sky is only 81,000,000 miles off, and can be seen without the aid of a glass for several nights to come; then it's gone, no one knows where.

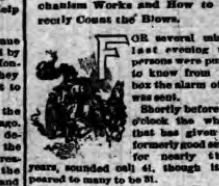
—Louis, the eight year old son of Mr. H. Hansen of Harrison street, while playing with a spade near his home brought it down on his foot cutting one of the large toe's off. Dr. Long dressed the foot.

—There are many dogs about town whose ownership is as doubtful as their ancestry. The persons who are vested with the necessary authority and experience should cultivate the acquaintance of these dog-catcher tramps and get them into "dog heaven" without unnecessary loss of time.

A SMALL FIRE.

THE WHISTLE GETS OUT OF ORDER AND MISLEADS MANY.

An Explanation of How the Mechanism Works and How to Correctly Count the Blows.



FOR several minutes last evening many persons were puzzled to know from what box the alarm of fire was sent.

Shortly before nine o'clock the whistle, that has given uniformerly good service for nearly three years, sounded out, though in appearance so many to be.

The cause of it all was that a lamp had set fire to the bedding in the house of Charles Fiske, corner West Third street and Arlington avenue. Just how the fire happened is not known.

The bells in the engine houses rang correctly and the fire department promptly responded. Only the chemical fire extinguishers were used. The furniture and bedding in the room were destroyed but the building was uninjured.

In spite of the interest there is to explain how the whistle blows, as many people erroneously suppose that when a box is "rung" it merely gives notice to the engineer at the station, who blows the whistle. That is not so. A complicated electrical mechanism in each box registers the complete number, whatever it may be, four times. All engine house bells ring at the same time. The engineer has nothing to do with it.

The mechanism which blows the whistle, consists of a long adjustable rod and valve. Some little obstruction last evening caused them to work imperfectly. In regulating the rod later the whistle was made to blow several times.

The mechanism is not perfectly regulated yet, as to-day at noon, there were several seconds delay in the "blow." The matter is, however, being attended to. When correct, there should be 1½ seconds between each blow of the first number, then a lapse of 5 seconds before a second number is rung, and a lapse of 11½ seconds before the alarm is repeated.

OUT ALL NIGHT TRAMPING.

And They'll "Never Go There Any More."

Three young men left here on foot for Orange, N. J., Tuesday, to attend a meeting. They reached their destination without mishap, but returning after the meeting, about ten o'clock, they lost their way when about a mile out of Orange. Continuing in a direction which they supposed to be right, they eventually arrived at a late hour of the night, in Summit. They then struck out in another direction and reached Chatham. Though very tired they kept on and wandered about in the dark all night. They arrive in Plainfield about nine o'clock the next morning tired, footsore and repentant, vowing they would "never go there any more."

I. O. O. F. Installation.

D. D. G. M. Chas. W. Tallman and staff visited Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F. last Monday evening and installed the following officers for the ensuing term:

Noble Grand—E. H. Cleveley.
Vice Grand—I. H. Seblelf.
Recording Secretary—Rudolf Kersting.
R. S. N. G.—C. Kline.
L. S. N. G.—E. R. Page.
R. S. V. G.—J. Kettearing.
L. S. V. G.—H. C. McVoy.
Outside Guard—James Lasoo.
Inside Guard—Henry Nieschvitz.
Conductor—Andrew Carpenter.
Warden—Wm. Page.
Chaplain—N. C. Pennington.
R. S. S.—Wm. Grannell.
L. S. S.—Theo. Kurzhals, Jr.

A large delegation was present from Westfield Lodge, No. 189, Westfield Rebekah Lodge, No. 145 and Elizabeth and Lawrence Lo. 63 of Perth Amboy.

After the installation a bountiful supper was served in the banquet room, which was enjoyed by all present.

Why the Cat was Not Killed.

An inoffensive cat, with a sad expression and a bruised tail, was walking along a Plainfield street recently when a big mastiff ran out to have a foot race with it.

Evidently the cat felt the implied insults in the dog's remarks as it approached or else it considered its landing allowed not sufficient for the distance to run, or it may have had "that tired feeling," but, anyhow, it did not run.

As the dog approached, with a sort of "is-it-hot-enough-for-you?"-bark, and its jaws warped out of shape so as to give his teeth working room, the cat, which was wearing its back hair pompadour, drew its feet in closer and blew some more air into its maltese-colored and banged constation.

The dog was evidently somewhat new at the cat-astrophe business because it never stopped to make up a plan of action but acted. The cat's remarks as the canine approached were evidently highly insulting, for its hair and eyes stiffened out with remarkable fluency. When the dog got ready to parade matters the cat humped the feline's apparatus in back suddenly let go. It shot up into the air, landed right on that dog's back, and combed his hair so briskly and satisfactorily that the animal imitated a "World's Fair Flier" down the street. The cat sent a few congratulatory remarks after the dog and then went on.

Has the owner of a large dog got it back yet?

THE LARGEST EXCURSION YET.

Friends of the First Baptist Church go to Asbury Park.

TWENTY-FOUR cars, all well filled happy excursionists, left the Plainfield station in two sections this morning. It was the annual excursion of the First Baptist church to the "twin cities by the sea," Ocean Grove and Asbury Park.

It is said this is the largest excursion that ever left this city. The number of tickets sold far surpass the record of any other year.

Besides taking their annual dip many of the pleasure seekers will attend the garden circle races to be held to-day at Asbury Park. Zimmerman, Windle and other renowned racers and a few of our pedal pushers, will compete for valuable prizes.

WAR SURVIVORS RE-UNITE.

Plainfield Veterans Meet Former Comrades of the 28th N. J. Vets.

Messrs. W. H. Ludlow and H. C. Drake of this city, as survivors of the Thirty-Fifth New Jersey Volunteers, attended the reunion at Asbury Park yesterday. Nearly 100 of the 1200 living members were present, 17 members having died during the past year.

Many distinguished Grand Army men were present.

A public reception was held at one o'clock and addresses were made. A dinner was served at one of the large hotels.

The reunion was an unusually social one and many old friendships were renewed and experiences told.

PERSONAL.

Miss Ada Higgins of this city is visiting friends at Harlingen.

Mrs. Johnson of Harrison street is seriously ill with heart trouble.

Mr. G. H. Moorehouse has gone to Chicago to take in the World's Fair.

Miss Louise Anderson of New York is visiting her uncle, Mr. Elias Bird of Elm place.

Mr. Charles P. Lhoest and family of Madison avenue are Summering at Fair Haven.

The family of Councilman Fisk started yesterday for Bethel, Me., to spend the Summer.

Miss N. Arnold of Manning avenue has returned from a two week's visit at Asbury Park.

Mr. G. L. Van Emburg and wife of this city are enjoying the sea breezes of Ocean Grove.

Mrs. Sarah Soper of West Second street is spending a few days as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Sauns of Evona.

Mr. Fred. S. Kellogg, a graduate from Princeton College, is visiting his uncle, Mr. Edward P. Kellogg, at Mount Pleasant.

Miss Lizzie and Master Walter Freeman of Rahway are visiting their uncle, Mr. William G. Ayers, of West Second street.

Chief George H. Fairchild of the North Plainfield Fire Department, who is operating the Summer at Ocean Grove, was in town one day this week.

Will and George Kirch of North Plainfield were at Mount Bethel Sunday. Will has a new road wagon in which to stir his best girl.—Bound Brook Democrat.

T. J. Carey has traded his place on Muhlenberg place for a store and goods at Clinton, and four lots at Lorraine. It is understood the deal was made with Mr. A. D. Thompson.

Rev. R. Fay Mills has refused the degree of D. D. conferred upon him by Iowa College, an important educational institution. He says he prefers being a plain minister of the gospel.

Collector H. N. Spencer of North Plainfield has in his possession a wooden section carried by one of his ancestors in the Revolutionary war. It is indeed a relic and very ubique. He is justly proud of it.

Judge Wm. A. Coddington has been ill for the past two weeks with bowel trouble brought on by overwork and lack of exercise. Yesterday he had a severe chill and fever attack. As soon as his health will permit he intends taking an extended vacation and try and tie up enough good health to last him over into 1894.

Constable W. R. Mateer is again able to be about his duties after having spent a week in bed suffering from a painful rupture, received while commanding a company of sharpshooters at the bombardment of Charlestown during the war, by the bursting of a cannon. He was much the worse for wear for some time after when in a charge he was bayonetted in his left arm. He served nearly four years, and now receives a pension. Every male relative he had was in the army except his grandfather. One brother died of starvation in a Confederate prison and another was killed in battle.

One Hundred Years Old.

Mrs. Mary Tower of Elizabeth celebrated her hundred birthday anniversary yesterday. She was born in that city, has lived there all her life and has been a widow since she was sixty-three years old. She had four children, only one of whom still lives. Her mind is quite clear and her general health and vitality excellent, but she is almost blind.

DO NOT GET SCARED!

KNOWLEDGE, COMMON SENSE AND CLEANLINESS ADVISED.

Instructions of the Medical Society of New Jersey on How to Prevent the Introduction of Cholera Into a Community and Fight it Off.

THE following timely article is furnished us by Dr. Geo. W. Endicott for publication:

ASIATIC CHOLERA.

The Medical Society of New Jersey at its 127th annual meeting, June 27, 1893, ordered it to be printed for the following outline of essential points to be observed and emphasized by the physicians in times of threatened invasions of cholera, as presented by Dr. D. C. English, of New Brunswick, chairman, in the report of the Standing Committee:

TO PREVENT THE INTRODUCTION OF CHOLERA, YELLOW FEVER AND SMALL POX.

1. Inquire into the sanitary administration in your community and give your most energetic efforts to secure its improvement.

2. Obtain the service of men of sterling character and superior executive ability as members of your Board of Health.

3. Require frequent inspections and scrupulous cleanliness of all places, public and private, particularly every street and alley; every sewer, drain, cesspool, vault and pit; every dwelling, store and office, including the plumbing; every yard, outhouse and stable.

4. Cause all surface wells to be examined and close up those which are found to be polluted.

5. Establish or perfect a system for the daily removal and safe disposal, by fire if possible, of all garbage, sweepings, rags and other domestic refuse.

6. Be prepared to skillfully and effectually disinfect, at public expense, all infected persons, buildings, baggage, vehicles and premises. Cause a supply of standard disinfectants to be kept ready for use by the health authorities.

7. Exclude from the markets all unwholesome food.

8. Provide and keep in readiness a suitable hospital for communicable diseases, and make engagements with physicians and attendants in anticipation of the need of their services.

9. Instruct the people in regard to the nature of the disease; its mode of communicability; the necessity of thorough sanitation; how to live; what to eat; the importance of using recently cooked foods; the necessity for boiling drinking water; the uselessness of deodorizers and the benefit to be derived from a liberal use of soap and water, and from pure air and sunshine.

10. Prevent the entrance of infected persons and effects into your community. Isolate every "suspect." Keep ready for reference Circular 41 of the New Jersey State Board of Health.

To arrest its spread after its first appearance in a community:

1. Provide competent employees to carry out rules and directions of physicians and board of health.

2. Promptly and completely isolate all cases of the disease, and also all "suspects."

3. Watch all apparently innocent diarrhœas.

4. Thoroughly disinfect all choleraic discharges from patients before emptying into place of deposit. Completely disinfect all vessels, clothing, bedding and everything used by the infected person or in the sick room or house. Burn all garments and articles which are soiled by contact with the discharges.

5. In case of death of patient wrap the body in a sheet or blanket which is saturated with a solution of bichloride of mercury, 1 to 500, and pack the coffin full of quicklime. Bury the body privately, with no attendants except those necessarily present. Inter the burial at least five feet below the ground surface.

6 Give information to the public as to the existence and progress of the disease. Discourage popular fear. Provide free medical service for the poor and have it promptly rendered. Urge upon the people the greatest care in the selection of digestible food and its proper preparation by cooking; prevent the danger from the use of unboiled water; the advantage of avoiding all excesses. Enforce the same upon all, by example the observance of the strictest cleanliness of person and surroundings.

Base Ball Notes.

The batting order of the Phillipsburgs who are to play here to-morrow is as follows: Holly, ss.; Heath, c.; Titus, lf.; Dewett, c.f.; Hicksetts, 2b.; Drake, r.f.; Eldridge, 1.s.; Mutchelor, 1.b.; Myers, p.; Ryan, extra.

The Crescents' batting order will be as follows: Smith, s.s.; Martin, 2b.; Turner, 3b., p.; Murphy, c.f.; McGehee, lf.; Bowden, r.f.; Keenan, 3b., p.; Jones, 1b.; Fritz, c.

Holly will be remembered as playing 1st base for the Crescents two seasons ago. The game will be umpired by J. J. Dailey who comes from the Eastern league.

Turner, who has proven himself an all-around ball player, has received an offer to join the Philadelphia team. He wired Manager Harry Wright that he would not accept a trial unless guaranteed an engagement for the balance of the season.

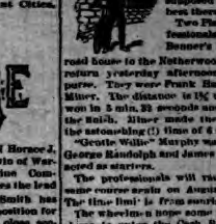
H. J. MARTIN NOW LEADS

MR. SMITH LOSES FIRST PLACE BY A FEW VOTES.

Surprises Looked for Saturday.—A Constantly Growing Interest in the Contest.—Coupons Coming in from Mail Subscribers in Distant Cities.



MAN Horace J. Martin of Warren Engine Company takes the lead to-day. Mr. Smith has held the first position for a long time and is now a very close second. There are more changes in the list of competitors to-day than on any day yet. This would look as though a "big black horse" was getting ready to come up. Well, the leaders are getting many votes. Coupons are being received now from mail subscribers in distant cities and Summer resorts.

In sending in coupons observe the following rules:

Get your votes in by noon, if credit the coupons are to be counted. Votes received in the afternoon are held until the next day. All coupons are cancelled, by perforation, when received.

To save ourselves unnecessary labor the following rule: All coupons, hereafter, will be dated, and must be sent in within six days after date of issue to be credited. All undated coupons must be sent in this week. The rule about coupons being sent in promptly is having a good result as may be seen by the increased list below.

Be sure and get THE NEWS every night. Further particulars about the contest will be given later: »

Salvation Army Workers Have a Hard Name in the Wilds of Bound Brook.

[From the Bound Brook Democrat.]

A detachment of the Plainfield Salvation Army attempted to hold an open air service at the corner of Main and Hamilton streets last Saturday night but was charged upon by Chief Marshal Bergen and driven ignominiously returned. The report made by some unfortunate who had forth to South Bound Brook to tell the story of the Cross, was received in no very favorable to their character, though Chief Bergen finally succeeded in convincing the belligerent ladies that they had stolen from a colored woman.

PROFESSIONAL WHEELMEN.

A Race Yesterday Afternoon Against Time—A Record of Less Country Broken.

WHEELMEN who race for money are professionals. A professional is generally supposed to be "the best there is."

Two Plainfield professionals raced from Bonner's Fanwood road house to the Netherwood depot and return yesterday afternoon for a $10 purse. They were Frank Hart and Fred Miller. The distance is 15½ miles. Hart won in 5 min. 32 seconds and fainted at the finish. Miller made the distance in the astonishing (!) time of 4 min. 15 secs.

"Queen Vic" Bingham judge and George Randolph and James McCormick acted as starters.

The professionals will race over the same course again on August 24 for $25. The time limit is from sunrise to sunset.

The wheelmen's hope some day to be in shape to enter the Cash Prize League which is at present making a national reputation.

Warren Chapel to be Lighted by Electricity.

Warren Chapel is being wired for electric lights, and will be lit up within a few evenings by the North Plainfield Electric Light Company.

Literary Note.

Conan Doyle has written for McClure's for August a short story of adventure of the class of his "White Company" and "The Refugees." It is to be illustrated by Alfred Brennan.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Gentlemen Mechanics.

The chief distinction between the gentleman and the nongentleman is that the first takes baths, the other does not. A Brooklyn iron working firm engaged in the manufacture of drop forges has dropped an idea on the world in connection with showing the gentlemanliness of its employees that is worth imitating. It is well known that, however gentlemanly the man who works in iron and coal may be, and however much he is respected by all, especially by candidates at election time, he cannot show off for the fine man he is when he goes home from work grimy faced and soiled as to his clothing. He is undoubtedly worth a dozen of the dudish looking young fellows about him in a street car, yet when a well dressed woman comes in she will instinctively seek a seat beside the dude rather than the gentleman who works in iron.

The reason is that the gentleman who has wrought all day with his hands is not cleaned up. The Brooklyn drop forgers have provided a way whereby their employees may obviate this difficulty and board a street car in a condition that will exhibit their manly good looks to the best advantage.

They have provided a first class bathhouse on their premises where the workmen can take a thorough wash in five minutes. The bath consists of a boxlike partition large enough for a man to stand up and move around in. There are a dozen of the boxes. In the ceiling above are shower baths of both hot and cold water. Soap and towels are provided, and the employee may stand under the grateful torrent, rub himself from head to foot with soap, wash it all off, scrub himself with the towel, jump into his street clothes, and in an incredibly short time step out as clean and agreeable in appearance as any dandy, and a good deal better looking than the dandy. Then the gentlemanly mechanic will be all ready with a clear head to pursue his studies in the evening and think out that invention which is going to make a millionaire of him. The fellow who is so far gone as not to avail himself of this luxury will never be anything but a day laborer and an uncommonly poor one at that.

A Bicycle Idea.

Philadelphia has mounted part of her park police force upon regulation army bicycles, and they patrol their beats in that manner. Philadelphia is the first city to do this, but the example is a good one. The steel horse costs nothing for keep, and his repairs amount to less than the shoeing of a four footed horse would. The bicycle does not wear out in a long run. Mounted upon it a park policeman is enabled to catch a wrongdoer very quickly. He can overtake and stop fast drivers and riders and can even head off a runaway horse.

In case of accident, too, a guard can speed away on his wheel to a telephone box and send for an ambulance or surgeon. A thief or rowdy on foot would have no chance at all against a champion "sparrow cop" bicyclist. Fairmount park, Philadelphia, contains 3,500 acres, it being the largest single city park in America.

Doubtless the other cities will follow the fashion set by Philadelphia, and to their manifest advantage. At the horse shows at present there is always a prize offered for skillful riding of the mounted park policemen. In a few years perhaps the bicycle shows will offer prizes for the most expert police cyclists. It will certainly add to the attractions.

It is not known to everybody that the United States contains a family named Columbus who are descended directly from the great navigator, although they have no titles except that of American citizens, of which they are sufficiently proud. The oldest of the American branch of the family, Alexius Columbus, aged 96, lives in Buffalo, and he has 8 living children, 30 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren. The American Columbus blood is in no present danger of running out. Some of the family live in Camden, N. J. Alexius Columbus traces his ancestry through six generations of ancestors to the original Christopher himself. Portraits of Alexius and his descendants—some of them—resemble those of the first Columbus more than the Duke de Veragua does.

The survey for the intercontinental railway which is to connect North and South America is all finished. The engineer who finished that part of the survey from Mexico to Bolivia are in Washington completing the calculations of their work. The beginning of the twentieth century will see this magnificent idea realized and North and South America joined by bands of iron as well as by bonds of amity and commerce and unity in form of government. If now our sister republics would only keep still and abstain from civil war long enough to let both the grain and trade grow, they might in time become as prosperous as their great sister to the north.

Kansas City has followed the example of Liverpool and built an elevated street railway whose motive power is electricity. The tracks cross the Kaw river and connect two states, passing through both the Kansas Cities and terminating at Chelsea Park, Kan.

BULLYING AT BANGKOK.

French Gunboats Still Terrorise The Siamese.

KING AND COURT READY TO RUN.

Report That Russia Will Aid France. What the Ultimatum Calls For the French Senate Approves—England Is Alarmed at the State of Affairs.

BANGKOK, July 21.—The belligerent attitude of the French gunboats Forfait, Inconstante and Comete, opposite the middle of the city, is causing great anxiety among the people. All three gunboats have steam up and are cleared for action.

The men are continually beaten to quarters, and they train the guns on any Siamese gunboat that happens to pass them on its way up or down the river day or night, although in accordance with an agreement with M. Pavie, French minister resident, the Siamese government endeavors to allay suspicion by warning in advance the French commander of the passage of every Siamese man-of-war.

Siam is doing her best to convince M. Pavie that her intentions are amicable, but freedom of action in the negotiations is much restricted by the pressure exercised ostentatiously by the French war vessels.

The Siamese court is greatly agitated. Preparations are apparently under way for the departure of the king and his court from the capital. Reports of the intention of the king to leave Bangkok have spread among the populace and have caused much excitement. It is stated that a popular agitation in favor of France has been started in the province of Battambang, some distance to the southeast of the capital, and that troops have been sent to put down the sedition.

The French Senate Approves.

PARIS, July 21.—The senate passed unanimously a resolution approving in every respect the attitude of the government in the Siamese affair.

M. Develle, French minister of foreign affairs, told the senate that he believed that Siam would grant France satisfaction, as she realized that France was able to exact compliance with the demands made. He added further:

"The ultimatum was forwarded late on Wednesday afternoon. The substance, if not the text, was imparted to the British embassy before the ultimatum was dispatched. Diplomatic etiquette prevents the publication of it until the period granted to Siam has expired. I believe it is incorrect to say that France claims the left bank of the Makong river from the point where it issues from the Chinese frontier. France claims is that within a reasonable period Siam withdraw from the fortified points held on the left bank and from the islands to which France lays claim as having inherited the rights of Cambodia and Annam. The extent to which the left bank will belong to France must be settled by a boundary commission. This cannot be decided offhand by a diplomatic note."

The statement that Russia had signified her intention to support France in her dispute with Siam and that Russian warships were now on the way to the gulf of Siam, was published in the Petit Journal, a Liberal Republican paper. A similar statement appeared in The Nation, a Radical newspaper.

Siam's reply to France's ultimatum is not expected to be given before Saturday night or Sunday. It is thought that in case the reply be unfavorable Rear Admiral Humann will await the arrival of M. de Villers, a special commissioner sent out by the French government, before taking final action.

England Takes Action.

LONDON, July 21.—A special cabinet meeting was summoned in Downing street. There was full attendance. France's demands on Siam were discussed at length, and eventually instructions for the Marquis of Dufferin, British ambassador to France, were dictated and approved.

Immediately after the meeting the Earl of Rosebury, secretary of state for foreign affairs, communicated with the admiralty as regards the disposition of the fleet in Asiatic waters. Special orders were dispatched by the admiralty to Vice Admiral Sir E. R. Fremantle, commander-in-chief of the Chinese division of the fleet.

These facts, together with the sudden canceling of the Marquis of Dufferin's leave of absence, regarded as hardly in harmony with the official predictions of a perfectly amicable settlement with France of the Siamese difficulty. Even if not alarmed by the concentration of the fleet in Asiatic waters. Special orders were dispatched by the admiralty to Vice Admiral Sir E. R. Fremantle, commander-in-chief of the Chinese division of the fleet.

These facts, together with the sudden canceling of the Marquis of Dufferin's leave of absence, regarded as hardly in harmony with the official predictions of a perfectly amicable settlement with France of the Siamese difficulty. Even if not alarmed by the concentration of the fleet, the government is believed to realize that the Siamese affair is fraught with the most serious possibilities, for which immediate preparation must be made by Great Britain.

Demand a Substitute For the Jean Say.

The Siamese government has issued a decree prohibiting the export of rice from Battambang and Angkor. The Pluvial Messagerie company of Cochin China therefore, fearing a rebellion in these provinces, has suspended the service on the lakes. Admiral Humann has made a requisition on the Fluvial steamer Battambang to release the Jean Say, which was sunk, and carry the mails between Saigon and Bangkok.

Home Rule's Progress.

LONDON, July 21.—The last 11 clauses of the home rule bill were brought through the committee stage.

Mr. Gladstone's amendment, which provided that acts relating to the royal constabulary be repealed at the end of six years and that some not civil police be created under any Irish act, was being discussed when closure was applied. This amendment concerned clause 38, which deals with the Irish royal constabulary and Dublin metropolitan police. The debate was cut short, and under the closure the amendment was carried by a vote of 347 to 86.

Clauses 39 to 58 were then passed in rapid succession by majorities varying between 36 and 34. The subjects of these clauses were Police, Irish customs, how regulated, to both houses of the Irish legislature, supplemental provisions to the powers of the Irish legislature, limitations of borrowing by local committees, temporary restriction of powers of the Irish legislature and executive with regard to land and transitory provisions.

Clause 57, concerning the continuance of existing laws, courts, officers, etc., was carried without division. Clause 58, concerning the appointed day for the purposes of the bill, was carried by a vote of 347 to 201.

Clause 59, concerning the significance of terms used in the bill, was lost. Clause 60, concerning the title of the act, was carried without a division. The committee then rose. There was a total lack of excitement throughout the evening.

MIXED UP WITH MEYERS.

Carl Wimmer, Alias Muller, and Wife May Be Wanted and Are Held.

NEW YORK, July 21.—A very pretty and fashionably dressed young woman and an ordinary man of German appearance were arraigned in the Tombs police court before Justice Kenny. Their manner was mysterious, and they were kept under the surveillance of the detectives connected with the district attorney's office.

Finally District Attorney Nicoll made a statement regarding them. He said they were Carl Wimmer, alias Muller, and his wife Mary, who was wanted for their connection with Dr. Henry Meyer in the alleged poisoning of various persons to defraud life insurance companies.

They were brought on here from Chicago by Daniel G. Gillette, superintendent of the medical revision department of the Mutual Life Insurance company, and detective Julien. Mr. Nicoll received word Wednesday that the couple had been found, and he at once telegraphed that they be brought to this city.

Mr. Nicoll said that he did not know at the present time whether or not he would charge Wimmer with any crime, but it was possible he might be indicted for complicity in the crime for which Meyer is held. Wimmer lived with the Meyers at 220 West Thirteenth street at the time of the death of Ludwig Brandt, and disappeared a few days later.

Mr. Nicoll committed him to the House of Detention, and Mrs. Wimmer was locked up in the custody of her lawyer, James Kennedy of Chicago. She is not actually under arrest, but Mr. Nicoll takes the precaution of keeping her within half-the district.

Early in the day Dr. Meyer was arraigned before Judge Cowing and entered a plea of "not guilty" to the charges included in the indictment, with leave to withdraw that plea afterward should he see fit. Meyer was represented by Lawyer Charles F. Brooke. He will also be defended by the now famous Dr. O'Sullivan.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The follow'ng fourth class postmasters were appointed:

Christman, Wehenburg; G. W. Grater, York Springs.

The Reincarnation of Schamber.

BUFFALO, July 21.—The reincarnation of Christian Schamber is now a generally acknowledged fact. Professor Baumm who could not be prevailed upon to believe the dead had returned to life was finally forced by the appearance of Schamber to admit it. The latter visited, slept and ethereal, the supposed dead man entered the coroner's office. Schamber still keeps his secret as to where he has been during his long absence.

Hospital Cars for Immigrant Trains.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Surgeon General Wyman, at Washington, has prepared a scheme whereby he expects to successfully isolate all cholera cases, provided that disease reaches this country this year. The plan is that a hospital car shall be attached to every outgoing immigrant train in charge of one or more physicians and that a thorough inspection shall be made constantly of the passengers.

Rifled From His Entire Place.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 21.—Asbury Hurley, who is known to fame as the first child born in Asbury Park, was again before Squire Borden upon the charge of disorderly conduct. He was fined $10 and the county jail for 40 days Hurley promised to leave town and not return.

BRAZIL, Ind., July 21.—Washington Salisbury, one of the wealthiest and best known men in the county, was found dead on the street at Clay City. The cause of his death is mysterious.

The Connecticut River Very Low.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 21.—The water at the Connecticut river at Holyoke is the lowest at any time since 1864, and three mills have already shut down because of a short supply.

THE MOB LED BY WOMEN

Fierce Battle In the Kansas Mining District.

DRIVEN OUT BY THE STRIKERS.

The Miners Chased From Their Work, Defeated When They Made a Stand and Threatened With Lynching—Rifles and Clubs Used—Many Injured.

WEIR CITY, Kan., July 21.—The expected crisis has come in the Kansas miners' strike. Miners who were willing to work quietly and peaceably have been attacked by the strikers, and blood has been shed. The feeling which has been growing more and more bitter for several days culminated in a fierce battle at Clements' pit, one mile south of this city.

There had been murmurings of the approaching storms, and the feeling was universal that serious trouble was at hand. A band of 800 strikers, headed by 100 women, which had been marching to the various strips reached Clements' pit, and sent in a committee to persuade the miners working there to quit. This they refused to do, and when the committee reported the entire body of marchers moved on to the works to force them out.

The strip men were ready for them, and when they passed the trespass line they were fired upon, and a general battle followed, in which winchester rifles, pistols and clubs were used.

Many Shot and Clubbed.

Over 100 shots were fired, and it is nothing short of a miracle that nobody was killed. One man was wounded in the forehead, another in the leg, a boy in the foot and one of the women got a bullet through her arm. None of the wounds are fatal, and it is believed that none of them are dangerous. A number on both sides were badly beaten up with clubs and pistol-whipped. Those wounded were quickly removed by their friends, and their names have not been learned.

As a result of the battle, the men in the strip were routed by the strikers and were forced to flee for their lives, pursued by the howling mob, which would have lynched them had they been caught.

The owner of the strip, Clements, his son and a man named Big Dick Reed are said to be the ones who did the shooting, and they have given themselves up and were that evening in the county jail awaiting. The excitement was intense after the shooting, and it was feared that matters would become worse, but a prominent striker, George H. Patton, made the crowd a speech, in which he advised them to keep cool and counseled peace. It is rumored that a quantity of firearms have been received, and the excitement continues of a high pitch, and further bloodshed now seems inevitable.

More Bloodshed Expected.

PITTSBURG, Kan., July 21.—The miners in this vicinity are in a state of intense excitement over the shooting of four of their number at Weir City. Many express the opinion that this is but a starter and will result in more bloodshed. That they will not go back to work now that they have gone during the strike is certain, and there is no telling what the end will be.

A meeting of miners and strikers is called for today in Henry's hall, in this city, when it is expected that a large number of miners will be present from the lower part of the district, and it is almost certain that something more will be decided on regarding the matter of work.

A telegram was received at the miners' headquarters this morning that Assistant Attorney General Clark will arrive in Pittsburg, to afford the miners all the legal protection to which they may be entitled.

Every effort is being put forth to get the strip pits in the neighborhood of Pittsburg. Those operated by Breck, Beasley & Lanyon are running the same as usual. The stockades around the Kansas and Texas shaft No. 22 at Litchfield is about one-third completed, and the men are working night and day upon it.

About 250 men visited three strip pits at Frontenac and prevailed upon the workmen to quit lowering cars until Aug. 1 with the understanding that if the 34 court miners do not get out by that time, they can again commence loading.

Eight Carpenters Crushed by a Roof.

HICKSVILLE, L. I., July 21.—A portion of the roof of a one story frame building in the course of erection in this village fell while a number of carpenters were at work. The following were found to be seriously injured: Joel Titus, August Wernberg, Martin Drowden, David Matchett, Rowland Robbins, Joseph Brennan and Jacob Drexham. All had arms or legs broken and were otherwise injured.

Wife and Children Saw Him Murdered.

DAYTON, O., July 21.—Charles F. Duerr, aged 41, a saddler, was brutally murdered while returning with his wife and children from a party. As they were about to cross a narrow bridge over the Sedeys ditch, three ruffians knocked down Duerr with a stone and then stabbed him through the heart. All this occurred within a stone's throw of his home. The murderers escaped.

An Unfortunate World's Fair Visitor.

FORT WAYNE, July 21.—Charles Dewsells of Manchester, N. H., a young man who lost his money while attending the World's fair, was arrested while on through this city over the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railroad en route for home, when he fell beneath the cars and both legs were cut off. He cannot recover.

Iron Mines Closed.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., July 21.—The Chateaugay Ore and Iron company, whose mines are at Lyon mountain, closed down, as did also the Crown Point Iron company mines and iron makers at Crown Point. The cause given is dullness in the iron trade.

The Yorktown Tabling on Powder.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The United States steamer Yorktown dropped down New York harbor to the powder station, and after supplying herself with ammunition the ship will start on her long voyage to join the Pacific station.

ROME, July 21.—The report that Italy has proposed that the 25c franc pieces be no longer regarded as international coins has been confirmed.

Hood's Cures

Master Conrad Purcell

"As the result of a fall, severe inflammation appeared in my boy's eyes. We had to bleep him in a dark room, and we feared he would lose his sight entirely. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended, and we gave it a trial. Before he had taken one bottle the inflammation was greatly reduced. I continued the medicine until the eyes were entirely restored. I positively recommend

MR. DREXEL'S WILL.

How the Vast Estate of the Philanthropist Will Be Divided.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—The last will and testament of Anthony J. Drexel was admitted to probate. The executors, who are also the trustees, are George W. Childs, John Cowper Wetch, Richard C. Dale, his sons, John R. Drexel, Anthony J. Drexel and George W. Childs Drexel, and his son-in-law, James W. Paul, Jr., and John R. Fell.

The petition filed by the executors placed the value of the real estate at over $1,000,000 and the personal estate over $1,000,000. The estimated value of the estate is between $30,000,000 and $30,000,000. The will is dated Dec. 31, 1891, and there are five codicils. The executors are empowered to make such arrangements for the continuation of the banking business conducted in the name of Drexel & Co. and the associate firms as in their judgment may seem wise and expedient. They are also authorized to advance to any one or more of the sons or sons-in-law of the decedent a sum not exceeding 50 per cent of the amount of the share of such son or the wife of such son-in-law to be contributed as capital to a firm which may be formed to continue the banking business.

One hundred thousand dollars is bequeathed to the German hospital of Philadelphia. The executors are directed to transfer $1,000,000 to trustees, who will apply the income toward the erection and maintenance of an art gallery, museum or other public institution in the neighborhood of the Drexel Institute of Art, Science and Industry in this city, provided the latter building shall be inadequate. The trustees, however, can apply so much of the income as cannot be judiciously expended for the aforesaid purposes to the establishment of the Drexel hospital in this city.

An annuity of $1,000 per annum is bequeathed to Miss Elizabeth C. Stanley, a friend. Household servants who have been in the employ of the family for five years prior to Mr. Drexel's death will receive $1,000 each, and clerks of Drexel & Co. and Drexel, Morgan & Co. will receive $100 for each year they have been in the service.

Three hundred dollars is directed to be invested for the benefit of Andrew D. Biddle, Livingstone Biddle and Craig Biddle, grandchildren.

Mr. Drexel's one-third interest in the Drexel Building, Broad and Wall streets, New York, is devised in trust to Anthony D. Paul, Mas Fell and Anthony J. Drexel, III.

The will then directs that the residue of the estate shall be held and invested by the executors. The latter will hold the net income in trust for the surviving children and the issue of those dead other than the daughter, Emily Biddle.

Upon the death of George W. Childs, the executors shall pay to his lawful representatives for his interest in the Public Ledger, owned or controlled by the partnership now conducted under Mr. Childs' name, the sum provided in partnership agreement.

The executors can do whatever may be necessary to settle with Mr. Childs' estate to vest the title in the Ledger. Fifty thousand dollars can be paid each executor for his services.

GALLAGHER RETRACTS.

The Confessor Confirms That His Other Confession Was False.

PITTSBURG, July 21.—Patrick Gallagher, the confessor, sent for Warden Wright at his cell in the penitentiary and said: "Warden, I have been in h—— all night, and wish to say to you now that the confession made by me yesterday was all a hatched up scheme and that I was dragged into it. I wish now to retract everything that was in that confession and wish you would send for the attorneys interested, as I will decline to sign the confession."

Warden Wright immediately notified District Attorney Burleigh came out and said that Gallagher had declared under oath that every statement he made before was absolutely false, and that he, Dempsey, Beatty and Davidson are guilty as indicted. He broke down and cried like a child. Warden Wright says Gallagher had a big bundle of manuscript, which he took as the foundation of his little speech which was prepared for him on the outside of the penitentiary and which he told Wednesday.

There is considerable speculation as to why Gallagher made the first statement, but the most plausible reason given was that he thought the Knights of Labor would have enough influence to secure him a pardon. However, the story that Davidson went back on Gallagher seems to have settled him, and he decided to retract the statement he made on the witness stand at the time Dempsey was convicted.

WORK OF THE FLAMES.

A Long Island City Fire Lighted Up All New York.

FOUR DIED IN A BROOKLYN FIRE.

A Tank of Naphtha Blew Up and Scattered Instant Death Through a Small Factory.

A Church, a Schoolhouse, a Big Factory and Several Other Buildings Burned.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Shortly before 1 o'clock fire was discovered in Gray's refrigerator factory at Fourth street and Jackson avenue, Long Island City. The building is large and extends over several lots. The entire fire department of the city was called out, but before the men reached the burning building the fire had spread to several of the surrounding structures.

A Catholic church nearby was set afire by the flames, and sparks were tossed and blown in all directions from the factory. The police department sent out an additional call to the neighboring towns for more firemen and engines to fight the flames, which were spreading in all directions.

There is a gashouse not far from the fire, which it was feared would explode every moment from the heat. The church was soon in flames. The blaze rapidly climbed aloft on its steeple, and soon the spire was a tower of fire. At 1:25 a. m., the structure fell.

The fire was really one of the most destructive which Long Island City has known in a long time. It covered a considerable area, and three properties were destroyed or greatly damaged: Gray's refrigerating factory, St. Mary's church, a schoolhouse, the Davren block of tenement houses.

The brilliant mass of flame lit up the East river until each ripple in the water sparkled as though flooded with sunlight.

The river front along the New York shore was almost as bright as day. Hundreds of persons gathered along the piers and on the housetops to watch the spectacle. Upper windows of tall houses were dotted white with awakened sleepers.

When the church steeple fell, there rose a shower of sparks like the bursting of countless rockets at some tremendous pyrotechnical exhibition.

The sparks lit up the canopy of smoke for a moment and then faded away, leaving only the square mass of subsiding flame and the red glow against the sky.

After that the fury of the fire subsided steadily, and at 1:45 a. m. it was little more than a fierce glow, which seemed to be yielding to pressure from the descending canopy of smoke. At 2 a. m. the glow was sinking below the housetops, and one of the finest night spectacles that New York has seen in a long time was over.

Four Were Killed.

BROOKLYN, July 21.—A fire in which four persons lost their lives was started in the two story frame building in the rear of 213 Walworth street, Williamsburg. The house was occupied by George Campbell who used it as a hat trimming and rubber cement factory. It is supposed that the fire was caused by the explosion of a naphtha tank.

Mr. Campbell was 47 years old and lived in a dwelling house in the front of the factory. He was at work in the building and had for his assistants his son Charles, 16 years old; Joseph Kree, an engineer, 47 years old, of 761 Myrtle avenue, and John D. Cutcheon, 51 years old, of 676 DeKalb avenue. They were all killed by the explosion, and their bodies were found, when the fire was extinguished, badly burned and charred. The bodies of Campbell, his son and Cutcheon were found close together in the varnish room, where they had been working. Knee's body was found in the engine room close to the boiler.

The noise of the explosion was heard for blocks around, and the houses in the locality were shaken up and the glass in many windows shattered.

The New Orleans Mint Robbed.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—While Treasurer Morgan is noncommittal on the report that a defalcation exists in the mint at New Orleans, it is learned that the treasury department discovered a shortage in the funds in the mint on June 26, and that searching investigation has shown that the recent fire there was of incendiary character, started for the purpose of covering up robbery.

Selling Senator Hearst's Horses.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—A number of horses belonging to the late Senator Hearst were sold at auction. King Thomas, for which Senator Hearst paid $28,000 as a yearling a few years ago, was sold for $750.

The Victoria Court Martial.

VALETTA, July 21.—In the Victoria court martial, Lieutenant Hamilton and Lieutenant Barr of the Camperdown, confirmed Rear Admiral Markham's statement.

WIRE WINNOWINGS.

A large number of important treasury appointments are expected to be made soon.

Mayor Boody of Brooklyn made public the minutes of the grand jury that reflected on his official honesty.

The Reynoldsville, (Pa.), woolen mills, Sykes, Allis & Moorehouse, proprietors, were destroyed by fire.

Four fatal cases of cholera have occurred in different parts of Naples.

The lighthouse keeper at Cape Race telegraphs that there is a very large iceberg seven miles distant from that point and drifting south.

The board of managers of the National Soldiers' home exonerated Governor A. J. Smith of the Great Western Branch home at Leavenworth, Kan.

The defunct Manhattan Athletic club's palatial building was sold at auction for $650,000 to Adrien Iselin, the well known Wall street banker.

The Commercial Cable Telegraph company is advised by the Eastern Telegraph company that Portsmouth will not allow cable messages to pass for Brazil.

All the savings banks of Peoria, Ills. have taken advantage of the 60 day notice clause governing withdrawals.

FACTORIES ARE IDLE.

Three Are Dull Times in Many New England Cities.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 21.—The Evening News says editorially regarding the situation: "Printers are offering 2½ cents for print cloths, which is less than the cost of production. Predictions are made that many mills will have to break or sell at that price to get money to pay their help if the business is to be kept in motion. With the close of July contracts, manufacturers will face the alternative of shutting down and selling at less than cost or paying exorbitant rates for money to meet their pay-rolls.

PORTLAND, Me., July 21.—At a directors' meeting it was decided to shut down the mills of the Woodcock Manufacturing company, makers of sunglasses, from July 29 to Sept. 4. The monthly payroll is $20,000.

MILTON MILLS, N. H., July 21.—The agent of the Waumbeck company has issued orders for closing mills here for three months. The reason assigned for this action is a lack of orders, except at ruinous prices.

NORWALK, Conn., July 21.—Norwalk manufacturers are experiencing the dullest season they have ever known. Hatmakers, Cole & Co., shirt manufacturers, have been shut down three weeks. Both B. Goldsmith, corset manufacturer, employing nearly 500 operatives, one of the largest concerns of the kind in the country, are idle.

HE BURNED A TOWN.

Then a Mob of Homeless and Infuriated Men Lynched Him.

EWEN, Mich., July 21.—The business portion of this town has been entirely destroyed by fire. In this village of fully 2,000 people only two stores are left standing. The fire is said to have been of incendiary origin. The homeless people are holding as a prisoner a man supposed to have started the blaze. He is almost certain to be lynched, as the people are worked up almost to a frenzy by the loss of their property.

A dispatch received in the office of the train dispatcher at Duluth at 11:15 p. m. at the Lake Superior depot from the town of Ewen has just taken the man suspected of starting the fire which destroyed the town and has hung him to a tree.

The only news that can be obtained is the gossip of operators that is going over the wires, but it confirms in every particular the first news. Ewen was a thriving town, and has been built up rapidly on a boom. The substantial portion of the town with the exception of one or two buildings is entirely wiped out.

Denver Full of Idle Men.

DENVER, July 21.—The closing down of many silver mines, smelters and the reduction of the working forces of coal mines, railways and manufacturers in this state because of the reduction in the price of silver has caused a deplorable condition of affairs among the laboring classes. It is estimated that there are 10,000 men in Denver unable to secure employment. There are 20,000 in the outside towns in the same condition, one-half of whom are making their way to this city, where they will be augmented by the charge if conditions do not speedily change.

Said Priests Drove Him to Death.

JAMAICA, L. I., July 21.—The body found in the woods near here was identified by Agnustio Lopez of the firm of Lopez Brothers, cigar manufacturers, 359 Pearl street, New York, as that of Joseph Alreres, a Spaniard, 48 years old. The dead man, Lopez says, was his cousin. A letter found in Alreres' pocket says that he was persecuted by the Spanish priesthood.

Switchman Held For Manslaughter.

NEWBURG, N. Y., July 21.—Michael Donohue, the West Shore switchman at the scene of disaster here last Thursday, was held here by Coroner McCreakery for the action of the grand jury, and Judge Charles F. Brown of the supreme court fixed his bail at $3,500, which was furnished. The charge against Donohue is manslaughter in the second degree.

Shot His Father by Accident.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 21.—Joseph D. Newlin, a hardware merchant of this place, accidentally shot his father, David T. Newlin, a retired merchant of Philadelphia. Young Newlin was examining a revolver returned to him by a colored man when the weapon was discharged. Physicians fear that Mr. Newlin will not recover.

Actor Curtis' Trial Again Postponed.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—The case of M. E. Curtis, charged with killing Police Officer Brown, was by mutual consent continued until July 31. This will be Curtis' third trial.

FORT SCHUYLER, L. I., July 21.—Lieutenant Charles C. Ogden, Thirteenth United States Infantry, was drowned near Hamburg, Mich., while on his wedding tour.

The Assailant Still Free.

PALMER, Mass., July 21.—No trace has yet been found of the mulatto who murderously assaulted S. Wilson Lawrence on the outskirts of the village.

Killed by a Cosmet Bucket.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 21.—Daniel Goodwin, a Greek, was struck by a cement bucket which was being lowered by a derrick and instantly killed.

Suicide Schaffner Was Badly Bankrupt.

CHICAGO, July 21.—It was stated in court that the assets of the suicide banker, Herman Schaffner, would not pay over 10% per cent. of the liabilities.

Burglars Locked a Seashore Cottage.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 21.—The cottage of Mrs. Richard Thompson of New York was entered by burglars and looted of all the valuables.

Ready Cash Discouraged Rose.

GUTHRIE, O. T., July 21.—Rose went started on every bank in the city, but all deposits were paid in full, and things are quieted down.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP

THE EXPRESSIVE EYEBROW.

How the Various Forms of This Feature Have Been Interpreted.

The "rainbow of peace," as the eyebrow has been called, and the eyelids are treated of as, considerable length by a writer on physiognomy as the most strong the most expressive, animated and mobile features of the face. In fact, so highly are they extolled that one is almost forced to think that a person possessed of nothing but a pair of symmetrical eyebrows could easily express his desires or his emotions, how ever complicated these might be.

Highly arched eyebrows are said to denote vivacity and brilliancy, but not the power and profundity that are allied to the more level kind. Regularly curved eyebrows are said to express cheerfulness, equanimity, deep thought, irregular, fickleness, versatility, vivacity and excitability; raised at the inner corner, melancholy, joined over the nose, an unsettled mind. Thick and heavy eyebrows are supposed to denote physical strength and energy on the part of their possessors, while the contrary development signifies delicacy, refinement or mortal weakness.

A lack of eyebrows is not considered a sign of mental strength. The eyebrows and the eyelids are on terms of close intimacy, and the form of the former is connected with the opening of the latter. Only in the romantic novel are black eyes to be found. By those who have studied the question deeply four primary shades of color are recognized. These are brown, green, blue and gray, and each of these has five tones.

The Parisian Season For Suicide.

It is a curious fact, but not more curious than true, as published statistics still clearly show, that there are more dead bodies exposed at the morgue in Paris during the months of April, May and June than at any other time of the year. For these three months there is now an average of 80 bodies a month, and it is a noticeable fact that the hotter the weather is in spring the greater the number of corpses laid out on the marble slabs of this far famed mortuary. The cases of suicide predominate.

Some quaint revelations have come to light from first to last in connection with this mortuary. There is a story of a ring—an heirloom—which reappeared frequently at the morgue on the finger of successive ladies who inherited it. It was always recognized and duly claimed. Whoever wore it died a violent death. Since 1870 the deaths registered at the morgue have increased from 677 a year to 1,007, and this notwithstanding the fact that there has been little or no increase in the population of Paris during these last few years.

Ancient Glassmaking.

The art of glass manufacture is probably nearly as old as the world itself. Specimens of glass work of a superior sort have been found in the ruins of the most ancient Egyptian cities, and representations of glassblowers are found in the oldest sculptures. In ancient Rome glassware was highly prized, and its manufacture was carefully studied and cultivated. In the middle ages the great glass center of the world for many years was Venice. The city long kept the glassmaking art a secret, but final ly it was discovered, and then Venice had to suffer brisk competition from England, France and Bohemia. The latter was for a long time Venice's strongest rival, and up to the time of the discovery of English flint or lead glass the Bohemian glass was the finest in the world, according to American Importer.

The Original Use of Butter.

Butter, which is almost indispensable to the meal nowadays, was formerly used solely as an ointment. Herodotus, a Greek historian, is the first writer who mentions butter, B. C. 500. The Spartans treated it very much the same as we do cold cream or vaseline, and Plutarch tells how a hostess was sickened at the sight of one of her visitors, a Spartan, who was saturated in butter. The Scythians introduced the article to the Greeks, and the Germans showed the Romans how to make it. But the latter did not use it for food. They, like the Spartans, anointed their bodies with it.

Marvels in Cardboard.

Never was cardboard put to a more ingenious use than by an English architect, whose task was continued through 20 years. The unique result of his skill, patience and perseverance is a series of models of the famous cathedrals of the world. The most ornate specimens of architecture are treated as skillfully as plainer buildings. The noble dome of St. Peter's; the lofty tower of Vienna, with its clock faces; Milan, with its hundred spires; Cologne, with its twin steeples; Evreux, magnificent Strasburg, with her little watchhouse (the veritable night watchman of the town), the tasteful Notre Dame, and the plainer and somewhat peculiar Chartres are all given with as much correctness of detail as is possible, considering the size. All the models are made to scale, 60 feet to the inch.

Moon Blindness.

As old sailor affirms that moon blindness is not of infrequent occurrence among sailors while in the tropics, and it is usually attributed to sleeping on deck with the face exposed to the rays of the moon. He says: "Some years ago while in the West Indies one of the crew among which I belonged had an attack of moon blindness. The only inconvenience he seemed to suffer was in being unable to see at night. He was obliged to be led wherever he went, but as much as if he had been totally blind, while during the day he had full use of his eyesight."

How the Starling Got Its Name.

Many persons have wondered why the starling got its name, which comes from an old word, meaning to look fixedly or to stare, and certainly its eyes are sharp and quick to see danger, so that it is not easily shot in the fields.

Many Uses For Screens In the Home.

Without the screen the artistic woman could hardly keep house. She uses it for many different purposes. A tall one shields the baby's crib from drafts, another hides the unsightly set washstand. A Japanese affair stints of the kitchen from the dining room, and now a bright woman has had one made with six or seven panels to serve really as a partition wall to divide her long front parlor into a pretty music room. The screen, about the height of the old fashioned piano, is used to screen the piano in its position out in the room instead of against the wall, where many would have kept it. Some of the panels are allowed to bend in and out, only the last one being placed straight. A small sofa with pillows completes the division. The artist finds a screen covered with burlap the most effective background for his sketches, and he uses an extreme size, perhaps 6 feet in height by 2½ wide.

Drawn up to the invalid's couch is a screen fitted with shelves and brackets for books and flowers. Many of these are homemade affairs, costing only a few dollars. A four paneled clotheshorse has its origin completely disguised by the inventive woman who desires a dainty drawing room screen. This she accomplishes by cutting off one of the four panels and covering the other three with china silk, finishing the top with a valance and adding to each end panel a curtain of figured silk arranged and caught back exactly like those adapted for a window.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Pretty Table Mat.

An ornamental table mat is made from a piece of olive green felt 18 inches square. The outer edge is cut in the shape of maple leaves, which must be painted in autumnal tints. The center should not be decorated.

Literature and Domestic Service.

Housework is as respectable as any other kind of honest work. This is common sense. It even looks like a truism. But the praiseworthy efforts so often and so earnestly made to bring people to see this are probably destined to fail, at least for an indefinite time to come. As has often been pointed out, all literature is saturated with the idea of the inferior position of the domestic servant. It is stamped on the pages of every novel, every play, for centuries back. The distaste for work is regarded as a position of social inferiority is almost universal in all countries. As labor is harder and harder to get an American woman to do housework outside her own home. The young women of other nationalities are more ready and willing to do housework, but just in the degree that they become Americanized they become unavailable as domestic servants and learn to prefer almost any other kind of work.

A recent writer has indulged in moral reflections on this subject, and especially upon the extent to which all literature is permeated with the idea of the servile character of domestic service. Even more striking is the extent to which literature is permeated with the idea of the inferiority of women. I am not speaking now of ancient literature, but of modern. A woman connected with the newspaper is often struck by it in glancing over the exchanges.—Boston Woman's Journal.

The Time to Teach Obedience.

If children are not taught to obey when small, they cannot be when they get old enough to exercise their own will. How soon an infant of a few weeks old learns to cry for a thing some one to walk the floor with or dandle it up and down at one's length if it has been handled in that way for a short time. If children can learn to like that usage, why can they not learn to lie quiet in the crib, if kept warm and well fed, as well? When they begin to creep or walk, they can easily be taught to let this or that alone by proper management, and it is much better for the child to learn when small.

Every one who has any heart at all cannot help loving a little, innocent child that behaves nicely at home, for if it does then it will be apt to be good away from home. But I have seen little ones whom it would be hard for me or any one to love, they behaved so badly. This child is not to blame for not behaving well if it is not taught to do so. The parents are to blame, and the child has to suffer for it. Be gentle, yet firm, and fulfill all your promises to the children if you expect them to love, honor and obey. —New York Telegram.

Women as Book Collectors.

Book collecting was only taken up by English women when they took up salmon fishing, golf and other unfeminine vanities. Woman, as a rule, finds that the circulating library serves her turn. If she buys a book, it is generally a novel. Mme. de Pompadour, among them she collects, as is believed, chiefly for the pleasure of smuggling. "Is her delight on a shiny night," or on any other occasion, to disguise the servants. "The presidential ax" regards a book as a thing to be read and generally read over the fire. Bindings are toasted brown and are in fact more dangerous to the progress of life than. A book is not the kind of bibelot for which ladies care. They are more at home with the collecting of fans or of porcelain or, not to say, of book plates or of modern vice, a new sin. Mme. de Pompadour, a woman of rare taste, really was a collector, and her library was one of serious scientific books. Her "Rabelais" not long ago was in a shop in Pall Mall. Mr. Toovey's collection in Piccadilly also boasted some rare specimens. The Rothschilds, whose castles are ruins of empires, possess many of her books.—London Saturday Review.

Proper Care of the Finger Nails.

The nail uncared for receives very little more odium in these days than the overcared for nail. It is no longer any better taste to go about with nails glowing with the red salve of the toilet table than it is to have cheeks bright with the brightness of rouge. Neither are nails any longer polished to the brilliancy of isinglass. The natural glow is maintained, but not heightened.

Manicure sets accordingly are somewhat simplified and are not bought as sets at all. Better implements are obtained by buying them separately. A pair of nail scissors, a fine polishing file, a chamois nail, an emery board for smoothing the under surface of the nail and a box of nogaline for healing the soreness caused by loosened cuticle complete the necessities.

A Real Girl Cowboy.

Gertrude Petan of Bull Creek, N. D., is a genuine female cowboy. She is only 19 years old, but she takes care of all the cattle on her father's ranch. This sometimes takes her 20 or 40 miles from home. When the cattle become mired in the mud, she must rescue them from their perilous position. This she does in true cowboy fashion by fastening a lariat to the horn of her saddle, while she keeps the other end tied to her saddle. She and the pony together then pull the poor beast out. She wears a wide brimmed felt hat, long gauntlet gloves, is provided with branding irons and rides the wildest broncho.

THREE LITTLE KITTENS.

How Their Manners Punished Them for Being Naughty.

Here is a story, children, about three little kittens whose names were Kitty, Blackeyes and Snowie. They were all about the same age, but I am sorry to say Blackeyes often led the others into mischief.

One day when their poor mother, being worn out with her morning's work, dressed them and brushed their hair and then into the field to spend the afternoon, after a warning that they were not to go near the farm attached to the house they lived, and that she would go to meet them at tea-time; they gave the promise, and skipped off very gleefully. Mamma Pussie went in and sighed a few thought of her naughty ones in having three such good little kittens.

Now the first thing they did was to go and look for birds, but as they did not find any, Snowie said, "Wouldn't it be fun to go up to the barn and look for mice?"

Snowie at this second quite frightened, for she knew that whenever they disobeyed mother, that some harm always befel them. So she remarked, "Don't you think, Kitty and Blackeyes, that if we only wait for mother, she will take us and perhaps help us?"

But Blackeyes only laughed, and as finally they all went up and began chasing mice over the dirty floors in the barn. Of course they got very badly mussed up. Mamma Pussie was very angry when she saw them. Kitty's and Snowie's pretty dresses were torn and dirty, and they had all lost their mittens. So mamma gave them all a shaking, and told they should go and find their mittens. It was very late when they returned, very much torn and dirty.

They were sent up to the nursery to wash and mend them before they were allowed to have anything to eat. The next day you see them early in the morning looking their mittens. Snowie's didn't look so clean by daylight, so she had to do her's over again. It proved a good job to them and they will be careful not to disobey their mamma again.

In Little Folks' Eyes.

How strange it would be if the pixies came down,
And set up a shop in the midst of the town;
And sold to us spectacles, through which the guise
Of all things would seem as in little folks' eyes.

In little folks' eyes, oh, what dreams will come true!
How long is a lifetime! What things one will do!
How wealthy one is with a purse of small eyes.
For pennies are dollars, in little folks' eyes.

How easy it is from all danger to flee
To a harbor of safety on somebody's knee!
How quickly soft kisses and low lullabies
Will steal away trouble, in little folks' eyes.

Such woe clouds of darkness make everywhere night;
Such woe glints of sunshine makes everything bright;
And birthdays come slowly, for time seldom flies
But crawls toward the future, in little folks' eyes.

What a great world of singers we'd have before long
If these magical glasses were sold for a song;
Oh, clowns are so funny, and sages so wise
And hearts are so honest, in little folks' eyes.

BRAVE EDITH BRILL.

She Saved a Life and Now Wears the Royal Humane Society Medal.

Edith Brill, of Woolwich, England, though only ten years old, has been decored as a heroine by the Humane Society of that country. The society's bronze medal and certificate were publicly presented to her in the town hall at Woolwich. She saved one little boy from drowning and attempted to save another, in both cases with great risk of her own life.

The little girl was playing with a number of children in Woolwich dockyard when two of the children fell into the King William Dock. A boy standing at the top of the steps overestimated himself and in leaning over lost the hook of a little boy two and a half years old, who was standing with him, and both tumbled down the steps into the water. No one was near at the time. Edith Brill ran to the edge and threw it to the water. She climbed down the steps and went up to her neck in the water and caught hold of the smaller boy. She got him out and placed him on the steps and then caught hold of the other boy's hand, but he let go and was drowned.

Queen of Hearts.

The Queen of Hearts
She made some tarts,
All on a summer's day;
The Knave of Hearts
He stole those tarts,
And with them ran away.

The King of Hearts
Called for the tarts,
And beat the Knave full sore;
The Knave of Hearts
Brought back the tarts,
And vowed he'd steal no more.

Mamma—Daughter, weren't you sitting out on the piazza last evening with Harry Sothby for three hours?

Daughter—I was out there with him, mamma, but I didn't think it was so long as that.

Mamma—Of course you didn't; but I don't want it to occur again.

Daughter—It shan't, mamma.

CHAPTER II.

Harry—Didn't your mother scold you for being out so long with me last night, dearie?

Daughter—Yes, she did, and I told her it shouldn't occur again.

Harry—Oh, darling, are you going to treat me so?

Daughter—Of course not, silly. Mamma was talking about last night. How could I sit on the piazza for "three hours last night" again? Tonight ain't last night, Harry.

Harry—Oh, you lovely thing!

A Compound Conundrum.

This "compound conundrum" business is spreading. There is a hotel man in New Hampshire named Gale. The other day one of the guests sprang the following question on the company: "Why is Mr. Gale blind?" And the answer is as follows: "A gale is a wind; a wind is a zephyr; zephyr is yarn; yarn is a tale; a tail is an attachment; an attachment is an affection; affection is love, and love is blind."—New York Tribune.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

THE RIGHTS OF EITHER UPON THE DEATH OF THE OTHER.

An Eminent Lawyer's Explanation of the Law of New Jersey on the Subject.—The Meaning of the Right of Curtesy in Law—The Widow's Option.

KEEPING posted in matters of this kind may save trouble. The New York Sun recently incorrectly stated the law of New Jersey regarding estates of dower and curtesy. The correct law may be thus briefly stated:

A WIDOW

is entitled to a life estate in one-third of all the real property which her husband has had at any time during her marriage, and which she has not voluntarily released.

On the other hand,

who survives his wife is entitled to a life estate in the whole of the real property which his wife has had at any time during her marriage, in conveyance or mortgage of which he has not joined, provided that there has been a child of the marriage, born in the natural way, and with a possibility, (from the physiological point of view), of living.

If the husband is entitled to the right of curtesy, he enjoys during his life all of the land his wife died possessed of, whereas if the wife is entitled to dower, she enjoys merely one-third of her deceased husband's land during her life. There is one advantage on the side of the widow which sometimes turns out to be of great value, namely, that, until her dower has been properly assigned to her, she may retain possession of the homestead rent free, no matter how long that time may be. If a husband makes a will leaving property to his widow which he declares to be intended in lieu of dower, she must elect in that case whether to take the dower which the law allows her or the property which the will gives her.

The term "right of curtesy," means in law the life estate which a husband has in the land of his deceased wife, created by the common law takes effect where he has had issue by her, born alive, and capable of inheriting lands.

An ownership of land is called an estate, and is divided by C) estates for years, (2) for life, or (3) in fee.

1. An estate for years is the estate of an ordinary tenant. It derives its name from the fact that it is generally created for a definite number of years. It may, however, be for one only or for a less time. It amounts only to a right to possess and enjoy, and not to an actual ownership of the land itself. Hence a life estate carved out of a fee. It is always subordinate to an estate consisting of an ownership of the land itself. An obligation to pay rent is not necessary to create such a tenancy.

2. An estate for life is one which ends with the life of the owner or of some one else.

3. An estate in fee is the highest kind of an estate in land. No estate is considered a fee unless it may continue forever. Upon the death of the owner it descends to his heirs unless in his lifetime he has disposed of it by deed or by will.

The law treats marriage as a sort of contract. It is an agreement between a single man and a single woman to live together as husband and wife from thenceforth until the one of them shall die.

Citizens of this country about to marry foreigners should see that the laws of the country of the intended husband or wife will recognize them, otherwise if after marriage the parties should go to such country to reside, they might find themselves not married.

At common law immediately upon a marriage the identity of the wife merged in that of the husband. They were regarded as one person; but the husband was vested with authority to rule the wife, her property and the children she bore him. She could make no contracts; execute no deeds, bonds or mortgages; nor sign any negotiable paper or any agreement to become surety or guarantor; had no right to her earnings nor to carry on any business; could not sue or be sued alone; nor be estopped; must reside in the home provided for her, and was not allowed to dispose of her separate property. Her personal property was, while the marriage continued, subject to the use and disposal of her husband—she taking what she left upon his death. Her real estate was subject to his right of enjoyment while she lived, and if he survived her she still held him for the debts of the marriage, during the remainder of his life. She was entitled to support, maintenance and protection from him. She might have "pin-money"; and her right of dower in his real estate, but her clothing, jewels and ornaments, designated as the wife's paraphernalia—were not exempt from the claims of his creditors.

The last fifty years have been productive of great improvement in the law relating to married women. Through all these changes the duty of the husband to aid, support and defend his wife and the right of the one to the affection, companionship and society of the other have been left undisturbed. The changes have been in the direction of enabling a married woman to contract, to make a will, to enjoy her earnings, to acquire, possess and dispose of separate property, and to sue and defend as a single female.

But the wife cannot will away her husband's right of curtesy, nor the husband the wife's right of dower.

INDIAN PEACE SMOKER.

VISITING RED MEN ENTERTAINED BY MIANTONOMO TRIBE.

The Wigwam Beautifully Decorated, Representing a Forest—A Beautiful Banner Hung Over the Sachem's Chair.

MAJORITY of the officers and members of Po Ambo Tribe, of Perth Amboy, and Rahwack Tribe, of Rahway, were royally entertained by the officers and members of Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, of this city, in their handsome wigwam, on West Front street, last evening. The wigwam was beautifully decorated, representing a forest, artistically arranged by Brothers Ensor and Vroom. Over the chair of the presiding Sachem, John H. Carney, was a pretty banner, bearing the name Miantonomo, and the words "welcome chiefs, Po Ambo—Rahwack." The banner was made of sheet metal and arranged in colors of the order—red, blue, green and orange. In fact the whole wigwam presented a gala appearance. The room was crowded to its utmost capacity, and the affair will long be remembered by those present. The adoption degree was conferred upon a "pale face" in amplified form, much to the delight of the visiting chiefs, after which a collation was tendered them in the banquet room.

When the inner man was cared for they again assembled in the wigwam and held an informal meeting.

Sachem Carney was elected to preside. The balance of the evening was devoted to singing and speech-making. It was pronounced by one and all one of the finest evenings ever spent among the Red Men.

Brothers Eli M. Odam, York and Holsbin favored with songs, while the visiting brothers of each tribe did their share and when the hour of one p. m. arrived the corset of Brother Levy of Rahwack Tribe sounded "Home, sweet Home."

PERSONAL.

Mrs. George Lyons of Bound Brook is visiting at Scotch Plains.

Mrs. M. S. Van Pelt of this city is visiting friends on Park place, Newark.

Mrs. Charles W. Hall and Mrs G. H. Leland are at Ocean Grove for a week.

Mrs. Josephine Ricketts of Somerset street is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Ott, of Brooklyn.

Mr. Bird, superintendent of the Day Nursery, has gone to Ocean Grove for two weeks.

Mr. W. L. Case has returned to Atlantic Highlands, after a short visit with friends here.

Mrs. Warren Ackerman of Scotch Plains has gone to Chicago to attend the World's Fair.

Mr. Fred. Martin and family of Sanford avenue have gone to the seashore for the Summer.

Miss Malda Blimm of Martinsville is visiting her cousin, Miss Katie Blimm, of Somerset street, for a few days.

Miss Mary Giese, Miss May Casey, Miss Mina Slade and Miss Emma Wyckoff, enleadies in Mr. Edward White's are on the sick list.

Miss Katie Ott has returned to her home in Brooklyn, after a three weeks' visit with her aunt, Mrs. Uhrhahn of Somerset street.

Mr. Charles A. Darby, brother-in-law of Mr. Vanderhoof, at White's, has removed with his family to Atlanta, Ga., for the benefit of his health.

Miss Jennie Johnson and Miss Martha Lathjo son of Rash Brook street start Tuesday for Sweden, where they will remain probably six weeks.

Miss Palmer of Washington, D. C., is a guest of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Carman, of corner Somerset street and Craig place. Miss Palmer is a niece of Mrs. Carman.

Frank A. Smith of Westfield, brother of architect Charles H. Smith of this city, died Monday. He was a young man much beloved by all who knew him. The funeral was at four p. m. Thursday.

Mr. D. N. Groendyke of Mercer avenue drove from his home to the Lake Mohonk Mountain House, Lake Mohonk, New York, where he is spending the Summer in 274 days. He says it was a very enjoyable drive.

Mayor Gilbert is said to be very expert in opening safes. There are several safes in use various offices of the city government that have locks with difficult combinations. He masters with perfect ease what even those who are accustomed to operate them often try frequently before the big doors swing. The reason is claimed to be in the mayor's delicate touch and sense of feeling.

The Weather.

On Sunday fair weather will probably prevail with fresh and possibly variable winds, mostly southerly, and on Monday high temperature and fair weather, with greater sultriness.

BREVITIES.

—To-night a song service will be held in the W. C. T. T. rooms.

—The Garwood Steel Car Wheel Company discharged all the molders and coremakers last night.

—Patrick Haynes was fined fifteen dollars by Judge Coddington, this morning, for assaulting John Heasey on July 14.

—Judgement was entered Thursday in New York for $18,315 against John D. Holly of this city in favor of the executors of the estate of Reuben Ross.

—A special meeting of the Somerville Board of Street Commissioners was held on Monday evening, when a license for one year was granted to the Somerset County Agricultural Society.

—An old farmer's horse, evidently tired, lay down in front of the Unitarian church, on Park avenue, about half-past eleven o'clock this morning. It was with difficulty that the animal was finally prevailed upon to get up and resume its journey.

—It will be well for persons exposed to great heat, indoors or outdoors, during the next two or three days to beware of prostration. Though there may be some downs as well as ups of the mercury today and to-morrow in this region, the bulk of the North western heat wave is not likely to pass away before Tuesday.

—There is at least one place in town where they never look for any dull season. Mr. Edward White says he believes in doing business all the year round and offering inducements every day in the year. For the coming week, he says, there will be a special lot of ladies' muslin underwear bought of a manufacturer that wanted the cash and sold his stock at a sacrifice to get it. See his advertisement.

New Election Districts In Somerset County.

BALLOTTING in Somerset county will hereafter be made in accordance with the law passed last Winter, and introduced by Senator Keys. This law provides that any district may be divided when the vote polled exceeds 600. This happened last Fall in the First, Second and Third districts of Bridgewater, and these districts have, consequently, been divided. There will, hereafter, be six instead of four polling places. There will be two Second districts, one at Bound Brook, one at Martinville, and probably two at Raritan.

Scotch Plains Scrarchings.

John F. Collins is enjoying his annual vacation.

Miss Victory and Miss Sheridan of Brooklyn are at Hozinger's for a few weeks.

Mr. Bushnell and family of New York are at Day's for the Summer.

Mr. Collins' new barn is about completed. When done it will be one of the finest in the village.

The wiring for the electric lights is progressing slowly.

The boys are talking of organizing a ball team. Neighboring towns had better beware if they do.

Mrs. West has improved the look of her house very much by a coat of paint.

The boys think of starting a bicycle club. REPORTER.

'Twill be Fine Inside.

The old Crescent League club house, on East Second street, which has been leased by the Plainfield Board of Trade, is to be put in fine condition inside. The walls are to be papered and the woodwork brightened up. When this is done the building will be as fine inside as there is in the State for Board of Trade purposes.

That the work will be well done is already assured when it is known that Marsh, Ayers & Co. have the contract.

A Runaway Averted.

BURNED BY HOT IRON.

JAMES SIMINGTON BADLY INJURED AT THE POND TOOL WORKS.

A Ladle of Molten Iron Upset, and a Portion of the Contents Fell on His Legs and Feet.

Mr. James Simington, an employe of the Pond Machine Tool Works, was horribly burned, yesterday afternoon, at about four o'clock. Mr. Simington is a moulder and while engaged in pouring an eight-ton ladle of iron the accident occurred. In trying to get out of the way he stumbled and fell, and while in this position the iron ran over his feet, and going through his shoes as though they were paper instead of leather. It also spattered over his body and set fire to his clothing. If it hadn't been for the prompt and brave action of a fellow workman Mr. Simington would have been burned to a crisp. The rescuer was also burned, but not seriously.

Mr. Simington was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital where his wounds were dressed. The doctor says his burns are not fatal, but it will be some time before he will be able to walk.

CORRESPONDENCE.

MORE ABOUT THAT SEWERAGE NUISANCE.

A Remedy Suggested by a Correspondent who Owns Property Affected by the Law.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—Judging from what has appeared in newspapers of this city, the property owners on North avenue are confronted with a perplexing question as to sewerage. If all connection with the sewer must be shut off under the penalty of "the said persons imprisonment" by the 1st of August it is time something should be done. To shut off the buildings from the sewer is impracticable. If done it would entail serious depreciation of values, and the property owners would try to fix the responsibility where it belongs for such loss. This is a serious question, not for the property owners only, but for the Common Council, which will not meet before August 7th.—one week after the listed date.

Is there no remedy? In the judgment of the writer there is. There is a section of unused territory between the T. M. C. A.'s new building and the brook. Let a number of overflowing pools (a committee could determine the number) be excavated on this ground, deep and capacious, and properly connected with each other, and divert the present overflow from the brook into them, and the thing is done.

There are two considerations that strongly recommend this remedy for action.

First—It is simple. It is like an axiom, a statement cannot make it plainer. Secondly—It is inexpensive. The special tax of $15 per annum, now paid the City by each property owner, would cover all, or nearly all, expenses in making and maintaining the reservoirs. This will answer until a system of sewerage be adopted. The writer has no knowledge as to the way this special tax is applied, but if appropriated in the manner indicated everybody would know all about it.

Thus the problem is solved. As the change could not be effected by the 1st of August, a compromise could doubtless be arranged with the justly aggrieved health authorities pending the change; and they would let us see how magnanimous they can be. The Common Council could have its vacation still; and the poor property owners could rest free from the apprehension of fine, and perhaps imprisonment.

ONE OF THE UNFORTUNATES IMPORTUNATE.

The Tramp Nuisance at Westfield.

The tramp nuisance has become so great at Westfield that the authorities have decided that measures must be taken to protect the people from their importunities for food and petty pilfering. Fenwood Township has posted a proclamation that receives them at once that township. As many as twenty a day have been seen to jump off the east trains passing through town. About the middle of the afternoon they meet along the railroad, divide up what they have begged or stolen, each a train and depart, to repeat the performance the next day. Orders have been issued to the constables to arrest all who cannot give a satisfactory account of themselves.

Altar Flowers.

Sweet fragrance from those altar flowers,
Bedewed, meek lilies, white and fair,
Enwound, dear ferns and feathery grasses,
God bless the hand that placed them there.

From urns of gold, the censers fume—
Incense is born on the perfumed air;
But censers burn no flame of love,
There is no altar fire burning there.

An attendant at the First Presbyterian church writes his appreciation of altar flowers in the above lines.

—Boiling water not only kills cholera germs but is also said to be effective in destroying the germs of consumption. The time seems to be coming when all water used for drinking purposes in cities will be boiled. That pro bably destroys all disease germs.—State Gazette.

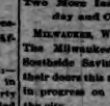
AMONG THE WHEELMEN.

Meeting of the Union County Executive Committee.



WHEELING enthusiasts of Union county gathered at Elizabeth, Thursday night, to attend the meeting of the Executive Committee in charge of the Union county championship bicycle races for the Journal trophy. Six clubs were represented: Elizabeth Athletic Cyclers, by Capt. H. L. Saltonstall; Elizabeth Wheelmen, by F. C. Gilbert; Elizabeth Field Club, by C. F. Morrell; Cyclers of Elizabeth, by Otto Schwenke; the Union County Roadsters, by Capt. A. B. Chamberlain, and the Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers, by W. J. Kiely.

In the absence of Chairman Calhoun, Mr. Morrell was chosen temporary chairman and Mr. Kiely temporary secretary.

The officials of the race were selected as follows:

Referee, J. S. Holmes, Jr.; timekeepers, J. C. Womrath, T. L. Criswell, L. B. Bonnett, W. A. Riddell and W. F. Carpenter; starter, Fred. Keen of Rahway; clerk of the course, F. L. C. Martin, of Plainfield; grand marshal, R. F. Calhoun, of Elizabeth; judges, H. G. Wood, H. Chamberlain, U. C. R.; Carl Von Lengerke and W. V. Belknap, Manhattan Wheelmen; Fred. Hawley, K. C. W., D. Z. King, Tourist C. C., of Paterson and W. H. Sinnfer, Asbury Park Wheelmen.

The clerk of the course was empowered to appoint three judges or clockers to act at the turn, also to appoint and place along the route twenty-five umpires from non competing clubs.

The riders will be scored on their arms as they did last year, and the race will be started at five o'clock.

At the Asbury Park races yesterday, Nathan B. Tilesworth, of the Oceanola Wheelmen, finished second and third in the three minute class, one-mile race.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Making a Wheel Up Hill.

Now that several ingenious individuals have invented a device for enabling bicyclists to climb a hill upon their machines the wonder is that it was not done long ago. The thing seems very simple after all—so simple that two or three persons have actually hit upon the idea about the same time. One young man in New York sent his models to Washington lately expecting to secure a patent. He was informed that only a month before a different person, entirely unknown to him, had applied for a patent on precisely the same invention. The idea was in the air apparently, for there could have been no possible chance of one of the young men getting it from the other. Perhaps the same thing happens oftener than inventors imagine, and lawsuits for patent infringements are fought to the bitter end sometimes when neither inventor stole the other's idea, but it struck both brains about the same time.

In mechanical parlance the hill climbing device consists of a rag wheel or sprocket wheel and chain. The wheel has teeth which fit into links upon a driving chain. The sprocket wheel is attached to the diamond frame of the bicycle. The driving chain with the link sockets passes over it and back around the axle of the rear bicycle wheel. Motion is communicated from the sprocket wheel to the rear wheel of the bicycle by the driving chain, and thus the machine is pedaled up hill. On level ground the chain is thrown off. The device can only be used on the safety bicycle. The drawback to its best working is the mud and dust that invariably are thrown upon this part of a bicycle.

Boat Armor Plate.

Indian Head is a point on the Maryland shore of the Potomac river 20 miles below Washington. It is there that, in the past four years, the fact has been demonstrated that the best armor plate for naval vessels is made in the United States, and not only that, but it is also made most cheaply. The best armor plate is now made of mixed nickel and steel, tempered by the Harvey process. In France the cost of nickeling the armor plate is $140 a ton. In the United States it is $11.20 a ton.

Indian Head has witnessed some of most remarkable armor plate and projectile tests in the world. At the first great armor test plates from England and France were sent to compete with those made in the United States. The United States armor came out victorious. Then two years ago there was another test—that time to decide whether the Harveyized nickel steel was better than steel made by any other process. The result was a victory for the Harvey method. The last trial, recently completed, was to compare the work of different American manufacturers of armor plate. Once more the verdict is that our armor plate is the best. Two specimens of plate were subjected to the force of tremendous shots, one a 12 inch plate, the other 17 inch. They were perforated by shot having a projectile force enough to move 21,600 tons of matter one foot.

English and French experts witnessed the trial and were especially surprised to find the temper of the metal so perfect that the perforations made a clean, round hole, without crack or fissure.

The people of Massachusetts have become so light minded and frivolous that they celebrate the annual Fast day in altogether too giddy a style, and those who remember the ancient traditions are shocked. Feasting on Fast day has become such a scandal in old fashioned Massachusetts' eyes that a strong remonstration has been frequently made to have the day done away with altogether. Even Governor Russell is in favor of abolishing it and made such a recommendation on the occasion of his third inaugural address. Those who favor the abolishment of Fast day believe in the observance of Good Friday instead. But the adoption of this solemn Catholic holy day in Massachusetts would be enough to wake the old colonists from the dead.

Seeing that a tornado is about the most powerful force known, it is rather odd that the aid of blasts of air has not been invoked long ago for mechanical work to a much greater extent than has been done. At a colliery in Jerumyn, Pa., a tremendous air blast is used for removing the waste and culm from the mouth of a coal mine. The refuse is discharged from the mouth of the mine into a hopper connected with a feed pipe. A current of air hurls the rubbish through the pipe and out beyond its mouth to a distance of 150 feet. The cost of the men, mules and carts thus dispensed with constitutes a pretty item of income.

Just so! The Philadelphia Ledger says: "One conductor in Missouri has exhibited the grit that is in him by wresting a winchester from a desperado who attempted to hold up his train, and after clubbing the scoundrel into submission with the weapon taking him off to prison on the train he expected to rob. A few more exhibitions of such pluck and train robbing would be at a discount."

The move gold is hoarded the higher its price will go.

SIAM IS IN A BAD FIX.

Willing to Pay Exorbitant Sums, but Not to Cede Lands.

ENGLAND WILL NOT INTERFERE.

If the Demands Are Not Acceded to Today the French Gunboats Will Proceed to Blockage Bangkok and Perhaps Bombard the City.

BANGKOK, July 22.—M. Pavie, French minister resident, handed France's ultimatum to Prince Devawongse, Siamese minister of foreign affairs, on Friday. At the same time he informed the Siamese government that in case France's demands should be refused, he would at once leave Bangkok to board the steamer Forfait. The blockade of the Siamese coast, he added, would be declared at once.

The opinion is general here that Siam will offer to pay the full the indemnity demanded by France. It is doubtful, however, that the French claims to territory will be allowed. Much depends on the response of Great Britain to the efforts that Siam is making to gain her moral or material support.

England Will Not Interfere.

LONDON, July 22.—Important communications have passed between the foreign office and Captain H. M. Jones, British minister resident in Bangkok. Vice Admiral Fremantle, commander-in-chief of the Chinese division of the fleet, is hastening to the scene of disputes. Other ships of the admiralty await him. The greater part of the squadron under his command accompanies him.

Great Britain has informed Siam that she could not recognize any obligation to assist her. It is evident, therefore, that the Siamese government must patch up as best it can most of its differences with France.

In the territorial arrangements, however, Great Britain will have a voice. The exact nature of her demands cannot be ascertained before France shall specify more particularly than she has specified in her ultimatum the boundaries of the territory to be brought under French control. The ultimatum is notably indefinite as regards this point. France has given Siam a month in which to withdraw from the ports on the Gulf of Siam. Siam manifests all willingness to pay France the indemnity demanded for injuries to French citizens and property, although the indemnity specified by France is far in excess of the damages.

France's Big Demand.

LONDON, July 22.—The Bangkok correspondent of The Times says concerning the terms of France's ultimatum: "Europe, and especially Great Britain, should know that this territorial demand represents 95,000 square miles. It includes the provinces that Burmah ceded to Siam on the condition that the latter should be ceded to any other power and 50,000 miles of northeastern Siam, into which the French have advanced.

The Bangkok correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: "The concession of the French demands today is probable, although a spirit of bravado is also evident counsels defiance. The French gunboats are making special preparations for the event of a refusal.

"The British minister has warned British subjects, in view of the critical situation, that the Siamese navy will be unable to afford any protection and will unchained by be captured in the event of fighting. The landing of foreign troops is regarded as probable. The acting governor of the district near Lieng Prabang is acting in the French interests.

"The indemnity demanded amply represents France's previous claims, and should satisfy the most grasping government. In fact, France demands the dismemberment and ruin of Siam, and if these be denied will make war upon and blockade the country with which her trade in 1892 amounted to £8,000, while the British trade, all carried in British bottoms, reached a value of £2,000,000, in which the British subjects number 15,000, while the French subjects number but 250. These French demands confirm what I stated at the outset, namely, France's attack on Siam is in reality directed against England, although that country has hitherto been loyal and friendly to her Siamese affairs."

French Newspapers Approve.

PARIS, July 22.—The belligerent attitude of the French gunboats anchored before Bangkok is generally approved by the Paris editors on the ground that the present conduct of the Siamese has warned them to be on their guard against a sudden attack from the palace." It is hoped, however, that the necessity for such threatening performances will soon disappear, as the long continuance of them might lead to regrettable incidents.

Rear Admiral Humann, the newspapers say, will recall the gunboats outside the bar in case the ultimatum be rejected, as the river at Bangkok is too shallow to allow the Forfait and Triomphante to enter. The French commanders fear that the Siamese will delay and inspect the gunboats which have been called in Siamese waters from the Cochin-China station. The exact amount of the indemnity demanded by France from Siam is not known. It is said that the original demand of 3,000,000 francs has been abated to 2,500,000 francs or less.

The report to the effect that Baron Mohrenheim, the Russian ambassador to France, had assured the French government that Russia would support France on every point in dispute between herself and Siam, and that Russian warships were on their way to the Gulf of Siam to uphold France and protect French citizens is pronounced by Baron de Kouff, an attache of the Russian embassy, as without foundation.

Would Not Cause Firing.

SAIGON, July 22.—The Siamese chief, Prispitcha, commanding at Khong, sent a flag of truce on Tuesday to the French captain, begging him to cease firing, according to Prispitcha's advices from Bankok. A French admiral had arrived there to treat for peace.

The captain replied that he was without instructions but would cease as soon the Siamese forts should be abandoned. The result is unknown here.

Re-bombarding the Garrisons.

PARIS, July 22.—A dispatch from Saigon to The Times says that 250 men under the command of a colonel have been sent to re-enforce the French garrison on the island of Khong, in the Mekong river.

French Legion Hastes to Siam.

ALGIERS, July 22.—Five hundred of the Foreign Legion on the French army have sailed from Oran for Marseilles, whence they will be conveyed to Siam.

DETERMINED TO KILL.

A Murderer Pursued First After Their Late His Victims and Then Killed Himself.

METROPOLIS, Ills., July 22.—Richard Shoemaker killed Richard Lukens, Jr., and George Lukens, seriously wounded their father, Richard, and then committed suicide by sending a bullet into his own body. All the parties were men of high social standing in this county and well known throughout southern Illinois and in Kentucky.

Richard Lukens, Jr., married Shoemaker's stepdaughter, Miss Lillian Jones, some three years ago. Shoemaker was Miss Jones' guardian, and upon her marriage he was called on for an accounting. Seemingly he had run through with a large sum left her by her father. Suits were brought in the courts and a bitter feeling resulted. Becoming a plaque in Mrs. Lukens' possession was said by Shoemaker, and on its removal hot words were exchanged.

Last night Shoemaker, armed with two large revolvers, went up to Richard Lukens, Jr.'s, gate, and finding the two young men standing in the yard opened fire, shooting George in the right temple and then sending a bullet through Richard's heart as he was holding his babe in his arms.

Shoemaker then entered the yard and fired shot after shot into the quivering bodies. Richard Lukens, Sr., hearing the firing ran to the scene of the trouble only to be met by the murderer, who opened fire on him, shooting him in the thigh.

By this time a crowd was gathering and Shoemaker ran a couple of squares and then sitting down sent a bullet into his abdomen and was dead in a few moments. Shoemaker was about 40 years of age and leaves a wife and two children. The Lukens boys were aged about 28 and 30. Both had wives and each one child. Shoemaker had been preparing himself all day and had covered a bag of cartridges to a friend, asking in a nonchalant manner if they would kill a man.

SAVED BY THE KING.

Portugal's Ruler Overpowered an Assassin and Then Pursued Him.

LISBON, July 22.—While driving from the Cintra railway station to the Pena palace on Thursday evening King Carlos was a powerful man trying to kill a young man whom he had thrown to the ground. The king was alone with his aid de camp. He jumped from the carriage and seized the arm of the large man, at the same time calling to the young man on the ground to make his escape.

The aid de camp ran to the king's assistance when he saw there was danger of a fight. The big man knocked down the aid and turned back on the king, who dealt him a hard blow on the head with a walking stick. The ruffian tried to draw a knife and revolver, but he was overpowered by the king, who delivered him 10 minutes later to the police.

The fight took place on a lonely road almost unobserved at the late hour when the king and his aid were riding over it. The king was uninjured. His aid de camp was badly bruised.

Two Young Women Drowned.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Miss Elizabeth Walters, 16 years old, of 1746 Madison avenue, and Miss Mabel W. Hallett, 19 years old, of 1142 Park avenue, were drowned in the surf at Rockville Center, L. I. The two young ladies, with Miss Hallett's mother, went in bathing. Mrs. Hallett was seized with a cramp, and her daughter was drowned in attempting to rescue her. Miss Walters became excited when she saw her friends sinking and was carried out into the deep undertow. Mrs. Hallett was saved by two boys.

An Office Seeker, Not a Reformer.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Mr. Thatcher of Colorado, who is reported by Denver telegrams to have furnished President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle with a complete history of silver politics, including free coinage of silver and the retirement of the one and two dollar paper currency of the United States, is only recalled here as an applicant for office, who had a brief interview some weeks ago with Secretary Carlisle on the subject of his office seeking aspirations, but on no other topics.

Wanted to Mob Well.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Harry G. Well, a recent trader, created quite a little row on the floor of the Stock Exchange just before the closing hour by making an attack on the New York Mobile Kepler of Keppler & Co. seized Well by the nape of the neck and tried to thrash him, while a big crowd of yelling brokers danced around the two and made a rush for Well upon mobbing Well, who finally escaped.

Fireworks Spectacle Burned In Earnest.

CONEY ISLAND, N.Y., July 22.—The grand stand at Paine's fireworks, West Brighton, where the spectacle of "The Burning of Moscow" was to be presented this evening, which this season, was entirely destroyed by fire. The burned space covers about half an acre. It almost adjoins the big Sea Beach Palace, and is in the center of West Brighton.

Miners Flocking Out of Colorado.

OMAHA, July 22.—The first of the miners from Colorado, who were forced to seek employment elsewhere, arrived in this city on a freight train. They say thousands more will follow them. They are scattering for the harvest fields and the iron mines of the north and for Chicago.

Street Commissioner Resigns.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The resignation of Thomas Brennan as street commissioner was accepted by Mayor Gilroy, who immediately announced the appointment of W. S. Andrews as commissioner for the unexpired term, nearly five years.

Justice Long's Pension Suspended.

DETROIT, July 22.—The most sensational thing that has yet come to light relative to the so called purging of the pension list is the suspension of a no less distinguished man than Justice Charles Donn Long of the Michigan supreme court.

Indicted the Prosecuting Attorney.

HUNTINGDON, W. Va., July 22.—Prosecuting Attorney George J. McComas, who was been attempting to put a stop to gambling in this city, was indicted for being a party in a poker game a short time ago.

Dynamite Is a Steady Exploder.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 22.—By an explosion of dynamite in a shanty Gus Olsen lost his life and much damage was done in the way of broken glass and shattered windows.

Governor Flower at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, July 22.—Governor and Mrs. Flower and Mrs. Schley are here and have cottage 11 at the United States hotel.

Buffalo a Bad Place For Babies.

BUFFALO, July 22.—Cholera infantum is still raging in Buffalo. During the last three days 52 deaths have occurred.

KANSAS STRIKERS UGLY.

The Situation Threatening and More Fighting Expected.

FEDERAL PROTECTION ASKED FOR.

United States Marshals by the Score Being Sworn In, Armed and Gathered About the Fire.—Women Guarding the Front Rank of the Mob.—State Troops Withheld.

WELL CITY, Kas., July 22.—No violent outbreak has occurred yet, but it is looked for some time today. A large meeting was held in Baker's hall, at which Noah Allen, ex-attorney general (Populist), was present and addressed the strikers at some length, deprecating violence.

Another large assembly of the strikers was held in the old cooper building. None of the strip pits are working, but some of Clements' men went back to their pit and got the remains of their property left there.

A crowd gathered and started to shafts No. 6 and 19 with the intention of driving out the men guarding them properties. After hanging around the mines for some time the crowd gradually dispersed. The mob of strikers consisted chiefly of French and Belgians, women as well as men. The men at the shafts were well armed and determined and a conflict there would have been a bloody one.

Women Packed to the Front.

Sheriff Arnold was on the scene and assisted in dispersing the mob. The women are being constantly stirred up by the men to take the leading part in violence on the supposition that they will not be fired on. The sheriff has agreed to place a large force of deputies to guard the Kansas and Texas shafts. The feeling among the strikers is very bitter, but although they are repeating their threats to burn the residence of Senator Kansas Texas superintendent and also the office of The Tribune, they have done nothing of the sort yet.

It is reported that Walters and other leaders of the strikers will be here to take personal control of the strike. Trouble is anticipated.

PITTSBURG, Kas., July 21.—The miners and strip pit men held a meeting in this city, which was addressed by President Walters of the Miners' association. It was decided to call a delegate convention in Pittsburg, to be held next week in Pittsburg next Monday, to decide whether or not they will come out with the shaft strikers.

Appeal to Federal Courts.

TOPEKA, July 22.—The openly expressed sympathy of the state administration for the striking coal miners and the fear that it will incite the strikers to lawless acts, which will result in great damage to the mines, has induced the mine operators to appeal to the federal authorities for protection.

It is proposed to apply to the United States courts for an injunction restraining every striker from interfering with the property of the mine owners or from interfering in any way with men who are at work in the mines. All of the federal judges having jurisdiction in Kansas are out of the state—some in Colorado and some in Chicago. The necessary papers have been prepared and dispatched in charge of an attorney to Denver, where Judge Hinor is holding court.

The object of these proceedings is to place the state district in charge of United States marshals instead of running the risk of entrusting it to state officers in case of any emergency.

The situation in the mining district is becoming serious and a bloody conflict between strikers and operators is imminent. The major general of the Kansas national guards has been sent to Pittsburg to be in readiness to take command of the militia company in case their services should be required.

Guarding the Stockades.

PITTSBURG, Kas., July 22.—The excitement which prevailed here on account of riot has greatly subsided. The men in Lane's pit are still at work, but they expect more trouble. The most serious trouble is anticipated when the stockades are completed and an effort is made to put men at work.

A special train left here loaded with deputies and winchesters for Well City. The building of the stockade here continues. The enclosure inside the fence is now on posts and sentinels patrol the vicinity. A crowd of miners armed with guns marched up and down before the stockade at 1 o'clock, occasionally firing a volley into the air. Attorney Allen of Topeka is here to defend Walters, Lacy and others of the strikers who have been arrested.

No Troops Sent Yet.

TOPEKA, July 22.—Governor Lewelling denies that he has ordered troops to the scene of the miners' trouble and said that he had no request for state aid. What he may do should he receive such a request he refuses to say. Adjutant General Artz said that letters written after Thursday's trouble informs him that the outbreak is not approved by the great majority of the miners, and that it is not likely that there will be further trouble.

Fire Refugees Seek Shelter.

ASHLAND, Wis., July 22.—A large number of refugees from the fire at Ewen, Mich., have arrived here for shelter. The city constabulary and superintendent of poor are looking after them. Many are destitute and are provided for. Many have gone to Iron River, Mich., and other points. Many have gone to Iron River, Mich., and other points. Street Commissioner Resigns.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The resignation of Thomas Brennan as street commissioner was accepted by Mayor Gilroy, who immediately announced the appointment of W. S. Andrews as commissioner for the unexpired term, nearly five years.

Justice Long's Pension Suspended.

DETROIT, July 22.—The most sensational thing that has yet come to light relative to the so called purging of the pension list is the suspension of a no less distinguished man than Justice Charles Donn Long of the Michigan supreme court.

Indicted the Prosecuting Attorney.

HUNTINGDON, W. Va., July 22.—Prosecuting Attorney George J. McComas, who was been attempting to put a stop to gambling in this city, was indicted for being a party in a poker game a short time ago.

Dynamite Is a Steady Exploder.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 22.—By an explosion of dynamite in a shanty Gus Olsen lost his life and much damage was done in the way of broken glass and shattered windows.

THE FIREMEN'S OPPORTUNITY.

The Programme of "The News" World's Fair Trip.

The firemen who has received the highest number of votes on August 30, at 6th hour yet to be fixed, will be entitled to the following privileges, as the winner of The Evening News' World's Fair prize:

First—A first-class railroad ticket from New York to Chicago and return on any railroad desired.

Second—Good accommodations, room and board (not more than two in a room) in a transit or family hotel, select boarding or private house in the city of Chicago for consecutive days, during the Fair.

Third—Transportation for baggage from depot to house assigned.

Fourth—Six admissions to the World's Columbian Exposition.

Fifth—Admission to "Spectatorium," the Celebration of the Great Discovery, the Dramatic Triumph of the Epoch. Orchestra, 120 pieces. Chorus, 600 voices.

Sixth—A round trip pleasure excursion on Lake Michigan, a visit to Lincoln Park (the finest in America), to the Lincoln and Grant Monuments, Conservatory and Zoological Gardens.

Seventh—Admission to "Spiral Tower," "Gliding Railway," "Street in Cairo," "Street in Constantinople," "Chinese Village," and "Many Villages."

Eighth—Admission to "Moorish Palace," containing over 100 figures, a Palm Garden, the original Guillotine of the French Revolution and many Oriental curiosities.

Ninth—Admission to the famous Arctic whaling ship "Progress," built in 1881, fully equipped, containing the finest collection of marine curiosities ever exhibited.

The privileges are obtained and the trip is arranged purely under the auspices of the World's Columbian Tourist Company, a reputable and solid corporation composed of well known New York business, railroad officials and business men, whose advertisement will be found in another column. We have every guarantee that all the advantages named above will be carried out to the letter.

MEYER ADVISED SUICIDE

Wrote to His Wife and Told Her to Kill Herself.

HE SAID HE WOULD DO THE SAME.

Keller, It Is Said, Will Probably Turn State's Evidence—A Story From Detroit About One of the Prisoner's Schemes Which Was Dangerous, but Paid Well.

NEW YORK, July 22.—District Attorney Nicoll has in his possession a letter, written by Dr. Henry C. F. Meyer, wholesale poisoner, to his wife, advising her to commit suicide. In the letter Meyer promised to commit suicide also. It is believed that Meyer wished to induce his wife to commit suicide so that there would be no possibility of her turning state's evidence against him. The letter will be used at the trial.

Meyer was greatly disturbed when he heard that Carl Muller, alias Jacob Wimmers, and his wife Mary had been brought to this city under instructions from the district attorney. Meyer had not expected that the authorities would get hold of Wimmers, who, it is said, was his accomplice in causing the death of Louis Brandt in this city March 30, 1892.

That Muller will turn state's evidence and testify against Meyer there is thought to be little doubt. Muller is in the house of detention, the keepers of which have strict instructions not to permit anybody to talk with him.

Mrs. Muller, who as Mary Notes was employed as a servant by Dr. and Mrs. Meyer last year, is in a quiet part of the city, where she is known under an assumed name. She, too, will tell all she knows when the proper time comes.

Dr. Meyer has hard luck about securing counsel. Several lawyers would take up the case even without hope of pay, but Dr. Meyer prefers Brooke & Brooke, with whom Dr. O'Sullivan is connected. Mr. Brooke said that he had not decided whether his firm would defend Meyer.

Meyer Had a Scheme.

DETROIT, July 22.—Phillip Weller, a shoemaker, who lives in Gifford street nearly opposite the house in which Dr. Meyer lived, says that Dr. Meyer talked to him frequently. One day Meyer said:

"If I could find a man with $1,000, I could make a fortune for him and myself. I could make a powder which would sell among housekeepers for giving color to cakes. It is a trifle dangerous to handle, but is all right when used in moderation."

At another time while in the shop Meyer said abruptly:

"Weller, I think you are foolish to sit here day after day working for what little money you get. You are an intelligent man and ought to put your knowledge of German to better use."

When Weller replied that there was nothing but cobbling for him in this world, Meyer said:

"Oh, yes, there is. Now, I know a scheme where a friend of mine made sacks of money. He was a doctor and understood chemistry well. He and a friend went into the business of defrauding insurance companies. You know it is no time to swindle an insurance company. They are swindling the people all the time.

"The doctor's friend was just such a friend as you, a hard workingman, but well educated in German. These two would induce a man who had no friends to get his life insured for their benefit and very soon the man would take sick and die. The doctor knew the kind of man to pick out, you see, and could tell whether or not he would live long."

This last sentence rather threw Weller off the track, and he conversed freely, but he now says he could not see what the doctor was driving at till he read of his arrest.

A Terrible Mine Accident.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 22.—An awful explosion took place in No. 4 shaft of the Kingston Coal company at Edwardsville. A gang of men were at work driving a slope when a naked lamp came in contact with a large body of gas. The injured are as follows and are not expected to recover:

William Jones, miner, aged 48 years, widower, with two children: removed to hospital.

Benjamin Wilson, miner, aged 40; six children.

The Shot Proved Fatal.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 22.—David T. Newlin, a retired merchant of Philadelphia, who was accidently shot Thursday afternoon by his son, Joseph D. Newlin, a prominent hardware merchant of this place, died here. He had been unconscious most of the time since he made an antemortem statement to Coroner Van Dyke of Long Branch.

Four Firemen Overcome.

BROOKLYN, July 22.—Fire broke out in the four story building owned and occupied by John Stevenson at 401 Manhattan avenue as a furniture warehouse. Two of the upper floors were gutted. It is estimated that the loss will reach $30,000. Four firemen were overcome by smoke and were carried from the building to hospital amoungst them.

KILLED A STRANGER.

A Queer Story of Death and Confession From Norwich.

NORWICH, Conn., July 22.—Ransselaer Shotes, Jr., who resides with his parents in Preston, about three miles southeast of this city, came to town this afternoon, and going to police headquarters told Policeman John Irish that he had killed a man and wanted to surrender himself. He said he was talking with two girls, when the stranger came up and inquired where he could get a drink of water. He was told there was a spring in the lot.

He had some words of an insulting nature with Shotes, and he knocked him down. The man got upand went to a tree some way off and sat down. Later two boys who were passing saw him lying there dead. Policeman Irish said the Norwich force had no jurisdiction, and Shotes left.

The body lies in the deadhouse of Henry Allen & Sons of this city, and an autopsy is being had. The dead man is about 35 years old, and has not yet been identified. Shotes is between 30 and 30 years old and is a farmer.

Shotes was arrested later on Laura Hill and taken to police headquarters and locked in a cell for the night. Shotes told Sheriff Rogers that he had never before met the man whom he killed and did not know his name.

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

Notice is hereby given that the firm heretofore existing between Edward N. Northup and Edward J. Connolly, of No. 24 Watchung avenue, in the City of Plainfield, County of Union, and State of New Jersey, under the firm name and style of Northup & Connolly, was dissolved on the seventeenth day of July, eighteen hundred and ninety-three, by mutual consent. All debts owing to the said late firm are to be received by the said Edward J. Connolly, and all demands on the said partnership are to be presented to him for payment.

Dated July 17, 1893. EDWARD N. NORTHUP,
7 18 5 EDWARD J. CONNOLLY.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

Between Wm. Charles Wolfe, Glen Wolfe, Mary A. Wolfe and William Bond, complainants, and Thomas H. Lee and others, defendants.

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the 15th day of July, 1893, in a cause wherein Carrie V. Lee, wife of Thomas H. Lee, is complainant, and the above named Thomas H. Lee and others are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainant, on or before the first day of September next, or in default thereof the said bill will be taken as confessed against you. Said bill is filed to have certain lands situate in the City of Plainfield and County of Union, and State of New Jersey, sold, and that from the proceeds of the sale of said tract of land specifically devised by the last will and testament of said late father-in-law, Thomas H. Lee to his son-in-law, Thomas H. Lee, and the balance of the proceeds of the said James R. Lee to Carrie V. Lee, the present owner of said late estate, and for general relief in the premises, as by the said bill of complaint will more fully appear. Said bill is filed in behalf of the said complainant, Carrie V. Lee, and that from the remainder of the proceeds of sale he may be ordered to invest a sum equal to the value of said forty-five acre tract, and pay the income thereof to the said defendant, Thomas H. Lee, during the term of his natural life, and from and after the death of said Thomas H. Lee the principal sum so invested to be paid over to the children of said Thomas H. Lee, the present owner of said late estate, and for general relief in the premises, as by the said bill of complaint will more fully appear. Said bill is filed in behalf of the said complainant, Carrie V. Lee, that from the remainder of the proceeds of sale he may be ordered to invest a sum equal to the value of said forty-five acre tract, and pay the income thereof to the said defendant, Thomas H. Lee, during the term of his natural life, and from and after the death of said Thomas H. Lee the principal sum so invested to be paid over to the children of said Thomas H. Lee, the present owner of said late estate, and for general relief in the premises, as by the said bill of complaint will more fully appear.

ARCTIC APPLIANCES.

Ingenious Cooking Apparatus Devised For Dr. Nansen's Expedition.

The remarkably uncomplicated yet exceedingly compact oil cooking range here illustrated is a prominent feature in Dr. Nansen's outfit for his polar voyages. When it is remembered that the latter will start on a journey of two years and that the range in question will be during that period practically the only means of cooking for the entire party, it is evident that the appliance should bear perfect of its kind as ingenuity and good workmanship can make it.

Solidly built in stout copper, with asbestos linings where necessary, the range is so constructed as to enable the processes of roasting, baking, boiling and frying to go on simultaneously, and although occupying considerably less than a square yard of room will cook sufficient substantial food for 25 persons. Dr. Nansen's party consists of himself and 12 men.

The heat necessary for the cooking is produced by a compact oil lamp so contrived as to be of immense power and inserted in the range under such ingenious structural conditions that the fumes of the oil can under no circumstances touch the food which is being prepared. Stoves similar to those used in the range will be employed for heating the ship.

When Water Wheels Run Fastest.

A German contemporary has opened its columns to the question, "Do water wheels run faster at night than in the day?" which is answered in the affirmative by the majority of correspondents. The reason for this alleged phenomenon put forward by one correspondent is the greater density of water after the sun has set. With an increasing temperature there is an expansion of the particles of which the water consists, and this, while diminishing their density, lessens the weight and driving force of the stream. So at least this writer argues, and he alleges in support of his theory the fact that at noon on a sunny day or during the ochone of a warm afternoon weirs will require more frequent opening than in the morning or after nightfall, although the amount of work may be identical. In winter, too, he holds, the weirs will claim less attention than in summer.

Perpetual Motion at Last.

A German clockmaker of Ontario has, it is said, just finished the construction of a machine which runs itself and produces power to run other machinery without expense. The inventor has been studying the subject for the past 18 years and says he has at last accomplished the great aim of his life.

According to The Jewelers' Circular, from which the foregoing is learned, no description of the machine can be given, as the owner allows no one to view it. The inventor says the principle upon which it is founded are the clock, scale and lever power. He uses no ropes, chains, springs, straps, skeleton, bars, etc., but has a very plain looking machine, which can be made cheap, durable and produce an unlimited power and "continue running for ages."

Air Frozen Into a Clear Solid.

"Professor Dewar, whose experiments upon the liquefaction of air have already been described, has now succeeded in freezing it into a transparent solid. Air, as is well known, is a mixture of oxygen and nitrogen gases, and although pure nitrogen is easily frozen oxygen by itself has hitherto refused to solidify. The exact constitution of this solid air is therefore in doubt, and although it may and probably does contain both gases in a solid condition is possible that it may only be a jelly of solid nitrogen containing liquid oxygen, much as calf's foot jelly contains water diffused in solid gelatin," explains Popular Science News, from which we quote.

A Novel Contrivance.

A novel contrivance to restrain runaway and pulling horses has recently been patented. The inventors claim that when in operation it will bring to an immediate standstill the most powerful and refractory horse. The European editor of The Herald gives this discription of it: It is fixed under the box seat, the buckled end of the reins being passed through an aperture for the purpose, and the driver while guiding the animal with his left hand can with his right, if need be, instantly raise "the ready," as the machine is called, and by putting a revolving process in motion tighten the reins to any extent required.

Earthquakes Are Not Out of Season.

The Mediterranean Naturalist affirms that upward of 60 per cent of the earthquakes that have been recorded have occurred during the six colder months of the year—the maximum number in January and the minimum number in July.

GOOD HEALTH

HEATSTROKE.

This Accident, Usually Called Sunstroke, May Occur Indoors.

Heatstroke, or sunstroke, as it is popularly called, is generally supposed to be due to exposure to the rays of the sun, but a writer in the New York Herald's European edition affirms that heatstroke occurs equally well indoors, under a tent at nightfall, and in a word, wherever human beings are crowded together without sufficient air to breathe. He says: The temperature of the air is an important factor in this accident, while the rays of the sun are not at all necessary for its production. The victims to its are generally persons debilitated by physical or intellectual fatigue or by excesses of various kinds.

The action of overwraining has been explained by M. Gautier of Paris. It appears to be due to the retention in the tissues of the poisonous substance or toxines manufactured by the action of the muscles and the brain and which under normal circumstances are thrown off by one of the natural safety valves of the organism. Under certain surroundings, intense direct or reflected solar radiation, moist heat, crowding together after intellectual or physical fatigue, the free action of the lungs is hindered, the blood becomes fouled, and the secretion of the kidneys is either stopped entirely or reduced to a minimum.

The best way to avoid heatstroke is self evident to any one aware of the manner in which it occurs. For large numbers of men, bodies of troops, care must be taken to avoid unnecessary exposure to intense heat or crowding together in small and not properly ventilated rooms. Columns under march should walk with open ranks to avoid saturation of the air by the aqueous vapor thrown off.

The Friendly Hot Water Bag.

A thing that every traveler should carry is a hot water bag. Those made of india rubber take up little room. It will scarcely happen to any traveler to escape a occasional chill, and to get thoroughly warm as soon as possible is the best way to prevent a small evil from developing into a grave one. A hot water bottle or bag is a great comfort to many a feeble traveler.

In semitropics the deadly sinking that is even worse than the nausea is very much relieved by the friendly pressure of the hot water bag. Some complain that india rubber goods are liable to crack and leak. This only do so if they are packed up wet or allowed to lie by in a drawer. All india rubber things should be drained or wiped dry and then hung up in the air. So treated they last for years.

Milk and Eggs.

The only two foods which contain all the substances necessary to human life are said to be milk and the yolk of eggs. A man can live in health on these two foods. In a dry climate man the usual proportions of albumen, fats, hydrocarbons, salts and organic substances are not preserved, for his tendency is to eat too much of sweets and starch and to drink beer and other aqueous liquids. The effect of this overeating can be overcome by vigorous exercise, baths and rubbing, but when such a diet is combined with idleness corpulence is an almost sure result, says the New York Sun.

What Is Appendicitis?

Appendicitis is the medical term for inflammation of a small intestinal appendix, the use of which no one has been able to discover. It has become so common that some physicians are advocating the removal of the appendix from infants as a preventive measure, like vaccination.

ETIQUETTE

THE GRACES OF MANNERS.

A Trifle That Represents the Height of Politeness.

It is the little graces of manners that make up a charming personality. For instance, an exchange remarks that so few people know how to observe a favor graciously. Ask them to render you a service, and they could not be more ready than they are. But try to offer them a courtesy and see how quickly you will retire from their presence with a feeling of wounded pride and annoyance. Some will refuse outright, and others will accept as if they were conferring a royal condescension. To accept something that we do not want, for which we have no use, to accept it in such a manner that the one who offers it will feel that he has rendered a desired service, is the height of consideration and good breeding. The strong, capable and abstracted do not like to be served. It is so much easier to serve one's self than to lie back and be waited upon. They truly feel that it is more blessed to give than to receive—blessed perhaps because they do not want to receive. But such people would deny to others what they claim most strenuously for themselves—the right to confer a favor or to discharge an obligation, the sense of which sets heavily upon them.

Habits That Make "A Nice Girl."

Making a sacrifice cheerfully whenever one is made.

Inquiring after the friends and families of those to whom she meets.

Showing "small courtesies" to humble people without an air of patronage.

Speaking unreservedly and kindly to any subject which is known to be disagreeable to another.

Apologizing without reservation when an apology is needed.

Drawing checks on her own happiness to bridge over the impending bankruptcy of another.

Avoiding jokes of a personal nature likely to wound another's feelings.

Showing herself happy when she is enjoying herself, remembering it is a pleasure to others to make her happy.

Always expressing criticisms when there is anything to praise.

Bad Form in Letter Writing.

The world is in too much haste to write elegant letters. Apart from the careless notes and from the ignorant who end "the not know that they do not know" are those who effect haste, have a contempt for such details as suitable margins, never dot or cross anything, abbreviate "and" and "which" and squeeze their signature and "Yours truly" into the corner of the sheet. "Respect'y" is not respectful, and it is a poor compliment to one's correspondent to appear grudging of the morsel of time bestowed in a leisurely written letter

THE HOUSEHOLD

SUMMER DRINKS.

Refreshing, Thirst Quenching and Easy to Make.

In summer time we are all thirsty, and housekeepers are especially interested in the "drink question," for it falls to their lot to provide at least a part of the many cooling beverages so lavishly drank in hot weather.

Lemons lead the procession of fruit drinks, perhaps because the citric acid they contain cools the blood. Lemon squash is delicious when properly made, and only simple materials are required for its decoction. It must be drank the instant it is made, and a large glass is required to make each squash in. The juice of a fresh lemon, "plenty" of crushed loaf sugar and a bottle of soda water are all that is required. After squeezing the lemon into a pint tumbler, put into it at least 3 teaspoonfuls of sugar, mix well up and then put in the soda water, "stirring all the time." A lemon squeezer or a glass rod should be used for stirring with. Following are a few attractive recipes:

Lemon or Orange Beverage—Boil 2 pounds of lump sugar, add a pint of lemon juice and the juice of an orange, bottle the mixture and cork carefully. Put a tablespoonful of the syrup into a glass three parts full of cold water, add a quarter of a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda and drink at once.

Portable Lemonade—Mix an ounce of tartaric (or citric) acid with a half pound of fine powdered sugar. On this pour 20 drops of the essence of lemon. Put into a bottle. Two teaspoonfuls make a delicious drink when added to a glass of water.

Currant Drink—Mash an exact pound of currants, picked from the stems, in a mortar, put all into a quart of water, add 5 ounces of sifted sugar, the juice of a lemon and a tablespoonful of ginger. Stir all well together, pass it through a jelly bag and set on ice. This is a safe and soothing drink. A dash of brandy is considered an improvement by some. A small teaspoonful of bicarbonate of potash makes this an effervescing drink.

Cherry Syrup—Select fine ripe cherries, mash them well, then press out the juice through a sieve, add a little water and let them come to a boil. Strain, add sugar syrup and a little lemon juice. When cool, pour in glasses over cracked ice.

Raspberry Vinegar—Mash 4 pounds of ripe raspberries to a pulp, add 5 quarts of cider vinegar, let it stand four days, strain off the juice and add a pounds more of fresh fruit. Repeat this process again in three days, then to each pound of liquor allow a pound of fine white sugar, bottle it and let it stand one week, then cork tight and keep in a cool place. Diluted with water it makes a most refreshing beverage.

That "White China" Look on Glass.

Glossing is an art to be acquired only by patient practice, and even then the home laundress seldom equals the work of the public laundries with their special implements.

Borax, white wax, etc., will materially help when mixed with the starch, but the actual "white china" look must be given by the laundress herself by a dexterous use of her polishing irons, which must be in the highest condition of polish themselves.

Starch the parts that require stiffening

Art Work at the World's Fair.

Among the beautiful pieces of needlework at the Chicago exposition may be seen the one of which a sketch is here given—a sightless one not remarkable for its unique and charming decoration.

EMBROIDERED SACHET.

The design is an exquisite one of seashells and seaweed embroidered in silks of appropriate colors. As a companion piece to this is shown a brush bag with similar embroidery.

Soap in strong boiled starch, into which some lovage has been mixed. Work the starch well into the linen; rub and clap it between the hands, leaving the surface quite smooth without the slightest trace of lumps of starch. Let this dry and starch in raw starch, to which add your favorite starch powder or improver, whatever it may be. After this wring as dry as possible and roll the things in a clean cloth. The part of the shirt which does not require starching must be damped ready for ironing previous to the rolling. After a couple of hours or so iron with a very hot iron and go on till the collar, or whatever you have in hand, is perfectly dry and as stiff as a board. "Blend" it by pulling it upward from under the iron a few times while finishing it off. Have a polishing iron rounded at the bottom, especially for shirt fronts. Giving the iron an occasional rub over with a cloth smeared with white wax is of great help to the worker.

Cooling the Dining Room.

A clever notion for cooling the atmosphere at large dinners is the use of blocks of ice. Formerly they were put on the table. This is a mistake, as the ice does not then come into contact with the current of air necessary to spread the freshness through the room. The best place is in the window, where a certain amount of draft can be arranged. The apparatus destined to hold the huge block may consist of a square or oblong box fitted near the top with a perforated tray to carry away the condensed dripping. The ice could not stand on the tray, as the metal would work into the block. For this reason it is placed on a wooden tray. The receptacle, when hidden by a suitable arrangement of grasses and foliage, scarcely looks like a decoration.

Lettuce With Peas.

Wash, drain and slice 2 lettuces; boil them in salted water with a quart of green peas; when tender, drain. Roll an ounce of butter thickly in flour, put it into a stewpan with a teaspoful of white stock and a saltspoonful of salt, pepper and white sugar mixed. When this is hot, throw in the vegetables; shake them well and let them simmer for another 10 minutes, then serve.

He Approves Them.

As the park policeman came up the graveled path the gentleman who sat with his back to a clump of bushes raised his head wearingly and inclined his head like one listening intently.

The obliging officer grunted himself a special dispensation to walk on the grass and approached noiselessly.

The gentleman on the seat still strained his ears to catch the sounds from beyond the intervening screen of foliage. He was rewarded.

"Sir?"

"Oh, come now."

"You forget yourself!"

"Yes, when I think of you."

"Plaintiver!"

"Where truth is flattery, who wouldn't speak it?"

"Umph!"

"There now, why not?"

As the lounger and the policeman peered through the branches they saw an arm stealing around a waist and heard a suppressed "Ah-h-h!"

Then the young man said, "Do you know I used to scratch my wrist with pins all the time until you took to wearing suspenders!"—Detroit Tribune.

ANOTHER FIREBUG.

PROPERTY NOT SAFE UNTIL HE IS RUN DOWN.

Seen Escaping from the Fire Saturday Night at Farmer Anthony Farley's.—Said to be at Large Under $1000 Bonds for Other Fires.

FIREBUGS, a few years ago, terrorized Plainfield. When the old gang were run to earth Plainfield had an end of mysterious fires until quite recently. —

The fire Saturday night is the latest mystery, although suspicion for that as well as the one of a few nights previously in the same vicinity all point in one direction. A drunken loafer who is said to have been arrested four times for incendiary fires, and to be at large at present under $1000 bail for the last of the fires he is accused of, was seen by several people leaving the vicinity of the fire Saturday evening, just after it started. It may have been only a coincidence. Yet there seems to be but one opinion.

It was ten o'clock when the flames first attracted attention. The fire alarm rang No. 16, and the firemen were then directed to the corner of East Front and Richmond streets. But the fire proved to be a large barn on Terrill road, about midway between East Front street and the railroad. This road forms the easterly boundary of Plainfield. Had the fire been on the westerly side of the road it would have been within the city limits. Being on the easterly side it was outside the city limits, and in Warwood township.

Plainfield engines were hurried to the scene, however, making the two miles journey in a reasonable time, but arrived too late to be of any service, as was also the case with the apparatus from Scotch Plains, which arrived even later.

Before they arrived the barn, which was well-built of strong oaken timbers, was totally consumed, together with a horse, harness, carriage, six tons of hay, a lot of rye, about $200 worth of carpenters' tools, and a lot of hens and chickens. A valuable cow was badly burned on the back by falling beams, and would have been consumed but for the assistance of neighbors, who arrived promptly on the scene, and worked vigorously to save everything possible.

The destroyed property was owned by Farmer Anthony Farley, and was not insured. His dwelling was only a short distance away. He is seventy years old, said a neighbor to a News reporter in giving the particulars, "and has lived on the place for years. We feel deep sympathy for him, and we would like to have believed he had an enemy in the world, but are satisfied that it is the same drunken loafer who has caused the other fires, and who will keep on until the insurance companies get tired paying losses. When they go about the work of running him down in earnest they can easily catch him, for everybody knows him. Several of us saw him coming away from this barn just before any alarm was given.

"A few years ago this fellow's father's barn, which happened to have been built by Mr. Farley, was burned down.

"The insurance company asked Mr. Farley how much it cost to build it. He is an honest man and told the truth. The company paid the actual loss, on the basis of Mr. Farley's figures.

"The interested ones were very angry and this fire is supposed to be the result of a revengeful feeling arising from it.

"The insurance companies escaped in this case, but they will get it yet, as they did a week ago. A few losses, and they will wake up, and when they do this firebug will be caught and made to serve ten or fifteen years in the State prison like the other firebugs. Then we will have peace."

THE ENGINE STRUCK HIM

JOHN HARDING'S FORTUNATE ESCAPE THIS MORNING.

He Stepped in Front of the 7.10 Train, but, as it was About to Stop, He was Knocked to One Side and His Life Saved.

OR twenty-five years John Harding has been employed by the Central Railroad Company as a freight handler at the freight house, opposite the North avenue passenger station. It is customary for Harding as well as the other employees to walk across the tracks to the station occasionally. Probably they would walk across the tracks several times during the day.

The drill engines are always around there. The noise made by them makes it dangerous for a person to cross, from the fact that their noise drowns any warning a person might have of an approaching train. In consequence, there have been several narrow escapes from death. This morning it was John Harding's turn. He started across the tracks, the same as any other day, walking carelessly along, filling his pipe with tobacco from a bag of "Long Tom." He did not notice the 7.10 train approaching. It was fortunate for him that the train was running slowly, as it was about to stop at the station, otherwise Mr. Harding would not be alive to tell of the occurrence.

He stepped in front the engine, which knocked him down. Fortunately he fell to one side, or else the engine would have run over him. His right leg and right side were considerable bruised by the engine. When he fell his head must have struck the rail of the other track for his face was cut.

CUT AN ARTERY.

Mr. A. C. Rogers Meets with a Serious Accident.

This morning, as Mr. A. C. Rogers, a carpenter, was at work in the cellar of Mr. Edward White's building, he slipped and fell. In falling his right arm was jammed through a pane of glass one of the windows, cutting an artery. He was attended by Dr. Carman.

BREVITIES.

—The Schmetterers, a German club of this city, went to Tremley's Point yesterday to eat baked clams and enjoy themselves as only Schmetterers can.

—The new Fitzgerald Hotel, at South Plainfield, opened Saturday night. There was music, dancing, boxing, etc. A number of Plainfielders were present.

—Mr. Albert Pope, son of Postmaster Pope, will next week, build the erection of an addition to his stables on West Sixth street. The addition will be 30x60 feet in dimension.

—Last night, at about 11.30 o'clock, as Benjamin La Vere and Frank French were returning from Rahway in a buggy on Bloyden's race into their wagon. He had a bad fall, but he got up and rode away.

—Somerset Council, No. 104, J. O. U. A. M. met in Odd Fellows Hall, Friday evening, and transacted routine business. The lodge now has a membership of 88, and there are several applications for membership.

—A large delegation from Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., paid a fraternal visit to Hanse Lodge, No. 143, Elizabeth, Friday Evening. Installing officer C. W. Tallman and staff of the Plainfield Lodge duly installed the officers of Hanse Lodge:

—Mr. G. W. Eddy's horse met with a peculiar accident Saturday morning. It was tired in the stable with the strap rather long. In endeavoring to reach some hay above its head the animal got one foot caught in the strap and in trying to get loose, got one of its hind feet caught also. Drawing its head quickly the horse was thrown down. Mr. Eddy found the horse upon its back with both feet tied together. He got a knife and cut the animal loose.

New County Roads.

The Union County Board of Freeholders met Thursday afternoon, at Elizabeth. A resolution was adopted authorizing the county engineer to advertise for proposals for the improvement of the newly adopted county roads, Springfield avenue, Morris avenue, Newark avenue and Edgar Turnpike.

County Engineer Dalton presented each member with a neatly drawn map of the county roads, and on motion of Mr. Moore a vote of thanks was extended to him.

In the City Court.

A number of cases awaited Judge Coddington's attention in the city court this morning.

Patrick Ahern was the first. He was drunk Saturday night and was taken in by Policeman Fredericksen. He was fined $3. Albert Rupport, Edward Dooley, and Arthur Foster were each fined $5 for drunkenness. The latter was from Westfield.

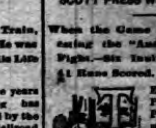
The Weather.

On Tuesday still warmer, fair weather and southerly winds will probably prevail, with a further increase of humidity, followed by local thunder storms, and on Wednesday fair weather, with slightly lower temperature.

MACHINISTS PLAY BALL.

NINES FROM THE POTTER AND SCOTT PRESS WORKS CONTEST.

When the Game Became Uninteresting the "Audience" Started a Fight.—Six Innings Played and 41 Runs Scored.



TEAMS from the Scott Press Works and the Potter Press Works played a game of ball on the Park avenue grounds, Saturday afternoon. The game was to have been called at 2.30 o'clock, but as the East Ends and West Ends were using the grounds, the others had to wait until they got ready to vacate. At four o'clock, with the score standing 16 to 9 in favor of the East Ends, at the end of the fifth inning, they were prevailed upon to leave the "diamond."

The battle between the machinists began with the Potters at the bat. Gould, the first man up, knocked an easy one to Lewis, who handled the ball like a professional and threw Gould out at first. Ball struck Delahant out, but Shirwood seemed to be unaccustomed to the other end of the battery's curves, so he let the ball drop, and Delahant reached first base. Delahant made a run for second and Shirwood threw the ball, it is supposed, at "Sat" who was playing second base. The ball landed away out in centre field. It came nearer hitting a cow, which was peacefully grazing outside the "diamond," than it did second base. When the ball was finally recovered, Delahant was home. This seemed to upset the whole scheme laid by the Scotts to beat their rivals, and errors were made by the wholesale. One side seem to revel in errors, while the other knocked the ball, stole bases and piled up runs. When the smoke of "battle" had cleared away it was found that the Potters had tallied six runs.

As the Scotts took their turn with the "stick," and the mighty Buckley, as old Homer, was seen to walk into the box their spirits sank. Lewis, was the first man to face Buckley. He managed to get to first on an error. The next man was struck out. Only two hits were made off Buckley that inning, but errors helped the Scotts to the three runs. In the next inning the Potters secured one run, while their opponents got a "goose egg."

In the fifth inning the "audience," in which were several colored men, lost their interest in the game, and started a fight. During the progress of the game the "audience" seemed themselves throwing stones at one another. Finally a colored man said he could whip the person who struck him. A man sitting on a piece of plank near the fighting "darky" told him he knew wood from bronze." The man he "understood" was in for death. They all started across the field in a mob, rousing and fighting. Sticks and bricks were brought into play. One colored man was knocked down with a brick, and as he fell some one struck him with a club. He seemed to be the "king leader" and his defeat seemed to be the signal for the others to flee. The colored men escaped by jumping over the fence into Park avenue. Policeman Kiely and Vanderweg appeared on the scene before the game was over and ran those whom they thought had anything to do with the fracas to the lockup.

The game closed at the end of the sixth inning with the score standing 30 to 11 in favor of Potters.

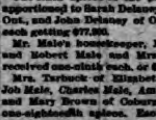
THE ESTATE DIVIDED.

Job Male's Property Settled Up at Last.



VALUABLE real estate in this city left by the late ex-Mayor Job Male has at last been divided. A final settling of the estate was made by the executors, Friday. When the property was apportioned among the heirs.

One-sixth adjoining of the property was apportioned to Sarah Delaney of Cobourg, Ont., and John Delaney of Orville, Ont., each getting $77,805.

Mr. Male's housekeeper, Mrs. Fosco, and Robert Male and Mrs. Strathdee received one-sixth each, or $51,870.25.

Mrs. Verbeck of Elizabeth, Pa., and Job Male, Charles Male, Ambrose Male, and Mary Brown of Cobourg, Ont., got one-eighteenth apiece. Each share was $25,935.00.

The remainder of the $467,405, the total value of the real estate, was divided equally between W. Batty of Cobourg, L. Batty of Lakeport, and Anna Batty of Plainville, Canada.

All the property was apportioned subject to mortgage, which will materially decrease the amount.

SAD STORY OF TWO BOYS

THEY START OUT TO MAKE THEIR FORTUNE.

One was Struck by a Train this Morning, is Severely if not Fatally Injured, and is in the Hospital.—His Partner Must now go it Alone.

WILLING to work for their living, and under very adverse circumstances, two little Staten Island boys, each about twelve years of age, ran away from home a few days ago. They were poorly clad, with pinched, careworn faces. Evidently their paths through life had not been strewn with roses, and they had some ambition to better themselves when they "started out on their own hook," not in the "dime novel hero" style, but to try and win success.

They managed to reach South Amboy but were unsuccessful in finding work there, and some kindly disposed person told them they could get work in Perth Amboy, which is just across the Raritan Bay. Having no money to ride they started to walk across the long railroad bridge. When within a few feet of the opposite shore they saw a train coming from each direction and started in run over the ties for the shore.

One boy ran between the tracks and was uninjured. The other boy was struck from behind by the westbound Tom's River express. He was thrown so that his feet were on the track of the eastbound track, and the other train would have cut off both legs had it not been stopped in the nick of time. The boy was picked up by the trainmen and taken to the next station. Upon examination it was found that both legs and several ribs were broken and his skull fractured. The lumps on his forehead and the top of his head was as large as a man's fist. A physicisn forced some brandy between his lips and caused him in bandages and splints. He was then placed aboard the train, which had been kept waiting, and taken to Jersey City where he will be placed in a hospital and cared for at the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's expense. The other boy was unhurt.

Several Plainfielders were on the train, and witnessed the sad accident.

INTERCLUB LAWN TENNIS.

The Second of the Series of Contests Took Place, Saturday.

THE second of the series of contests for the championship of the Interclub Lawn Tennis League recently organized by representatives of the Hillside Tennis Club of this city, the Bergen Point Tennis Club of Bayonne, and the Jersey City Tennis Club of Jersey City Heights, took place Saturday afternoon on the Bergen Point Club courts, Avenue A., Bayonne. Second Round—Post and Strong, Jersey City Tennis Club, defeated Walz and Simmonds, Hillside Tennis Club, 6—4, 6—3.

SECOND SERIES.

First Round—Sydney L. Smith and G. Howard, Bergen Point Tennis Club, defeated Post and Strong, Jersey City Tennis Club, 6—3, 6—2.

Second Round—Sydney L. Smith and G. Howard, Bergen Point Tennis Club, defeated West Brothers, Hillside Tennis Club, 6—2, 6—1.

Third Round—Post and Strong, Jersey City Tennis Club, defeated West Brothers, Hillside Tennis Club, 6—1, 6—4.

The record now stands: Jersey City Tennis Club won 3; lost 1. Bergen Point Tennis Club won 2; lost 2. Hillside Tennis Club won 1; lost 3. The next series will be held on Saturday, July 29, on the courts of the Jersey City Tennis Club.

The Wagon Rolled Over Five Times.

Messrs. George and Will Gibbons, five young men of New Brunswick, were driving on a steep roadway near Eagle Rock, on the Orange mountains, yesterday, when their horse balked and commenced to kick. The front of the wagon was kicked to pieces in a few seconds and then the horse, becoming unhitched, upset the wagon. The entire outfit went over a cliff and landed in a confused heap on the rocks about 25 feet below. The wagon turned over five times. Both young men were injured. The younger brother had his ankle torn and his face badly gashed. The elder brother's chest was hurt and he now breathes with difficulty. The wagon was a wreck. The horse was not injured.

A Hackman's Horse Runs Away.

Saturday afternoon, a hackman's horse while standing in front of the depot, became frightened and ran away. The animal dashed down North avenue and around the corner into Watchung avenue. It was finally stopped, but not until one wheel of the vehicle was wrecked.

A Plainfield Girl Comes to Fourth.

The Herald yesterday published pictures of a number of bathing costumes, submitted in competition for a prize of fifty dollars. The prize was won by a Miss Clary of New York. Among the competitors was Mrs. Florence E. Patterson of this city, whose production was No. 4, and is referred to as follows:

OTHER ATTRACTIVE MODES.

No. 4 was designed by Miss Florence E. Patterson, of Plainfield, N. J. Its article simplicity is its greatest recommendation. Miss Patterson describes it in this way:—

"This simple and picturesque bathing suit recommends itself on account of its lightness, durability and inexpensiveness. Brown linen, peculiar brilliantine, as the fabric is variously called, is used in its construction, and being much lighter than flannel is far more comfortable and it sheds water more easily. Trimmings of turkey red relieve the sombre effect of the black and add a picturesque touch of color, and its durability (sunshine and salt water alike failing to dim its brightness) make it especially adapted to the purpose. The style is very simple, consisting of blouse waist, full trousers to the knee, with skirt falling slightly below, made of the black material, while the band on bottom of skirt, girdle, collar, neck and sleeve bands are of the red. The sailor collar is cut square in the back and the front with two long ends that tie in a sailor knot. A small V shaped piece of the black bound around the neck with red buttons neatly under the collar on the left side."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Boutwell on Silver.

Hon. George S. Boutwell, secretary of the treasury from 1869 to 1873, senator from Massachusetts and member of the government silver commission in 1876, gives in the Boston Herald his judgment on the present silver situation. It is partly from the so called "goldbug" point of view. He says distinctly that the demonetization of silver in 1873 was not an accident, nor was it inserted surreptitiously in any legislative act. It was accomplished on a distinct recommendation of Mr. Boutwell to congress in his financial report for December, 1872, "The country had due and full notice of the policy promulged."

Mr. Boutwell then recalls the fact that in 1860 the American silver dollar was worth more than the gold dollar by about 4 cents. By 1873 the gold dollar had become about 3 per cent more valuable than the silver one, and there was neither gold nor silver in circulation. Boutwell says he foresaw the future of the two metals:

At that time the power drill had been invented and its value established. The use of dynamite was well understood, and the number and riches of the silver mines in the Rocky mountains justified the conclusion that the silver would deteriorate in value with each succeeding year.

On this theory of the then future my policy was based.

His theory of a coinage metal is as follows: "The intrinsic value of a metallic currency should correspond to its commercial value. The metal should be used only for the coinage of tokens redeemable by the government at their nominal value."

In 1876 the silver commission made its report in favor of resuming the double standard and the coinage of silver without delay at a ratio to gold of 18 to 1. Mr. Boutwell dissented from the majority report and made one of his own. It was to the effect that since Germany had demonetized silver, and the other countries of Europe had closed their mints against its coinage, the United States should call an international conference. He said:

"It is expedient for this government to extend an invitation to the commercial nations of the world to join in convention for the purpose of considering whether it is wise to provide by treaties and concurrent legislation for the use of both silver and gold in all states, so as to fix a fixed relative valuation of the two metals."

As to the proper basis for the remonetization of silver without the co-operation of other commercial countries, I said: "It is to be apprehended that the remonetization of silver by the United States at the present time would be believed by such a depreciation in its value as to furnish a reason against the adoption of the plan by the rest of the world and that an independent movement on our part would increase the difficulties in the way of bringing them. However that may be, the undersigned is of opinion that the introduction of silver as a currency should be postponed until the effort to secure the co-operation of other nations has been faithfully tried."

However, the majority report was adopted, and the United States decided to go it alone on the resumption of silver coinage, believing she could carry the rest of the world with her:

The coinage of silver was authorized, and an invitation was then extended to other nations to join us in the use of silver as a currency. Having abandoned the standard once accepted as a gold producing and gold using country, it was in vain that we invited other commercial nations to follow our example. In 1870 we were the principal gold producing nation of the world, our finances were in a healthy condition, our foreign trade was prosperous, and we could have maintained a gold using nation and decked the world.

Had we pursued that policy it is not impossible that, with the heavy trade balances in our favor since 1873, even England would have been compelled to resort to the use of silver. In 1876 we were the masters of the situation, and we could have maintained the gold standard to our own advantage and to the financial peril of all Europe.

We are now practically a silver country. Mr. Boutwell does not see any great peril in that fact, however, unless the state bank system is restored. Then he thinks both the state banks and silver will be more than the national government can carry. He believes that further legislation in the interest of silver production would be as much class legislation as lawmaking in favor of wheat or iron or any other commodity.

The immediate remedy for the present situation, he believes, would be for the United States government to return to its former policy of requiring customs duties to be paid in gold. By that means an adequate supply of gold could be had for the treasury without incurring new obligations. To the objection that this would be a discrimination against silver he replies that it is a discrimination forced upon us by events. To a second objection that might be urged against this course he answers:

The collection of the customs duties in gold will add enormously to the protective feature of the tariff system. This statement is true in some degree, and its assertion is an admission that a duty is levied and that silver, as a currency is not as valuable as gold. The change may lead to a decrease of imports, and thus indirectly the balance of trade may be affected favorably, and the manufacturing interest may be benefited.

To the protectionists these are not evils, and to the free traders they are not objections of magnitude. Indeed, if the objections may be, one indispensable condition is gained and made secure. The quantity of gold in the treasury will always be equal to any demand that can be made upon it.

Further, the silver purchase clause of the Sherman law should be repealed, he thinks, but there should be no disturbance at present of the legal tender status of the white metal.

Street barricade fighting can never be successful in Paris any more because the streets are now paved with asphalt, macadam and wooden blocks, and the former narrow, crooked thoroughfares have been changed to broad, open avenues which can be swept by cannon. Louis Napoleon extended to that.

WAR FOR SIAM.

The King's Offers Are Not Satisfactory.

FRANCE DOES NOT ACCEPT.

Siamese Gunboats in the River Prepared to Fight.

Word Sent From Paris to Begin the Bombardment of Bangkok—France Was Offered Full Money Indemnity and Half the Territory Asked, but This Did Not Meet the Demands of the Ultimatum. The French From Demand the Whole or Nothing.

PARIS, July 24.—Siam's reply was handed to M. Pavie, French minister, resident in Bangkok, at 6:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The 40 hours allowed by France's ultimatum for a reply had not then expired. The text of the communication is as follows:

"M. le Ministre—In reply to the communication, which by order of your government you handed to me on Thursday, July 20, at 6:45 in the evening, his majesty the king, my august sovereign, charges me to make to you the following declaration:

"His majesty regrets that no previous definition ever has been given him of what his majesty is to understand by the expression, 'rights of the empire of Annam and of the kingdom of Cambodia on the left bank of the Mekong river and on the islands of the Mekong river.' His majesty has been ever ready to abandon all the territories over which the existence of these rights should have been proved, and five months ago his majesty proposed to submit all contested points to international arbitration. Now he submits to the pressure of circumstances in order to restore peace to his people and security to the numerous commercial interests at stake in his country.

ROYAL PALACE IN BANGKOK.

"His majesty, therefore, consents to a delimitation of the frontiers between Siam and Cambodia. All the territory on the left bank of the Mekong river south of a line drawn from the most northerly of the Siamese military posts, recently occupied by the Franco-Annamite troops, to another point situated on the same latitude, will be regarded as Annamite and Cambodian territory, the river below the point indicated becoming the line of separation between the neighboring states as far as to the point at which the river enters Cambodian territory and the one of the islands in the river being common to the three conterminous states.

What the King Concedes.

"The two Siamese military posts now existing in the above described territory will be evacuated within a month.

"His majesty deplores sincerely the losses experienced by both sides in connection with the Kong-Kien and Khamon incidents, as well as the regrettable collision at the mouth of the Menam river. The Bangkien will be liberated, and other satisfaction demanded will, if necessary, be given so far as is compatible with ordinary justice and the independence of the Siamese government, which the French government in its note declares to respect. The four persons found guilty of acts of personal aggression contrary to national or international law against French subjects will be punished, and where necessary compensation in money will be made to the relatives of the victims.

"Long notes have been exchanged by us five times on the subject of certain claims made by French subjects on account of damage alleged to have been suffered by them owing to the action of Siamese officials. These allegations are contested, however, by the latter. The king, guided by the same considerations as those actuating the foregoing decisions, agrees not to insist on the question of principle, and to hand over to the government of the French republic the sum of 2,000,000 francs for the benefit of those who suffered the above mentioned losses. The Siamese government proposes, without, however, making it a condition, the appointment of a mixed commission to inquire into the question of damages and the amount of money indemnities mentioned in paragraphs 4, 5 and 6 of the French government's demand.

"The Siamese government will immediately deposit 2,000,000 francs to cover the amount of the indemnities enumerated above, the deposit to be made simultaneously with the exchange of notes by the two governments. His majesty, having reason to believe that after power inquiry the sum of 2,000,000 francs will be found to exceed the amount of indemnities claimable, relies on the friendship of the French government for the refunding of such a balance as shall remain available after the settlement of the different cases.

"The Siamese government is confident that in according to the demands of the French government in the manner shown by the foregoing declaration, it has given proof of its sincere desire to maintain good relations with the French republic, and to settle in the most complete and definitive manner all questions pending between the two governments."

The communication is signed by the Siamese minister of foreign affairs.

It is stated that Siam's reply to France's ultimatum is considered unsatisfactory. M. Pavie will probably leave Bangkok on Wednesday to go on board the cruiser Forfait. The refusal of M. Develle, French minister of foreign affairs, to give Siam an extension of time on her reply to the ultimatum is ascribed to his desire to force Siam's hand and prevent her negotiating for British support.

M. Develle had a meeting conference with Premier Dupuy all Sunday. Only at the last minute was it decided to import to the press Siam's reply and the government's decision. It is stated that M. Develle has notified Admiral Humann to proceed at once to declare the blockade.

The Soir comments thus in an extra edition on Siam's reply: "Siam concedes only the least important of the conditions put by France. Her resistance is too obviously due to English influence. M. Develle would do well to speak clearly and firmly to Lord Dufferin."

Siamese Ready For Action.

The Bangkok correspondent of The Daily Chronicle telegraphs:

"The Siamese warships which are anchored one mile from the mouth are crowded with men ready for action. Their intention is, in case the French commence hostilities, to steam down and ram the French gunboats, attempt to board them in force and attack the crews with fixed bayonets. The German gunboat Wolf has arrived here."

The Bangkok correspondent of The Times says:

"On Saturday the French gunboats were fixing chain armor. The Siamese vessels also were preparing for action. All have steam up. The French legation professes to believe that the gunboats cannot cross the bar, but on Sunday, or Monday, which would leave time to complete an amicable settlement.

"The territory that Siam offers to sacrifice fully equals in extent the province recently attempted French aggression. The cession involves the evacuation of the Siamese ports of Pesawdone, Nawang Dumbong, Utopes and Bandon. On the other hand itself the French have been unable in four months to place a single station excepting Khong, and that was obtained by a surprise.

"The complete failure of Governor General de Lanessan's attempted land advance was the result of the naval attack now made through Bangkok.

"I am credibly informed that Russia recently sounded Siam as to whether the latter was disposed to concede the island of Salang, or Junkceylon, on the eighth degree north latitude and west of the Malay peninsula for a Russian naval station. The Siamese position of Junkceylon Salang as of great strategic importance."

France Demands the Whole.

PARIS, July 24.—The eighteenth parallel of latitude mentioned in the Siamese government's reply cuts the Mekong river in a line with Khan Muon, where Captain Lefevre is now operating with a French force. The claim, in fact, fixed the twenty-third parallel as the northern boundary, as the southern frontier of Cambodia is along the fourteenth parallel. Siam, in her reply, grants only half of the French demands.

The Paris newspapers, led by The Times, are conducting a vigorous campaign in favor of the government's full demands and are warning Great Britain against any interference in the present complication.

Dispatches from Bangkok say that the territorial demands of France are regarded there as very vague. The Siamese, although intensely excited, are displaying great self control.

The Inconstante, which of all the French gunboats in Siamese waters has the greatest draught, will be able to cross the bar only before July 28, when the monsoon will increase the depth of the water.

FOUND A DESERT CITY.

While Looking For the Phantom Pegleg Mine the Ruins Were Discovered.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 24.—The ruins of a prehistoric city have just been discovered by a party of prospectors from Yuma when on the Colorado desert in search of the Pegleg mine. The wind had laid bare the walls and the ruins of stone buildings. For a distance of 420 feet in length by 260 feet in width gigantic pillars quaintly carved to represent dragon heads and rattlesnakes stand out in the sand of the desert, supporting on their tops huge slabs of granite weighing many tons.

The friezes ornamenting the mammoth Egyptian sculptures, and exhibited a greater degree of skill than is possessed by the Indian artisans of the present day. Fragments of pottery were found underneath the debris, and together with the crumbled pieces of the frieze were brought by one of the prospectors to this city.

Professor Ferguson called the matter to the attention of H. C. Jordon, who interested John F. Gay, Jr., a wealthy man of this city, in the discovery, and a week ago yesterday, in company with four others, they went to the desert to explore the ruins.

They were driven back by a sandstorm, reaching this city yesterday, but will make a careful examination of the ruins in a season when the conditions are favorable for such exploration. From the relics exhibited it is evident an important archæological discovery has been made.

Mr. Lawrence's Assailant Captured.

PALMER, Mass., July 24.—The negro who so brutally assaulted S. Wilson Lawrence on Wednesday was captured at Gilbertville by a sheriff's posse under Charles G. Field. Field says his action on Wednesday was in self defense. His wounds bothered him so that he made up his mind he could stand it no longer. He was found into a shoemaker's shop in Gilbertville to buy a pair of shoes. The shoemaker thought he was the man wanted and sent his son for an officer. Mr. Lawrence is improving and hopes are entertained for his recovery. Those who know Mr. Lawrence do not believe that he first assaulted the negro.

Ex-Governor Price Out of Jail.

HACKENSACK, N. J., July 24.—Ex-Governor Rodman Price was released from the custody of Sheriff Bogert of Hackensack, Anderson Pfice of Rutherford, Congressman Cornelius D. Cadmus, Senator Hinchliffe, Contractor David Henry and John B. Lee of Paterson, prominent Passaic county politicians, qualified as bondsmen in the sum of $5,000 each. Ex-Governor Price has been served on ex-Governor Price, and he must appear before Master in Chancery William M. Johnson in Hackensack on Friday next. He went to his home near Oakland.

A New Chinese Order.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The treasury department at Washington has instructed Collector Hendrick that hereafter the certificate of the Chinese consul at this port, Chan Chang Tseng, will not be received in proof of identification of any Chinaman who has gone from this country to China and wishes to come in again.

An Insurance Agent Convicted.

MRS. CREIGER WAS CALM

Defied the Regulators and Their Tar and Feathers.

SHOT THE NOTICE FULL OF HOLES.

Then She Posted a Notice of Her Own, Written In Red Ink, and Sat In a Hammock Dressing the Crowds That Came to Read It—The Regulators Not Heard From.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., July 24.—There is one woman whom the "regulators" can't frighten. They have tried it and failed ingloriously. She is Mrs. Gertrude Creiger of this place, 30 years old, plump and pretty, and she showed her grit by the way she answered a public threat with a public defiance, and got amusement out of the sensation the affair created in that town.

Mrs. Creiger lives with her husband John, who is employed by W. L. Gilbert in Chambers street, New York city, and who is comfortably well off, in a one story house in Belleville avenue, near the Belleville line. She used to be popular in Bloomfield, but last December, it is charged, she eloped with George Pritchard, who had boarded in her house.

All the neighbors sympathized with the deserted husband, who declared he would apply for a divorce. Instead of this Creiger took his wife back two months afterward. Since then the couple have been ostracised.

The woman doesn't seem to be greatly distressed by the treatment of her former friends. She drives about town in a dog cart, and she is good looking she attracts considerable attention.

A Notice of Warning.

Persons passing the Creiger house were astonished to see nailed to a tree in front of the place a large sheet of paper on which was written:

MRS. CREIGER—As you did not heed our private notice we give you warning that the nigger who is living in your house must be off the premises before sunset tonight and you must not receive any more men visitors in your house during your husband's absence. If you do not do as we say we will give you a coat of tar and feathers and ride you out of the village on a rail. Your dogs will not protect you, for we will poison them. THE REGULATORS.

Under the signature were crude drawings of a bucket marked "tar," a bag marked "feathers" and two longitudinal lines marked "rail."

This notice attracted a great deal of attention from passersby, but no one attempted to remove it, and it remained on the tree until afternoon. Mrs. Creiger then tore it down, and taking a pistol from her pocket she showed her contempt for the warning by shooting the paper full of holes and declaring she would do the same with the "regulators" if she discovered them. She posted a notice of her own on the same tree later in the afternoon. Her notice was headed with a rude drawing of a revolver in red ink and underneath was written:

"Beware of me for I am no fool, and any one who attempts to come near my house dog will get the contents of my pistol. I am not afraid of anybody in this town."

When the story of the warning notice to the woman got around Bloomfield it became noised about, it created a great sensation.

Scores of people went to the Creiger house to read the answer to the "regulators." No one cared to tear it down, especially as Mrs. Creiger sat in a hammock only a few feet away from the crowding people, and in her, enjoying the sensation of which she was the cause.

On the street corners and at the Orchard station of the Erie railroad [illegible] men gathered in groups until late at night and discussed the affair. There was much speculating as to the identity of the "regulators."

Several persons intimated that the whole thing was a scheme to frighten the Creigers into leaving the neighborhood, but it is thought that the woman is not one of the kind to be easily scared.

No one could be found who would admit having any knowledge of the "regulators," and those living in the neighborhood decline to talk about the Creigers or what the woman had done to incur displeasure. The person mentioned in the threatening notice is a colored boy 17 years old, who attends to the horse and cow owned by Mrs. Creigler. John Creiger, the woman's husband, is said to be in New York. It is believed he will spend money to discover the identity of the "regulators."

Killed the Peacemaker.

PLAIN CITY, O., July 24.—Several men became engaged in a fight over a game of cards. Frank Wilson attempted to act as peacemaker, when one of the fighters, named Emerley Fitzpatrick, drew a revolver and shot him through the head. Fitzpatrick then fled to the woods, where he was overtaken by the marshal and a posse. On their way to the jail they were met by a mob, which they held at bay, and the prisoner was landed in jail. There is talk of a lynching.

Two Brothers Drowned, One Rescued.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., July 24.—While three brothers, George, Willie and Lewis Schrag, aged 13, 11 and 6 years respectively, were sitting along the banks of the Lehigh river in this city, Willie toppled into the stream. The other brothers, in trying to rescue him, also fell into the river. Assistance arrived and Willie was rescued. His two brothers were drowned.

HANGED BY A MOB.

Taken From an Armed Posse, Tortured and Afterward Burned.

MEMPHIS, July 24.—Leo Walker, the negro who assaulted Miss Mollie McCaldon near Bond Station and on the same day assaulted a colored girl, was lynched in spite of the fact that 25 well armed deputy sheriffs guarded the jail and that Sheriff McLendon had given it out that the mob should not triumph. The lynching was very similar to the Bardwell affair, the body being cremated after the hanging in full view of 1,000 men, women and children.

When the attack on the jail began it was not believed it would be successful, the crowd being composed chiefly of drunken men and boys, and Sheriff McLendon ordered his men not to hurt anybody. The crowd grew in numbers and broke down the jail gates. Even then the sheriff would not permit his men to use their weapons. Finally a rush was made and McLendon was knocked senseless with a club.

He was carried to a bedroom and the mob battered down the doors, found Walker's cell and got him out. He fought fiercely and bit several men severely. He was also stabbed and slashed until the blood flowed from him in torrents.

He was hustled off to a telegraph pole two blocks away and a rope was fastened around his neck. He was lifted up and his clothes were then naked body swung clear of the ground. Then a big railroad switchman pulled his legs until his neck cracked. The negro was then mutilated the corpse. The negro was dead or nearly so before he was hanged.

There were probably 5,000 persons in the crowd around the jail, but not more than 100 took an active part in the assault and subsequent lynching. They were nearly all railroad men. One of them stumbled and fell while the victim was being carried to the telegraph pole and the crowd trampled on him, breaking his jaw and probably injuring him fatally. Sheriff McLendon is badly hurt. He seems to have concussion of the brain.

Walker tried to commit suicide before he was lynched by cutting his throat with a glass bottle found in his cell. After the body was cut down the mob raided a lumber yard, and building a bonfire burned the dead negro. The fire was built in the middle of Front street near the jail.

Some One Tried Train Wrecking.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 24. — What seems to have been an attempt to wreck a passenger train on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg railroad occurred in this city. Two switches were opened in the freight yard and the lights put out by some person unknown. The engineer of a passenger train noticed the lights and slowed up. All of the train except one coach left the track, but did not capsize or telescope, and no one was hurt.

Man, Boy and Horse Drowned.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., July 24.—George Bagnell, aged 71, and his grandson, Melville F. Bagnell, aged 7, were drowned in Great South pond. The dead body of a horse attached to a buggy was found in the water near the pond. It is supposed that they drove into the pond to water the horse and the animal got entangled in the harness.

Wanted to Hang Some One.

ISHPEMING, Mich., July 24.—Reports from Duluth that an incendiary had been lynched at Kenosha, Minn., were caused by the desire of some of the people there to hang Leo M. Goldsmar, who was responsible for the destructive water works. Mr. Geismar left town.

Mr. Humphrey is on Deck.

WEST POINT SHOCKED.

Infantry and Engineers Met and Hammered Each Other.

THEY SETTLED AN OLD SCORE.

How Those That Are Not In the Hospital Are In the Guardhouse—Met at a Dancing Pavilion—Two Country Constables Roughly Handled.

CRANSTON'S, N. Y., July 24.—Twenty West Point soldiers of Company E, engineers, and a similar number from the cavalry detachment ranged in a hand to hand fight at Nissen's notorious dancing pavilion in this village just before midnight, and the result is that several bruised and lacerated heads are being nursed at the soldiers' hospital.

The fight was the culmination of a feud that has been brewing between the two distinct companies of soldiers for the past 10 days, growing out of jealousy of the relative social standing of the two bodies. The time and place for the combat had been prearranged and the participants were armed and all prepared to do battle. The weapon used by the engineers was a piece of rubber hose 15 inches long, loaded at one end with lead. That used by the cavalrymen was a carbine swivel and saber butt, fastened together with strong cords.

These utensils of war were concealed upon their persons, to be used when occasion required, in the same manner as slungshots. After a few rounds of beer and a short session of dancing the fight began in the pavilion between two members of the opposing forces. They were forced to the street and then ensued the general battle. A dozen or more from either side were knocked down and badly beaten. The women screamed, some fainted and excitement ran high. The women's screams aroused the neighborhood, and the villager's turned out en masse to inquire as to the cause of the alarm.

The Engineers Were Defeated.

The engineers were put to flight, and two of their number, Frank Constable and Gus Davis, were so badly injured in the fracas that they had to be carried away. Two constables of the village were present, but did not interfere. After quies was restored dancing proceeded and the cavalrymen remained.

Later the fight was renewed, this time between the citizens and cavalrymen, the former using beer bottles for weapons. The two village constables, Silas and Isaac Newell, took a hand and were badly used up, as were also two of the cavalrymen, Baxter and Wallace.

Captain Craig, commanding the detachment of cavalry, was notified of the affray, and he promptly arrested his men, took their guard passes from them and confined them in the barracks until the matter is investigated. Captain Lusk of the engineers has also placed under arrest those of his men who are not in the hospital and who participated in the fight.

It was the bloodiest affair that ever occurred either here or on the post and is the chief topic of comment among the officers at West Point. A general court martial will likely be the result. Complaint has also been made to the village authorities, and some arrests will be made, but what the outcome will be remains to be seen.

REAL HOT WEATHER.

Wyoming Is Parched and Forest Fires Are Raging.

BUFFALO, Wy., July 24.—For some days at Fort McKinney the temperature has been 112 in the shade. While at Buffalo the mercury in the sun stands 130 to 150 degrees. This is the hottest weather recorded for eight years. Not a drop of rain has fallen for nine weeks and the range is completely destroyed.

Buffalo is surrounded by forest fires. To the south over 90 miles of fire has been burning with more or less intermittent severity since July 7. The fire at one time came down into the valley, destroying all of Tuller's fields, pastures, fences, corrals, etc., on Poison creek, and burning half of Horster's place south of Muddy creek. By great exertions the fire was checked.

Up Crazy creek canyon another fire is burning. The cavalry troops from McKinney went out to endeavor to extinguish it, but nothing can be done without rain. Ten thousand acres of choice timber are already destroyed just east of Buffalo. Another fire broke out in the Red hills and is burning some ten square miles of grass, which was the last range feed in the locality.

When the fire came into the flats approaching Buffalo all neighboring ranchers and some citizens and firemen from town fought it all night, getting it out off. John Hillsberry was arrested and fined heavily, being convicted of setting fire on the mountain by carelessness, leaving a burning campfire. To the north another huge timber fire is seen in Sheridan county.

HURON, S. D., July 24.—The heat is so intense here that work in barley and rye harvest fields has been abandoned. The thermometer has ranged from 96 to 106 during the last five days.

The Maharajah at Coney Island.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y., July 24.—His highness the Maharajah of Kapurtalla, India, and party, visited Manhattan beach, coming down from Long Island City.

SIR CHARLES' MISSION.

The Chinnecte Ship Railway Is Likely to Cause Excitement in Canadian Politics.

OTTAWA, July 24.—Sir Charles Tupper, Canada's high commissioner to London, will reach Canada this week, and it is said he will again return to London unless he can extract from the Dominion government a pledge that the annual subsidy of $120,000 once promised but afterward withdrawn from the Chinnecte Ship railway shall again be granted on the completion of that works.

The Chinnecte Ship railway's inception, partial completion and virtual abandonment, from the basis of a story which in a measure war would be the history of the Panama canal and its scandal. Millions of dollars were spent and squandered on this [illegible] road 13 years.

Now [illegible] complete the road can not be [illegible] the vital item of a [illegible] was been withdrawn. Sir Charles' action [illegible] to be for the purpose of [illegible] Mr. McIver of Pictou Jetter, with whom he had a serious quarrel last winter over the Franco-Canadian treaty, and thus induce the latter to support the government's policy of wings and save from total abandonment the Chinnecte enterprise, the rails and machinery of which are rusting away at present.

Should Sir Charles be unsuccessful it is not thought probable that he will return to London and face the clamor of the defeated Britishers who have dropped heavily into the enterprise. Prime Minister Tupper is supported in his stand, it is said, by all the other cabinet ministers, except Hon. Charles H. Tupper, the minister of marine and fisheries, now in London in connection with the Behring sea arbitrations. The matter is likely to cause a crisis in the Dominion cabinet.

GENERAL ABBETT'S DEATH.

He Was the Eldest Son of Supreme Court Justice Abbett.

JERSEY CITY, July 24.—General William F. Abbett, eldest son of Supreme Court Justice Leon Abbett, died at his father's house, Montgomery street and Jersey avenue. He was just 39 years old, having been born in Hoboken, July 23, 1853.

General Abbett was prostrated by an unusually severe attack of grip two years ago. It had been recurrent at intervals and he never fully recovered from its effects. About six weeks ago he contracted a severe cold which at times threatened to develop into pneumonia, but he was so far on the way to recovery his physician assured him that he could probably be able to be about in a week or so.

General Abbett was talking with his father when he became suddenly faint and asked his nurse for a glass of water. As he drank it he fell back in his chair and was dead before Dr. McGill, who lives less than a block away, could be summoned. The doctor said that death was caused by apoplexy, superinduced by the rupture of a blood vessel on the brain. The funeral will take place on Wednesday or Thursday morning, the family have not yet decided which. The interment will be in the family plot at Greenwood.

General Abbett was a graduate of the Columbia Law school. He became his father's law partner nine years ago, and since the ex-governor's elevation to the supreme bench had had almost entire control of the business of the firm.

RIOTING FOREIGNERS.

Huns and Poles Drank and Then Took Possession of a Town.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 24.—Pay day at the mines at Priceburg brought hundreds of Huns and Poles to that town, and they began to drink heavily. A Hun and a Pole engaged in a fight in Bryan Fallon's saloon, and their countrymen took sides with them, a free fight resulting. The borough police arrested four Hungarians and lodged them in the Priceburg jail.

Later the Hungarians held an indignation meeting and then proceeded in a body to the jail, where they overpowered the keeper and liberated the prisoners. Then began a regular riot that has occurred in this region in 16 years.

The Poles took exception, and a race war between the two factions was imminent, which there was a reign of terror, all the saloons in the town being taken possession of and the officers driven off. Over 30 men were injured, though the Pole Pole had his ears cut off. Many windows were broken in with stones and clubs. Shortly before midnight Deputy Sheriff Craig arrived with a small armed posse and overawed the rioters and restored peace. Many arrests will follow.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

FAMOUS BIRDS.

The Fortunate Pigeons of St. Mark's and Their Kindred in the Woods.

In Venice the pigeon is dedicated to the patron saint of that city—St. Mark—and the pigeons are very numerous, being protected by a law so strict that any one found molesting or killing them is liable to imprisonment.

Visitors to the "Queen of the Adriatic," as the beautiful city is called, make a point of feeding the pigeons, and during the tourist season, therefore, they are apt to grow fat and vain of breath. But the Venetians do not neglect the birds. The gondolier eating his humble dinner by the bridge drops a few scraps of food for them, and the schoolboy always turns his pockets out as he bids him homeward that the birds may pick up the crumbs.

WOOD PIGEONS AT HOME.

At 2 in the afternoon as the hour peals forth from the bell tower of St. Mark's a servant throws them grain from one of the royal palaces. The pigeons know feeding hour perfectly well and congregate around the window some time before the clock strikes. The moment they see the grain scattered they descend in clouds from the buildings around and alight at the feet of donor or even on his head or shoulders and will feed from his hand if it be kept quite still.

The birds in Venice, whose life is one prolonged carnival, are not carriers. Like the latter, they have sprung from the wild or wood pi_eon, from which indeed all the domesticated varieties have come.

The wood pigeon, whose "coo" is one of the sweetest and quietest of woodland notes, lives an easy going life, far from the madding crowd. Father and mother are industrious parents, and when the baby birds are born have quite enough to do to satisfy the wants of the big hungry occupants of the rudely constructed nest in the tree. For the nestlings leave the shell both naked and helpless, so that the old folk have to work hard for awhile until the young doves are able to provide for themselves.

Pigeons have ever been looked upon as pretty objects in town or country, but in such a city as Venice, where, saving a few cats and dogs, there are no animals at all, they are really needed to give life to the quiet streets and squares.

Great Men In Thunderstorms.

When Sir Walter Scott was a little boy, he was lost during a thunderstorm. The alarmed searchers found the future novelist lying on his back on the hillside looking at the lightning, clapping his hands at each flash and exclaiming, "Bonnie! bonnie!"

A story of the same kind is told of Schiller, the German poet. One day, when he was a very small boy, a severe thunderstorm came on. The boy was missed and could nowhere be found. The whole household searched for him, but it was not until the storm was passed that he was seen descending from the top of a lime tree near the house. To the inquiries of his father as to what he had been doing he replied, "I only wished to see where all the fire came from."

A Round Robin.

It has happened before, and will happen again, that people sometimes suffer great injustice, but do not care to complain of it directly for fear of dismissal from their situation or of other unpleasant consequences of their action. They therefore adopt what is called a "round robin"—that is, they sign their names to their petition or letter in a circle, in which form it is impossible for any one to detect the name that was first written down, which of course would be the name of the leader of the agitation, or, as we say in this connection, the ringleader. The phrase is merely a translation of the French rond (round) and ruban (ribbon or robin).

Oh, For a Leafy Shade!

Oh, for a leafy shade!
For it's hot, hot, hot.
On that desert brown and bare.

The languid lion hissed:
"Give me a ten cent fan!
This heat, I do declare,
Is enough to broil a man!

"THERE'S ONLY A STREAK OF SHADE."

"We shall all be frizzled alive
Before the sun goes down!"
The elephant cried: "Alack!
I'm slowly turning brown!

"For it's hot, hot, hot,
On this desert wide and bare,
Where there's only a streak of shade,
And never a breath of air."

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE.

RELATION OF THE HIGHER EDUCATION OF WOMEN TO THE HOME.

How the Subject of Cleanliness In the Form of Sanitation Is Dealt With by the Woman Who Has Studied Chemistry—Science and Food.

When it first dawned upon a few progressive spirits that woman was worth educating, some enemy of the scheme hit upon a clever ruse for enlisting all mankind against it. He insinuated that if woman learned the sciences she might forget how to cook, and the masculine half of humanity, face to face with the horrors of a dinnerless existence, cried out with one voice that woman must remain as she was.

It is unfortunate that in those darker ages, when this view prevailed, no one was found with the prophetic instinct to declare that the whole hope of domestic science lay in the possibility of training intelligent women to take hold of it in an intelligent way. Had this been done, a considerable part of the unpleasant consequences of their action. They therefore adopt what is called a "round robin"—that is, they sign their names to their petition or letter in a circle, in which form it is impossible for any one to detect the name that was first written down, which of course would be the name of the leader of the agitation, or, as we say in this connection, the ringleader. The phrase is merely a translation of the French rond (round) and ruban (ribbon or robin).

Take first the subject of household sanitation. All housekeepers worthy the name aspire to cleanliness without stopping to think that it is of three sorts—traditional, esthetic and sanitary. It may be remarked in passing that the last of these is the only one that bears any intimate relation to godliness. Traditional cleanliness was the strong point of the old housekeeper. Armed with what she inherited her energies to ceaseless scrubbings and scourings, but was the sworn enemy of air and sunshine. She rejoiced in such absurdities as the belief that the dust of the parlor ornaments, all over carpets and similar houses for enterprising disease germs, and she cursed little about the location of the well, provided it was handy for her purposes. But misdirected cleansing operations. Esthetic cleanliness, as still practiced in nine houses out of ten, is even more heathen of the two. Its aim is to live in defiance to its demands that plumbers invented wood lined water pipes, and furniture dealers the folding bed and the sliding cabinet. All its demands is that whatever it finishes unsightly shall be covered up or put out of the way.

Now, sanitary cleanliness—it might almost be called real cleanliness, in distinction from these other sorts—is a very different matter. It rests on the two great sciences of chemistry and bacteriology, and it cannot be successfully secured without at least a rudimentary knowledge of the principles on which it is founded. The old fashioned housekeeper had her prejudices, but

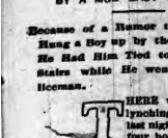
WANTED TO LYNCH HIM.

MR. PARMELE'S LIFE THREATENED BY A MOB LAST NIGHT.

Because of a Rumor that he Had Hung a Boy up by the Thumbs.—He Had Him Tied to the Cellar Stairs while He went for a Policeman.



THERE was almost a lynching in Plainfield last night. For about four hours a mob of probably fifteen hundred people swarmed in Plainfield avenue and Second street around the house of Mr. Charles Parmele, a draughtsman, who lives on Plainfield avenue opposite Second street.

But for the police, under the guidance of Chief Grant, "Mr. Parmele would have been," the chief says, "lynched in true Western style."

The trouble arose over the report that Mr. Parmele had hung a boy up by the thumbs in his cellar. The report spread like wild fire and in a very short time there was a mob around the house, demanding that Mr. Parmele be arrested, while cries of "lynch him" were frequent.

Chief Grant and his squad were quickly on the scene. A warrant for Parmele's arrest had been secured by a man, but Chief Grant refused to serve it, as it had not been properly drawn. Besides he made him deputized in order to serve it. The holder of the warrant then went to Constable Moffett, and he also refused to serve it, for the same reason.

While the crowd was clamoring for the arrest of Parmele, and because Chief Grant would not arrest him, they began to hiss him. One of the most hotheaded swore at the Chief, and said he "would as lief kill George Grant as Parmele." The Chief ordered Policeman Lynch to arrest the man. The arrest was made and the man, who gave his name as William Hayward, was taken to the lockup. This caused the crowd to again censure Chief Grant, for causing the arrest of an outsider, while a man they thought to be a murderer was left at liberty.

Chief Grant's action in leaving Mr. Parmele in the house, where he was safe, is to be commended, as there is no telling what might have resulted had he been brought out of his house at that time.

All the crowd wanted was a "ring leader," it seems. Being aware of this the police were on the alert to seize such a one. Suddenly Patrick Lawler started toward the house, waving a flag in each hand, and shouting to the crowd to follow him. He had not gone far before he was in the hands of the police. Thus the disturbance was checked for a time. It soon broke out again in another quarter, but the police stopped it. Meanwhile Chief Grant was gradually prevailing upon the crowd to disperse. Telling them, as they were law abiding citizens, to go home and he would see that justice was done. The more conservative knew that this was good advice, and retired. But it was not until twelve o'clock that it was deemed safe to take Mr. Parmele out of the house. Then he was arrested.

Justice of the Peace King, by whom the warrant was issued, released Mr. Parmele in $200 bail. Later it was discovered that the warrant was not been properly made out, so the whole thing was, therefore, illegal. Justice of the Peace Nash issued a warrant for his arrest this afternoon, and gave it to Constable Moffett to serve.

This was all caused by rumor.

The real facts of the case are that for years residents of that part of the city—from Plainfield avenue to Evons—have been unable to have any fruit, such as apples and pears, left on their trees because of boys who make a business of stealing. It is said that out of a whole orchard the expert scamps can only get an apple. Boys steal them as fast as they are ripe, and sometimes before they are ripe.

Mr. Parmele, being one of the losers in this way, has been trying for some time to catch a thief in the act. Yesterday he caught John Taylor, aged thirteen. He took him into the cellar, tied his arms behind his back, and then backing him up to the side of the cellar stairs, he tied him fast. The boy was neither hung nor tied up by the thumbs, as reported. Mr. Parmele then went to Chief Grant and told him what he had done, asking for an officer to come and scare the boy, as he did not want to have him arrested, if the boy would stop stealing from him. The chief told him to go home and immediately release the boy. Proper thing for Mr. Parmele to have done would have been to have had the boy arrested. The boy was more scared than hurt.

When released the boy ran home. When in the cellar he screamed so to get free that the report was circulated that a boy was being killed.

The boy's father is a machinist employed in Potter Press Works, and not knowing the facts, and believing the stories, was furious for vengeance. More trouble was looked for to-day, as it is said he has bought a revolver and has vowed to end Mr. Parmele, which is probably more idle gossip, as the father will be more likely to chastise the boy for stealing, and causing so much trouble.

Mr. Parmele said he did not intentionally hurt the boy, and did not wish to do anybody any harm, but thinks it high time that there was proper police protection for property in the vicinity to stop the thieving and depredations, continually going on there.

SLEPT IN A HAY MOW.

James Donovan Caught Taking His Morning Nap.

ABOUT two weeks ago James Donovan was arrested for riding in coal trains, and for breaking open the oil house at Grant avenue. He was also charged with changing the signal lights at the Grant avenue station. While in the locks awaiting trial, he made his escape by crawling through a hole and jumping over the back fence. Since then his whereabouts have been unknown. Yesterday Chief Grant heard that he could be found in Mrs. Burke's hay mow, any night, because he made that his lodging place. Yesterday morning Policeman Vanderweg caught Donovan while he was taking his morning nap.

Judge Coddington adjudged him guilty, and sentenced him to 60 days in the county jail.

Fred. Wallibald, who was recently released after serving a term for robbing the Union News Company, was also arrested yesterday, charged with the same offense as Donovan. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $15 or to be committed to the county jail for 40 days.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. Parmele's Statement.

To the Editor of The News: I have heard so many statements, in regard to the manner I treated a boy whom I caught stealing my apples, that I would like to put my side before the public.

On coming over the bridge, I saw two boys in my yard stealing apples. I rode along to the corner of the front of my yard when the boys saw me coming and ran. I jumped off my wheel, leaned it against a tree and chased the largest boy about two hundred feet, when he fell. I caught him by his collar. I commenced scolding, and said he would never do it again, if I let him go. I held him and took him into the kitchen of my house, where, taking a rope of ¾ inches in diameter I passed it around his elbows and half hitched it in the back. Then, not wanting to leave him in a room where he could do damage, I took him into the cellar and tied the other end of the rope to the supporting post of my cellar stairs. The boy was not lifted off from his feet. Neither did he have a chance to turn around his arm. I neither struck, shook, injured, or attempted to injure the boy. The rope was so large it could not have cut his arm as has been alleged. After securing him I went to a neighbor's for a telephone, but it had been taken out, and, seeing some young men on another neighbor's porch, I asked one of them to look after my house, while I went up town. I went direct to the police station. It was locked, but on coming back I met a policeman on the corner of North avenue. I told him I had secured a boy who was stealing my apples, and asked him to come down and scare him, so he would not do so again. He said I had better see the Chief, who was at Justice Nash's office. I explained the case to him. He said "better not make any trouble, but let the boy go." I said I would do so if he would go down to the boy's house and warn his parents to keep him away. He said he would go down after supper. I rode directly home, found a crowd of people in front of my house, went in and released the boy, and at midnight was arrested on a charge of atrocious assault with intent to kill, for securing a thief who was taking my property. I am under the impression that a man could defend his own, but it seems not. The boy is let go, and I am arrested.

The Trolley Company Changing Electric Light Poles.

THE electric light wires rubbing against the iron trolley poles, being likely some day when the insulation is worn off the wires to kill somebody, the trolley company is replacing the electric light company's poles with poles eight feet taller, so that the electric light wires will be clear of the trolley wires.

If one of the electric light wires should break and come into contact with one of those poles during such a storm as we had a few weeks ago, for instance, the consequences would not be very pleasant to contemplate. It is likely that some one would get hurt. These iron poles might otherwise become charged with electricity, and the consequences be disastrous.

This will somewhat delay the trolley company getting into operation.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Where Does the Farmer Come In?

In New York state, within a radius of 100 miles of the metropolis, agriculturists have mostly left off making butter and cheese and instead sell the milk from their farms for consumption in New York city. They haul the fluid in wagons twice a day to the nearest station. There an icehouse and receiving house have been built by the milk company. The company takes charge of the product, aerates and cools it and next morning ships it to New York. The company likewise keeps smooth tongued agents traveling through the milk districts to induce more farm women folk to sell milk to this organization that will pay spot cash for it, thus saving the ladies labor in the work of making butter and cheese. The farmers that have gone into the milk supply business have no pigs or calves on their places. They cannot afford to raise them. They buy pork and knock the calves in the head. They are under contract to supply so much milk every month the year around.

The farmer of course gets well paid for sending all the milk away and occasionally cutting off the home supply? Well, at this time of year he gets 1½ cents a quart for it, hauling it in some cases three miles to a station. In September he will get 2 cents. In midwinter he will receive 3 cents—the highest price he ever gets. In the city the price is 6 and 10 cents a quart the year around. Does the farmer pocket any of this profit and is it a co-operative organization of farmers that constitute the company? Well, no, to both questions. The profits go to the persons who used their native born shrewdness to start this great milk monopoly. Why did not the farmers organize it themselves? We don't know.

Rumford Inn.

In the Anthropological building of the World's fair, and in connection with the department of hygiene and sanitation, is Rumford inn, an exhibition of scientific cookery at small expense, whether for persons of large or small means. The establishment is under Massachusetts auspices, and its head is Mrs. Ellen H. Richards, professor of chemistry in the Boston Institute of Technology.

It appears as part of the Massachusetts exhibit at the World's fair. Scientific people and those who read the signs of the times are of opinion that the days of millions of little kitchens and cooking stoves in the large cities of the country are numbered nigh unto the end that more and more people will buy their food ready cooked from central supply kitchens. It is to demonstrate the feasibility of such central food supply stations that Mrs. Richards has started Rumford inn. Lunches will be served at small price to visitors. The object of the exhibit is to show how cheaply and at the same time how well families can live simply by accepting the results worked out by skillful food chemists. The cost of different foods, their relative amounts of nutrition and the best methods of cooking them have all been determined by science.

In Boston and New York already supply kitchens have been in operation for several years in some of the poorer localities of those cities. They have done well financially as soon as their merits became known. There ought to be such establishments in every city. They could thrive. The only requisite would be that they should be conducted on the Boston plan—first class plain food at a moderate price.

By the close of the summer a great work will be completed on the Colorado Midland railway, 15 miles west of Leadville. It is a tunnel through the Rocky mountains, over two miles above sea level. In crossing the Rocky mountains at Hagerman pass the trains were greatly hindered by snowfalls. To obviate the trouble and shorten the line as well it was resolved to tunnel through the mountain at the pass. The tunnel is called the Busk-Ivanhoe, from Busk, a little town at its eastern entrance, and Ivanhoe, the station at the western approach. It will be nearly two miles in length and will cost over $1,000,000. At intervals of 80 feet will be brilliant electric lights. Every 24 hours 200 pounds of giant powder are used in the blasting processes. One equipment of this great tunnel shows the difficulty the plucky march western people have in overcoming nature's obstacles. At each entrance to the passage will be set doors to close in case of immense snowdrifts. Watchmen will be present to open and shut the doors at the approach of trains, and to provide further against the ravages of the frost the tunnel will be heated by steam to a distance of several hundred feet at each end. The Busk-Ivanhoe is the third longest tunnel in the United States.

Whether people from rival cities like Chicago or not, they must stand by her and help her this summer. Our national honor demands that the great national fair shall be a splendid success. Chicago belongs to Illinois and can take of herself; the fair belongs to the whole American people. It is a personal duty with every individual to see that fair, at least by his presence and good word. Besides this of itself, it is the biggest thing that ever was on earth.

NOTHING NOW BUT WAR.

All Negotiations Between Siam and France Broken Off.

PREPARING FOR THE BLOCKADE

The French Minister Lowers His Flag and Makes Ready to Go on Board the Incon stante—Blockade Will Begin Thursday. The English From Urges Interference.

BANGKOK, July 25.—Siam's offer has been refused by France owing to a disagreement in regard to the cession of the left bank of the Mekong river, although the other demands of France were for the most part conceded.

Meantime diplomatic relations between France and Siam have been broken off, and it is believed here that the delay in the opening of hostilities is intended to enable more French warships to arrive at Saigon to assist in the destruction of the forts at the river entrance previous to an attack on the town.

The palace is strongly defended by an organized force of 12,000 men, and a terrible hand to hand conflict may be expected.

It is probable that all the French ships here will be protected by the British, Dutch and German warships, which have arrived. There are no American warships here as yet. The Siamese government is trying to negotiate with the French government in Paris. Although its diplomatic representative there and independently of M. Pavie but it has a very slim chance of success.

M. Pavie, French minister resident, has lowered the flags over his offices, and has notified the Siamese government that he will leave the city to go aboard the French warship Inconstante on Wednesday. He has requested the government to provide pilots to conduct the Lutin and Comete down the river. French subjects in Bangkok will be placed under the protection of the Dutch consul.

The beginning of the blockade will be deferred until Thursday or Friday to enable France to take the steps prescribed by international law. Besides the blockade, military operations will be opened shortly.

The details of these operations are still undetermined. They will be settled at a cabinet council within a day or two. Steps will be taken in Indo-China toward serious action immediately after the arrival of the battalion of the Foreign legion. The second portion of this battalion sailed from Marseilles Monday. The native militia will be reorganized, and together with the imported companies of the Foreign legion will co-operate with the force already in active service in the Khong district.

The French gunboats probably will go up the river, shell and destroy the Paknam forts and then return to their positions before Bangkok to bombard the palace.

English Views of the Situation.

LONDON, July 25.—The Franco-Siamese complications have been the most absorbing topic in the lobbies of the house of commons. The situation is regarded with apprehension. The general opinion is that the news from Bangkok and Paris is read with as much anxiety as vagerness. On all sides regret is expressed that the British warships in Siamese waters were not reenforced a month ago, as the British interests in Siam outnumber the French 100 to 1.

A council of ministers was summoned at the instance of Lord Rosebery, secretary of state for foreign affairs, to meet in the private chamber of the house of commons. The only subject discussed was the situation at Bangkok.

The Times says editorially today:

"England's only objection in the matter is against making British and French possessions in Asia conterminous. If she so desired she might warn France of the danger she is running by reminding her of the Tonquin fiasco.

The Daily News comments at length on the opinion prevalent in the German press that a squabble between France and England over Siam would be of advantage to Germany, and expresses the belief that such a squabble would afford a test to the historic fire eaters on both sides of the Vosges.

The Standard's leader on France and Siam contains this message:

"The terms that France is trying to impose on Siam would be undefendable in any court of international morality. The remarkable experience, which we gained from the occupation of Tunis of the methods of French diplomacy, forbids us to accept too confidingly the published programme of the Quai d'Orsay. It is the Earl of Rosebery's duty to tell France plainly that she is pledged to respect the independence of this buffer state. We can not remain inactive in the face of France's preparations for contrary action." In conclusion the Standard says: "The cynical cheek of the German press has much safer guide for M. Develle than are the acclamations of the Paris cafes."

The French Abuse the English.

PARIS, July 25.—The Debats says that Siam as a rice producing country probably does not fear greatly the blockade. As for the operations on land the Debats thinks the Siamese will be provided surreptitiously by England with all the arms they need. The nationalist press in its newspaper devote as much space to denunciations of England as to the matter at issue between Siam and France.

England is reproached by them with supporting the Siamese in their opposition to France's just demands, and with planning a plot for the Siamese secret aid when hostilities begin.

The extreme Conservative and Radical newspapers alone refrain from discussing the situation. They are holding back so as to denounce the government in case the Siamese venture prove a fizzle.

A dispatch from Rome says that Italy has asked England to protect Italian subjects in Siam.

The Siamese minister in this city has not yet received his passports from the French government. Immediately after M. Pavie's departure from Bangkok, however, he will go to Lisbon or Madrid, as he is accredited to Spain and Portugal as well as to France. The minister still hopes for a peaceful settlement of the trouble.

The Germans Are Complacent.

BERLIN, July 25.—The Tageblatt says that Germany would be pleased should France's overbearing spirit cause serious complications in Asia. Nor would the German government be disturbed, adds The Tageblatt, if the present trouble re-sult in acute rivalry in eastern Asia between France and Great Britain.

MINERS FEAR BOMBS.

The Miners Fire Workmen Under the Protection of Armed Guards.

WEIR CITY, Kan., July 25.—Strike affairs suddenly assumed a peaceful phase. The sheriff in response to repeated calls for protection from the mine owners placed armed deputies at the mines. The deputies are men from surrounding towns, and are not personally interested in the strike.

Shaft No. 67 of the Kansas and Texas company started up under armed guards with a full force of men. A large crowd of strikers and women gathered in the vicinity of the shaft, and were planning to make a raid upon the shaft when Sheriff Arnold appeared upon the scene. He addressed the crowd before the shaft, and although his sympathies were with them, he was bound to do his duty. He had placed armed guards at the mines, and had ordered them to protect the property and the men at work upon them. If he found that his deputies were powerless to guard the property in the county and the lives of his citizens he would so inform the governor, and that executive could put 500 militia on the ground in three hours.

It was useless to attack the men, he said, as he had ordered the mob to disperse.

The mob obeyed the order and there was no disturbance. The strip pit men were all at work and a report has been received that no molestation by the strikers. Now that the sheriff has shown that he can and will guard the working miners, other mines will start up. Shaft No. 19 of the Kansas and Texas company and No. 2 of the Keith and Perry shafts will be started.

The only thing that now causes apprehension is the rumor that the foreign miners are making dynamite bombs and will inaugurate with them a reign of terror.

MAIL TRAIN WRECKED.

It Dashed Into a Freight Car at Pell Street.

PROVIDENCE, July 25.—At 1:01 o'clock this morning the first section of the mail train from Boston to New York was wrecked opposite Dodgeville station. The train consisted of Old Colony engine 147, two United States mail cars, a baggage car and several passenger coaches.

A freight train from Boston had passed through Attleboro at midnight, and switched off some of the cars at Dodgeville, and one of them was left on the main track in the way of the mail train.

The train approached the obstacle at the rate of 30 miles an hour, and crashed into it before the engineer could reduce the speed of his train.

The engine was completely demolished. A mail clerk named Miller, belonging in New York, was instantly killed, and another mail clerk named Murphy was seriously hurt. Several of the passengers were also injured. The mixed train was in charge of Conductor Charles Keene and Engineer C. A. Bowen.

The New Hampshire Feuds.

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 25.—The National Bank of the Commonwealth suspended payment this morning. This action was decided on at a meeting of the directors last night, and the national comptroller was notified. Its assets and liabilities are about $625,000; deposits, $310,329; capital stock, $250,000. The suspension of the New Hampshire Trust company and Bank of New England precipitated the Commonwealth's suspension.

Is There Cholera at Naples?

LONDON, July 25.—The authorities at Gibraltar declared an eight days' quarantine against vessels arriving from Naples, and this fact suggests the idea that the Italian authorities are holding back information as to the presence of the cholera. The American consul at Naples was questioned by telegraph, and responded that he regretted that he was unable to furnish the desired information.

Echoes of the Memphis Lynching.

MEMPHIS, July 25.—There is a storm of indignation against Sheriff McLendon for his exhibition of weakness Saturday night in turning Coffee over to a drunken mob to be lynched, railroad switchmen and boys. Judge Scruggs has suspended McLendon pending an investigation. The grand jury will be in session today, and it looks as if McLendon will be indicted. Harry Prayser, one of the mob leaders, was arrested.

Killed His Coachman With a Blow.

OSKALOOSA, Wis., July 25.—William Schumacher, coachman for William A. Thompson of Chicago was instantly killed by a blow struck by his employer. Mr. Thompson found his coachman in an altercation with another employee. He interfered and struck Schumacher a blow under the ear, from the effects of which he soon after died.

Dead For Almost a Week.

PATERSON, N. J., July 25.—Mrs. Catherine Bornhäusel, aged 68 years, who had been receiving a small allowance from the poor department, was found dead in her apartments at 316 Main street. It is supposed that her death occurred about the middle of last week as the body was in a badly decomposed state when found.

Powderly Will Practice Law.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The Sun says today that it is declared as good authority that T. V. Powderly is going to resign as general master workman when the general convention of the Knights of Labor meets here. Powderly has been studying law for some time, and is in a position to begin practice in the Pennsylvania courts.

Shot and Dropped Dead.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y., July 25.—George Zirkel, aged 68 years, of 375 Ellery street, Brooklyn, dropped dead at the Woodlawn park picnic ground, two miles from West Brighton. Zirkel's wife and son were with him at the time. A German picnic was in progress, and sharpshooting was going on. Zirkel had just fired a shot.

Living With a Broken Neck.

BALTIMORE, July 25.—Harry Hitchcock has lived five days with a broken neck. His chances for getting well are not good, however. He was hurt by diving from a pier at Fortress Monroe. The injured man was taken to Johns Hopkins hospital for an operation.

Chicago Private Bankers Are Missing.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Bradford & Church, Dearborn street bankers, have closed their institution without even posting a notice. Their whereabouts seem to be known only to themselves. The deposits are said to aggregate between $60,000 and $80,000.

Bavaria's Religious Rules.

MUNICH, July 25.—The condition of King Otto of Bavaria is daily becoming worse. His maladies have become so serious that it is the general belief that his end is near.

A Receiver For Bradley & Co.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 25.—The extensive manufacturing firm of Bradley & Co went into a receivership.

TURKEY MUST ANSWER

For the Inhuman Treatment of an American Missionary.

MISS MELTON CRUELLY BEATEN.

In the Far Off Nestorian Mountains, Alone and at Midnight, She Was Attacked by Unknown Fiendish and Almost Killed. State Department Will Investigate.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Letters were received by the Presbyterian board of foreign missions to this city containing news of an unprovoked attack upon Miss Anna Melton, an American missionary, who was stationed at the time of the outrage in a little village among the Nestorian mountains in Turkey. Miss Melton escaped with her life, but was mercilessly beaten and brained by her assailant.

The letters containing the story of the assault left Urumiah, Armidia, Turkey, June 14 last. A little more than a week before that date the Rev. E. W. McDowell, with his family, in company of Miss Melton, left Mosul, a missionary station in West Persia, to go to Armidia, Turkey, a journey of five days' duration. Having reached their destination in safety, Miss Melton proposed to continue on to the mountain village of Duroe, some miles away. She had received an invitation from the people there to make them a visit, although the route was somewhat dangerous one, Miss Melton went unattended, save by her servant and a native muleteer, who was considered to be wholly trustworthy.

On the night of her arrival she pitched her tent on the roof of a house in the village, as is the custom of that country. The people sleep on the roof about 10 feet from her tent, and members of the family owning the house also occupied places not far away. There was no indication at any time of a hostile feeling on the part of any one against the American. On the contrary, her reception having been most friendly.

A Midnight Assailant.

In the middle of the night, however, she was awakened from a sound sleep by the appearance of a man in her tent. The intruder was armed with a heavy stick. With this weapon he began to attack the defenseless woman, who screamed loudly for assistance. No one came to her aid, however, and she was compelled to defend herself single handed. In some way she was able to break away from her assailant and was bleeding from the feet. The man followed, but in the darkness missed his footing and fell to the ground. At the same time other forms were seen running about, and the sound of firearms was heard from the distance.

No trace could Miss Melton find of the perpetrator of the outrage, who had escaped the roof with her. They had all fled in terror without giving her any help. She was brutally cut about the head and body, and blood was flowing from her wounds to such a degree that her night clothing was saturated. When all had become quiet again, some of the people in the house and others who had heard the first intimation of danger appeared on the scene. Miss Melton managed to dress her injuries herself, and then walked to the house occupied by Amadia, where the others of the missionary band were staying.

A subsequent examination of her tent showed that $100 in gold had been stolen, but robbery was evidently not the purpose of the attack upon her. Mr. McDowell laid the case before the authorities, but was able to obtain but a small measure of satisfaction.

After much insistence on the part of Mr. McDowell an inquiry was instituted by the authorities, but little satisfaction was had. Although there were a dozen or more people within the sound of Miss Melton's cries for help, they profess to have no knowledge that he heard her cries for help.

From this and other circumstances it is believed that the men engaged in the attack were not the robbers. Kurds, but citizens of the place, who had been incited to the deed. It is possible that the origin of the trouble may have arisen in Amadia and that Miss Melton may have been followed from that city, according to the opinion of the members of the board. The matter has been called to the attention of the state department at Washington, and a rigid investigation is likely to insue.

Miss Anna Melton, the victim of the outrage, has been a missionary of the Presbyterian church for many years. She was appointed from Randolph, Ia.

Gaudaur Defeated Hanlan Easily.

ORILLIA, Ont., July 25.—The Hanlan-Gaudaur championship boat race here attracted another large crowd. Hanlan shot to the front like a flash, and was soon leading by a full boat's length. Hanlan kept in front for the first half mile when Gaudaur reduced the lead to a half boat length, and soon spurted by his opponent. When the turn was reached Gaudaur was leading by a boat length, with Hanlan apparently out of it. Gaudaur increased his lead until within a quarter of a mile from the finish, where he stopped rowing and waved his hand in response to the cheers of his friends and backers along the shore. He then made a magnificent spurt and crossed the line an easy winner by seven lengths in 19:38

Beatty Is Arrested Again.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Dennis F. Beatty, the ex-mayor of Washington, N. J., who was indicted and admitted to bail in June for alleged use of the mails for swindling purposes, was arrested here on a bench warrant issued by United States marshals.

A Powder House Blew Up.

HUNTINGTON, Ind., July 25.—Schaeffer & Schaeffer's powder house exploded. Homer Householder and Hugh Harvey were shot. Young with a rifle when a bullet entered a window. Both men were blown clear across the Little river and their bodies torn to pieces. Houses were wrecked all around and several persons were injured.

A Valuable Horse Killed.

NEW YORK, July 25.—A thoroughbred yearling owned by Marshall Keene, was killed while being exercised on the boulevard by a stable boy. It was valued at $4,000.

The Programme of "The News" World's Fair Trip.

The firemen who has received the highest number of votes on August 26, of any member to be in Excelsior, will be entitled to the following privileges, as the wisest of The Evening News' World's Fair prize:

First—A first-class railroad ticket from New York to Chicago and return on any railroad desired.

Second—Good accommodations, room and board (not more than two in a room) in a tenement or family, to select boarding or private quarters in the city of Chicago for six consecutive days, during the Fair.

Third—Transportation for baggage from depot to house assigned.

Fourth—Six admissions to the World's Columbian Exposition.

Fifth—Admission to the "Spectatorium," the Celebration of the Great Discovery; the Dramatic Triumph of the Epoch. Orchestra, 150 pieces. Chorus, 600 voices.

Sixth—A round trip pleasure excursion on Lake Michigan.

Seventh—A visit to Lincoln Park (the finest in America), to the Lincoln and Grant Monuments, Conservatory and Zoological Gardens.

Eighth—Admission to "Moorish Palace," containing over 100 figures, a Palm Garden, the original tableaux of the French Revolution and many Oriental curiosities.

Ninth—Admission to the famous Arctic whaling ship "Progress," built in 1881, fully equipped, containing the finest collection of marine curiosities ever exhibited.

The privileges are obtained and the trip is arranged under the auspices of the World's Columbian Tourist Company, a reputable and solid corporation composed of leading New York farmers, railroad officials and business men, whose advertisement will be found in another column. We have every guarantee that all the advantages named above will be carried out to the letter.

TO CHICAGO IN A BOX.

Lefkovite Went to the Fair as Express Matter.

THE HEAT ALMOST KILLED HIM.

He Was Stored Up From Saturday Night Until Monday Afternoon and When He Came Out He Was Arrested and Taken to Jail—Then He Went to the Hospital.

CHICAGO, July 25.—There was great excitement in Old Vienna, in the Midway plaisance at the World's fair grounds, when a huge box delivered by the American Express company was opened. Out of it jumped a blond young man, dressed in a summer costume of a knit undershirt, knickerbockers and stockings, who frantically waved an Americans flag in his right hand and an Austrian flag in his left.

"I am a Viennese boy, and I greet you all!" he exclaimed, and then asked for a cigarette.

The blond young man was Ignatz Lefkovite. He left 207 Fifth street, New York, at 6 o'clock last Saturday evening in a huge box, coming to Chicago as express matter, marked: "Glass. This side up. Handle with care."

He was much exhausted, having eaten nothing since Saturday, and being forced to endure during the forenoon of yesterday a heat of 150 degrees in the box. He told a reporter shortly after coming out of the box that had he been compelled to endure this temperature for an hour longer he would surely have died.

Lefkovite was at once taken in charge by Mr. Marcus Braun of Old Vienna, and led to a room, where he was given ice to chew and allowed to sleep. Lefkovite is 24 years old. He was born in Vienna and arrived in New York on October last from Vienna.

By trade he is a maker of transparent pictures, and has of late been working with a man named Oppenheimer at 47 Second avenue, New York. He has a brother at 215 East Twelfth street, New York, and has been living at 207 Fifth street with Jan Derbohlaw. He says his brother knew nothing of his contemplated trip to Chicago as express matter.

Traveled With Lots of Cash.

Apart from the fact that Lefkovite ran the risk of being smothered to death en route to Chicago, a still greater danger menaced him. There was money to the amount of $500,000 in the express car in which he traveled, and had the express messenger known there was a man in a box in the car he would have killed him. This the express messenger said himself as he saw Lefkovite jump out of the box in the gateway of Old Vienna.

Lefkovite traveled from New York to Chicago in an ordinary box or packing case, 6½ feet in width, 4 feet in height and 6 feet in length. He purchased it for $1 on Thursday last at a mercantile house in Fourth street, New York, the name of which he cannot recall.

He said: "At first I lined the box sides and ends with straw, over which I nailed bunting representing the Austrian and United States colors. I nailed an American flag also at one end, an Austrian flag at the other and hung a picture of President Cleveland at one side and of Emperor Francis Joseph at the other, and carried a small Austrian and a small American flag with me in case I should need them.

"I put in a small cracker box at one end of the big box in which I placed five loaves, some sugar, four bottles of lemonade, a bottle of vinegar, a small bottle of cognac —which I didn't touch—two bottles of rum, a bottle of coffee, half a pound of tongue, a loaf of bread, nine hard boiled eggs, some sausage and a big piece of ice.

"I also took a thermometer with me in the box and a pillow upon which to rest my head."

The police heard of Lefkovite's arrival late in the afternoon. They arrested him on the charge of disorderly conduct, and he was taken to the Service building, the headquarters of the Columbian guard. As the prisoner appeared to be ill he was sent at once to the Emergency hospital, where he was examined by the physician in charge, who told the police he should not be disturbed, for the less he would get a good night's sleep. He was thereupon taken back to the Woodlawn station and given a good bed.

Few Americans In Siam.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—So far as the state department is informed there are no American citizens residing in Siam except about a score of missionaries. It is not believed to be necessary to take any special measures for their protection. The United States has no diplomatic representatives in Siam, and the consul general at Bangkok, Mr. Boyd, is in this country at present, leaving the office in charge of his son, the vice consul.

MILITIA POISONED.

One Hundred and Forty-five of New Jersey's Citizen Soldiers Very Sick.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 25.—Of the 145 members of the First brigade, New Jersey national guard, now in camp at Sea Girt, N. J., prostrated by a poisonous stuff, the origin of which is not known, all but 20 are out of danger. No deaths have occurred and none are feared.

It is not known just what caused the poison, but it is thought it either occurred from milk or from oxalic acid which may have gathered in the tin cups, which were stored since last summer. Nearly all of the men were taken sick late last night or early this morning.

Many of the men were utterly collapsed, and it required heroic measures to revive them. Most of the men prostrated were members of the Second and Third regiments, Second brigade. Governor Werts has ordered a strict investigation to be made.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

A Funny Bug.

Rebie was down at the end of the ice, close beside the gate leading into the chicken yard. She was watching the little chickens (their mother scratching about crying "clook, clook," and the old rooster busy scratching up bugs and worms for their little folks' dinner.

All at once she spied a queer looking object trailing through the grass at her feet. It had an odd zigzag motion, and in all the five years of her life Rebie had never seen anything like it. She watched it intently, wondering if grandma had ever seen one like it. She would have liked to call grandma to come and see it, only it might go away while she was gone.

Pretty soon it stopped, and Rebie went up close to it and stooped down to look at it. She thought it looked like some pretty ribbon she had seen in the store when she went shopping with mamma, but just then it raised its head straight up in the air and shot toward her a long slender tongue that looked like a little black streak; it moved so fast, at the same time making a little hissing sort of sound.

That frightened Rebie a little, and she jumped up quickly and ran into the house to grandma.

"Oh, grandma," she said, "come out quick and see this funny bug! He goes this way," and she waved her little fat fingers slowly back and forth.

Now grandma was busy and didn't care to go out to look at bugs, but the little girl was so earnest and excited she went with her.

Rebie led her straight to the chicken yard fence, and there, stretched out at full length in the grass, sunning himself, lay a snake.

A viper, John said it was when he brought the hoe and killed it. And when she heard what it was and what if might have done Rebie was very glad the "funny bug" was dead and could do her no harm.

"I guess, grandma," she said afterward, "it was because I said my prayers this morning that he didn't bite me."—Jennie White in Our Little Ones.

An Irresistible Appeal.

A little girl 12 years old was told last year just before the Fourth of July that her papa could not afford to buy any fireworks, but that she and Willie would have to watch the other children. The small brother could quite realized to the fun itable and on the morning of the Fourth marched across the street to watch the other boys fire their torpedoes. But the little girl said, so sadly satisfied. She could not believe at first that it was not all a joke and hunted all over the house for bundles which might suggest firecrackers, but all in vain.

At breakfast nothing was said about any fireworks, and when she was fully convinced that it was not a joke at all, but real truth, and that they were not to have any firecrackers or torpedoes or rockets, she burst into tears and said between her sobs:

"What do you think Samuel Adams and George Washington and John Adams and John Hancock would say if they were alive?"

This was too much for the fond father, who left the table and went out of the house, returning about two hours later with as many firecrackers, torpedoes, rockets, roman candles and fire balloons as he could carry.—Boston Journal.

Daniel Webster's Boyhood.

Webster's early life contradicts the popular notion that sinus is the creature of circumstances. He, on the contrary, made circumstances his creatures. One of his friends, writing after his death, said:

"His school time was much interrupted, and from his own lips I learned that Webster's struggle for an education was continued from his early childhood to his thirtieth year. Every step in advance was contested by obstacles which he met with a lion heart, and with a lion's courage overthrew.

"His books were few at this time. There were a copy of Watts' hymns, a cheap pamphlet copy of Pope's 'Essay on Man,' and the Bible, from which he first learned to read, together with an occasional almanac. He used to say that at the age of 14 he could recite the whole of the 'Essay on Man.'

"Their year is nearly twice as long as ours," said the agent, among other things. "Ah—er—you are sure about that?"

"About what?"

"That is, are you sure that the year in Mars is twice as long as it is here?"

"Oh, certainly!"

"Ah—er—um—then—that is—I suppose a person who is fifty here—er—would be only twenty-five there?"

The color came and went in her face as she heard this question, and she looked as eagerly at the face of the agent as if she were a whole jury whose next words were to decide whether she were to live or die.

"Why, you are right, sure," he said, holding his eyes upon the diagram before him.

"Then I'll take a passage on the very next ship," she replied, "and don't fail to reserve it for me," and she went out with a radiant smile on her face.—New York Tribune.

What the Trouble Was.

Employer—I was sorry to learn, Mr. Jennings, that you were too ill to attend to your duties at the office yesterday. What seems to be the trouble?

Mr. Jennings (blushed, absentmindedly)—Poor batting and no good men in the infield—that is—I mean—

Employer (with great dignity)—I think I understand what you mean, Mr. Jennings. I can't ask a man to work for me any longer who is afflicted that way.—Chicago News-Record.

Too Long.

The most practical lover has been discovered at West Hartlepool, England. In one of his letters to his sweetheart he wrote: "I wish, my darling, that you would not write so much long letters. If you were to bring an action for breach of promise against me the lawyers would copy the correspondence between us and charge fourpence for every folio of seventy-two words. Then shorten the letters the more we save from the lawyers."

He Knew All About It.

One of the men who are always sure and never make mistakes recently stopped at a western hotel. On going to his room for the night he charged the landlord to call him in time for an early train. "Now don't you forget. The 5:30. That's it—5:30 I want."

"But the 5:30"—began the landlord.

"Never you mind anything about the 5:30. I want to get it. You call me in time to get it. That's what you've to do. See?"

"All right," replied the landlord, a little shortly.

At 5 o'clock the next morning there was a tremendous thumping at the door of the man who wanted to rise for the "5:30." A voice from within called "All right!" and the landlord retired to the office.

The traveler soon appeared dressed for the day's journey. As he paid his bill the landlord inquired briefly:

"Getting an early start, hain't ye?"

"No. Always take the 5:30 when I go through here."

"One of the directors of the road?"

"No."

"Superintendent of division, mebbe?"

"No. What are you trying to get at?"

"Nothing. Only the 5:30 was taken off the time table yesterday, and the first regular train doesn't pull out till 9:16. Didn't know but you had official communication with the road, and was going to pull out on a special 5:30 all by yourself. You wouldn't be the first one last night, but p'r'aps hain't as late now."

The man who "knew all about it" walked out of the office without a word, and the landlord called as he said to himself, "In the language of Josh Billings, 'It is better not tew kno so much then tew kno so meany things that hain't so.'" —Youth's Companion.

Influence of Mind Over Matter.

"I am sorry to learn that you are so sick you cannot possibly be in your accustomed place tomorrow morning, Miss Hysee," said the minister's wife condolingly, "and I have hurried over to say that you need not feel the slightest uneasiness about the solo you were to sing in the opening anthem. Mr. Goodman and the chorister have arranged that Miss Gonby shall take the part, and"—

"What!"

The popular soprano of the Rev. Dr. Goodman's church choir at once sat bolt upright in bed.

"What!" she screamed. "That old maid with the cracked voice try to sing my solo! Never!"

With one hand she tore the bandages off her head, with the other she swept the medicines from the side table to the floor, and then she kicked down the coverlets.

"Tell Dr. Goodman and the chorister," she said, in a voice that rang through the house like the silvery tones of a bell, "to notify Miss Gonby she needn't mangle that solo. I'll be there!"—Chicago Tribune.

Not to Be Blushed.

A young saleswoman in a dry goods store, who had just sold a quantity of goods to a lady, asked:

"Will you have the goods sent or take them with you?"

"Do you expect that I am going to carry a bundle like that?" asked the shopper indignantly.

"Oh, no, madam," answered the salesgirl, blushing red as fire, "I supposed your carriage was at the door and that you might prefer to take your purchase with you."

And she scored one on the victorious a'de. —Detroit Free Press.

Wanted to Be Sure.

A few weeks ago a local hackman was summoned to a clergyman's house to convey him to a meeting in another part of the city. On delivering the summons he found another carriage in waiting and an impatient driver walking up and down before the door. The minister came hurriedly down the steps and got into the second hack, and the driver prepared to move off.

"Here, you," called out the prosemending hackman, "what are you taking the minister away for? There's a couple of young folks in there waiting to be married. Why don't he jine 'em before he goes off? I don't want to wait here all night."

The minister's hackman chirruped to his horses without deigning to notice the other man's remarks. He was gone an hour and returned with the clergyman, and lo! the same hackman was pacing up and down in front of the house. He was in anything but an amiable mood.

"If I was running a business I'd 'tend to it," said he as the minister was alighting. "Why don't he marry folks without making 'em wait all night?"

"Ask him," said the clergyman's driver, and the hackman followed the advice.

"Marry them?" exclaimed the clergyman. "Why, I did. I married them a long time ago. Don't they know they are married? I'll go and see why they are waiting."

Soon afterward a blushing bride and a vexed looking groom came out of the house, and as they were getting into the carriage he said to her:

"I told ye we was all fixed."

"Well, George," she replied sweetly, "I wanted to be sure of it."—Lewiston Journal.

A NATURAL MISTAKE.

A Man Who Is Just Getting Married Is Not Like Other Men.

The great bell in the clock tower of a neighboring church pealed the hour of noon. As the sound of the last stroke vibrated through the air the hush of expectancy that had pervaded the modest little parlor was broken by the entrance of the bridal party.

It was no fashionable wedding. No costly but house exotics provided with lavish hand inside the air heavy with their perfume. No richly attired loafers of upper tendom gave to the occasion the eclat of a society event. The bridal party consisted merely of the bride and groom.

Yet this pair had bright expectations. Youth, health and contentment were theirs. A young man in moderate circumstances, but with a good business position and the certain prospect of advancement, the proud and happy groom felt upon his arm the soft pressure of the hand dearest to him in all the world and exulted. And upon the fair face of the bride there was a look of pride, of trustfulness, of timorous joy that almost wholly neutralized the conventional hue of bluish pink which characterized the end of her nose. These two young persons were unreasonably, absurdly, ridiculously happy.

The few yet solemn words that made them one had been spoken. The neighbors and friends who had witnessed the ceremony had crowded about them and offered the sincere congratulations and good wishes that come from the heart and fasten for a time the tongue. In a service of the curious, critical spectators at a wedding in fashion's select circles. The customary tears had been shed and wiped away and the young husband turned to his bride.

"Darling," he said, "it was a pleasing surprise. Where are the musicians concealed?"

"What musicians, Harold?"

"Don't pretend innocence, Mabel. The musicians that have been playing ever since I came here an hour ago and stopped the moment we entered this room together —where are they? Their music was grand, thrilling, overwhelming! I want to see them and thank them for their efforts."

"But Harold, indeed there were no"—

"It was a selection from Wagner, was it not?"

"Harold, dear," said the bride, the clear light of truth shining in her glorious dark eyes, "that noise came from the boiler factory on the other side of the back alley."—Chicago Tribune.

They All Thought.

All the boarders were sitting out on the porch last evening fanning themselves and formulating plans of campaign against the mosquitoes.

"I am just dying of thirst," exclaimed Miss Callagrah, with a significant glance at Mr. Silkesides, who is generally believed to be sweet on her.

"So am I, and not a chip of ice in the house," groaned Miss Snibbs, turning her pleading eyes on Mr. Bubbleye.

Neither of the gentlemen volunteered anything further than that this was "really too awful" and it began to look as if some would have to forego the issue when Jack Ticker cordially invited the ladies over to the drug store.

"What! Not on the Sabbath I hope," exclaimed Miss Archaeologue, frigidly.

And when Silkesides and Bubbleye reached the pious look and exclaimed, "That's what I—I thought," Miss Archaeologue didn't understand that they were her friends for life.—Detroit Tribune.

Made Him Finish.

Hobbins may be too conspicuous. A Boston youth, on a recent trip through Arizona, stopped at a village hotel. When dinner was ready the tall, lank, long haired landlord pointed to the table and said, "Here a chaney, pard." "No, thanks. I never sit down to eat with men who have observed that animals, even swine, stand while eating."

"Weal, pardi. What'd ye git that idee?"

"Excuse me, I never talk when eating. Animals do not. Our artificial way of living is all wrong."

The landlord said nothing, but his cool black eyes flashed and his big mustache moved viciously. After dinner the young man said:

"Now for a bed. Always take a nap after eating. Even swine do that."

Without a word the landlord directed him to a bed. After an hour's nap the young man came into the office, paid his bill and turned to go.

"Hold on, pard!" muttered the landlord, taking off his coat. "Ye don't leave this ranch till ye finish."

"I finish?"

"That's what I said, pard," and he strode up to the Boston youth and seized him by the collar. "Ye air purty, awful purty, but ye air the wust dandy than was ever in these diggin's. Ye eat like a pig, an ye sleep like a pig, an now ye'll squeal like a pig, or I'll make the!"

But the young man "squealed" and was forgiven.—Youth's Companion.

THAT EXISTING EVIL.

THE EXAMINATION OF THE UNDER-GROUND RACEWAY.

By the North Plainfield Board of Health.—Marshal William N. Pangborn's Sworn Statement.—Thirty-one Connections of Sewers Found.

RECENT investigation by the North Plainfield Board of Health exposed such a serious condition of affairs in that locality that the Board at its meeting, held July 10th, voted to send the following communication to the Plainfield Board as already stated in The News:

To the Board of Health of the City of Plainfield:

GENTLEMEN—Public attention has been frequently called of late to the practice of using Green Brook as a sewer. In order to prevent this as much as possible and caused to be removed all connections between water closet, sinks, cesspools or house drains and said brook which existed within the Borough of North Plainfield and we believe that none now exist.

The offensive and noxious odors arising from Green Brook convinced us, however, that the evil still existed, and for the purpose of satisfying ourselves as to the location of the connections we had an examination made of the underground race-way leading from Somerset street along the rear of the Front street property to Grove street. This raceway is entirely within the limits of the City of Plainfield, but it empties into Green Brook at Grove street and matter discharges from it into the brook and is carried within the limits of the borough.

New Jersey, } ss.
Union County, }

William N. Pangborn, being duly sworn on his oath, says that on the night of July 8, 1893, he, together with John Gunn went through and carefully inspected the contents of drains and private sewers the raceway leading from the mill of Palmer M. French on Somerset street, in the City of Plainfield, which empties into Green Brook at Grove street, and the street bridge. That he found, beginning at the line between the property of Mr. Schenck and Mr. Gordon H. Babcock, thirty-one connections of sewers with said race between said division line and Somerset street. These sewers all empty into said raceway. That some of these connections or sewers were not apparently in use at the time of said inspection, but that deponent found unmistakable evidence that that deponent found unmistakable evidence that the same had been used at that time of said inspection connected with and used as outlets from water closets. That he found located in the rear of the new Babcock buildings at least six new connections or sewers with said raceway, at least one of which was at the time in use. That the stench in said raceway from the matter discharged by those sewers was horrible and almost overpowering. That the sewage matter emptied into said raceway from said sewers is naturally carried by the water flowing through said raceway into Green Brook just above Grove street bridge. That the said raceway from the said division line between the Schenck and Babcock property to Somerset street is arched over with brick and stone.

Sworn and subscribed before me this July 7, 1893.

WM. N. PANGBORN.

CHAS. A. REED, M. C. C. of N. J.

Argument is unnecessary to show that regard for the interests of the health of the City and Borough demands that prompt and vigorous measures be at once taken to put an effective stop to this intolerable nuisance.

The matter is at hand and are easily set in motion and effective in operation. By an Act of the legislature approved March 14, 1893 which will be found on page 91 of the laws of 1893 it is provided that if any person shall connect any water closet with any sewer or other means whereby the contents thereof may be conveyed into any brook which runs through, or along the borders of, any city or borough, such person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding two years or both.

It is only necessary that complaint be made before a Justice of the Peace and warrants will issue for the arrest of offenders.

We call the matter to your attention now in order that you may take such steps as may be proper. The dry season is upon use and low water will greatly increase the danger.

We suppose that you will of course act promptly, and that we will not be obliged to institute the proceedings which a due regard for the health of our citizens demands.

Very respectfully,

W. E. HOSTEMAN, President Board of Health.

Dated July 10, 1893.

By order of The Board of Health of the Borough of North Plainfield.

J. H. CARMAN, Secretary.

HAYWARD AND HIS FLAGS.

Judge Coddington Fined Him $40 for Waving Them.

William Hayward, the man who attempted to lead the crowd at the Parmele affray Monday night, was brought up in court again this morning. He was tried and released by Judge Coddington yesterday morning, before Chief Grant appeared to make a charge against him. The Judge supposing that Hayward was merely arrested for drunkenness, fined him $5 and let him go.

In making the charge the Chief stated that Hayward had a flag in each hand. Waving them he called to the crowd to follow him. When arrested, the Chief says, Hayward continued abusing him, cursing and swearing and creating a disturbance. Hayward plead guilty to the charge but said he did not know what he was doing. The fines were given to him, he said, by some one, who told him to wave them. Judge Coddington fined him $40.

If Frank Corbell hadn't pleaded no bard in Hayward's behalf Chief Grant says he would have made a State charge against him.

Putting up the Wires.

Last night, the workmen, who put up the wires for the Street Railway Company, and who has the contract for putting up the wires on Somerset street, arrived in town. They began work this morning, at the Johnston drive end of the line.

THE TAYLOR BOY AFFAIR

IS HE AT HIS MISCHIEF AGAIN.

Vigorous Comments by the Residents of the Vicinity Against what they Style the Hoodlums.

Johnnie Taylor is being made a martyr of.

Several neighbors, say they saw him up on Mr. Parmele's apple tree yesterday afternoon again, notwithstanding the trouble he has caused.

The residents of the neighborhood say that if that element is to be upheld in their unlawful acts in this way then the law-abiding people will be compelled to move away, or take the law in their own hands.

"It is the last drop in the bucket," said one housewife. "We have been persecuted for years by these rowdies, and have been unable to get any redress.

"I have seen them go down on poor old Mrs. Cadmus' place, for instance, and despite her threats and pleadings have stripped her orchard of all the fruit right before her eyes, loading up bags and baskets. They do the same thing every year. Is that right?

"What good does it do to complain?"

"By the time the police get there the thieves are gone. There are not enough policemen to keep them this way.

"Just think of the defiance of that young rascal, to go up Mr. Parmele's tree again, after causing Mr. Parmele so much trouble in simply trying to protect his own property.

"It is just as I said. We have no protection.

"Why a year or so ago one old gentleman here, who had got tired complaining and getting no satisfaction, loaded a gun to take the law in his own hands. He discharged it over the thieves' heads. But they paid no heed to him, remaining up the tree stealing the fruit right before his eyes.

"I understand Mr. Parmele intends to move out of the neighborhood, seeing that he cannot be protected in the peaceful enjoyment of his property. It is a shame.

"I don't see why he don't get out a warrant for the boy's arrest and for the arrest of every one else who has aided and abetted him in wrong-doing.

"With such a state of affairs allowed to exist, what protection is there for we women and our children."

Mr. John H. French, the miller, who lived in the neighborhood for several years, is vigorous in his denunciation of those who he says are known in the ward as the "hoodlums."

He went on Mr. Parmele's bond last night for $200 when the latter was arrested again on a warrant by Justice Nash on complaint of Mr. Taylor. Mr. Parmele was released pending to await the action of the grand jury.

Here is what another citizen of the Fourth Ward has to say of the matter:

"The Parmele incident is only the culmination of a long series of wrongs which powerful people in the Fourth Ward have been subjected to for years.

"It is high time something was done to afford sufficient police protection to that section of the city.

"The stories told by the residents there are enough to excite the indignation of every decent citizen.

"There are a lot of hoodlums who imagine they can indulge with impunity in such unlawful acts as stealing chickens, eggs, fruit, and whatever else is in reach.

"And it is by no means the small boy who does all these things, but big, lazy loafers, who not only are thieves themselves but lead the boys into similar and worse practices.

"They usually get in out-of-the-way places off from street on Sundays, with a keg of beer, and gamble for money, when other people are respecting the day as it should be.

"It is some of these big, ill-mannered ruffians, who have frequently run Mark's back alone and the banks, near the roadway, in full view of the homes of peaceful people, regardless of their protest.

Another informs us that he has seen these fellows, after their indecent exposures, steal eggs and cook them in full view of the people they were stolen from.

The police have raided the places several times, but these raids have only served to make the scamps more vigilant.

So it will be seen that the people have good cause for complaint, and the good name of the city demands that such things be stopped, and that such scenes as occurred Monday night be not repeated in such a law-abiding community as Plainfield.

BREVITIES.

A Coachman's Society.

A meeting was held on Fourth street, Monday night, by a number of coachmen in this city and borough, for the purpose of forming a Coachmen's Society. Officers were elected and preliminary steps taken to form a permanent beneficial organization.

Scott's Building a Press for the Chicago "Herald."

The Scott Press Works have now under way, a large, new model press for the Chicago Herald. It is one of the largest of its kind and takes up less floor space than other presses of the same capacity. It takes two double rolls of paper at a time and will print twenty-four thousand of six, eight, ten or twelve page papers per hour. It will be able to print twelve thousand 16-page papers per hour. A 48 page paper can be printed on it at one time. The press will carry forty-eight plates at one time.

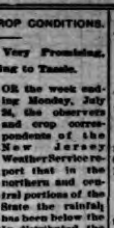
Several more of the night gang, which was laid off recently, have been taken back on the day gang. They are now running a full number of men.

Rode to Camp on their Wheels.

Ambrose Smalley, William Lyons and several other young men have gone for a camping expedition at Lake Hopatcong. They will probably remain two weeks. The party started from here to ride the entire distance on their bicycles.

WEATHER AND CROP CONDITIONS.

Corn Now Looks Very Promising, and is Beginning to Tassle.



OR the week ending Monday, July 24, the observers and crop correspondents of the New Jersey Weather Service report for the northern and central portions of the State the rainfall has been below the average and unevenly distributed, the amounts ranging from 0.05 to 0.98 inch in the northern, and from trace to 0.82 inch in the central portion. In these sections warm, sunshiny days and warmer nights have been very helpful to corn, which now looks most promising and is beginning to tassel, but still a good soaking rain would benefit it and all other crops. The second crop of clover in some districts is reported very promising, while in others it is in a critical condition owing to a lack of moisture. The cut harvest has commenced and is progressing nicely. The yield on low lands will be a good one, while on high shale lands it will be very short. Orchard fruits are in a very promising condition although apples are reported as dropping badly in a few localities.

CLARK TOWNSHIP—The weather for the past week has been very warm and dry. No rain since the 15th, consequently all kinds of crops are suffering.

EDGAR L. SMITH.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD—It has been a very nice week of showers and sunshine and good growing weather. All things are looking good now and farm work is going along nicely; most all crops are in clear cultivation and all right. P. C. JOHNSON.

A WAYWARD GIRL.

She Wouldn't Mind Her Mother.—Probably She Will the Judge.

A fourteen-year old girl, who, her mother said, was wayward, and wouldn't mind her, was arrested in Stiger's alley last night by Policeman Lynch. The mother said she didn't want anything done to her. She simply wanted the Judge to give her good advice.

The Judge did this in a forcible manner, and told the girl if she didn't mind her mother and stay home nights he would have her placed in the Industrial School as Truant.

When Policeman Kiely said he saw her on the street at two o'clock in the morning she replied: "Oh, Mr. Kiely, I don't like to contradict you, but I have never been out that late." She promised to reform and was dismissed.

PERSONAL.

Frederick J. Lefferty started to-day for Belmar.

Miss Minnie Warren of this city is visiting at Mrs. Calhoun's, at New Market.

Mrs. John Darby, accompanied by her daughter Edith, are at Ocean Grove for a few weeks.

Miss Abbott of Rahway, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Winfield S. Terry, has returned home.

Among those who have recently left the city for the seashore is H. J. Owens. He has gone to Ocean Grove.

Mrs. Carrie Schorb, son and daughter, of this city are visiting at the residence of Mrs. H. Marsh, Lewis street, Rahway.

Mr. David Van Bosterck of Second street, who is employed at the Singer Works, at Elizabethport, is home for a few days.

The Misses Tickner, with their mother, Mrs. Agnes, have just returned from a delightful sojourn at Saratoga Springs and Mt. McGregor, New York.

Mrs. Charles Glaentzer of New street, accompanied by her children and Miss Lillie Lang are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Debele of Rock avenue, Evans.

Miss Mary Squier of Rahway street went fishing in Tier's Lake, yesterday, and succeeded in catching a bass which weighed one pound and nine ounces, and was 13½ inches in length.

Mr. Patrick Lawler's daughter, Maggie, says that her father did not wave any flags as charged by the police, but that it was another man. She says she saw the whole thing. Mr. Lawler was, however, arrested and fined $6 for the offense charged against him.

FIRST IT WAS FIRE.

And Then Cows Troubled Mr. John Brenmer.

Mr. John Brenmer of Greenbrook road was in "heaps of trouble" last night. At about seven o'clock it was discovered that the house was on fire. Mr. Brenmer happened to be home, and he soon extinguished it. The fire started between the ceiling and the upper floor. It caught from a hot stove pipe.

During the night three cows belonging to a relative got into Mr. Brenmer's garden and destroyed his vegetables considerably. He tied the cows to the fence, but released them on the advice of Marshal Pangborn, who told him to leave the damage appraised. Messrs. Renne Hess and G. Sutterlin appraised the damage at $10. Mr. Brenmer said he would take it, which was paid.

EDITORIAL NOTES

American Carelessness.

We have two object lessons on this subject recently. One is the terrible blaze on the World's fair grounds, in which brave firemen and several other persons lost their lives—victims of American carelessness. The cold storage building had been reported unsafe by one of the very men who was burned to death. He was uneasy about it. Others connected with the fire department had complained of it too. The inside was reported to be a "perfect pile of kindling wood." But nothing was done. With that happy go lucky American spirit which takes desperate risks it was let alone, and the disaster followed which will live in the memory of those who witnessed it as a ghastly horror the rest of their days. It was not an accident: it was a crime. Only for the direction of the wind all the buildings on the ground might have burned.

The other illustration of American carelessness comes from China. It is known that some time since the Chinese collector of customs at Amoy refused the admission to that port of American kerosene. "It is a measure of retaliation for the Geary exclusion act," immediately cried the knowing ones. Later advices prove that it was nothing of the kind. American kerosene shipped to Amoy was packed so badly that the collector did not think it safe to admit the inflammable material to that port any longer. The Amoy customers now take Russian oil, though of an inferior quality to ours, because it is safely packed. Dr. Bedloe, the American consul at Amoy, writes that in two years not a cargo of our kerosene has arrived at that port which did not contain more or less broken and leaky cans. Nails are driven through the boxing into the tin of the cans with the utmost recklessness, and boxes and tins are broken, leaving the dangerous liquid and gases to escape.

What a Frenchman Says of Us.

The correspondent of the Paris Figaro at the World's fair does not like us or anything in America. This is very sad. The gentleman describes even the throngs at the fair in a way that is not flattering to us. He writes of an American crowd:

The Midway plaisance is enormous and appreciatively melancholy in spite of the instruments of torture which are continually in full sadness is one of the leading characteristics of American crowds, whose slow, monotonous and silent movements give even to the places they pass through the melancholy appearance which belongs to all their feasts, without smiles, without flowers, without gayety and without music. They move along like a procession of Quakers. They have no idea of frolics, no shouts, no fun. The dead silence that marks their promenade makes one think of the promenade of the pupils of some deaf and dumb institution. Nothing arouses them from the torpor in which the joyous spirit and the ringing laugh of a nation are entirely wanting. The thing is oppressive. The people who come to visit our Parisian cemeteries on All Saints' day are less distracted. We do not seize, exhibit more cheerfulness and communicative gayety than can be found in the very liveliest sections of this singular World's fair, this veritable campo santo of American quality.

The correspondent would doubtless think more of us if we raised riots and mobs, built barricades across our streets and stoned and clubbed policemen and tried to precipitate a political revolution about every six months. Then we would be lively and, resemble a French crowd. We are sorry, but fear we cannot accommodate the correspondent of the Paris Figaro.

The Socialist party has been in the majority for some years in the Paris municipal council. This council founded the establishment frequently alluded to during the Paris riots as the labor exchange. It was intended as the headquarters of the various trades unions; also to serve the purpose of an intelligence office for unemployed laborers. Common councils in America do not provide clubrooms for trades unions or intelligence offices for workmen out of employment, but this seems to have been quite the right thing to do in the judgment of the Paris city council. Not only was the labor exchange founded by the council, but a large sum of city money was voted yearly to maintain the establishment. Its enemies charge that it is the source and center of all manner of wild political propaganda, a regular school for fostering hatred of civil government. It has always defied the French government at any rate, refusing to make its members register their names and address in accordance with the national law requiring trades union members to be so registered. When therefore the national government closed this concern, a great howl went up.

After all, and as always, it is the farmers who are going to bring this country up from its financial depression. For the year ending June 30, 1892, our agricultural exports, chiefly breadstuffs, amounted to nearly $100,000,000 less than for the corresponding year ending June 30, 1892. But now Europe is short of breadstuffs, there is a great demand for American wheat, it is already on the increase. The grain for it must come back to this country, gold will flow in, the money situation will be relieved, all will be well, and even farmers may be happy yet.

Surgeon General Wyman says: "We have an even chance of escaping cholera altogether this year. Should it arrive, it certainly cannot become terrible."

THE FINANCIAL CRISIS.

Phases of the Money Trouble; East, West and South.

NEW YORK BIMETALLISTS MOBBED.

Rough Turned a Meeting Into a Small Riot—Indianapolis Panic—Many Western Banks Go Down—New England Factories Closed.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Two hours of disgraceful uproar kept guests of the Fifth Avenue hotel in a state of alarm. The noise all proceeded from Parlor F, where the meeting under the auspices of the Silver club had been extensively announced to be held. Loud bursts of shouting followed by peals of derisive laughter occurred at very short intervals, and the character of the howling showed that many of the participants in the meeting had lost their tempers and their wits. The respectable business men began to leave the room in a hurry, but the crowd grew thicker and illtempered.

Finally the management of the hotel ordered the electric lights turned out. For 20 minutes afterward knots of excited disputants angrily refused to leave the chamber and several times turned on the lights only to at once call down upon them the maledictions of others. A number of those who were prominent among the tough element were noticeably under the influence of liquor.

After all the row was over it was perfectly apparent that the meeting had been purposely broken up by a gang who did not want it to succeed. Silver men and boasted that they represented the Industrial Alliance. A member of the Populist party gave their history:

"It is the Carey-Keogh gang," he said, "just before the last election. Those fellows who had come following among the labor element, formed what was called the Republican Industrial alliance. They were recognized by the labor organizations, though, and when they made trouble were kicked out. Populism was utterly discarded. They represented to the silver clubs of the west that they had some power here, but failed to get money out of them. This is their revenge. They pulled the leg of the Republicans last election and thought they could do it again."

A milder factor of the disturbance was a handfull of self styled Populists who were sore because the meeting was not held under the direct auspices of their party. The last straw consisted of the general feeling of derision which vented itself among the majority of the people present. The silver men could not make a speech at all. The disorderly element was not at first apparent, but asserted itself with overwhelming force when the resolutions were launched upon the meeting.

The Indianapolis Panic.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 26.—The Indianapolis National bank, capital $300,000, closed its doors. For some days rumors have been current that the bank was shaky. That bank was in trouble, and those rumors have had the effect of starting a quiet run upon it, which, quiet though it was, has depleted the bank's cash. The Indianapolis National bank is one of the oldest and has been one of the most flourishing banks in Indianapolis for the entire west. The excitement in the city was of a decided nature on when it was announced that the Bank of Commerce had also failed.

While the Indianapolis National bank was a United States depository, but $3,-639.98 was tied up. Pension Agent Ensley said that he would be course to draw checks on the suspended national. Aug. 4 will be pension day, and the office will pay out nearly $3,000,000.

"At our last payment we checked out nearly $200,000 from the Indianapolis National," said Mr. Ensley.

Cashier Rexford said the bank statement published at the close of business July 12 would afford the best information as to the status of debits and credits that could be given until the government officer who would take charge should make his report.

Mr. Rexford was asked if the withdrawal of funds by country banks was not largely responsible for the suspension.

"The stringency of the times," he replied, "has greatly reduced these balances. At this time in the year they have heretofore been large, the country banks having with us from $400,000 to $600,000. Now that balance is very small. Of course, $300,000 is all over government money, which is secured by bonds to the amount of $325,000."

Already public confidence in the banks is rapidly being restored, as all the other banks were prepared for such an emergency. Their policy has been to keep strong in reserve cash which has for two months or more never have been less than 20 per cent of the liabilities. It is said that the failure of the Indianapolis National bank to keep strong in its reserve cash inspired the distrust that resulted in its failure. It is believed that two factories will be carried down with the failure of the Indianapolis National.

The Flurry In Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, July 26.—A memorable day in the history of Louisville has just passed. The Merchants' National bank posted a notice of suspension, and half an hour later the failure of the Louisville Deposit bank was announced.

By this time half a dozen banks in the city were being run on by depositors—mostly small sums. They all stood the pressure except one—the Fourth National bank, which closed its doors in the board of trade building. Excitement was running high, and every one of half a dozen banks was crowded with depositors, who were in line waiting their turn with the paying teller.

The first failure of the present crisis was that of the Kentucky National bank on Saturday. That made the Louisville City National bank Monday, after the intervention of a Sunday holiday, and then the Merchants' bank, the Louisville Deposit and Fourth National.

Receivers For the Erie.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The New York, Lake Erie and Western railroad has gone into the hands of receivers. They are John King, president of the company, and J. G. McCullough, one of the directors.

Judge Lacombe of the United States circuit court made the appointments. His action was taken at the request of the executive committee under the authority granted by the board of directors. The difficulties presented by the floating debt of the road are assigned as the reasons for the decision of the officers.

The Erie's floating debt and the ability of the road to carry it in these times of financial stringency have worried Wall street greatly for several weeks. Estimates of it have ranged from $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 upward.

It has been generally believed that comparatively little of this floating debt was with the banks. Two or three individual capitalists have been credited with holding the bulk of it, but a large amount, it is said, represents obligations to men of Erie who have furnished supplies to the road, and whose claims have been allowed to run on.

New England Factories Shut Down.

CONCORD, N. H., July 26.—Holden's woolen mills, at West Concord, and Pemberton mill stopped operations Thursday for three weeks on account of lack of orders.

WARE, Mass., July 26.—The Otis company's cotton mills in this town will shut down Saturday for one month on account of being unable to find a market for their product.

LOWELL, Mass., July 26.—Work at Pilling's shoe factory is being finished up preparatory to a temporary shut down, made necessary by the stringency of the money market and the numerous failures in the west, where the greater portion of Pilling's customers are.

An Echo of the Foster Failure.

PEVDLAY, O., July 26.—The Farmers' National bank, one of the popular local institutions of the city, closed its doors because of inability to realize upon its assets, and the comptroller of the treasury was at once notified to take the bank in charge. It is the belief of the directors that they will be able to pay depositors dollar for dollar. Ever since the failure of ex-Secretary of the Treasury Foster's Citizens' Savings National has been drawn upon heavily by its depositors.

Senator Stewart's Strong Language.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The World prints today an interview with Senator Stewart of Nevada, in which he is credited with saying: "I have no doubt the Sherman silver law will be repealed. The country is going to hades. I had hoped to help in warding off the catastrophe, but the Democrats and many Republicans, too, seem to have gone crazy.

Canadians Flee From Hard Times.

MONTREAL, July 26.—The late exodus of French-Canadians to New England has been converted to a New England exodus to Canada. They are coming in thousands from Lowell, Lynn, Manchester and other places in Massachusetts and New Hampshire. The mills are closing, times are hard, and they can get no work in the states.

Transferring Deposits to Canadian Banks.

HAMILTON, Ont., July 26.—City bank managers report that a large amount of money has been received from American cities during the past few days to be deposited in banks here. A deposit of $40,000 was received from a woman living in Buffalo, she having withdrawn that amount from a bank in that city.

Run on Tacoma Banks.

TACOMA, July 26.—As soon as the banks opened there was a steady stream of depositors to withdraw their money at nearly all the prominent banks. They, however, paid promptly all demands.

A Big Liquor Dealer Suspends.

LOUISVILLE, July 26.—Jake Schwartz, the liquor dealer, announced that he had suspended. His assets are $700,000. He is a brother of Moses Schwartz, president of the assigned Louisville Deposit bank.

New Features of the English Labor War.

LONDON, July 26.—A new feature was added to the impending struggle between the miners' federation and the Lord Overs' association. As is well known the Miners' federation is now taking steps to fight against the proposed reduction of 25 per cent in wages, the end being made by the mine owners to bring wages back to where they were some time ago before advances were conceded to the men. The Northumberland miners have asked for an advance of 10½ per cent in their wages, and the Durham miners asked for an advance of 15 per cent.

Charged With Embezzlement.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 26.—Hugh D. Magee, proprietor of the Worcester Dispatch, was arrested on the complaint of Dr. Edward E. Frost, a well known dentist, and proprietor of the Lincoln House and Exchange hotel in this city. The charge is that on July 1 Magee threatened to accuse Dr. Frost of a crime for the purpose of obtaining money.

A New Railroad Organized.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The New York, New England and Northern Railroad company organized by electing A. A. McLeod, president; W. K. Niver, vice president, and H. G. Chesebrough, secretary. This road is intended to bring the New York and New England railway into this city.

Dragged to Death by a Stay Rope.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 26.—Isaac Harvey of Vestal Center was killed while raking hay in a field. The horses attached to the rake became frightened and ran away. Mr. Harvey fell under the wheels and was dragged some distance. Death was almost instantaneous.

Careless of Yellow Fever.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—In consequence of gross carelessness on the part of the local authorities, which nearly caused an epidemic of yellow fever, the Marine hospital service has assumed control of the quarantine service at Brunswick, Ga.

Says Wine a Potion.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Judge Bookstaver denied the motion of the plaintiff's attorney in the suit of Delia Keegan against Benedict Lange asking the vacation of the order extending defendant's time to serve an amended answer.

Settling Lehigh Valley Grievances.

AWAITS THE BLOCKADE.

Bangkok May Not Be Bombarded by the French Fleet.

SIAMESE LOOK HELPLESSLY ON.

The Forts Will Be Attacked and the Royal Palace Occupied—The Gunboats Taking Their Positions—The Mandarin Party In China Urge Interference.

BANGKOK, July 26.—M. Pavie, French minister resident, started down the river yesterday afternoon on the warship Inconstante, accompanied by the warships Lutin and Comete. All is quiet in this city.

The pilots of the French gunboats state that they will anchor at the Deep Pool cave, outside the fortifications, and will cross the bar today.

Great uncertainty exists as to what will happen if the blockade begins today. Representatives of neutral powers have received no official notice of the blockade, and neutral vessels expect ample time to leave the river. The British residents will request the British minister, Captain Jones, to complete measures for defense in case the dangerous classes, deprived by the blockade of employment, attempt to rise and loot the city.

The troops arranged already that leading parties from foreign gunboats shall occupy strategic positions. The Siamese probably also will quarter a detachment of troops in the most populous quarters. The government has issued a proclamation warning the populace to behave peaceably and refrain from attacking foreigners.

At 11 o'clock last night the French vessels passed the mouth of the Menam river and exchanged salutes with the Siamese forts.

The Siamese cabinet is far from realizing the critical nature of the situation. The members attend their ordinary amusements as if no crisis existed. The royal family is helpless to face the present difficulties. Only energetic measures from Europe can prevent a complete collapse.

It is stated unofficially that the blockade will not be confined to the estuary of the Menam, but that the rivers east and west also will be blockaded. Rear Admiral Humann will occupy an island 18 miles from the Menam. It is reported also that there are 2,000 troops in Bombard Bangkok, although the batteries on both sides of the river at Paknam and on the island in midstream will be destroyed. The royal palace, where 12,000 soldiers are believed to be massed, will be attacked and occupied.

The French Cabinet Meet.

PARIS, July 26.—A cabinet council was held at Marly-le-Roi, where President Carnot is temporarily sojourning. M. Carnot presided at the deliberations, which were entirely devoted to the Siamese question.

After the council rose a semiofficial statement of the proceedings was issued. This statement says that the government has the unanimous vote of the senate and the chamber of deputies, the government had taken steps to safeguard the just interests and dignity of France, and were considered from Siam's reply to the French ultimatum to have been rendered necessary. The council decided to have called on M. Develle, minister of foreign affairs, and explained the Chinese government's views of the Franco-Siamese dispute.

Mandarins Urge Interference.

TIEN-TSIN, July 26.—The Chinese government has received the views of France's territorial demands upon Siam with amazement and indignation. That France should lay claim to a country up to the twenty-first parallel is regarded as an intrusion upon the rights of China, for at Pekin the contention is that both banks of the Mekong to a point well south of the twenty-first parallel belong to the Celestials. The Mandarin party, which is bitterly anti-French, is trying to force the government to interfere.

More French Warships Coming.

SAIGON, July 26.—The division of the far east of the French fleet, which is commanded by Admiral Humann, sailed for the gulf of Siam. The merchant vessels lying off Bangkok probably will receive time to enter before the blockade is made the Menam river and put out to sea.

A Move In Honolulu Affairs.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 26.—News from Honolulu says that Minister Blount has concluded his report on Hawaiian affairs, and it will be ready to be sent probably forward it to Washington by the steamer Australia, which was to sail July 19. It is reported he has given the provisional government to understand that nothing will be done until he sends back his report, which may be acted upon during the extra session of congress in August. The opinion prevails in official circles that after receiving Minister Blount's report President Cleveland will consult ex-President Harrison's treaty of annexation or some modification thereof to the senate.

Train Wreck Through a Trestle.

ST. LOUIS, July 26.—A north bound freight train on the St. Louis, Chicago and St. Paul railroad, consisting of 16 local freight cars, crashed through a trestle near Pettis Station, spilling the entire train in a heap. Conductor W. E. Burrell, of Springfield, Ills., was instantly killed and Brakemen Charles Johnson and W. A. Clements were badly hurt. Engineer Hawley of Springfield were probably fatally injured.

Suit to Stop the Use of a Song.

PORTLAND, Me., July 26.—In the United States circuit court on appeals a suit in equity brought by David Lindeman, the Chicago theatrical manager, against Eugene Tompkins of the Boston theater, Boston, was argued by counsel. The is a suit to stop the use of the topical song, "I Wonder if Dreams Come True," now being sung in "Babes in the Wood." Decision was reserved.

A Leak In the Chinese Wall.

EL PASO, July 26.—It has been discovered that from 20 to 30 Chinamen are entering this city nightly from Juarez, Mexico. Mexican customs officials of Chinamen pass through here from San Francisco in bond for Cuba. From Cuba they are transported to Vera Cruz and from there enter ports on the Rio Grande border.

CHOLERA AT NAPLES.

Many Immigrants Are Preparing to Leave There For America.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Surgeon General Wyman received the following dispatch from Assistant Surgeon O. R. Young of the Marine hospital service, stationed at Naples:

Cholera prevails. Condition is worse. A large number of immigrants are preparing for America. Isolation on shore is impossible. Authorities refuse to permit detention on board. Passengers are transferred from train to ship, and isolation on the way imperfect.

To this dispatch Dr. Wyman has sent the following answer:

Refuse bill of health unless all regulations are complied with. Inform companies full fine will be imposed without the bill.

So long as cholera or other contagious or infectious epidemic disease prevails in Naples or its vicinity the marine hospital service will not permit immigrants from that port to land in this country unless steamship companies comply with the regulations for safety issued by the secretary of the treasury. As these regulations require the erection of barracks in which the immigrants must be maintained for five days prior to sailing and the disinfection of clothing and effects of immigrants, it is not probable that the United States will have any immigrants from Naples for some time to come.

Speaking of the matter, Dr. Wyman said: "The facilities for carrying out the treasury regulations do not exist at Naples, and the bills of health therefore cannot be granted and ships cannot bring immigrants."

CRIME IN PIKE COUNTY.

Belcher's Vengeance Overtook the Moonshiner Who Eloped With His Wife.

CATTLESBURG, Ky., July 26.—Another murder is reported from Pike county. The perpetrator of the crime was John W. Belcher and his victim Dick Hall, a noted moonshiner. It seems Belcher and his wife had a separation and that Hall, though a married man himself, was eloping with Mrs. Belcher. They started with a 5 months'-old infant, but on their way they left it in some place.

Belcher hearing of the elopement started in pursuit of the parties and overtook them near the Cumberland mountains. He asked his wife the whereabouts of the child. She refused to tell him, whereupon he knocked her down, and as soon as he had done this Hall leaped to his defense. Belcher raised up and drawing his revolver fired at Hall, hitting him in the side. Hall fell, and Belcher held the pistol to his head and fired again, killing him instantly. He then took his wife and made his escape.

Turkey Hastens to Apologize.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The department of state has not yet received a complaint in the case of Miss Melton, the American missionary who was abused in Kurdistan, but it appears that either Mr. Terrell, the American minister at Constantinople, or the Turkish government has anticipated and forestalled a protest. A cablegram was received from the minister saying that the Turkish government has done all in its power to protect American missionaries in Kurdistan and to punish the robbers who perpetrated the outrage on Miss Melton.

Revolutionary Redoubt Rebuilded.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 26.—The seventy-ninth anniversary of the battle of Lundy's lake was celebrated on the old battleground near here by the reinterment of a number of the remains of members of the Royal Scotts and the Eighty-ninth regiment of General Drummond's command in the English army, which had been unearthed while excavations were being made to build an observatory on these grounds. There were several thousand people present from various parts of Canada, and many addresses were made by prominent Canadians.

YOUNG WOMEN USHERS.

A Novel Scheme to Be Tried In a Brooklyn Church.

DESIGNED TO ATTRACT YOUNG MEN

Pastor Fray Thinks That With Girls to Show Them Seats the Boys Will Come Inside Instead of Waiting on the Steps Outside—Tonight There Will Be a Trial.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The Duryea Presbyterian church, in Clermont avenue, Brooklyn, is just now in the throes of a social problem. The pastor, Rev. John R. Fray, has grappled with the question in a muscular fashion, which does credit to both his head and his heart, and he thinks he has arrived at a practical solution.

The problem is simply this: How shall we proceed to get the young men of the Duryea Presbyterian church to take an active part in the services, and how shall we break them of the pernicious habit of arriving on the church curbstone just as the minister is pronouncing the benediction?

The matter came up for discussion at an informal meeting of the Young People's association of the church last Sunday evening.

All hands agreed that the young ladies did all the work in the church and were invariably in the majority at the various services of a purely devotional character. It was sorrowfully admitted that sociables and strawberry festivals were popular with the young men and that they would attend them and enjoy the practice.

Then Dr. Fray suggested the large and intelligent audience of ladies present. He asked them to aid him in bringing the young men into the church's devotional services by themselves acting as ushers.

There were several suppressed screams at this extraordinary suggestion, but when it had had a little time to settle the ladies began to fall in with the idea. They ended by embracing it enthusiastically. Every fair one wanted to be an usher.

The Girls Grew Enthusiastic.

"Shall we wear badges, Mr. Fray?" asked the prettiest girl in the church.

"How shall we treat strange young men?" inquired a modest miss of 16.

"I really couldn't think of addressing a strange gentleman without an introduction," remarked a lady whose experience in such matters gave her opinions much weight.

Mr. Fray assured them that all that was required was sweet dignity and ordinary politeness. They were not to think themselves obliged to marry a man simply because they had escorted him to a pew on a Sunday evening.

There were not, of course, to show sanctity to secret good looking young men and neglect the homely or poorly dressed. They were, in short, to be kinder to the ugly ones than to the Apollos.

This was the state of affairs on Sunday evening. Enthusiasm cools rapidly, however, in these matters, and most of the ladies who were burning to be ushers two days before had shunted aside up their minds that the undertaking was not to their liking. Only two held the fort, Miss Cora Cassaday and Miss Aletta Johnson, but as they are a host in themselves the project stands a fair chance of succeeding.

The first trial of the lady ushers will occur tonight at a rally of the Christian Endeavorers, which is to be held in the church building. Miss Cora Cassaday and Miss Aletta Johnson will seat the audience, and young men will be cordially welcomed. The Rev. Mr. Fray says he thinks the plan is worth a fair trial. He freely admits he is unable to attract the young men by ordinary methods.

"In many of the churches," said he, "the sermon is too long and too full of doctrine to interest the average young man. There is not at present enough sociability in the church. There should be less dry sermonizing and more work among the people. I want to see if the young women ushers can accomplish anything. If not I will try something else."

THE DEVIL'S POINT WRECK.

Several of the Injured Unmistakable Are Not Expected to Live.

KENT, O., July 26.—A nasty rear-ended, rotten ties, a heavy loaded train and fast running over a sharp curve were the causes which combined to form the Devil's Point wreck. The ill fated train was a through excursion train from Washington to Chicago, carrying nearly 600 passengers. Three rear coaches left the track and were precipitated down a 10 foot embankment, seriously injuring 28 people. Fortunately no one was killed outright, but it is expected several will die. Two of the coaches went to the bottom up, and that the passengers escaped with their lives seems almost phenomenal. Many were pinned fast under the wreck, while others were unconscious from the blows sustained for as much as 20 minutes. The injured are:

Henry F. Hein, Philadelphia, back sprained; N. P. Byers, Coshocton, Pa., serious cut on head; William M. Morrow, Philadelphia, head cut and back hurt; Lewis Stone, Baltimore, left leg cut and bruised; James D. Miles, Baltimore, back sprained; Frank White, Lafayette, Pa., slightly cut; Mrs. Frances Mc. Fife White, Lafayette, Pa., shoulder dislocated; I. R. Murdock, Washington, severe scalp wound; F. O. Stuart, Vienna, Fairfax county, Va., slightly injured; Dr. J. R. Allen, Baltimore, arm and ribs broken; W. A. Mode, Washington, back injured; E. C. Mack, Washington, wounded in head; Mrs. Maggie Cox, Washington, internal injuries and arm broken; Mrs. Mary F. Smith, Washington, severe scalp wound and bruised; Mrs. Lola Hunt, Baltimore, head cut; Anna Miller, Washington, hurt about head, arms and side; Lillian Cleaver, Washington, D. C., contused; Isabel Forbes, Camden, N. J., head cut; H. E. Miss, Camden, N. J., cuts on head and hands; Mrs. Stuart, Baltimore, injured about breast and head; Mrs. Lena Simpson, cut about head. With Mrs. Simpson were three children.

A BEHRING SEA RUMOR.

Report That the Commission Had Decided In Favor of Uncle Sam.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—A rumor reached Washington that the arbitrators in the Behring sea controversy between the United States and Great Britain, who have been in session at Paris since March listening to arguments in the case, had decided in favor of the United States.

No confirmation nor denial of the report could be had here, as Second Assistant Secretary Adee, who is in charge of the state department in the absence of Secretary Gresham, is at his country place in Maryland.

It was learned, however, that some of the officials of the department did not leave the building until 7 o'clock last evening, which may or may not be of significance in this connection. But little credence was given to the rumor.

Terrible Work of a Suicide.

CLEVELAND, July 26.—Word has just been received of the terrible suicide of a grapegrower named Fred White at his farm three miles east of Hucild creek. With his wife and child he was visiting his parents who live a few rods from his home. Without warning he suddenly seized his aged mother and buried her throat in the room. Then he cut his old father by the throat and choked him until he was black in the face. White's wife pulled him away, and seizing his little child he started for his own home. Before the two women succeeded in dragging her away from him. He proceeded to his house, got a shotgun, killed his pet cat with one shot and then in the sight of his family blew off the top of his head with the charge in the other.

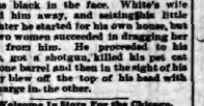
LONDON, July 26.—The naval officers at Portsmouth are preparing a welcome shortly for officers of the United States cruiser Chicago, which is expected to arrive at that port shortly.



FLORAL NOVELTIES.

Corsage Clusters, a Fete Sunshade and a Bridesmaid Bag.

Decidedly novel and altogether attractive are some of the latest floral arrangements, for ball, evening and fete dress. The cluster of orchids and foliage represented in the first figure is designed to be worn across the front of the bodice instead of extending in the old fashion, from shoulder to bust. A combination of tones, varying from green to purple, is very effective on a light colored ball dress bodice.

FLOWER CLUSTERS FOR THE CORSAGE.

The cluster of three white roses with foliage is also to be worn in the manner of the bodice and represents a dainty bridal fancy.

A pretty idea for bridesmaids takes the form of what is called a "Marie Antoinette bag." This is supplied with a cord to go on the arm like a reticule and can be made of any dainty material in any color preferred. Mauve silk, with ribbons and cords of the same color, was used in a bag recently made, which was filled entirely with mimosa blooms.

The greatest novelty to be noted is a flower sunshade. This is trimmed along the ribs with roses matching as nearly as can be the color of the sunshade, and when closed has the appearance of a large elongated bouquet.

THE HOUSEHOLD

A DINING ROOM TO BE DESIRED.

Convenient, Comfortable and a Becoming Background to People and Toilets.

That eating and drinking are an enjoyment few people will deny. But to enjoy satisfying the cravings of the inner man one must be convenient, comfortable and practical. To make it so is the duty of the mistress of the house.

The dining room must be so disposed that for two persons enjoying the intimacy of a tete-a-tete dinner it shall not seem dreary or large, while it should fit equally a party of "not less than the graces or more than the muses," and even accommodate a larger number of guests if necessary. For this a table that can be enlarged at will is required. When at its smallest dimensions a cozy corner in winter or a window in summer may be more suitable for it than the middle of the room. The table may be square, round or oval, but should stand firm, with as few inconvenient legs as possible. Various pieces of furniture may do duty for a sideboard. A table with shelves above it will suffice.

A dado to imitate paneling, or real paneling, about five feet high, looks well in a dining room, as, when the chairs are drawn round the table, the wall does not look bare; moreover, a dado is a becoming background to people and to toilets. Besides the sideboard, serving tables are necessary—one on which to place the extra things required for use during the meal, and another, out of sight, on which to remove what is done with. China, pottery, plate and glass forms fitting decorations for the walls, placed on shelves or in cupboards with glass doors.

The chairs must be comfortable and the carpet soft and thick to deaden the sound of feet. A screen should be placed as to shield all who may feel the draft from the door through which the service passes. Plenty of fresh air is necessary everywhere, but specially in a dining room. The window must be opened wide the instant you and your guests leave the room and closed a little time before returning to it, so that the air may be fresh and not cold. Most unpleasant is the smell of food, which, having lingered in the dining room, soon pervades the passages and the other living rooms. With care even dining rooms that are smoked in will be fresh and sweet.

A fire is a great purifier, carrying much that is obnoxious up the chimney and causing the air to be light and dry, when smells do not cling so easily to walls and curtains. In the warm summer, when the windows are always open, the sun does what at other times is required of a fire. A wood fire burning in a grate makes a good draft up the chimney and its flickering light is pretty without giving too great a heat.

E.

An Effective Hanging Pocket.

The arrangement here illustrated is as easily made as it is effective, requiring only a deft touch in arranging the folds of the front and the neat stitches and pretty finish, without which any of the fancy work so greatly in vogue is not only unsatisfactory, but actually displeasing to good taste.

For each pocket cut a strip 12 by 20 inches of canvas, face it with pink plush and fold it at the top in a box plait. The plait is decorated at the top with a vandyke or fancy anion similar to that which frames the 10-inch loose pocket. This pocket is composed of a band of brocaded silk 16 by 22 inches and draped with a few side stitches; it is lined with china silk and sewn to the back two inches from the lower edge to display the plush. A tassel droops at each end.

How to Put on Icing.

Icing is best put on with a broad bladed knife dipped at intervals into cold water. For this purpose a palette knife is very useful and not expensive. The great secret in putting on the icing is to have it just the right consistency, not to run off the cake, yet thin enough to handle. The cake should be thoroughly cold before the icing is put on. It will not cut nicely if it has risen evenly, and has not burned. Of course in the latter case the burned parts must be scraped off, while if the cake is uneven at the top the icing will not lie smooth without a little paring. Properly made icing does not require either rice, flour or other ingredients than sugar and white of egg.

Wafer Pancakes.

Beat up four eggs with two tablespoonfuls of fine dry flour, the same quantity of cream, one ounce of pounded and sifted white sugar and half an ounce of nutmeg grated. Rub the frying pan with a piece of muslin containing a lump of butter. Put in the batter so that it covers the bottom of the pan as thinly as possible, fry on one side only, lay the pancake on a very hot dish, sprinkle it with powdered sugar (flavored or not), upon this lay the next pancake and so on till all are done. Serve very hot.

Ink Stains on White Goods.

To remove bad ink stains from white linen (shirts, table linen, etc.) Dr. White recommends in Science to place the stained part in Labarraque's solution, leaving the article in the solution until the linen is white. This must be used only for white goods. After a short time the solution for the ink stain will gradually take on a copper color, slowly fading to a greenish hue and finally nearly white. Washing in cold rain water will finish. This is believed to be new.

Teamaking.

Few people realize how much depends on the water for making good tea, for if it is hard it will spoil the most expensive tea. It can be improved by adding half the quantity of rainwater filtered, of course or a tiny pinch of bicarbonate of soda. The water should be freshly drawn and boiled quickly, using it at once. Allow one teaspoonful of tea to each person and infuse the tea seven minutes. It will then be wholesome to drink.

THE SUMMER HOTEL CLERK.

The summer breeze soon will blow across the yellow sands,
And down upon the rocks near by the lovers will hold hands.
Upon the crested wave we'll see the white sail gleaming bright,
And George will show dear Susan how to swim and how to float.
And over all the summer throng—where Cupid does not shirk—
Will gleam the glad effulgence of the summer hotel clerk.

He smiles upon you with a smile smarty itself.
And when you register your name he takes from you your pelf;
Oh, hard earned dollars that you've saved through weary days now past,
You take one lingering look at them ere in the safe they're cast.
You think how slow those dollars came and now they made you work,
And then you bow reluctantly to the summer hotel clerk.

He wears a suit of latest cut, and as you meet his eye
He condescends to tell you how to tie your summer tie;
He notes with careful eyes your clothes and to what girls you speak,
And regulates his bearing by the price you pay each week.
From condescending smile right down the scale to humble smirk
We note the plastic features of the summer hotel clerk.

Oh, for some still, secluded spot, away from haunts of men,
With rustling trees and gladsome birds—a maiden now and then;
A shady glen, a quiet nook, a simple bill of fare,
Where one can while away the time entirely by chin-fung.
A hidden path, a singing stream, where fishes love to lurk,
And where there is no vestige of the summer hotel clerk.

Necessary.

Mother Simpson had sent to Boston and bought a new "set of china." There it was, in its glory of white and gold, nobody knows how many pieces; enough apparently to set a table for "all the king's men."

"Now don't it seem a sinful waste, dear?" asked her brother's wife, who was still using her "mulberry pattern." "You're gettin along in years, an you won't need to chiny long."

"I may not need it long, but I need it now, an I have needed it for forty years," returned Mother Simpson stoutly. "You don't know how I've been cramped, Laviny!"

"Well, I don't justly see how," said Lavinj. "You've all'ys set your table an eat off on't, an then all any on us do."

"Set my table! Yes, but have I ever give a tea party? Now, Laviny Edwards, have I? I've been invited out over'n over again an now I can reciprocate!"—Youth's Companion.

Knew His Business.

"My barber is a hustler. He's got out a new style of hair cut."

"What is it?"

"Bald heads polished to look like new."—Harper's Bazar.

She Was All Right.

She could not darn his socks or sew
A button on his coat,
She could not make a decent shirt
To fit his manly throat,

But what cared he if she had not
These talents to display?
For when he married her she had
A hundred thousand cold.

How's Would Be Purchaser Got a Slap and a V.

A Chicago millionaire, who had been expending his team of bays on Michigan boulevard yesterday morning, was on his way back to his down town office. He was compelled to wait at Forty-ninth street a few moments on account of a Lake Shore passenger train that blocked the highway. A plainly dressed but business-like man, who had been standing on the sidewalk, came out to the middle of the street, examined the horses with a somewhat critical eye and said respectfully:

"I beg your pardon, sir, but may I ask if this team and buggy are for sale?"

"I have not thought of selling the outfit," answered the man in the buggy, with an amused smile, "but I might, perhaps, if anybody should offer me enough money."

"May I ask your price for the horses, harness and buggy, just as they are?"

"Cash down?"

"Certainly."

"Why—I hardly—what do you say to $2,000?"

The man examined the horses critically again.

"I'll take them at that figure," he said, "but I shall have to go to the First National bank to get the money."

"All right. Climb in. I am going in that direction."

The train had pulled out of the way by this time, and the next moment the team was flying down the boulevard at its best gait, as if bent on showing that it was a rare bargain, even at $2,000.

On arriving at the bank, less than half an hour later, the businesslike man got out of the buggy, went inside the building and came out again in about fifteen seconds.

"I am sorry to say," he observed, with a look of regret, "that the cashier says I haven't a cent in this bank."

"Have you a cent in any other bank?"

"No, sir. I am obliged to confess that the only large lot I had of ready money was here. That has failed me. I had set my heart on those horses, but I shall have to give them up. I am grateful to you, sir, for having brought me into the city, and I beg your pardon for the trouble and delay I have caused you. Good morn'."

"Hold on!" exclaimed the millionaire. "Did you put up this little job on me to save car fare down town?"

"I hope you will not think too hard of me for confessing that I did, but!"—

"Then you have saved five cents by the transaction!"

"Yes sir. That is what it would have cost, if I had had it, to come in on the elevated!"

"Yes, I see. You haven't really beat me out of any money, my friend, but you have come out ahead of me, and you're the first man that has done that within fifteen years, even to the tune of five cents. Here's a five dollar piece for you, and if you will hunt Potter Palmer up some day when he's out driving and work this same little game on him I'll give you a twenty."

He tossed the coin out on the sidewalk, gave his boys a light touch with the whip and his buggy was soon lost to sight in the throng of vehicles going north on Dearborn.—Chicago Tribune.

WHITE, of Plainfield,

HIS DILEMMA.

But There Was a Man in the Car Who Wanted That Ten Dollars.

"Fare, please!" said the conductor of a South Side street car one day last week to a passenger who was clinging to a strap.

The passenger took out his pocketbook, looked through it, and produced a ten dollar bill.

"It's the smallest I have," he said.

"I can't change it," rejoined the conductor gruffly. "If you expect to ride you ought to go provided to pay."

"I am prepared to pay, sir. You are not prepared to make change—that's all."

"The company doesn't expect me to make change for ten dollars. I couldn't do it anyhow. I haven't ten dollars about me."

"Then what's to be done? I've got to ride."

"You've got to pay for it if you do."

"I've offered to pay you."

"And I've told you I can't change that bill. You turn out something smaller than that or get off."

"I have told you, my friend, that I haven't anything smaller."

"Then get off."

The conductor reached up to pull the bell rope.

"Hold on!"

With the fire of honest indignation blazing in his eyes the man turned to his fellow passengers.

"Gentlemen," he said, "it's a shame to put a man off a car when he has plenty of money to pay his fare and is willing to pay it. If this conductor makes me get off can I depend on your love of fair play to help me see that justice is done? Just as sure as he puts me off I shall sue him for damages, and I'll need you for witnesses."

"There's an easier way out of it than that," suggested a sympathetic man in one corner of the car, taking out his pocketbook. "I'll lend you five cents, and it doesn't make any difference whether you ever pay me or not."

"No, no," replied the other, struck by an idea, "but I shall be obliged if you will give me change for ten dollars. Any kind will do."

The sympathetic man in the corner counted out small bills and silver coins to the amount of ten dollars, handed them over and took the bill in exchange. The passenger clinging to the strap paid his fare, rode a few blocks farther and got off.

And now the sympathetic man is handing for him with blood in his eye and something heavy in his right hand cost pocket. The ten dollar bill was a counterfeit.—Chicago Tribune.

Treated Too Rich.

It was with no inconsiderable degree of dejection that the prisoner at the bar received a rigorous sentence for stealing a roasted chicken.

He had an artificial brown complexion relieved by short but copious whiskers.

He sighed and looked very sad.

"May I say a few words?" he faltered, turning an appealing glance toward the court.

"You may."

The prisoner cleared his throat.

"I wish," he said solemnly, "to warn my fellow men not to trust too implicitly in the promises of religion. I"—

He must certainly have noticed the stir among the spectators, but he did not pause.

——was assured by people whose words I revered that heaven helps him who helps himself. I helped myself and look"——

But the strong arm of the law interfered, and he was hurried away.—Detroit Tribune.

PAPA WAS THERE.

And When Reginald Came He Was Received with Open Arms.

Mr. Daniel Chartern is one of the best farmers in Kent. He is a good father, and since a recent episode he has been recognized as a clever amateur detective. For some reason or other his fair young daughter developed the attentions of a young man, and she chose to keep the fact a secret.

Her papa, in his quiet way, allowed the casual amount of lingered to remain in his hair while he got all the facts in the case of his daughter's secret love affair. Then he kept a secret eye on her, and then discovered that they were to elope on a certain night.

Accordingly, as darkness came on, he took a seat at the window just under that of his daughter's room. She had been particularly lively that day, and so had her father. She laughed and joked with him a good deal, and he in turn laughed and joked with her.

The shades of evening came and the moonbeams fell athwart the potato patch. After a while the cats hooted and across the sky some dark clouds scooted. Up the lane came Reginald Vane, and he paused at midnight beneath the window of his rural sweetheart.

The old man reclined on the floor near the window under which the eloper was crouching. While in the state of crouch the young man was seized with fear and a horny hand, which shut off his breath. Then the gallant floated in at the window head first, and landed on all fours. A few moths and a hand firmly attached to the upper story back of his trousers.

The farmer then gave the young man into the charge of his wife and went outside the window. He had just got outside, and crouched well down, when he heard his daughter's window gently open. Then he heard her say:

"Reginald, dear, is that you?"

"Yes, darling. Reggie is here. Hasten before the old man wakes and catches us," replied her papa, in a hoarse whisper.

"Well, here, catch this," said the daughter, casting out a bag.

"All right," said her papa, catching it.

"Now what shall I do?"

"Just hang by your arm and drop. It won't hurt you, dear."

"Yes, I will. But you must look the other way."

"All right, I will."

She dropped into her father's arms, screamed and then they went into the house. The father asked for an introduction to the prisoner, and then fixed him so firmly in a rain barrel full of water that he remained there the rest of the night and a portion of the next day. Neighbors were brought over to look at him while he was on exhibition in the rain barrel, and at noon a photographer appeared and took his photograph. Then he was cheered and allowed to leave the farm in peace.

The daughter is still on the farm making cheese.—Yankee Blade.

FELL WITH A SCAFFOLD.

MR. WILCOX OF WESTFIELD INJURED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

The Wind Had Blown One of the Props from Under a Scaffold, and as Mr. Wilcox Jumped on the Scaffold it Went Down.

Mr. Wilcox, a carpenter, son of boss carpenter Wilcox of Westfield, met with an accident yesterday afternoon while working on Mr. Lewis Bird's new house, being erected on the corner of Summit avenue and Grand street, North Plainfield. He had been working on the roof and was going down. The wind had blown one of the props out from under the scaffold, which was about 12 feet high. Mr. Wilcox not knowing this, jumped from the edge of the roof upon the scaffold. It immediately gave way and fell to the ground, carrying him with it. Other men were working on the other side of the building, and, hearing the crash, ran around and found Wilcox lying among the timbers very much shaken up and stunned. He received a slight bruise over the right eye. One of his wrists was badly sprained and his right leg and side were hurt. A carriage was procured and Messrs. Pindak and Dean took him to Muhlenberg Hospital.

ONE CASE OF RABIES.

Only one Dog Went Mad from Hear Yesterday.

DOGS had a hard time keeping cool yesterday with "Old Sol" sending his rays down on them. That several did not go mad from heat, was fortunate. Only one has been reported from as being seized with the rabies, and that one was from the borough. He came over to Mr. Schwartz's place on Front street and commenced to bite his chickens. After several had been killed Mr. Schwartz went for Chief Grant, who had Dog-Despatcher Frisbie kill the rabid animal with a shot gun.

BREVITIES.

—The Crescents will play the New Brunswick team Saturday.

—The M. E. church congregation at Scotch Plains is holding a lawn party today from 3 to 10 p. m.

—A horse attached to a grocery wagon on West Front street kicked its hind leg over one of the shafts this morning. The shaft was broken.

—Captain Agnes McKenzie, assisted by Miss Van Verdon, daughter of the president of the First National Bank, of New York, will conduct a special meeting to-night at the Salvation Army.

—Late Tuesday afternoon one of the laborers at work on the excavation of Broad street at Elizabeth, dug up a cannon ball. It was 12 inches in size, which is undoubtedly a relic of the Revolution.

—"Buck" Day will have a trial Saturday morning at nine o'clock, at the court room on West Front street. He is charged with being implicated in the row which the negroes on Park avenue, last Saturday.

—William Hayward, who was fined $40 yesterday for waving two flags at Mr. Parmele after Monday night, was not fined $5 the day before, as stated, but was released, and Mr. Cornell became responsible for his appearance.

—Two stage loads of young people, numbering about 40, from Dunellen, passed through here about 10 o'clock Tuesday night on their way home from Washington Rock where they had been spending the afternoon and early part of the evening. They report having had very little rain up there, barely enough to settle the dust.

Hall Arrested by a Detective.

MR. JOHN B. DUMONT SUSPENDS.

Much Sympathy Expressed for Him in all Quarters.

MR. JOHN B. Dumont, ex-president of Plainfield Common Council, suspended yesterday, according to the New York papers of to-day. He is one of Plainfield's best loved citizens, a man full of warm, active sympathies for others which have won everyone to him, and to-day make all feel deeply for him in his hour of misfortune. We hope it will be only temporary, for no one will begrudge such men all the success they can achieve.

The New York Sun of to-day in speaking of the matter, says:

Yesterday was the gloomiest day Wall street has yet experienced. The oldest brokers, those who had survived the succeeding days of the panic of 1873, as well as those whose career in Wall street extends back only to the memorable times of 1884, agree that yesterday is without precedent in the records of the stock market.

There have been many days of greater activity on the Stock Exchange and probably as many days of greater decline in stocks, but never such a continuous and material decline following a week of comparatively low values.

The dealings yesterday were less than half a million shares. But a number of stocks that were comparatively active dropped 8 to 12 points, while the final losses were, in many cases, 4 per cent. and upward. Two of the most remarkable features of the day were the absence of evidences of excitement on the part of the brokers and the few confessions of insolvency.

The failures were more broadly distributed by inability to secure loans, or rather to protect loans secured by precarious collateral, than usually. Evansville and Terre Haute stock. That stock has for a long time paid dividends considerably above 6 per cent. per annum, which is considerably above the average, it has, however, been closely held and no regular market established. For this reason it has not been in favor with stock exchange leaders. The firm of H. L. Nicholas & Co. has been more largely interested in the stock than any other, and their inability to carry their line of it caused their suspension, and also, it is understood, that of Mr. John B. Dumont. These suspensions were announced soon after midday, and, though they were not large so far as liabilities are concerned, they gave a fresh selling impetus to the securities.

The Herald says:

The other failure of the day was that of John B. Dumont & Co., stockbrokers, of No. 40 Wall street, who made an assignment to John S. Durand, of the law firm of Tyler & Durand, of No. 146 Broadway. The only partner in the firm is Miss Marie due to clerks, which are stated by the assignee to amount to not more than $150.

In Wall street the failure of Mr. Dumont is believed to be sympathetic with that of H. L. Nicholas & Co. Friendly relations existed between the two firms, and they were both interested in the same transactions, including the effort to secure the release of the Middle and Ohio road from the receiver for the benefit of the stockholders.

Mr. John B. Dumont, Mr. Nicholas, was a popular member of the Exchange, of which he is a life member. He was for a time Vice-President of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road. No stocks were bought or sold on his stock account under the rules of the Exchange and it is inferred that his contracts were quieted or adjusted, that had matured outstanding. No definite knowledge of the extent of Mr. Dumont's obligations could be obtained yesterday, but a conservative estimate places them at not exceeding $250,000.

The assignee named said yesterday the failure was caused by the decline in value and the inability to realize money marked, which made it impossible for his principal to sustain his margin on loans. The assignee said he could make no estimate of the liabilities and assets of the firm. He had no opportunity to do so as yet. He knew of no interval which had elapsed between his appointment as receiver and three o'clock when he was obliged to file the assignment papers.

Mrs. Osborn, who died here Sunday, was buried at Scotch Plains yesterday. She was an old resident of the Plains, and only moved here last Spring with her son-in-law, Mr. Treadwell.

CORRESPONDENCE.

UNTHINKING MOBS.

"Are We Savages, or Are we Civilized?"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—Are we savages, or are we civilized? If we are savages, let every man take the law into his own hands and depend on the strength of his arm and the sharpness of his knife. If we are civilized, then the good name of our fair city is being trailed in the dust by the proceedings of Monday night.

Every civilized American will say that stealing must be stopped, even if it be but a few unripe apples, and that every person must be protected even if he be a criminal, against inhuman treatment.

An unthinking mob may cry, hang him! crucify him! lynch him! but justice and an intelligent public sentiment must uproot all such lawlessness.

It may be of questionable propriety for a man to tie a thief to a post while going for a policeman, but to seek to cut a man's throat for so doing or to hang him savors only of savage lawlessness. If we are a civilized people it should be known that a thief by breaking the law exposes himself to punishment, not by the person that catches him, but by the law, and also that no person is justified in taking the law into his own hands except in self-protection.

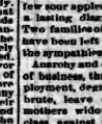
Anarchy and disorder stop the wheels of business, throw the laborer out of employment, deprive men here of more than they leave children fatherless and mothers widows, array one section or class against another, turn happiness into misery and fill the world with fear and gloom.

The grave-yard stillness of last night at the scene of Monday's disorder, shows that one good lesson has been learned by our citizens and that every man, woman and child realizes that justice is doing its work and that lawlessness of all kinds must and will be punished.

LAURENS W. SERRELL.

ALLEGED CRUELTY.

Mrs. Walpole Arrested at Scotch Plains.



KEEPING a small child in an outhouse at night and beating her at times, was what the neighbors charged against Mrs. Walpole of Scotch Plains. The law took a hand and Mrs. Walpole was arrested. She was given a hearing last night in Excelsior Hall Scotch Plains, before Judge Moore.

Neighbors were sworn and testified that Mrs. Walpole beat the child and made her sleep in outhouses and fields.

Mrs. Walpole, in her own defense, stated that the child was incorrigible, and it was impossible to do any thing with her.

The Judge held her in the sum of $50 to refrain from cruelty to the child.

The child is Mrs. Walpole's sister. About a year ago the parents died, and there was such a large family that Mr. Walpole took one of the children.

ARCHITECT AND MASON AT WAR.

The Matter Finally Culminates in Arrest.

Architect Pougate and Mason W. G. Smith have for some time past been at war over the building of the new engine house, and the matter will now be brought up in court. Shortly after the building was begun Mr. Pougate made an objection to the quality of brick used. Experts from New York examined the brick, by request of the Fire Committee of the Common Council, and pronounced them all right. When Mr. Smith's first payment was due for the work he went to Architect Pougate to have him sign the bill. He agreed to sign it if certain proviso were added, but Mr. Smith told him he wanted him to sign the bill in its present form. Mr. Pougate didn't sign it, but the bill was paid by Council.

Since then there have been "hot" words each other. The matter was brought to a head yesterday, when Mr. Pougate had a warrant sworn out for Mr. Smith's arrest, charging him with using profane language toward him. Trial was set down for Saturday morning at nine o'clock.

A FISH HOOK IN HIS TOE.

Little Johnnie Gallagher Painfully Injured.

Little Johnnie Gallagher of Dunellen met with a peculiar though painful accident while fishing along Green Brook yesterday. His hook became loose from the line and fell on the ground. In looking for it Johnnie stepped on the hook, which penetrated one of his toes. The little fellow was unable to extricate it. He finally reached home. Doctor Holmes was summoned. The hook had to be cut out. The toe has swelled to immense size.

A Dead Horse on Fourth Street.

Residents of West Fourth street complained yesterday to Chief Grant that there was a dead horse in Kilbride's barn, above Plainfield avenue. The horse died Monday, and the stench became unbearable. The animal belonged to Matthew Kilpatrick. The matter has been reported to the Board of Health.

MR. MARTINE FOR SHERIFF.

Unless the State is Broken He Will be Nominated.

POLITICS will soon be booming again. The following is what the Elizabeth Journal has too say in the record to the office of Sheriff and Mr. Martine:

"Although it is early in the season, and the hot wave present, the Democratic political leaders are not idle.

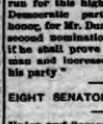
Unless the state is broken Senator Marsh will be renominated for Senator, and Mr. James E. Martine of Plainfield will be named for sheriff.

This condition of affairs may be said to have been brought about, if current reports are correct, by Mr. Martine. It will be remembered that the Plainfield gentleman was a very strong candidate before the Congressional convention which nominated Hon. John T. Dunn. After that convention Mr. Martine made an earnest a fight for Mr. Dunn's election as if had himself been the candidate, and thus earned the respect and consideration of his party. Since then efforts have been made to obtain Mr. Martine's consent to head the Democratic ticket as candidate for State Senator, but it is not the office he desires and he has emphatically and, apparently, conclusively decided that under no conditions would he accept that nomination.

The general opinion has been that Mr. Martine desired, as the height of his political ambition, to occupy a seat in Congress, and that he would accept nothing short of that. But it seems likely now that a legitimate opportunity to run for this high office is, according to Democratic party usages, a remote honor, for Mr. Dunn will be entitled to a second nomination, and possibly a third if he shall prove a successful Congressman and lionresses his popularity with his party."

EIGHT SENATORS TO BE ELECTED.

Union and Somerset Counties Among Those to be Represented.



BUSINESS in the political world will soon be booming again. Eight Senators are to be elected in New Jersey next November.

The eight counties in which the contest will be made are Essex, Union, Warren Somerset, Camden, Gloucester, Salem, and Monmouth. They are now, with the exception of Camden, represented by Democrats. Three of them may be called doubtful counties, having been represented by Republicans in the past. These are Somerset, Union, and Gloucester.

In Union County the situation is getting complicated on both sides. Fred. A. Marsh of Elizabeth, Democrat, who made a vigorous fight against the race-track bills, wishes to retire from active politics that he may attend to his duties as Prosecutor of the county.

Republicans want to nominate Foster M. Voorhees, who is Senator Marsh's friend, and these two young men do not care to take any chances with their friendship by getting into a warm campaign.

The Republicans of Somerset county intend to put up a strong candidate, probably W. A. Thompson, who served two terms in the Senate, or Sheriff George A. Dilts.

Senator W. J. Keyes of Somerset, it is said, would like a renomination, but he is one of the Directors of the Somerset County Bank, which closed its doors its doors ten days ago. The farmers of Somerset are dissatisfied with the management of the bank.

Both Boys Arrested.

Justice Rash, yesterday, issued warrants for the arrest of John Taylor and William Motley, whom Mr. Parmele charged with trespass and stealing. Constable Moffett served the warrants, and the boys will have a hearing at 6.30 o'clock to-night. It is probable a warrant will also be issued for the arrest of Patrick Lawlor for his actions at the "riot" Monday night.

Mr. Parmele says he did not wish to get out the warrants, but the neighbors all insist that he must do it, as they are all incensed.

No one cares for the value of the apples, but they do want to stop the constant depredations they are subjected to by the hoodlum element which seems to take what they must not respect anybody's rights.

One of the policemen said yesterday that he proposed to get out a warrant for Patrick Lawlor on a charge of inciting to riot and interfering with an officer.

Parmele was arrested with Haywood, who was fined $40, but the city Judge supposed that Lawyer's was only an ordinary drunken case, and let him off with a fine of $5. He learned of the more serious charges when he heard from Chief Grant later.

The more serious charge is a State Prison offence.

The Weather.

On Friday, clear weather will probably prevail, with fresh and light westerly winds and slightly lower, followed by rising temperature; and on Saturday probably fair, warmer weather.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Lord Dunraven Coming.

LONDON, July 27, (Special.)—Lord Dunraven, owner of the cutter Valkyrie, which is to make an attempt to win the American's cup, expects to sail for New York on August 12. The object of his early visit to the United States is to witness the preliminary races between the American yachts to decide which of them will defend the cup against the Valkyrie. The date of the sailing of the Valkyrie has not yet been fixed.

The trains will be carried on special trains composed of the newest and best standard passenger coaches, containing every convenience known.

The special trains will leave New York at nine in the morning, Jersey City 9.15, Newark 9.35, Elizabeth 9.55, Trenton 10.32, Philadelphia 11.50, and arrive in Chicago at 5.20 the next afternoon.

The first excursion is fixed for July 29; others are fixed for July 31, August 10 and 16. Another series to be run at the same rates during the same dates conditions will be announced later. The future conditions of these tickets will be good while ten days, and will be accepted for passage only on trains leaving Chicago at 8.15 p. m. and 11.30 p. m.

Mrs. Taylor's Statement.

Mrs. John Taylor says that her boy was on Mr. Parmele's ground Tuesday simply to show the New York reporters, who want to make a picture of him, and not with any intention of stealing apples.

We are glad that this is so, so that the boy would not be in the attitude of defiance in such a serious matter, misunderstood by neighbors who saw him. Mrs. Taylor says that the neighbors misjudge her boy when they refer to him in the unkind terms used, as he is not the kind of a boy, and does not keep company with those who have caused the people of the neighborhood so much trouble, as reported in yesterday's News.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Snake Roundup on Hominy Hills.

The Philadelphia Times describes with an air of veracity as unique a performance as can be witnessed in any country of civilization. It is the so called "snake roundup" of the huckleberry pickers in the Hominy hills, New Jersey. It is well known that huckleberry bushes and snakes thrive together. When, therefore, huckleberries are in their prime, snakes are in their prime, too, some of them venomous snakes. The "roundup" is for the purpose of driving them into an open space and killing them with dogs, guns or by hand. One girl in the Hominy hills, known as big Sallie Morgan, catches a serpent by the tail and cracks it like a whip lash, snapping its head off.

An open space is selected in the huckleberry region. The leader of the party climbs the highest tree near it, and from this vantage ground looks down upon the snake hunters. Men, boys, dogs and a few women station themselves at four points within a radius of a quarter of a mile of the central space, each separate party under a leader who directs their movements. There is a medicine considered powerful for driving serpents. The old experienced ones call it snake oil. If snakes charm birds, musk seems to charm snakes, and a bottle of liquid in which this is a strong ingredient is sprinkled plentifully on the leaves and grass within the roundup limits.

There are calls or cries which announce to the hunters that this or that species of serpent has been captured or started. The most famous dog on Hominy hills is a cur named Nigger that would rather kill a snake than eat mutton any day. Nigger forms no small part of the entertainment at the snake roundup. At the July hunt Nigger killed one pine snake nearly 6 feet long.

Whistling upon a fife or beating a tin pan has also an arousing influence upon a reptile, it has been found. Fife, tin pan, yelling and poking into snake holes with long sticks bring the creatures out. The boys, dogs and men close in upon them and drive them all together to the central open space. Then the ring closes instantly around them and quickly dispatches them. At the July roundup 103 reptiles were thus slain. This observance in the Hominy hills is as interesting in its way as the Zuni snake dance.

When Home Rule Rules In Ireland.

Even if home rule does not pass the house of lords in the present parliament it is bound to do so later. After the act becomes law the relation of Ireland to the British government will be substantially that of one of the states of this Union to the federal government. The Irish will manage their local affairs in their own private Dublin parliament, but they will also be represented as well in the parliament of Great Britain to the number of 80 members. At present they have 103 members there. Their number will be reduced to correspond to the falling off in population. Mr. Gladstone's first idea—for the Irish to hold seats in the national parliament, but refrain from voting on questions that concerned England, Scotland and Wales locally—aroused such a storm of opposition that it was abandoned. W. T. Stead of the Review of Reviews especially threw all his weight against it and declared that if this feature were pressed it would wreck the whole bill.

Gladstone, not only the greatest statesman, but the best politician in the kingdom, veered with the current and immediately proposed to strike out the clause limiting the voting power of Irish representatives. This gained for the bill more friends than it lost, the clause passed as it is, an amended form, and when home rule becomes law the 80 Irishmen will vote on all questions in the imperial parliament. Canada and Australia have no members, voting or nonvoting, in the British parliament.

For years a great war in Europe has been looked for. Nobody knew just how or when it would begin, but the world has been of opinion it would involve several of the great powers. Sometimes it appeared as though it might begin in Egypt on account of the British assumptions there. Again a tiny cloud seemed to be rising in the Asiatic horizon, just on the boundary line between the Russian and British possessions. In a region least expected, Siam, the war cloud has at last appeared. If France makes unjust demands on Siam, it will certainly not be tolerated by the other powers of Europe, jealous as they are of any advancement or gain of one over another. There is the possibility that France, China, Russia and England may be engaged in the row on account of Siam. If so, Europe will be shaken. At any rate the Siam trouble comes opportunely for France just now. It will reawaken the patriotism of all classes and make them forget their faction fights and strengthen the republic. Perhaps that was why the French government made so much of the Siamese incident.

Electricity has now become so thoroughly well utilized in machinery that electric currents are beginning to take the place of the long lines of belting and countershafting that convey power and change its direction.

DEADLY BOLTS OF FIRE.

Four Bathers Struck at Coney Island and One Killed.

WORK OF A SUMMER WINDSTORM.

Several Other Deaths by Lightning Reported—Connecticut Again Visited by a Small Tornado Which Tore Off Roofs and Blew Down Trees.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y., July 27.—During a terrific thunderstorm a man was struck by lightning and instantly killed and three other persons were very seriously injured. The party had been bathing at Gerhard's pavilion when the bolt struck the bath house, tearing out a portion of the woodwork and striking the entire party. The injured were taken to Ericsson's hotel and Dr. Hill was summoned. For some time they were all unconscious.

The unfortunate pleasure party acted very mysteriously. When the others were told one of their number had been killed, they refused at first to give their names, but finally, when the police started to make an investigation, the men gave names and addresses which are believed to be fictitious.

The dead man was said to be:

Lowndo, John, 45 years old, of 1430 Fulton street, Brooklyn.

The injured were described as:

Howard; John, of 1420 Fulton street, Brooklyn.

Moore, Nellie, 24 years old, of 261 West Twenty-fifth street.

Robinson, Charles, of 1420 Fulton street, Brooklyn.

When the men recovered from the effects of the shock, they left Coney Island in a hurry. They refused to be questioned or conceal their identity and refused to tell where they were going. The dead man's body was taken to Stillwell's morgue.

Howard, who was in the room next to Loomis, was already dressed and about to put on his coat when struck. The bolt hit him on the right arm, burning it from the elbow to the wrist. It then passed across his body to the right leg, tore off his right shoe, passed to the left, tearing that shoe off, and burning his feet badly.

Wilkinson, who was the least hurt. He received the bolt in the back, and it passed down his legs to the ground.

The doctors worked hard and soon revived all three. The doctors thought at first the woman and Howard were fatally injured, but the latter was soon found to be less seriously hurt than at first supposed. The woman was paralyzed below the waist, and the doctors said her recovery was doubtful.

The Wind Damage In Hartford.

HARTFORD, July 27.—A severe windstorm from the west, accompanied with heavy rain, lightning and thunder, blew over the city. It was similar in intensity, while it lasted, to the violent storm of about 10 days ago, which did so much damage to the tobacco over in East Hartford.

This storm lasted about 15 minutes, and did considerable damage. Some large trees in the western and southern parts of the city were uprooted, and the telegraph service was temporarily disabled, but no persons were injured.

At East Hartford some large elm trees were destroyed. John Gibson, the gate tender at the Main street crossing of the New York and New England railroad, was badly cut and injured on the head and back by the large signal pole blowing down on him. It is reported that some houses were uprooted in West Hartford, where the storm was particularly severe.

The roof of the Library of Sedgler & Meyon Pearl street, was partially uprooted, and the roof of the Killings' residence on Prospect avenue was blown off, injuring George Kielly, the gardener. On Evergreen avenue the roof of the Georgan residence was lifted and dropped back again.

The Storm In the Adirondacks.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., July 27.—The grandest, yet most terrible, electric storm ever known in this section broke over the mountains. It was of short duration, but did much damage in many sections. Rain fell over in torrents, washing out the roads, and, with the assistance of hail, breaking many windows. A camp on the upper lake was set on fire. Tents in town were torn and tattered. At Malone five houses were set on fire. A mile from Malone a horse was killed. On the new railroad a brakeman on a train was instantly killed by lightning.

Work of Lightning.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., July 27.—It was the hottest and sultriest day of the summer, the mercury registering 95 degrees. A terrific thunder shower struck the city, and within 30 minutes the thermometer fell 36 degrees.

Lightning struck the house on the Price farm in the northern part of the city, and the large house and barn were entirely destroyed by fire. The premises were occupied by F. S. Charter.

Soldiers' Tents Blown About.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., July 27.—A storm came up here that made things interesting for a little while. The wind that accompanied it seemed as if it would tear everything to pieces. Two tents of the quartermaster's department, and a tent in Company E's street and two over in the battery quarters were knocked down.

Three Men and a House Struck.

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., July 27.—Lightning struck the store of James Magee at Aquebogue, doing considerable damage to the building and stock. Three men and a horse standing in front were knocked down. One man, Nelson Downs, was quite badly injured in the head.

Killed by Lightning.

RICHMOND, July 27.—During a thunder storm in Fluvanna county Miss Rose Mayo, a daughter of Dr. E. P. Mayo of Cumberland county, was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

Cows Killed by Lightning.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 27.—It is reported that a severe electrical storm prevailed along the St. Lawrence river, and 15 cows in a dairy near Rockport, Ont., were killed by lightning.

Thunderstorm and Cyclone.

GROSBECK'S MILLS, Mass., July 27.—A terrific thunder storm, accompanied by a cyclone, passed through this town. A path 300 feet wide was cut in which trees were uprooted.

An Order For Lake Seamen.

CHICAGO, July 27.—President Walker Groves of the Lake Seamen's union ordered the 2,500 men in the Chicago branch to do no work for two days.

THE MONEY PANIC.

Three New York Brokers Go to the Wall. Other Financial Troubles.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Wall street was prepared for almost anything this morning after yesterday's three failures, and the street was decidedly uneasy when business opened.

The first two failures announced were those of H. I. Nicholas & Co. of 11 Wall street and John B. Dumont of 40 Wall street.

The members of the first named firm are Harry I. Nicholas, John S. Nicholas, Marcus Mayer and Walter C. Taylor. The assignment was made to William Nelson Cromwell without preference. The liabilities are reported at $1,250,000. It was said by a member of the firm that the failure was due to the stringency in the money market, and the failure of four of their largest customers to come forward with margins.

The failure of John B. Dumont of 40 Wall street was also announced. No statement of liabilities or assets was given out. John S. Durand is the assignee. Mr. Dumont has been a member of the exchange since 1879 and was vice president of the St. Paul Railroad company.

The third announcement was the suspension from the Consolidated Exchange of F. Campbell of 39 Broadway. His liabilities are small. The suspension was announced by Mr. Campbell to the decline in Erie stocks.

Chicago Banks Swindled.

CHICAGO, July 27.—It is currently reported that the Chicago Trust and Savings bank at 124 Washington street and several other banks in the city have been swindled to a large extent by forged securities. It was said that a smooth confidence man has disposed of securities to different banks to the amount of $30,000 or $60,000, and that the fact that the paper was a clever forgery had just been discovered and the detective department of the Central police station appealed to and asked to catch the forgers.

Two Wisconsin Banks Go Under.

MILWAUKEE, July 27.—Two small bank failures are reported in the interior of the state—viz., the German Exchange bank at Portage, and John Lienlokken, a private banker at La Crosse. The Portage bank is capitalized at $25,000. No statement of assets or liabilities is given. Lienlokken's liabilities are placed at $10,000.

Whisky Dealers Carried Down.

NASHVILLE, July 27.—B. S. Loventhal & Son and J. Levy & Son, wholesale whisky dealers, and Sulzbacher Brothers, proprietors of the Hermitage vinegar factory and large produce dealers, made special assignments. The failures are directly due to the failure of the Louisville Deposit bank.

A Bank President Arrested.

DENVER, July 27.—President M. J. Lawrence of the People's Savings bank was arrested at his office in the People's National bank block on a warrant charging grand larceny in connection with the failure of the People's National bank.

Louisville Situation Easier.

LOUISVILLE, July 27.—The financial situation is perceptibly easier. Those banks which have stood the drain until now are in little danger of going down, as the greatest pressure has passed off.

Another Maine Mill Shuts Down.

LEWISTON, Me., July 27.—Notices have been posted in the Bates mill stating that the mill will shut down Aug. 5 for five weeks. The mill employs 1,800 people.

Manchester Situation Unchanged.

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 27.—There is no change in the financial situation here. All banks are confident that the worst is over, locally.

Big Failure In London.

LONDON, July 27.—The General Credits company has suspended. The capital of the concern is £100,000.

Tramps Captured a Train.

OAKLAND, CAL., July 27.—About 30 tramps boarded a north bound freight train on the Evansville and Terre Haute railroad. Being unable to rid the train of them the conductor telegraphed to Princeton authorities for assistance. On their arrival at Princeton a pitched battle occurred between the tramps on one side and the police and citizens on the other, and deputies on the other. Several on both sides received severe injuries, but none fatal. As the train pulled out from Princeton the tramps again attempted to board it, when one of their number named C. E. Trestar fell under the wheels and his body was cut in two. At the death of one of their number the tramps quit the train and are camping in the woods nearby.

A Marine Held For Murder.

BOSTON, July 27.—James Mullen is under arrest in Charlestown on suspicion of having caused the death of Thomas Welch, aged 45. Mullen is attached to the Marine corps at the navy yard, and had been doing the town in company with a third man, who is unknown. Welch was found lying in the sidewalk on Chelsea street with several bad gashes on his head and died on the way to the station. Mullen and another person were seen to have a quarrel on the street some time before.

Alleged Murderer Remains Arraigned.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—John Smouse, who lived in Oak alley, and who is charged with the murder of his wife and two little girls, 4 and 2 years old, was arraigned this morning and remanded for a further examination. It is thought that after the murder of his family Smouse put the lamp under the bed and then setting fire to the house, in the hope that his horrible crime would be concealed.

An Alleged Case of Cholera.

CHESTER, Pa., July 27.—An Austrian named Wank Pecsh, who recently arrived in this county, died here from what is attending physicians declare was Asiatic cholera. The man was employed at the Wm. Penn Iron and Steel works and lived in Lewis street in a poor section of the city. The board of health will quarantine the street and disinfect the premises.

Russians In New Jersey.

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 27.—About 400 people attended the ball and reception tendered to Admiral Kashakoff and staff of the Russian warship Nicholas I at the Beach House. The full staff received Governor Werts of New Jersey, who called with his full staff, to pay his respects.

The First Rice of the Season.

NEW YORK, July 27.—A telegram from New Orleans states that Messrs. Dan Talmage's Sons & Co. are in receipt of the first of the new crop of rice.

Cholera In Moscow.

MOSCOW, July 27.—There is an average of 10 new cases of cholera and six deaths from the disease in this city daily.

LYNCHING IN DENVER.

A Mob Took a Murderer From the City Jail.

BODY DRAGGED ABOUT THE STREET

The Murdered Man Was a Veteran and His Friends Were Determined to Take Quick Vengeance—Rather Than Shoot Into the Crowd the Sheriff Surrendered Arata.

DENVER, July 27.—Not since Denver was a small frontier village and lynching parties were of common occurrence has the city experienced anything like what has just taken place. Tuesday evening an Italian saloon keeper named Arata brutally murdered an inoffensive old man named Lightfoot, pounding his head into a jelly with a coupling pin. Arata with his knife and finally ending his heinous crime by firing two shots through the old man's body.

Arata was immediately arrested and locked up in the county jail, which is located in the very heart of the city, and one of the densest and most severe structures of the kind in the west. All day long the citizens continued to discuss the crime. In the evening a crowd began gathering at the jail until there were fully 15,000 people. Three of the outside doors were battered down, but the sheriff and his men still held the fort. A few shots were fired over the crowd's heads by deputy sheriffs, but it seemed to only aggravate the already maddened crowd.

Finally at an early hour this morning Arata was taken from the jail and hung to a tree and shot by the mob.

The Punishment Came Swiftly.

Death Arata was the proprietor of the Hotel D'Italia, a tough resort under the Sixteenth street viaduct. His victim, Lightfoot, was a member of the G. A. R., and their quarrel was over the price of a glass of lemonade.

When Arata was taken from the county jail by the mob he was hustled out, strung up to a tree and his body filled with bullets. The crime was inexcusable, the punishment swift.

All day there had been mutterings among the friends of the murdered man, and at an early hour last night a small crowd collected in the rear of the Windsor hotel on Market street. It grew in numbers until there were several hundred determined men.

In silence and military order the crowd marched through the business portion of the city past the city jail and the county jail across Cherry creek.

Here a demand was made for the Italian from Jailer Creed. He refused to give up his prisoner and the mob, which was well provided with picks and iron bars, began an attack on the front door of the jail.

The building is new and was thought strong enough to resist any attacks which might be made upon it, but gradually the crowd grew until probably 10,000 people surrounded the jail. Sheriff Whitehill was outside in the crowd trying to prevent violence, but no attention was paid to his commands or entreaties.

Crowd Not Afraid of Shots.

Captain Crews in charge of the jail instructed the guards to fire over the heads of the mob to scare it, but no attention was paid to his firing. After two hours' digging and hammering entrance was made to the corridor.

Captain Crews then saw that he had the alternative of shooting down a few men or surrendering the Italian and he chose the latter. Arata was taken out to a neighboring tree, shot full of holes and his body filled with bullets. In the melee in the jail one member of the mob was shot in the leg, but not dangerously wounded.

The vicinity of the mob did not end with the shooting. The body was taken down, dragged through the streets by the rope with which it was hanged. It was dragged along Curtis street through the business part of the city to Seventeenth and Curtis, where it was strung up to a pole of an electric street railway. It presented a ghastly sight hanging stark naked immediately under an arc light, surrounded by several thousand people. The breast was covered with blood and the body covered with mud and dirt.

A few minutes after it was strung up the police patrol wagon drove up, the body was cut down and taken to the police station.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

Connecticut—W. W. Kalb, Bayport.

New York—James Hogan, Bay Side; J. H. Erts, Deming; John Metzger, Ebenezer; J. D. Cadney, Edeng; E. H. Wheaton, Falls; J. L. Plans of the President and Family.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., July 27.—There was too much wind for the president to take his regular fishing trip down the bay. In regard to the report that the president would leave Gray Gables on the Fourth, Colonel Lamont says it is not so. He will not leave before the morning of the day before congress meets and then go direct to Washington. Dr. Bryant is still at Gray Gables, and is likely to remain through a greater part of August. The remaining members of the president's household will not leave here until about Sept. 1.

Italians Returning to Italy.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Steamship agents are at a loss to understand the sudden increase in the number of Italians sailing from this port for Italy. For two weeks past more or less of this nationality is sought transportation to their native land than the steamship companies could accommodate. The most of these Italians are from this city. They say they can get no work here.

Trustees of Washington's Headquarters.

ALBANY, July 27.—Governor Flower today appointed Charles D. Robinson and Edward Schreiber of Newburg trustees of Washington's headquarters in the place of A. Smith King and Major Edward C. Boynton, deceased.

Cursed by a Vicious Bull.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 27.—William Cornell of Union, this county, was terribly gored by a vicious bull.

SHOT THREE TOUGHS.

Millionaire Dunlap, When at Bay, Proved a Sorry Marksman.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—W. A. Dunlap, part owner of The Commercial Gazette and a millionaire tinware manufacturer of this city, shot and badly wounded three orchard thieves who, with others, were trespassing on his property. The three young men injured were Thomas Kelly, shot in the right thigh close to the groin; John Kelly received a shot of a terrible character in the right leg, and John Conlin was shot in both legs. Thomas Kelly's wound may prove serious. The police have the names of eight companions of the aborers, and all will be arrested. Mr. Dunlap was placed under arrest and gave bail in the sum of $5,000.

Since the mills and glass houses closed the residents of the Fourteenth ward have been annoyed by nightly visits from a crowd of men, who ruined flower beds and lawns and stripped the trees of their green fruit. The Dunlap place, on Robinson street, is one of the largest and prettiest of the district, and consequently was visited frequently.

A number of disreputable characters joined the gang, and became so bold that the residents were terrorized. Early last evening Mr. Dunlap heard the disturbance on his lawn and ordered the crowd away. Later in the night they returned. Mr. Dunlap again repeated the warning. He was met first with jeers, then a volley of stones and finally a pistol shot. He again warned the gang to leave.

The crowd threw forth in circle about Mr. Dunlap, whereupon he drew two revolvers and opened fire. His assailants dropped to the ground in one, two, three order, and when the third man was put down she rest fled. Mr. Dunlap then notified the police of what occurred, and the injured men were removed to the hospital. He is terribly shocked over the serious consequences of the affair.

A Snowstorm Off Long Island.

PROVIDENCE, July 27.—Early Wednesday morning, off the Long Island coast, the steamer Berkshire of the Providence, Norfolk and Baltimore line encountered a heavy snowstorm. Her decks were covered, and the storm was so thick that she was forced to lay to until it abated. The steamer arrived here a little late in consequence.

Rich Gold Strike at Cripple Creek.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 27.—The best strike ever made in Cripple Creek is reported by the gold mining company, which owns the Rhinocerus and Nil Desperandum mines. A vein 23 inches thick has been uncovered 22 feet beneath the surface, from which a sample mill run gave 22,700 ounces of gold to the ton.

Lime Plants to Close.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 27.—About 30 official representatives of acetate of lime plants met in convention in this city. The exigencies of the times, occasioned by overproduction of the article in Delaware and Sullivan county, N. Y., and Bradford county, Pennsylvania, will probably necessitate the closing of some of the plants.

The Pope Honors a Bostonian.

ROME, July 27.—The pope gave an audience to Edward Boyle Bannahan of Boston, a student at the American college in this city. His holiness created Mr. Shannahan doctor of theology as a reward for the ability with which he sustained a three nights' disputation at the College of the Propaganda Fide.

Over Two Hundred Burned at Sea.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—News has been received from Hong Kong that the Spanish steamer San Juan, loaded with kerosene, and which sailed June 29 for Amoy and Manilla Bom, was destroyed by fire. Out of 227 people only 29 were saved.

OUTWITTED WHITE CAPS

Tar, Feathers and a Rail For a Grandfather Bridegroom.

NYACK FOLKS WERE INDIGNANT.

Old John Medling Stole a March on the Regulators by Marrying His 16-year-old Stepgranddaughter—He Had Been Warned by White Caps.

NYACK, N. Y., July 27.—There was an outburst of virtuous indignation among the good citizens of Rennape, N. J., when they learned about old John Medling's pretty young housekeeper, Jennie Shelley. The girl was known as the old man's granddaughter and the townspeople did not propose to allow John to pay open court to her if they could prevent it. A white cap committee was formed, a rail, tar and feathers were procured and arrangements were made to practically demonstrate to John Medling the error of his ways.

Everybody was ready except the proposed victim, who had other plans. He stole a march on the white caps and made pretty Jennie his wife, and now the township is in a flutter of excitement.

Medling lived happily for six or seven years with his old wife, so what is known as the old engine house until about three months ago, when Mrs. Medling died and John was left alone to continue his business of making shoes.

His Pretty Stepgranddaughter.

He became lonesome, and things around the house began to look untidy and neglected until a few weeks ago some of the late Mrs. Medling's relatives living in Monroe sent Miss Jennie Shelly, a plump lassie, who looks about 16 years old, to intermeddle his household affairs and to keep them in order. When the rumor spread that the pretty maiden was the old man's granddaughter he received assorted love-making in the household about a week ago, a white cap committee called on Medling and suggested some alteration in the arrangements, intimating that a detachment of a tar and feather battalion was in the process of formation.

No change followed, and the white cap chiefs met in secret conclave and issued a solemn warning, allowing three days' grace. This brought matters to a crisis, and a day or two ago John and Jennie met in Suffern, N. J., to invoke the aid of Squire Wanamaker, who upon his return from his day's work found them awaiting him.

They told the squire that they wished to be married, giving him at the same time their version of the case and of the annoyances to which they had been subjected. They made sworn answers to all the statutory questions put to them. Medling said he was an Englishman, 58 years old, adding that his wife, who was 70 years old, had died about three months before, and that his chosen bride was the granddaughter of the late Mrs. Medling by her first husband.

Miss V. Shelley said she was born in the Isle of Guernsey 18 years ago, and she corroborated Medling's statements as to her relationship with his former wife. Having become satisfied that no legal objection existed to their union, the squire with due solemnity joined the old man and his stepgranddaughter as husband and wife, according to the laws of the state.

A rig from Finnegan's livery stable took them on their bridal tour to their home, and they soon made themselves secure from intrusion by many bolts and bars.

Scarcely had this been done when the detachment of the tar and feather battalion arrived with a tarry kettle, a pail of tar and a bag of feathers. They endeavored to secure possession of the bridegroom's person. The marriage was announced through the closed door as soon as a hearing could be obtained, and one or two silver certificates fluttered from a window, followed by a request that the good health and happiness of the newly married couple be drunk at the neighboring tavern. Then all was peace and harmony.

Two More Cross Continent Pedestrians.

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—H. S. Wilmot and Samuel S. Smith started from The Inquirer office, at Tenth and Chestnut streets, to walk to San Francisco. The men expect to accomplish the journey in about 150 days, and hope to beat the pedestrian who left New York for San Francisco Wednesday.

Cholera Infantum Rages In Buffalo.

BUFFALO, July 27.—The cholera infantum epidemic is spreading in Buffalo to an alarming extent. The health department gave out the statement that 84 deaths were reported from that cause last week.

Boiler Makers Make Demands.

NEW YORK, July 27.—The union boiler makers of New York and vicinity issued a circular to the employers demanding the nine hour week day from Aug. 1. Strikes will follow if the demand is refused.

JERSEY CITY, July 27.—The Rev. Patrick M. Corr, rector of St. Bridget's Roman Catholic church, this city, died in Dublin, whither he had gone to be treated for Bright's disease by a specialist.

Quarantine Against Naples.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 27.—A five days' quarantine has been declared here against all vessels arriving from Naples.

LITTLE BITS OF NEWS.

Press dispatches from Naples concerning the cholera have been suppressed.

A fire in the saleisrooms of A. J. Demarest & Co., carriage makers, 337 Fifth avenue, New York, did much damage.

During the run of typhus fever in New York city there were 490 cases and 201 deaths.

A fight between the police and soldiers was rumored to be having taken place on the Choctaw strip.

Mr. Josiah Quincy says that he is not a candidate either for the governorship of Massachusetts or the senatorship of Boston.

At a largely attended meeting of the Union Veteran legion in Pittsburg resolutions denouncing Mike Smith and the pension bureau were adopted.

The execution of the nine condemned Choctaws has been further postponed from Aug. 4 to Sept. 8.

R. P. Hall, a Philadelphia real estate dealer, is in Chicago awaiting extradition charged with embezzling $10,000.

SIAM SUES FOR PEACE.

Admitted That France Should Think It Not Ready to Submit.

BANGKOK, July 27.—M. Pavie, the French minister resident, prior to his departure had a final interview with Devawongse, the Siamese foreign minister, who said that his government was astonished that France considered their reply to the French ultimatum as a refusal to comply with its terms. It was impossible, he said, to accede definitely to indefinite demands. France had never defined her rights to Annam and Cambodia, but the king, earnestly desiring peace and a speedy settlement of the question, had declared his readiness to abandon to Annam and Cambodia all the posts that had been attacked as well as the territory near them, including Stungtreng and Khone, although these places were admitted to be Siamese.

Captain H. M. Jones, British minister to Siam, acting under orders called from London, maintains a strictly nonconmittal attitude.

The Blockade Put Off.

PARIS, July 27.—It is stated that an effective blockade of the Siamese coast by the French fleet will only begin on Saturday or Sunday next. Until then all the powers will not have received notice of France's intention to establish a blockade. The Chinese charge d'affaires had an interview with the chief officials at the foreign office in regard to Siam.

Seizing Maps of Siam.

PARIS, July 27.—The police of this city by orders of the government are seizing cheap maps of Si am which are offered for sale on the boulevards, and which represent the Siamese frontier in accordance with English ideas.

Fly Paper Solution Caused Death.

NORTHPORT, N. Y., July 27.—The 15½-year-old child of George Smith of King's Bridge, N. Y., died from drinking a plate of water in which was placed a sheet of fly paper.

WOMAN AND HOME.

WHY YOUNG WOMEN OF THE PRESENT DEFER MARRIAGE.

A Word to the Busy Woman—Dressing Children Alike—Points on Garnishing Dishes—Mistakenness Mothers of Society—The Object of Women's Clubs.

It is an undoubted fact that the young women of to-day defer marriage. Girls nowadays marry from 25 upward. The tendency is generally upward. What is the reason of this change? I have asked myself and others this question frequently. One affirms, with a pretty toss of her head, that marriage is not always what we young people imagine it. A tall, handsome girl of queenly grace declares that women are more independent than formerly. Yes, they are indeed independent; nay, more, they are, with few exceptions, self supporting. Women are now on an equal footing with men at last. This is essentially an age for women. Their professions, literary work, and highly varied occupations exclude all inane sentimentality. God forbid that I should speak slightingly of true, honest love. It is a holy thing. By its sacred influence we become nobler, truer, gentler women.

It is my earnest conviction that many girls in the past have been led into the error of foolish marriages through a lack of occupation. A busy, active energetic girl has no time and less inclination for manlife sentiment.

I am also convinced that many young girls defer marriage because their talents point to a brilliant career in the future. They are determined to make a name for themselves. Here is a young girl who refuses to marry for the present. Why? As a singer she knows that she will one day become famous. Another will devote her young life to literary work. She is wedded to her art. She must needs therefore defer marriage. I say it proudly; the women of today are not afraid to be designated unmarried—"old maids," if you will.

A man chooses a wife or not, as he pleases. Is it not right that a woman be granted an equal privilege? My literary neighbor, in a cleverly written article, implies that men defer marriage because women are such expensive commodities that they shrink from assuming the responsibility. In answer I would say that women of the present day rival men in point of salary. A man is therefore somewhat timid in asking a young girl to marry him upon a salary equal to or at best very little in advance of her own.

This is said to be an era of unmarried women. To a great extent it is the case. Famous women of today are, as a rule, unmarried—I almost said unfettered, but that was merely a slip. It must always be thus. There is a special mission for such. It is theirs to do great deeds. It is theirs heroically to die unto self. What were the world without a Frances Willard, a Florence Nightingale?

Methinks that a true and real hearted woman who has deferred marriage until with her the almond tree has begun to flourish. In the early morn of her life when her heart danced for very joy God took her betrothed to himself, and she waits as a bride to join her beloved where there is no more parting.

Many a brave, noble girl of whom the world knows not defers marriage—ah, me!—because she has an aged father, an invalid mother, a helpless brother or sister who depends on her alone for support.

But to what does all this tend? To the establishment of a vast sisterhood? Not at all. Let us be true to ourselves, girls. Be it ever so late in life, let us marry only when the heart responds as the lips confess, "I will."—Isabel A. Storey in Good Housekeeping.

A Word to the Busy Woman.

In a paper on "Vocations" a woman suggestively says: "The fashionable sin of today among women, whatever it may be, is not idleness. To a student from Norton or South Hadley, Wellesley or Smith, idleness is simply an impossibility. If years of thorough methodical, intellectual training have not formed habits and tastes for work, they have resulted in nothing.

"The lazy woman in a wrapper, yawning half a day over a novel, may still exist in stories. Out of them she is not often found. The reality and contrast is a trimly dressed, quick stepping little lady, calling early at the butcher's and grocer's, considering the economics of beefsteak and strawberries, preparing the custard and salad dressing, encouraging Bridget to be neat and skillful by precept and example—and this only as a beginning to the busy day which she sets for herself."

It is due to the woman of today that her all round capability should be mentioned. There was a time when, if she were a good housekeeper, she was nothing else, or if she pinned her laurels on charitable work her family was slighted. The end of the century woman is skilled in many things and expert in at least one.

The writer of the paper goes on to sound a note of warning against women becoming "busy, bustling, anxious creatures, whose lives are marred if not wasted by a sort of overproductiveness. They," she says, "should read the lesson of the lotus tree. They should even stand beside the peaceful cow and mark how she chewed the cud of gentle reflections," and so on.

In many ways the hint of reaction is obvious in the magnificent spurt women has taken. She is willing to listen, in the gospel of progress to which she hearkens diligently, to an occasional sermon on the text, "Make haste slowly."—New York Times.

Dressing Children Alike.

"I never see a family of girls out in dresses of the same sort without a deep wave of pity for them rolls over my soul," said a very intelligent and wealthy woman as she noted a dressed alike family passing down the street. "I remember when I was a little girl that it was thought quite the correct thing to dress the children alike. So a piece of goods was bought, the stereotyped number of hats, just so many spools of flowers, just so many yards of ribbon and material for the regular number of cloaks, socks or jackets as the case might be. Sometimes we wore shawls, and, oh, wasn't that a delightful happening when by no hook or crook could two shawls be found alike! One year we were to have red, but because there could be no uniformity for the reason that the assortment contained only those differing widely in style and color the idea of dress was abandoned altogether, and we were put into long cloaks of gray Irish frieze, and, oh, how angry and disgusted we were!

"There were two or three families in our neighborhood that adhered to this custom. Others dressed as unlike as possible, and those 'unlikes' were the subjects of no end of envy on the part of our little folk. I think it would be difficult for any person who has not been through the experience to imagine how desperately tired we grew of our clothes, and equally tired of course of those of our sisters, for they were exactly the same. The only advantage that I can see now, as I look back, was that if the elder sister hadn't worn her dress out the next one could take it and nobody know the difference. This was the only grace that I ever discovered in the belt-over and secondhand clothes arrangement of the family. It seems to me little less than cruelty to deprive children of the variety and pleasure of original and pretty garments. I used to think as we sat in church that we resembled a row of little brown jugs of assorted sizes when we were arrayed in our somber garments."—New York Ledger.

Points on Garnishing Dishes.

"Garniture," which is rendered into English by "garnish," may be defined as all that is added to the chief material which constitutes the dish. Thus tomato sauce in a dish of cutlets or fried potatoes around a steak are garnishes. These things fall naturally under two great heads—the hot garnishes, which accompany every savory dish, and the cold garnishes, which go with cold meats, salads, etc. Vegetables are the chief material of the hot dishes. By judicious combinations they will produce very pretty effects of color. For instance, turnips, potatoes, artichokes, cauliflowers, celery and vegetable marrows will give whites; carrots, tomatoes, beet roots, supply the reds; truffles and mushrooms, blacks, and parsley are the endless shades of green given by beans, peas, sprouts, cucumbers, asparagus, etc.

To be used, all such vegetables as will admit of it must be cut into uniform shapes by what are called vegetable cutters, the successful use of which requires some practice. Vegetables are usually cut before cooking. If preferred, they may be cut with a knife. They should always be hot when sent to the table. Besides the cut vegetables are used mashed potatoes for the purpose of garnishing. After being mashed shape in various forms, or they may be made into croquets.

Bread snippets, which are used to garnish many dishes, should be invariably fried in butter and fried to a uniform color all over. They ought to be cut out of stale bread and should be of the same shape and thickness.

Force meat, quenneiles, tongue, hard boiled eggs, olives, etc., are all used in garnishing. In the matter of parsley for cold dishes there is a wider scope for artistic feeling. Cold meats may be ornamented with jelly, parsley or with curled garden cress, which, while it resembles parsley, has the advantage of being eaten when raw. But it is with salads the greatest taste may be displayed, and parsley, too, will be required.—Philadelphia Press.

Mistakenness Mothers of Society.

The mother, who in her own youth timidly retreated before the advance of a yawn ball, is willing if fashion so dictates to allow her young daughter to act as umpire in the game. In a fit of good nature she will gladly tie up her broken thumbs if the injuries resulted in a plain gold band on her fourth finger. She has a high estimate of womanly efficiency that prompts her to exclaim in horror, "Run, dear, papa is coming," when the child is dressing her baby sister with papa's razor. But the knack of having the girl's own father see her in her dressing jacket has scarcely ceased to thrill her before she heads her forth before all the world to act in a ball room worthy of a decent pagan. Even piety is made to serve her purpose. Men admire religion in a woman. They like a wife with influence in the other world. So the prudent mother decides that her girls will be model church-goers and women than can vie with the Pagan, for imitation of a regiment bound for church.

Matchmaking mothers are alike in matters the world over. The donkey mother, believing in method from the cultured Canadian, but her maternal instinct leads her to land the same prey, the only difference being. The Canadian mother has more diplomacy. The haughty aristocrat, the middle class matron, the presiding genius of the equalist house, are one in intention with a certain vigorous country mother, who, believing town life and music to be conducive to matrimony, formulated her plan of campaign as follows, "We'll move to Syracuse, Ike, and you can learn and marry 'em all off."—Donahoe's Magazine.

The Objects of Women's Clubs.

Women's clubs today, in town or in country, are almost always distinctly educational in their aims and purposes. Many clubs lay out courses in philosophy and historic study which cover a wide range of literature and make imperative close and scholarly toil on the part of those who write papers and read before fellowship at dinner time. A woman's club without a paper or papers taking up a definite line of thought or research is a very singular phenomenon. We do not know of any and we rejoice to hear—of girls' clubs, just for fun, for recreation pure and simple, but the members of these usually feel that they ought to apologize for their frivolity.

Americans learn very slowly that there is nothing wrong in the pursuit of enjoyment per se. We are a work, reflective, serious people. Our women are, above everything else, conscientious, even to university, and they feel quite naturally that after the social lioness or before the afternoon cup of tea they should in some way devote themselves either to the improvement of their minds or to the amelioration of certain ills, the reformation of some abuses, or the assistance and elevation of people who are downtrodden and oppressed. —Harper's Bazar.

A Model City Kitchen.

I have in mind one city kitchen, which certainly is a model of its kind. The minutest objects, by whitewash, or papered walls. Instead, here are painted in a real coffee color, which can be wiped regularly, thus removing dust and stain. As the next best substitute for this the oilcloth floor and asses linoleum, which she keeps oiled and waxed so she would the former, were she fortunate enough to find such a luxury in the city house. She has a wire screen closet in a cool place for vegetables and berries which she does not like to put on the ice, as for more than a day, while under a wooden awning in the back yard for such articles as stepladder, lawn mower and ironing board, which generally are left to accumulate in the extension or must be carried up and down the cellar stairs. She denies the statement that girls do not appreciate a clean, convenient, pretty kitchen. For more than a year, she claims, the kitchen has been an inducement for good help to return in the fall.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Variety In Soft Pillows.

By way of variety a round or octagonal down pillow is rather pretty, and where numbers of pillows are used, as on the popular divan, it is a relief to the eye to have them of varied form and size. The prettiest possible cushions may be made at home. Take a large muslin bag and the pillow should be made first and should consist of a strong case of unbleached cotton stuffed to plumpness and securely sewed up. Care should be taken to have the outer covering fit smoothly. The decorations may of course suit the taste of the maker, and the finish should be a double crossway puffing of either pink or china silk, either matching the pillow itself or a less common contrasting color.—Philadelphia Press.

To Properly Prepare Pineapples.

This delicious fruit as generally served is indigestible because sliced so as to include the tough core which fills the center of every piece. When the fruit, however, is properly prepared, the indigestible core is rejected and only the palatable and wholesome portion eaten. With a sharp knife cut off all the tough skin and remove all eyes, but leave the green top in place to use as a handle. When so much is done, grasp the fruit tightly in the left hand, and with a fork pull or tear it into shreds till only the core is left. Then sugar well with powdered sugar and place on ice for 12 hours at the very least, or, better still, for 24.

Recreation of Frenchwomen.

The women of rank and fashion in France who busy themselves in art work are limited enough. The Comtesse de Beaulaincourt makes artificial flowers far better than professional workers in this special branch of trade, while it would be impossible to find more neat and artistic needlewomen than the Duchesse de Mouchy, the Comtesse de Gramont, the late Princesse de Beauvau, Mme. Wilhelm and Mme. Lenthéric, the baroness de Vanfreland, Mme. Pailleron, the wife of the eminent academician and witty playwright. Mme. Delement and Mme. Ditlez.—Paris Letter.

Fuller's Earth Will Remove Stains.

The cleaning properties of fuller's earth are not generally known and appreciated as they should be. When grease has been spilled upon a carpet, make a paste with boiling water and equal parts of fuller's earth and magnesia, apply it to the stain while hot and let it dry. Then brush off the powder, and the grease will usually have disappeared. A paste made of fuller's earth and benzine laid thickly on stained marble and allowed to remain for 12 hours will remove the spot completely.

Ironing With the Clotheswringer.

An authority on domestic economy advises the housekeeper of limited means to save her fire and strength and to do as much ironing with the clotheswringer as possible. Plain pieces like towels, pillow cases, sheets, merinos and stockings put through the wringer will be smooth enough for all practical purposes, if the rolls is tight. Life is too short and flesh and blood too precious to be wasted sprinkling, folding, unfolding, ironing, refolding and airing a lot of white goods.

A Novel Sheeting.

Sheetings are usually noted more for utility than beauty. Something quite novel in this line is also pretty enough to hang in the corner of the room if closet space be limited. On a flat, triangular piece of stout goods are stitched four pockets, cut like the sections of a parasol, and setting out like one half opened. An old parasol handle is fastened down the center of the back and serves to hang it up by. Cretonne, denim and gray green linen are good materials.

A Woman of Culture.

Mrs. Ellen M. Mitchell of Boston has made a special study of Dante and has delivered a course of lectures before the University of Denver and elsewhere on this subject. She is the author of a work called "A Study of Philosophy," dealing chiefly with Greek philosophy, and is one of the little group of Hegelian students of this country. Her method of thought of which Professor William T. Harris is one of the most prominent members.—Chicago Herald.

What Women Owe to the Sun.

Says an authority on the subject: "There is declining disdinguished In a fringe or in a curly bang. Yet to those it is difficult to say how women can express their gratitude, no great is its sum. They have softened and given a charm to the feminine complexion, however forbidding, that nothing else has been able to do. The popularity has from time to time suffered temporary effacement, but it invariably returns."

A Librarian For Twenty Years.

One of the best women in the world is Miss Adams, the librarian of the Somerville public library. For 20 years she has had charge of the library, and her kind, benignant face is as familiar to the patrons of the library as the most familiar books. The people of Somerville take great pride in their public library, which now contains about 23,000 well selected volumes.—Boston Globe.

To Render Canned Goods Safe.

If you open the tin of anything about canned goods, soak them—peas, lobsters, anything—an hour in iced water before heating them. This will remove any tinny taste that will be noticed in them and take away the least shade of reproach that may cling to that best friend of the busy housekeeper, the canned article.—St. Louis Republic.

General Wallace's Keipers.

"General Wallace," says a friend, "has always had an able helper in his wife, and I am told that another of his literary advisers was Mary H. Krout, the author of 'Little Brown Hands,' and now a Chicago journalist, who used to be a Crawfordsville schoolteacher and a great friend of Mrs. General Wallace."

It is never advisable to keep lengths of silk long before having them made into dresses, etc., as the silk is apt to cut and split at the folds, especially if it is hitched and stiffened by artificial means, as is sometimes the case with the inexpensive kinds.

A sterilizer should be in every house, and it should be used for all milk that is used, no matter from where it comes. For small children using quantities of milk the sterilizer is even more essential, as their little systems are easily susceptible to tuberculosis.

Thin curtains which are to be made with plain hems should be fuller than those which are intended to be trimmed with ruffles. Ruffled border will lengthen the apparent majority of thin curtains.

Women average no higher than men in a general roundup of all the virtues, but they're so strong where the men are weak that the men think 'em angels. And so they are, bless 'em!

Mrs. Whitelaw Reid combs her hair Duchess fashion, parted in the middle and confined by a fine comb in the back. She drives very gracefully and sails a yacht.

The library in Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes' New York house is a colonial room, hung in red brocade and finished with white wainscoting and grained ceiling.

Would Not Listen to Family Secrets.

A family up town had some theater tickets which, not being able to use, they turned over to the new girl. The girl, who said she had never been to a theater. After receiving directions the girl started out. About 9 o'clock the family was surprised to see the girl back, and called her in the room to see what the trouble was.

"Why, Mary, didn't you find the place?" was asked.

"Indade, I did, and it was a foine place, and a gentleman showed me a sate near the front."

"And why didn't you stay? What did you do?"

"Well, ivery when were a looking at a foine picture up front, and the place was full of foine ladies and gentlemen, and after a bit the curtain rose, the place up, and some people come out and began talking family matters, and so I thought I better come home."—New York Tribune.

HER LEFT LEG BROKEN.

MINNIE KIELY MET WITH A SERIOUS ACCIDENT THIS MORNING.

She Fell from a Small Extension in the Rear of Blatz's Hotel. While Hanging up Clothes on a Pulley Line.

Minnie Kiely, employed at Mr. Joseph Blatz's on Somerset street, fell from the roof of a small extension in the rear of the hotel, this morning, and broke her left leg.

She was standing on the roof of the extension, which is probably twelve feet high, hanging clothes on a pulley line, which was fastened to the side of the building. She had the entire wash on the line, with the exception of one sheet. As she pulled the line up the weight of the clothes made it necessary for her to lean back and pull with all her strength. She stood with her back toward the edge of the roof. Suddenly the rope broke and Miss Kiely lost her balance and fell to the ground. She went over head first, but managed to turn and land on her feet. Her left leg was broken at the ankle. She was carried into the house, and Mr. Carman summoned. He set the broken bone.

WILLIE MOTLEY DISCHARGED.

But the Taylor Boy was Held for the Grand Jury.

Willie Motley and Johnnie Taylor, the two boys for whose arrest warrants were issued by Justice Nash, on complaint of Mr. Parmele, charged with trespassing, were taken before Justice Nash by their mothers last night.

Justice Nash held the Taylor boy for the Grand Jury, but the other little fellow, who is but six years old, was discharged.

Justice Nash talked to him, giving him good advice, about not accompanying other boys who asked him to go into orchards. The little fellow cried at first, but as the Justice talked to him, he stopped crying and promised not to accompany other boys in their exploits again.

—There are two cases of scarlet fever on East Fourth street. One is Mr. P. Gordon's little son, Harry, and the other is one of Mr. J. Ammond's children. Both houses are quarantined.

—Capt. Agnes McKenzie and Miss Van Norton of New York spoke at the Salvation Army last night. She is a very interesting speaker and those who heard last night were very much pleased by her address.

—No more large size postal cards will be manufactured. The Indies' size is also to be discarded, and there will be one standard size for use, including the return card which when folded is of the international size.

—Eleven writs of certiorari have been issued in the Supreme Court against the State Board of Assessors by the different railroads constituting the New Jersey Central system. The writs are directed against what is termed the extortionate valuations.

—While a farmer from over the mountain was driving along Somerset street on his way home this noon, his horse stumbled and fell, breaking one of the shafts. The man in charge of it put his foot in a basket of eggs and smashed a number of them. The shaft was tied together and the man again started for home.

—We notice in the Plainfield and Sound Brook papers that the Pioneer Council tug-of-war team think they could outpull Friendship Council team if another opportunity was offered. We would suggest that Pioneer Council let us hear from them with a challenge when they get ready and that each council appropriate an equal amount to purchase four handsome individual prizes for the winners. It would truly be a battle of the giants.—Dunellen Call.

Car No. 2 Runs off the Track.

About five o'clock yesterday afternoon as car No. 2 of the Plainfield Electric Street Railway, was making its return trip it jumped the track and would not take the switch when the double tracks commenced near the corner of Somerset street. It was backed up and started ahead several times but each time ran off. Finally with the help of some suggestions from mail carriers, policemen and others, the car was made to go right.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. La Boyteaux of this city are visiting friends at Plackamin.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lent left to day for White Lake, Sullivan county, N. Y.

The Rev. and Mrs. Honeyman of Somerset street, are at Dover, N. J., for two weeks.

Mr. William Rockwell and family of East Front street returned last night from Belmar.

Mrs. Wilson of West Third street is spending a few weeks with friends at New Brunswick.

Mr. Henry B. Newhall and family of East Seventh street are at Lake Placid, N. Y., for a month.

Mr. William J. Battisield has transferred property in North Plainfield to Mr. Silas Coddington for $60.

Frederick Schoomp of West Front street has returned from a visit with David Smith, at Harlingen.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip P. Van Arsdale and son of East Front street are visiting at J. D. Dolliver's of Plackamin.

Mrs. Edzar U. Schenck of Grandview avenue, North Plainfield, is visiting her father, Dr. Ribble, of Harlingen.

Mr. C. Regan has just moved his family into his new house on the corner of West Fourth street and Lee place.

Mrs. John Bushnell and family of Central avenue start to-day for Lake Placid, N. Y., to remain during August.

Mr. and Mrs. Firman A. Long of Summit avenue have returned to their home after a week's visit at Martinsville.

The Misses May and Mattie Rourke of Brooklyn, N. Y., are visiting their cousins, the Misses Jacot, of Somerset street.

Mr. John McCarthy of Syracuse, N. Y., who is on his wedding tour, is visiting his brother-in-law, Mr. J. Egan, of West Third street.

Mr. O. T. Waring and family of Park avenue, start to morrow for Saunderstown, R. I., where they will remain for the balance of the Summer.

Messrs. C. Lyons, A. Stanley, W. Heidloff and L. Lyons have just returned from a few days' outing at Lake Hopatcong. Mr. Heidloff caught a bass weighing six pounds.

Miss B. M. Verdon, who, in company with the Misses Verdon of Mount Joy Square, Dublin, Ireland, who have been on a three weeks' trip to the World's Fair, have returned.

The Round Brook Democrat says: "Judge W. A. Coddington of Plainfield is improving his health by rusticating somewhat. Yesterday with his wife he drove through town to visit friends and relatives."

Two handsome cottages have been built this year, and they will attract the attention of all visitors coming to the bay. J. H. Oliphant of Brooklyn has completed a beautiful cottage at Nehnabbin, on the site of the one destroyed by fire two years ago, and opposite, on the main shore, is the New Summer home of J. W. Jackson of Plainfield, N. J.—Atlantic Bay Correspondent in New York Times.

Dr. Ella F. Swiney, who has been for the past ten years, at the head of the medical department of the Seventh Day Baptist Mission in Shanghai, China, and who has treated many thousand patients in hospital and private practice, will speak at the Seventh-day Baptist church at the morning service, tomorrow. All who are interested in Foreign Mission Work are invited to listen to Dr. Swiney. Service at 10.30.

Recently Messrs. Edward Andrews and Herbert Draper of Norwich, Conn., returned home from a visit with their uncle. Superintendent Amos Andrews of the Plainfield Water Supply Company. Mr. Draper was accompanied here by his wife, who is still at Mr. Andrews'. Mr. Draper is a sheriff at Norwich, and is also a prominent politician. The other nephew, Edward Andrews, is an enthusiastic bicyclist, and was delighted with Plainfield and its beautiful streets. He will probably locate here permanently soon.

Editor J. A. Demarest of the Daily Press was to start to-day for Brockville, Canada, to fill his government appointment at that place. It is not certain what the appointment is. It was at first reported that it was a consulate, but Gen. Stirling, who claims to know all about it, is reported as saying that it is only a government agency, and that Mr. Demarest as the Government agent will get $1,000 per year salary, and fees, which Mr. Demarest estimates will amount to from $2,000 to $3,000 more. It is also reported that Mr. Demarest is trying hard to secure the office of Plainfield postmaster, which it has been understood was to go to either Mr. Rowland M. Stover, or another person very highly thought of here.

In Justice Nash's Court.

Justice Nash to-day issued summons in the following cases: Leire, et als. vs. Stelle, on contract, returnable Aug. 4. Sown et als., vs. Fulper et als., on contract, returnable Aug. 7. Collins vs. Mulford, in tort, returnable July 31. The case of Homan vs. Barton is being tried this afternoon.

The Weather.

On Saturday slightly warmer, fair or partly cloudy weather and fresh southerly winds will prevail, followed by local rain, and on Sunday fair weather with slight temperature changes.

25-MILE ROAD RACE.

WON BY WHEELMEN SYERS OF NEWARK.

He Made the Distance in two Hours, Twenty-three Minutes and Forty-five Seconds.—Only Six Finished. Though Ten Started.

WHEELMEN Syers of Newark won the 25-mile handicap road race over the Scotch Plains-Fanwood course, yesterday afternoon, in one hour, 23 minutes and 45 seconds. He was followed across the line by J. Scott and C. Vanderveer.

The start was made at 2.25 o'clock. Ten men started. Six of which finished.

The outsiders were Syers of Newark, A. Cooper, of Franklin Park, and L. W. Tallman of Rahway. In the second lap C. Vandeventer and L. W. Tallman, both, scratch men, crossed the line almost together, in which position they rode for an entire lap, each one trying to ride alongside of one of the racers who was tripped going through the crowd, and thrown several feet along the hard road bed. He was not seriously hurt.

Bert Harvey, in making the first lap, fell from his bicycle, he escaped with a few scratches.

In the third lap, J. Seldin's bicycle was broken. He was furnished with a new one and started off again.

J. Venable on "Hoo Is It." On Front street he and his wheel took a tumble. On the third lap, in turning the corner of Richmond street and South avenue, his balking wheel once more threw its rider. He landed on his neck and shoulders. He picked himself up and started once more, but had hardly crossed the line when a mineral wagon from Newark, got in his way and in trying to turn out for it he ran in a crowd of people at the side of the road. After giving the driver of the wagon a few points on which was his side of the road, he gave up the race. T. W. Tallman dropped out in the third lap.

The prizes were: A silver medal for best time, and silver medal for first and second men. The following were the officials on the road:

N. Titsworth, starter; D. Stevens, timekeeper; W. J. Kiely, judge.

The racers finished as follows:

No.	Name	Handi-cap	Start	Finish
1.	J. Venable	7 min	2.25.½
4.	E. Jones	6 "	2.24.½	4.24.½ | 1.59.½
5.	J. Scott	6 "	2.24.½	4.24.½ | 1.59.½
6.	S. Harvey	6 "	2.24.½
8.	J. Scott	5 "	2.25.½	4.23.½ | 1.57
9.	J. Seldin	5 "	2.25.½	4.24.½ | 1.59
10.	C. Jackson	5 "	2.25.½	4.25.½ | 1.59.½
11.	A. Cooper	5 "	2.25.½
12.	C. Vanderveer	scratch	4.25.½	1.59.½
13.	L. Tallman	"	2.00.½

W J. Kiely, captain of the Lorcum Cyclers has received samples of medals the 25 mile road race on August 19. There are to be three medals and thirty prizes to be competed for.

BASE BALL.

Crescents Wind Up a Successful Trip Up the Hudson.

HE Crescents wound up a successful trip along the Hudson yesterday by winning a game at Fishkill Landing from the Hiltons. This makes their third consecutive victory while up a trip from home. Turner and Keeler have been the pitchers. The score of yesterday's game was as follows:

Hiltons L.....	2	1	1	0	0	0	6	—10

Manager Keller says: "The games at Poughkeepsie were unusually interesting. At Fishkill the umpiring was the worst ever seen on a ball field, and if they had not hit the ball as they did they could not have won at all. Our boys are a drawing card away from home and wherever they play they are immediately secured for a return date."

Landsman will pitch for the New Brunswicks to morrow, and will try and regain the good record he did for the Olympics. The batting order of Manager Harkins' team will be: Creamer, ss.; Francis, c.; Edger, 3b.; Landsman, p.; Cox, 1.f.; Gerrity, s.s.; Keaney, 1b.; Hawley, r.f.; Greenwold, c.f. Daily will umpire, and a lively game will no doubt be the result.

The married and single men of Scott's Press Works meet on the Park avenue grounds to-morrow afternoon.

The Sun of to-day has the following concerning William Keeler, a former short stop of the Crescents:

"President Byrne has decided to shake the Brooklyns up. With this end in view the services of Third Baseman William Keeler yesterday, during the New York Club's home stand, $1,500. Byrne fixed the matter in Philadelphia on Wednesday night, and Keeler received notice of the purchase of his release while he was practising at the Polo Ground. He at once proceeded to Eastern Park, where he played third base for Brooklyn against Philadelphia. Keeler proved a success from the start. He made a home run and two singles, in addition to accepting five chances without an error. After the game he said to a press reporter:

"I am glad to be able to play regularly. I dislike to be idle. A ballplayer of New York ought to see Keeler play. I am as sure as I am that Ward had committed a blunder in letting Keeler get away."

MR. GREEN'S BROTHER-IN-LAW.

The Man Killed by Lightning at Coney Island Well-known Here.

The man who was killed by lightning in a Coney Island bathhouse on Wednesday, and whose whole unknown personality a veil of mystery was thrown, was positively identified yesterday as Edward T. Loomis, says the New York Herald.

Frederick Green, of Plainfield, N. J., and a man who said he was John F. Barrett called at Sillwell's Morgue at Gravesend early in the afternoon and said the dead man was well known to them.

Green said Loomis was his brother-in-law. He said Loomis had been in the tea business at one time in Vesey street, but had failed. Later on he worked for Barrett, who was until recently in the tea business also. Loomis had at one time occupied a prominent position in the business and had been engaged by several large importers to buy stock for them in China and Japan. He became a great rover and finally drifted into a thoroughly Bohemian style of life. His escapades became many and numerous, and the result followed that strained relations existed between his mother and himself. Barrett said Loomis was his cousin.

Loomis will be buried in Greenwood Cemetery to-morrow.

Mr. J. B. Dumont's Affairs.

But little additional information could be obtained yesterday regarding the affairs of E. I. Nicholas & Co. and John B. Dumont, the two firms that succumbed on Wednesday. The members of the concerns express themselves as hopeful of an early resumption, based, of course, upon the appreciation of stocks held by the interested in their name.

The only development in the case of E. I. Nicholas & Co. was the selling out under the rules of the exchange of the collateral in one loan of $60,000. This was understood to be at the instance of Kessler & Co. the bankers. The stocks sold were 100 Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, 200 Evansville and Terre Haute, 50 Western Union, 200 Mobile and Ohio and one $1,000 bond of the Louisville, Evansville and St. Louis Railroad Company.

In speaking of this transaction a representative of William Nelson Cromwell, the assignee, said that he regretted to hear that Kessler & Co. had decided to sacrifice the stock in their loan, as at the present time selling rates it represented a loss to the lenders and to the firm as well. The large creditors, he added, the men who held the loans of $250,000 or upward, had all assured him that they would hold on to the securities until better prices prevailed.

Mr. Dumont had no outstanding contracts on the exchange, and no stock was either bought or sold for his account. From the latter circumstance it is inferred in the street that his loans, if any, are not large and will be protected until an appreciation in prices prevails.

Color Line in the Grove.

[Asbury Park Journal.]

At Rose's pavilion, last Friday, several colored sisters between the ages of 15 and 40, who had lately arrived on the Plainfield excursion, were taking a foot paddle in the water. Officer Chamberlain ruthlessly waved them off in the direction of Asbury Park. He said he wasn't chic for such large girls to be exposing themselves in that way. A little later a two-horse team was observed going through the motions of a sea bath. They were hustled over to First avenue —"Group E."

The Electric Light Wires Being Raised for the Trolley.

The electric lights of North Plainfield were not turned on last evening, nor will they be this evening. The reason is that the Electric Railway Co. is raising all the wires that cross so they will be beyond danger. To do this they have to cut the wires and put up new poles. By to-morrow the work will be completed. They did well in selecting such fine moonlight nights to cut off the lights.

What Receiver Johnson Says.

Receiver W. Y. Johnson of the defunct Somerset County Bank says that the paper held by the bank is being paid even better than might be expected in such times. Quite a lot of matured paper has been met and even some that is not matured and very good has been paid. Mr. Johnson says he can tell very little yet as to how the end will come, but thinks matters look encouraging, if they continue as they have.

To Get Revenge at Plainfield.

A return game of base ball has been arranged for Saturday next between the Crescents of Plainfield, and the New Brunswicks. The New Brunswicks will put a strong team in the field, and will go to Plainfield with blood in their eye to get revenge for the drubbing they received last week from the Crescents. Odds are offered of five to two that they will win from the Plainfield boys.—New News.

Wheelmen Collide.

About six o'clock last evening two wheelmen collided at the corner of Front street and Park avenue. They were George Shaffer and Edward Rushmore. Neither was injured. The front wheel of Rushmore's bicycle was bent and twisted, while Shaffer rode away as if nothing had happened.

VOTES COMING FAST.

EX-CHIEF SALTZMAN HAS PASSED THE TWO THOUSAND MARK.

Many Increases in the List To-day.—Votes Arriving From Out of Town.—Saltzman's Second Wind Holds Good.

MAN Saltzman set a hot pace yesterday and still keeps ahead. His second wind stands him in good stead and he has now passed his second thousand. As usual there has been a little shifting along the line, Warren Engine Company's Mr. Martin, clings to that second place.

Mr. Smith is on hand at the same old stand, too. R. B. Rogers, the fourth man is showing considerable gain. He is hustling on the quiet, but is a long way back of the leader.

The interest in this contest is intense throughout the city and many ladies and children are helping their favorites.

Votes come again from distant cities showing that Plainfielders keep from home are working two.

Saturday usually brings about great changes.

THOSE ABANDONED FARMS.

What the State Board of Agriculture Says About Them.

VERY little while stories are heard of New Jersey's abandoned farms. The reflection about the matter is disposed of by the State Board of Agriculture in the annual report of the secretary which has just been printed. The report shows that there are practically no abandoned farms in this State, with the exception, of course, of such land as has been cut up into building lots and other lands utilized by summer residents at the seashore. There are, the report shows, less than 400 acres in the entire State which do not pay taxes. On the other hand, the area of cultivated land in the State is here, being with the clearing and reclaiming of new tracts in South and West Jersey and, as the secretary of the State Board declares, agriculture to the State "is steadily advancing to a higher degree of efficiency and productiveness." New Jersey already stands in the first rank of States in the average value of her crops per acre, and she is fortunate in at division of her enterprise between manufacture and agriculture which is so mutually helped and conducive to general prosperity.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Exhibit at the World's Fair.

Of more real interest to the average visitor to the World's Fair than all the gorgeous array of palaces, state buildings, statues, bicycles, and velocipedes in the great Transportation Building is the compact yet comprehensive exhibit which the Pennsylvania Railroad Company makes in its own beautiful little model car, situated in the Manufactures tower, overhead footbridge, automatic switches, tracks, and ditches just outside its doors, and the original Old Ben Bolt locomotive, the oldest in America, with its train of antique cars, and the colossal iron vehicles which bear the Liberty Bell and were conveyed from Baltimore to the Exposition according to the shadow of its walls, it presents to the passerby an appearance as distinctly characteristic that a careful inspection of the treasures of the interior is almost inevitable.

Once inside, you enter immediately into a study of transportation history in the United States on the kindergarten or object lesson basis, and by means of models ranging from the old Conestoga wagon, through a series of curiously fashioned cars, up to the standard luxurious Pullman coaches of to-day, you acquire a most effective idea of railroad progress.

In the way of models, the post of honor is given to a magnificent reproduction of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's new double-deck ferry boat "Washington," which plies between New York and Jersey City, a model complete in every detail, even to the electric lighting and rubber mats at the doors.

To the average visitor the exhibit of the magnitude of the Pennsylvania Railroad system no better method could have been adopted. The exhibit is to have presented to the shade of a perspective map, thirty-three feet long, the location of each train in motion on the system at 6 p. m. on October 20, 1892, the busiest day. The passenger trains being indicated by tiny gilt locomotives, and the freight trains by regulation locomotives of similar hue. In addition to all this there is case after case of photographs, posters, letters bills, and other documents, all more or less interesting, and a number of wax figures, clothed in the uniforms of the Pennsylvania's working staff of employes, from baggage porters to conductors.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The French Outlook.

No less than 30 times in the last 29 years the third French republic has changed its ministry. Yet in spite of that it lives on and is today certainly on a sounder basis than it was ever before. The ebullition of political corruption which has deluged the country is a sign of returning health and vigor, not of mortal illness. If the foulness had remained covered up and seething in the heart of the government, there would have been the real danger.

In coming years the philosophical historian of France, he who traces out causes to their effects, will regard the Franco-Prussian war as the regeneration of his country. Louis Napoleon had fed the French on shows and pomp, as the Romans were fed in the declining days of the empire. Without knowing it the whole French nation became enervated and bound down to ideals of material luxury. The Germans whipped the soul into them again. Startled unspeakably, they looked about and asked the cause of their defeat.

"The prime wisdom is the deterioration of French manhood and ideals, and they recognized it. Then, cut to the heart, but determined to manifest real superiority again, the French pulled themselves together to try once more. They revolutionized their system of education. Where overweening vanity had been, there came a humility coupled with a resolve that if ever France tried issues with Germany again the result would be different. There was first, so to speak, a magnificent and robust physical awakening. Improved military drill, beginning in the very schoolroom, physical culture in its most approved form, became the vogue. Frenchmen loved their country all the more for what she had suffered, and there was a baptism of patriotism comparable to that we read of in the chronicles of white plumed Henry of Navarre. Educational courses were renewed, too, and made to include the industrial, artistic and scientific needs of the day.

Last of all comes the news of the great moral regeneration which is sweeping across the beautiful republic. The Panama canal trials were only one of the results of the cleansing wave.

Disturbances like the students' riot and the mad dash of the mob spirit in Paris could easily have precipitated revolution and overthrow of the government half a century ago. That they did not do so this time shows how much the French have gained in self discipline, also how deeply the republic is rooted. The students who exhibited a rude model at one of their balls and repeated police interference have doubtless received a lesson in the appearance of the mob specter they invoked when they resisted the officers. All the tramps, anarchists, thieves, cutthroats and men with a grudge against society enlisted under the students' riot banner and made an army before which the young men slunk back in very shame.

There may be riots in Paris before the summer is over and during the coming parliamentary elections, but the government of France can place 60,000 men in the streets of Paris in five hours' time, and will do so in case of need. With this knowledge before them, the mob will not go to desperate extremes. It is with deepest interest and sympathy that we on this side watch France gaining self control and stability and marching surely up again to the head among nations. Long live the republic of France!

The army bill finally passed by the new German parliament differs considerably from the one on which the former parliament went to pieces. It lessens considerably the annual number of soldiers to be conscripted. It also makes the term of actual service in the army for the conscripts either two or three years, according to the discretion of the superior officers. If the man is a satisfactory soldier at the end of two years, so far as drill and discipline are concerned, he may be discharged; otherwise he must be kept another year. It may be observed, however, that it is not the policy of the German military authorities to let off many men under three years. The greatest concession made to the growing public sentiment against increasing the German army was in the diminished number of drafted men called for. The only way the bill was passed at all was through the shrewdness of Caprivi in making an announcement in reference to the bill before the final balloting took place in districts where second elections were required to determine the result. He announced that the army bill to be introduced in the new parliament would be modified and made different from the former one.

Signs indicate that the storage battery will be thoroughly investigated for street car propulsion in the new lines now being projected. There is infinite development in the storage battery evidently. In New York city the storage system has given such satisfaction, experimentally, on at least one line where it has been tried, that it is to be extended to other cars.

HOME RULE WON IN RIOT

The Bill Passed the Committee Stage After a Free Fight.

HOUSE OF COMMONS IN AN UPROAR.

Chamberlain's Bitter Speech In Opposition Called Forth Even O'Connor the Word Jockey, and Then the Members Punched Each Other's Heads.

LONDON, July 28.—At the hour set for the closure of the debate in committee on the home rule bill the galleries of the house were filled with persons expectant of an exciting scene at the close of the committee's labors. Few members were absent from the benches on the floor of the house.

Obscure members contented with the debate until the hour before the closure was to be applied. Then Joseph Chamberlain rose to deliver the final broadside of the opposition. He was still smarting under the lash which Mr. Gladstone swung on Tuesday evening, and spoke for several minutes with corresponding bitterness.

Jeers from the Irish, cheers from the Unionists and counter cheers from the Liberals interrupted Mr. Chamberlain. He waited two or three minutes before the confusion abated sufficiently for him to speak without effort. He then proceeded thus:

"The prime minister calls 'black,' and his adherents say it is good. The prime minister calls 'white,' and they say it is better. [Unionist laughter.] It is always the voice of God. Never since the time of Herod has there been"—

The Storm Breaks.

Mr. Chamberlain got no further. Immediately after resuming his speech he had been warned from the Irish benches that a storm was gathering. He could hardly have expected the suddenness with which it broke, for with his half finished reference to Herod there arose from the Nationalists such a roar of indignation as has not been heard in the house since the days of Parnell. Mr. Chamberlain was plainly startled, but he tried to talk on. His voice was inaudible to the members of the next bench. He turned toward the Nationalists, and shrill yells of execration rose above the uproar.

T. P. O'Conner sprang to his feet, leaned toward Mr. Chamberlain and shouted "Judas!" so loudly that the epithet could be heard throughout the house. The rest of the Irishmen took up the cry and for half a minute shouted "Judas!" in chorus.

Meantime the clock struck 10. Chairman Mellor tried to put the closure, but his voice could not be heard amid the shouts of the Irish and the Unionists. Then came a sudden scene unprecedented in parliamentary history. Mr. Mellor gave in a weak voice the customary directions to clear the house for a division. As the disorderly scenes which followed were made to execute these directions.

The Conservatives, however, flatly refused to quit the house. Sir John Gibbs, Gibson Bowles and William Hanbury shouted to the chairman that he must first call Mr. O'Connor to order for having called Mr. Chamberlain a jockey. Mellor protested that he had not heard the epithets in question.

Meantime half of the Unionists had climbed to the benches and were shouting "Gag!" "Gag!" Others were struggling in the aisles or between the benches with Liberal, Liberal or Irish antagonists.

Fighting On the Benches.

Curses, yells of pain and gross insults were heard on every side. John Logan, Liberal, ran down to the first opposition bench and began pummeling Edward Carson, a Tory. As he shook his fist under Mr. Carson's nose, George Wyndham and William Fisher jumped to the assistance of their party colleague, seized Mr. Logan by the neck, threw him to the floor head first, and then bundled him under a bench. Somebody smashed Tom Healy's high hat down over his eyes. Healy tore off the hat and sprang into the aisle in full fighting posture, just as Mr. Hanbury, still shouting that the chairman must name Mr. O'Connor, was trying to get by. Mr. Hanbury was knocked over a bench by the force of the collision before Mr. Healy got in a blow.

A free fight then broke out at the top of the gangway. The center of it was William Redmond, Parnellite, who had taken advantage of the general license to push over Colonel Saunderson, the champion of the men of Ulster. Saunderson was rescued and led an attack on the Parnellites.

Blows were struck right and left. Members fell and were picked up by their friends to fight again. The whole space between the front benches was filled with a struggling, cursing mass of members, striking, clawing and upsetting each other. Manful efforts were made to separate the combatants. Both sergeants at arms forced their way through the thick of the fight, but as fast as one group was pacified another came to blows.

Eventually Mr. Gladstone begged Edward Marjoribanks, a sturdy Liberal, to do something to stop the fighting. Mr. Marjoribanks dug his way through the tangled mass of belligerents, and by repeated appeals in the name of the premier succeeded in stemming the conflict.

Colonel Saunderson emerged first from the crowd of fighters. He was holding a bunch of keys to his black eye. Others followed more or less damaged condition. Just as peace was assured the door leading to the lobby opened, and Dr. Tanner, who had been outside and had heard of the fight but a minute before, came down the house, leaping over benches in his haste to get into the melee. The sergeant at arms grappled him half way to the table door of the front bench and restrained him until he consented to keep the peace.

Gladstone Watched It All.

Mr. Balfour had been absent during the riot. Mr. Gladstone, sitting bolt upright, had watched the scene with inflamed face and an expression of sorrow, indignation and astonishment which will never be effaced from the memory of those observing it.

Chairman Mellor sent for Speaker Peel as soon as order was restored. When the speaker entered, several Conservatives rose and pointing to Mr. Gladstone exclaimed: "There sits the author of it all."

While Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Balfour and Mr. Mellor conferred as to what should be done the combatants were comparing notes. Not one of them showed his effects of rough handling. Timothy Healy had received a hard blow in the face, and one cheek was badly swollen. William Redmond also had a bad spot on his face.

The hum of voices died out as Speaker Peel, stern and dignified, took the chair. A slight cheer was given for him, and then Mr. Mellor, as chairman of the committee, reported to Mr. Peel as speaker of the house what had occurred. Mr. Mellor spoke in a low, nervous tone, but the members had become so quiet that not a word was inaudible.

After a lengthy discussion as to whether or not Mr. O'Connor had used the word "Judas" Mr. Peel said:

"I have arrived at the conclusion that the opprobrious expression alleged to have been used was the original cause of the disorder. I feel certain that the gentleman who used the words did so in the heat and irritation of the moment. If he is sincerely sorry he may regret having used them, I am quite certain it would be my duty to take no further notice of the affair."

Mr. O'Connor Apologized.

Amid Conservative cries of "Withdraw!" Mr. O'Connor apologized to the speaker "if any words of his had contributed to bring about this most regrettable state of affairs."

The speaker said the apology was most ample.

Colonel Saunderson rose as soon as the cheering subsided. Despite frequent interruptions and shouts of "No" from the Irish he succeeded in briefly explaining Orean, anti-Parnellite, had without provocation hit him in the eye.

The increasing confusion threatened a renewal of the fight, when Mr. Balfour and Timothy Harrington, Parnellite, rose together, Mr. Balfour yielded the floor and Mr. Harrington began more temperately.

Mr. Mellor then resumed the chair, and the new clause was adopted by a vote of 312 to 291.

An another clause, which had not been discussed, was to be put to a vote, somebody challenged Mr. Balfour to read it. In an undertone Mr. Balfour said, "No, no; don't have it read." The clause was carried by a vote of 321 to 285. The two other financial clauses were carried without division. The postponement of the fifteenth and sixteenth clauses was adopted by a vote of 315 to 283. The motion that the first schedule stand a part of the bill was carried by a vote of 310 to 277. The second schedule was carried by 290 to 275 amid loud opposition cheers. The rest of the schedules were adopted without noteworthy incidents.

When the committee rose and Chairman Mellor reported to Speaker Peel, presiding over the house, the home rule bill as amended in committee, cheer after cheer was given, and hats were waved for Mr. Gladstone by the Liberals and Irish, who were answered by the Unionists with counter cheers. The report stage was fixed for Aug. 7.

SELF DESTROYERS.

One Day's List of Suicides That Were Out of the Ordinary.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 28.—The suicide of Cashier E. S. Francis is the all absorbing topic of discussion here, and the opinion prevails that he had reached a crisis in his affairs which he did not dare face. The bank has notified the American Trust company of New York, Francis' bondsmen, that claims aggregating about $25,000 had been made against the bank on account of the cashier's transactions. The company's attorney, Lawyer Strong, called on the cashier Thursday morning, and at once he saw that exposure was inevitable. He was perfectly calm and pleasant at the interview, but as soon as Mr. Strong left him he sent his relatives from the room and blew out his brains.

On the other hand, his relatives claim that he was on the verge of a second attack of apoplexy and was not responsible. His affairs are badly mixed, and it will take some time to untangle them.

ATCHISON, Kan., July 28.—Frank Howard, a prominent wholesale notion dealer of this city, committed suicide by shooting himself through the brain.

ROCHESTER, July 28.—Dr. George Fischer committed suicide by drinking an ounce of hydrate of chloral. He left on his desk a certificate of his own death filled out in his own handwriting, and in the space "reported by" he had inserted "himself."

BOSTON, July 28.—William H. Irving, aged 70 years, having committed suicide in Chicago, lived in Winthrop, Mass., where he has a wife and a 2-year-old child. He had charge of a department in a large clothing house in Boston, and so far as known no possible reason for the suicide can be learned. He left home June 15, and since then nothing had been heard from him.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New York—O. H. Ackian, Bethel; C. W. Hallock, Creek; P. R. Eller, Divine's Corners; F. V. Bush, Grahamsville; James Simpson, South Cairo; Thomas Hyde, Tivoli; James Gaffney, Wappinger's Falls; Jacob Cornelius, Wesleyville.

New Jersey—W. P. Garrabrant, Brookside; J. R. Berthoff, Cresskill; C. D. Van Cleve, Irvington; Christian Brotzman, Riegelsville.

Pennsylvania—A. E. Anton, Bridgeport; C. A. de Lancey, Jackson; W. R. Gerhardt, Milford Station; R. H. Sankey, Shickshinny; Mrs. Matilda Ackers, Siger's Mills; A. A. Phillips, Strawbridge.

That Lizzie Borden Story.

TAUNTON, Mass., July 28.—The story that Lizzie Borden had confessed was made out of whole cloth. Miss Borden came to this city according to previous arrangements and is now fighting. Mr. Marjoribanks dug his way through the tangled mass of belligerents, and by repeated appeals in the name of the premier succeeded in stemming the conflict.

Colonel Saunderson emerged first from the crowd of fighters. He was holding a bunch of keys to his black eye. Others following more or less damaged condition. HUNTING FOR A GHOST.

Long Island Villagers Turn Out With Shotguns.

A GAUNT SHEETED SPECTER SEEN.

This Particular Goblin Haunted an Old Spring, Where It Scared Children—If the Ghost Is Caught He Will Get a Coat of Tar and Feathers.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Armed with shotguns and pistols, and accompanied by a pack of dogs, a score or more of the residents of Woodside heights, in Woodside village, N. Y., started out last night to hunt down the mystery which has been haunting the old town spring, scaring children and chasing women and girls. The spring is in a triangular clump of woods on the rising ground of the heights.

Betts avenue skirts the woods on the south, and Greenpoint avenue runs along at an angle to the northeast. Thompson avenue bounds the west side, and Cleveland avenue cuts across almost directly east from Thompson avenue into Greenpoint avenue.

This old spring dates back beyond the recollection of the oldest inhabitants, and it is said that it never runs dry. It is the center of a network of paths that lead in from the avenues.

The house around it is taller than a man's head. During the recent drought more than half the village of Woodside has obtained water from this spring. All day long and late at night groups of children, girls and women could be seen in all directions with pails in their hands, going to and fro from the spring.

Children Saw It First.

But during the last few days the little village has had a great scare. It started at the bubbling spring three nights ago, when a number of children came flying out of the brush, leaving their water pails behind. They said they had seen a ghost, and no amount of persuasion could induce them to return for their abandoned pails.

The scare was repeated several times that night and once or twice on the following day, until the children became so badly frightened that not one of them would venture to go to the spring.

Then the women heard it, and on several occasions they can e screaming out of the woods running for dear life and perhaps a trifle more scared than the children.

They all had one story to tell. While bending over drawing water they were stealthily approached from behind by a tall, gaunt individual, dressed entirely in white, who suddenly sprung upon them. The children say he got down on all fours and crawled after them like a ravenous animal. Richard Hegeman and Annie Robinson, whose father keeps a grocery store in Greenpoint avenue, more than a mile before she escaped.

Another little girl, Josie Caton had a similar fright. She lives in Cleveland avenue with her parents, and her brother George and sister Winnie were also frightened near the spring.

Members of the families of Charles Christensen, Frank Case, John Dietrich, J. Schellinger and others living in that vicinity have encountered the apparition at the spring on different occasions.

On Wednesday night Mr. Christensen caught sight of the ghost for a few rods a mile or so, but he was not fleetfooted enough and in the dense woods he lost the trail. A search was made by some of the men that night. They discovered a sort of bed and shelter constructed deep in the woods, which was thought to be the rendezvous of the person they were hunting. A watch was left at the place, but no one came.

Born a Shotted Figure.

Young Thomas Robinson, who clerks in Gustave Burgess' store, came across the disturber while on his way home about midnight from Mrs. Caton's house, to which he had been escorting one of the young ladies. When some distance away from Caton's house Robinson saw a figure sheeted like a ghost float out of a clump of brush and cut fantastic capers in the road, moving about as silently as a shadow.

Young Robinson's heart came up in his throat. He says he didn't make any outcry, but every now and then the ghostly dancer would give utterance to an unearthly shriek that caused his hair to stand on end and sent the cold sweat trickling down his back. Then the dogs began to bark, and persons disturbed by the shrieks came to their doors, and the phantom turned a few handsprings and disappeared as suddenly as he came.

Last night found the village thoroughly alarmed. It was decided that these antics must be stopped, so with plenty of ammunition the ghost hunters started out.

If the culprit is not shot in the chase he will probably get a coat of tar and feathers and a good thrashing. The women folks of Woodside heights will not feel safe until the ghost has been captured.

Eloped With His Wife.

ELWOOD, Ind., July 28.—Pleasant Wedell and wife have eloped. They were married last spring and she tried to commit suicide because of bad treatment at his hands. They separated, she living with relatives who would not allow her to see him. They planned an elopement, succeeded in eluding her relatives and are in Cincinnati.

Cholera Strikes, Not Asiatic Cholera.

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—Medical Inspector Dr. Atkinson went to Chester to investigate the death of the Austrian workman who died there from what was reported to be cholera. Dr. Atkinson found that the man died from aggravated cholera morbus, and that the man had been here several months.

A Big Catch of Cod.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 28.—The schooner Margaret Mather arrived from Labrador, where she has been on a cod fishing trip the last three months, bringing 160,000 pounds.

FRANCE ACCEPTS.

Reports From Several Sources That the Siam Affair Is Settled.

LONDON, July 28.—The Standard's Paris correspondent says:

"I gather that M. Develle and Lord Dufferin have agreed to a compromise on the frontier question. The newspapers have no inkling of this and are as aggressive as ever."

Sir Charles Dilke said in an interview this evening he believed that the Marquis of Dufferin and M. Develle had reached an agreement by which France would abandon her claims to the upper Mekong. "Of course," he added, "the surrender will be glossed over by words of compromise, but I cannot imagine England's agreeing to anything else."

BANGKOK, July 28.—Notice was given of the blockade by the French fleet. Outgoing vessels have been warned that they must clear from Bangkok and Koh-si-Chang before Saturday or submit to detention. The blockade will extend along the entire north coast of the gulf of Siam.

The French fleet, with M. Pavie, French minister resident, have gone to Koh-si-Chang.

The general expectation is that early in August the French fleet will attack Bangkok and land some 5,000 men. There is little doubt here that France's purpose is to make Siam a French colony.

The Siamese government is exceedingly anxious to avoid open warfare. When the steamer Lutin was at the mouth of the Menam early in the morning the foreign minister sent to M. Pavie a note to the effect that the king and his advisers were most anxious to maintain peace. All such efforts, however, are believed by the English residents to be in vain.

Unless England intervenes to assist in a settlement of the dispute there can be little expectation or even hope that France will refrain from extreme measures.

A Reported Settlement.

LONDON, July 28.—The Pall Mall Gazette says: "We learn from an authority that is deserving of the highest respect that the Franco-Siamese difficulty has been settled. France has agreed to accept Siam's proposals and has abandoned her claims to the territory lying between the eighteenth and twenty-third parallels of latitude."

Sir Edward Grey stated in the house of commons that France had given assurance to Great Britain that sufficient time would be accorded for the departure of ships having loaded their cargoes previous to the day that the blockade begins.

The statement of the parliamentary secretary was otherwise in effect similar to the one made in the house of lords by Earl Rosebery.

Pueblo Is Under Water.

PUEBLO, Colo., July 28.—The citizens were awakened by a terrible flood, which came down the river from the Grand canyon of Arkansas. The water broke over the levee for two places, flooding the lower portion of the city. The flat back is now four feet of water on three sides of it, and all the basements in that block are filled. A break west of the city flooded the portion of the city west of the Union depot and Victoria avenue. The loss will be nearly $100,000.

Only the Motorman Hurt.

COSEY ISLAND, N. Y., July 28.—There was a rear end collision on the Long Island and Brooklyn electric road at a point opposite Hoff's hotel in South Greenfield. A motorman was severely injured about his shoulders, head and left arm. He was removed to Flatbush hospital without his name being taken. The passengers escaped with light bruises and a general shaking up.

Mayor Did Not Change His Plea.

NEW YORK, July 28.—When Dr. Meyer, the alleged poisoner of Ludwig Baum, entered his plea last Thursday on the charge of murder brought against him, he was given one week in which to file a demurrer or withdraw his plea. The time expired yesterday and as Meyer was not brought into court his plea stands, and the preparations for the trial will go on.

An Octogenarian's Long Distance Walk.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 28.—Ray Earl, 80 years old, started to walk to Chicago on a wager of $100 that he can cover the distance in 42 days and take with him no money for food or other purposes, except what is necessary to pay ferriages.

The Senate's Chinese.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Of the six Chinamen who arrived on the steamer Seneca from Hamburg Tuesday and were detained by Chinese Inspector Scharf four were allowed to land.

Taylor's Execution a Horror.

AUBURN, N. Y., July 28.—The electrocution of Taylor was a horror. The contents of the chair broke, and the dynamo gave out so that a second current had to be applied.

DENVER FEARS A RIOT.

Banks and Gun Stores Guarded by Troops.

ANOTHER LYNCHING THREATENED.

The Mayor Issues a Proclamation Asking Citizens and Others to Keep the Peace, a Great Influx of Unemployed and Desperate Men Throng the Streets.

DENVER, July 28.—The lynching of the Italian Arata Thursday night has shown the immense crowd of idle workmen at present in Denver what can be accomplished by violence, and there is a dread in the minds of many citizens that a riot of enormous size, having for its purpose the looting of the city, may break out at any time.

The thousands of unemployed workmen already here are being augmented daily by others from throughout the state, who are gradually working their way to Denver. The county and city and numerous charity organizations are doing their best to feed and shelter the great army of penniless people, but they are incapable of meeting the demands.

The banks of the city have called upon the government troops at Fort Logan, of which there are 700, to be ready to protect their institutions in case of an outbreak. The banks are United States depositories, and thus have a right to ask government protection.

Troops at the Armory.

Unemployed members of the state militia and the Chaffee light artillery are now under arms at the armory awaiting developments.

Mayor Vanhorn issued a proclamation requesting all good citizens not to congregate on the streets, as it may lead to an outbreak. A large crowd of idle men attempted to board a train at Fourteenth street, but were repulsed by the trainmen. Every precaution possible has been taken by the different officials to prevent trouble, and they are hopeful of success.

While the mob was hanging and brutally dragging the body of Dan Arata through the muddy streets a robber entered the office of the assistant cashier of the Denver Tramway company, and at the point of a revolver demanded that he open the safe and deliver over the cash. The cashier grabbed a revolver and fired at the robber, who returned the shot. Several rounds were fired, but as no officer was within a quarter of a mile of the scene the robber escaped.

Officers have been stationed in all the tough sections of the city who promptly report any suspicious gatherings. The Italian section especially is carefully watched. Sheriff Burchinell quietly slipped out of the armory to the murder of R. G. Lightfoot, to the pen at Canon City to avoid a repetition of last night's outrage.

It had been rumored about the city that an attempt would be made to lynch him.

Details of the national guard fiave been under arms watching the gun stores of the city to see that no suspicious quantities of ammunition might be distributed among the incendiary.

It is the general opinion that no steps will be taken to prosecute any of the ring leaders of the mob, though a few of them will probably be indicted.

The coroner began an inquest on the body of Arata today, but it was secret and nothing has been given out.

Governor Waite was criticised severely today because of his well known antipathy to capital punishment. It is claimed that the certainty of a reprieve should Arata be convicted and sentenced to death had much to do with the friends of the murdered man taking the law into their own hands.

A company of Colorado national guard was on duty in the People's National bank all day and last night. It was feared that in the present excited state of the public mind the developments in the affairs of the bank might lead to an attack on the institution.

President Lawrence and his family left the city, and the case against him was continued to Saturday morning. The police had their hands full last night. Several thousand men swarmed in the lower sections of the city without any definite purpose in view.

Wherever they attempted to congregate, or orators attempted to address them, the gatherings were promptly dispersed.

The national guard was on duty at the armory, and any attempt at disturbance would have been promptly suppressed. The chamber of commerce passed resolutions demanding the removal of Chief of Police Kellogg, who has just entered upon his duties, and the appointment of some man able to cope with the present situation.

THE M'KIBBEN CASE.

Maud, the Daughter, Charged With Poisoning Her Parents.

ST. LOUIS, July 28.—The coroner decided that Maud McKibben, aged 17 years, was responsible for the death by poisoning of her father and sister, and she will be arrested. The case is one of deep mystery, and in motive, design and trial will surpass the famous Borden case.

On June 21 last the McKibben family, with the exception of Mrs. McKibben, who had been separated from her husband for several years, partook of a family dinner at the residence of Mrs. Charles Stewart, a married daughter, 1,803 North Twentieth street. Miss Maud assisted in preparing the meal, and was the only member of the party who did not eat dinner. Her refusal was attributed to a severe headache. Soon after the meal the participants became violently ill. No physician, however, was summoned until late in the evening.

The father died at St. Luke's hospital two days later, and Mrs. Stewart died on June 25. It was learned that Maud had been unsuccessful in an attempt to procure paris green from a neighboring drug store, and this fact, together with the knowledge that she was jealous of her sisters and had made threats of revenge for being arrested on suspicion of stealing money from her father, led to her arrest. At the preliminary examination Maud asserted her innocence, and was released pending the coroner's verdict.

SHOT WHILE AT WORK.

An Italian Woman Took Vengeance on Her Slanderer.

ORANGE, N. J., July 28.—Mario Sponzoto, a young married Italian woman, fatally shot Nicolaus Serranati, a workman employed on a sewer. Serranati had been paying attention to Mrs. Sponzoto, and the latter's husband, hearing of it, had beaten his wife. Mrs. Sponzoto learned that Serranati had talked insultingly of her. She took a revolver and proceeded to the sewer where Serranati was working.

To her demand for an explanation he returned an evasive answer, and the woman, drawing her revolver fired, the ball striking Serranati in the left side below the rib and passing nearly through the abdominal region. Mrs. Sponzoto attempted to fire again, but the pistol was knocked out of her hand by another laborer. She was then arrested.

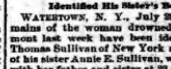
Serranati is still alive, but the physicians say that his death is a question of only a few hours. Mrs. Sponzoto was committed to the county jail without bail. She is 22 years old and the mother of one child. Serranati was 30 years of age.

Curtailing Watch Making.

WALTHAM, Mass., July 28.—Consternation reigns today in consequence of the official announcement that the American Waltham Watch company, the biggest industry in the city and the largest watch producing concern in the world, would not start up until Aug. 7, and that then only half the employees would be given work.

Identified His Sister's Body.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 28.—The remains of the woman drowned at Chaumont last week have been identified by Thomas Sullivan of New York as the body of his sister Annie E. Sullivan, who resided with her father and sister at 22 and 24 Second avenue, West Troy.



Fashion Notes.

The thing just now in finger rings is to acquire three half hoop rings—one in delicate moods, one in rubies and one in sapphires or emeralds—and wear them all on the same finger.

The coarser laces—point de venise, guipure and Irish point—are the most effective for trimming purposes.

Colored linen, with watered silk trimmings, is the newest fancy for the summer girl's suit.

Skirts are becoming just a little less triangular in shape, and evening bodices are perhaps not quite so much trimmed.

More antique is coming to take the place of the modern. It is used for gowns, wraps and as a trimming for anything really smart.

White muslin, trimmed with valenciennes lace, is coming in again for bridesmaids' gowns.

COLLECTING BUTTERFLIES.

It is perhaps hardly a well known fact that there are men who travel the world over for the purpose of securing insects, which they sell to those people whose hobby is a collection of butterflies, just as stamps or coins is that of many other persons. Dr. Eugene Aaron, a practical collector, gives in the Atlanta Constitution some interesting facts and illustrations regarding this occupation, from which are gleaned the following:

NATIVE BOY WALKING UP A COCOA PALM.

Wealthy collectors sometimes pay fabulous sums for specimens valuable either because never before included in any collection or possessed by some rival collector. The late Baron Rothschild paid $450 for one butterfly found some years ago in Sumatra and never since.

Tropical butterflies are the most costly. In most parts of the United States all the collector needs to do is to go out with his net and his other material to a field or meadow where there is plenty of honey laden flowers and make the best possible use of his eyes and legs. All this is changed when the collector finds himself in tropical countries and in just the places where he is most likely to find the very rare things that bring the big prices.

Meadows and pastures full of low flowers are almost unknown there. In the forests everything grows with the utmost luxuriousness, and in such paths as can be found through the tangle of fern and giant creepers the light is usually so shut out by the dense growth overhead that butterflies are seldom captured in such places. These tropical thickets are so matted together with creeping vines and huge air plants and thorn bearing bushes that no one, however eager to follow a butterfly, can by any possibility make headway through them.

One method of capturing high flying tropical butterflies is with the butterfly gun. This is made with a very small bore and so as to "bunch" the tiny load in one spot. Either "dust" shot as fine as fine powder or water can be used in them.

There are many species much covered by the collector that are far too delicate to shoot at all and yet never come near enough to the ground to be taken by the longest handled butterfly net. Such species fly high over flower bearing trees, frequently a good hundred feet above the ground.

The quickest way into this tree top world is by vegetable ropes, the long air roots of parasitic plants that grow on the upper limbs of many of the mighty forest monarchs. But this is a dangerous proceeding. The climber is likely to get half way up a tree, perhaps 30 feet from the ground, then suddenly find that the ropes that seemed so secure are slowly giving away from above, and he must be too quick in getting back.

If the tree is a palm or any sort not too thick around the trunk, some native boy for a penny or two will climb it, but the chances are that after he gets up he will capture and bring proudly back to the ground the very specimen you took care to explain was the one you did not want.

Seeing Objects Over Great Distances.

Among possibilities opened up by modern science is that of being able to see over as great distances as we now hear by telephone. From a lecture delivered by Mr. Le Pontois before the Electrical Society club it appears that sufficient advance has been made upon an instrument of this character to give color to the belief that its perfection is only a matter of short time. The operation of the instrument described is based upon the property of selenium by virtue of which its resistance is affected by light, and by the employment of a selenium cell successively to the various degrees of light reflected from the object to be pictured a current of a pulsating nature is produced, whose pulsations respond to the various light waves reflected and are transmitted over the line and reproduced at the receiving instrument. The image is reflected as in a looking glass and transmitted over a wire without the use of photography or any permanent recording of the picture.

TO ENJOY LIFE

you want a good

HORSE AND CARRIAGE,

To get the best Carriages, you should examine our fine stock. Don't forget, either, that a nice Lap Robe and Whip are handy if carry is a good outfit. At our place they cost but little, and we have many grades. Suppose you give us a chance to show them to you? We have also plenty of Fly Nets, which your horse will be very thankful for.

GOOD HEALTH

THE BICYCLIST'S STOOP.

Caused by Useless Use of an Excellent and Agreeable Form of Exercise.

Many physicians are addicted to bicycling, and their authority may be appealed to in praise of the exercise as a means of bringing the muscles into play, developing the respiratory system, improving the circulation, clearing the deeper seated viscera of congestion, sending the blood to the integument, and above all reacting in the most healthful way on the nerve centers. At the same time the exercise is liable to abuse. One evil traceable to bicycling is the confirmed "stoop" which, has already declared itself, says The Lancet, in many "wheelmen"—a result indeed so common in the less strongly built bicyclists of the European continent as to have found its way into classification as the "Kyphosis bicyclistarum."

The dorsal curvature posteriorly—kyphosis proper—which used to be rare in lads under 14 years of age, is, now that the bicycle is so largely used, frequently met with, particularly among young bicyclists, whose spinal column is developing more rapidly than the ligaments and muscles, and in whose case, therefore, the equilibrium between these several parts is more or less disturbed. Were it merely an unsightly deformity, the "stoop" in question ought to be combated in every way. But confirmed dorsal curvature posteriorly has sequelæ of its own quite mischievous enough to call for immediate and effective counteraction. The displacement, embarrassed functional activity and arrested or diseased development of the thoracic viscera which kyphosis inevitably induces are all too serious to warrant the slightest neglect in remedying them.

Exercise of a kind to accustom the spinal column to an action directly antagonistic to the "inclination forward" of the bicyclist's attitude is manifestly indicated, and the use of Indian clubs or such similar means of developing the pectoral muscles, throwing out the chest and maintaining the head erect should be practiced. All the undoubted advantages of bicycling might thus be retained without the cultivation of the stoop which tends to impose a lunchbacked development on what it would then be a figure of speech to call the "rising" generation.

Between Life and Death.

An exchange enumerates the following ways of determining whether a death is real or only apparent: If the flame of a person in whom the vital spark still lingers be tightly bound with a piece of string, the end of the finger soon becomes red and then big, but if any individual be dead no such effect will be produced by the application of a ligature. If during life a clean and bright needle be thrust into the muscles of the body, the steel rapidly rusts on being withdrawn. After death no such oxidation takes place, it is said. However, the certainty of this latter test is disputed. One of the most familiar methods of determining absence of life is that of producing a blister by heat, as with the flame of a candle. If the skin beneath and around the blister becomes red, the individual lives; otherwise he is dead.

Alleged Cure For Rattlesnake Bites.

Dr. W. J. Hoffman notices in Science the employment by a Pennsylvania "mountain doctor" of a plant claimed to possess virtue in cases of rattlesnake bite. This plant is described as many-lanatine, or sandy, termed by the native "mountain tea," because it "masters the rattlesnake venom." The fresh plant and leaves are pounded and soaked in boiling milk, and the mixture then is applied to the wound as a poultice. A decoction of the same plant is also taken internally. The decoction is said to be more efficacious if made with milk instead of water. Dr. Hoffman believes this to be the first instance of bringing this plant to public attention, at least as employed by the Pennsylvania Germans and for the purpose stated.

ETIQUETTE

HOW TO HAVE A PLEASANT VISIT.

Pointed and Sensible Suggestions to Guest and Hostess.

Avoid controversy and argument.
Do not monopolize any good thing.
Do not overdo the matter of entertainment.
Do not make a hobby of personal information.
Go directly when the call or the visit is ended.
Do not forget bathing facilities for the traveler.
"Make yourself at home," but not too much so.
In ministering to the guest do not neglect the family.
Conform to the customs of the house, especially as to meals.
Let no member of the family intrude in the guest chamber.
Do not make unnecessary work for others, even servants.
Be courteous, but not to the extent of surrendering principles.
Do not gossip; there are better things in life to talk about.
When several guests are present, give a share of attention to each.
Introduce games and diversions, but only such as will be agreeable.
Better simple food with pleasure than luxuries with annoyance and worry.
Have a comfortable room in readiness adapted to the needs and tastes of the guest.
A guest need not accept every proposed entertainment; he should be considerate of himself and of his hosts.
Learn the likes and dislikes of those who are to be entertained, but not through the medium of an imperative catechism.—Good Housekeeping.

Correct Address.

Almost every man is proud of his name, whatever it may be, and he dislikes to see it misspelled or incorrectly written. There are plenty of names which sound alike, but which vary in the spelling perhaps by only a single letter, and, too, in taking a man's name it is not so difficult as one might imagine to make a mistake in the initials, for there are letters which sound very much alike. No man likes to receive a package, a bill or a communication of any sort with his name misspelled. However modest and good natured he may be, he is pretty sure to be annoyed by it.—New York Sun.

WHITE, of Plainfield,

NO ELIXIR FOR HIM.

Concluded After All It Was Better to Be Patient.

He had come in on the Prattle road, and he took a Western avenue car at the railroad junction. The conductor stood up his gray hair and wrinkles and made up his mind that the man had come to town to celebrate his sixty-fifth birthday. Something was said about the weather, wheat and politics, and then the man got a roost on the railing and said dimly observed:

"You orter be a purty good judge of human nater?"

"Yes, I suppose I am," sagely replied the conductor.

"I'd like to ask you a question or two if you don't mind."

"Very well."

"How old d'ye think I am? Be honest, now, and gimme the straight thing."

"Sixty five I should say."

"By thunder, you've hit the mark plumb center first time a-tryin! I was sixty-five last week. You could guess the weight of a hog within a pound every time. Say!"

"Well?"

"D'ye know other people take me for an old man?"

"Why, I don't see how they can help it. Everything goes to show that you are pretty old."

"Does, eh? Spoken I should cut off this goatee and dye my hair, would they know then?"

"I should, at least."

"Spoken I had these old teeth hauled out and store teeth put in?"

"That wouldn't deceive anybody."

"Wouldn't, eh? If I was a white shirt and a red necktie and straightened this hump out of my back would you take me for an older guy?"

"I should."

"Should, eh? Well, that orter settle it."

"Don't you want to look sixty-five years old?" asked the conductor as he picked up his second passenger.

"I kinder thought I didn't, but I dunno. Wife's been dead thirteen months and I'm sorter skips around again. Didn't know how if I came to town and dyed up and shaved off and got new teeth I might pass for forty-five, but you've discouraged me. What would you do?"

"I'd pass for what I was."

"And if they didn't like your style they needn't have it?"

"Exactly."

"Just offer my heart and hand and say nothing about my age?"

"That would be my way."

"Well," continued the old man, as he stroked his white goatee, "I guess you've hit it. I guess that's the p'int I orter have my nose at least twenty-five dollars, and I won't have just to do any deceivin. If they want me as I am they kin have me, and a good farm behind me. If they don't, I'll scrub along alone until I do hit some one. Much obleeged, and I might as well git off and go back home. No dye—no shave—no new teeth, but powerful on love and allus ready and willin to talk business with any woman except a grass widder."—Detroit Free Press.

A PAINTER'S BAD FALL.

FELL FROM THE SECOND STORY AND INTO THE CELLAR.

His Collar Bone and Several Ribs Broken, and His Head Badly Bruised—Taken to Muhlenberg Hospital.

This morning Hiram Voorhees, a painter, employed by Marsh, Ayers & Co., was seriously injured while at work on Mr. W. D. Murray's new house on Ninth street.

He went inside the building to speak to one of the carpenters who was at work on the second story. He attempted to step around the hatchway. In doing so, he caught hold of the studding. The studding had been nailed at the top, but the bottom had been left loose. It gave way and he was thrown to the cellar, landing on a pile of stone.

His collar bone was broken, as were also several of his ribs, and his head was badly cut.

He was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital.

THEIR THIRD SOCIAL.

Young People Enjoy Themselves at Grace M. E. Church.

The Epworth League of the Grace M. E. church, on Park place, held their third social last night. There was a large number of young people present, and all seemed to enjoy themselves taking part in the many games played during the evening. Refreshments were also served and the following programme rendered:

Solo.....Miss Agnes Tingley
Recitation.....Jimmie Brown's Prompt Obedience"
.....Miss Rita Rayhert
Solo.....Miss Alice Carroll
Recitation.....Miss Mabie Stevens
Recitation.....Miss Etta Rayhert

BREVITIES.

—To-night a song service will be held in the W. C. T. U. rooms.

—No services will be held in the Unitarian church, Park avenue, during the month of August.

—The Somerset County Board of Registration will meet next Wednesday to appoint district boards.

—There are nineteen Trust Companies in New Jersey with individual deposits amounting to $16,464,118.68.

—The culvert at the corner of Fifth and Richmond streets was recently broken at the end. It was replaced with a new one yesterday.

—A special session of the Union County court was held Wednesday, after which the Summer adjournment took place, and court will not sit until September.

—Boynton Beach has become a great resort for bicyclists. There is a large place in which wheelmen may store their wheels while they enjoy the attractions at the beach.

—Biggsgemaster Garretson at the North avenue station said that yesterday was the biggest day he has had this Summer handling trunks and baggage. The number of people going to the seashore and mountains is astonishing.

—A half-dozen good things that you want every day in the year is what Mr. Edward White tells about in his advertisement. There are special inducements offered in ladies' muslin underwear, hosiery and house-furnishing goods.

—Doane & Edsall say that they prefer the cash to removing the goods in their store in the new Babcock building so have marked the price down on about 250 articles of foot wear to the cost of manufacture and in a great many cases below. This is a great chance for those of our readers who buy the better grades of goods such as this firm deal in.

Gorham's Minstrels the First Attraction.

There has been much speculation in regard to the management of Music Hall, as Manager Demarest has gone to Brockville, Canada, to fill a government position. Property-man Mattox, in conversation with a News reporter, this morning, stated the management would remain the same as last year. Mr. Demarest will do the "booking" and Mr. Mattox will look after the hall. Mr. Mattox says he will also "book" attractions. The first attraction, he says, will be Gorham's Minstrels, who will open the season here on August 12.

At Camp Meeting.

There was a fair attendance at the camp meeting in Vail's grove on West Fourth street last night. Mr. Lewis of Manning avenue presided. To-night the Rev. J. H. Morgan, presiding elder, is expected to have charge of the meeting. The meetings on Sunday will be as follows: 10.30 a. m., led by Rev. J. C. Cuyler, D.D.; at 3 p. m., led by Rev. J. H. Morgan, and at 7.30 by Rev. J. C. Cuyler, D.D. The meetings will be continued through the week and close one week from Sunday.

The Smith-Foegate Case Postponed.

The suit of Architect R. Foegate against Mason William C. Smith was adjourned this morning to Tuesday morning at ten o'clock. Both men have secured counsel. Lawyer W. L. Hetfield will represent Mr. Foegate while Mr. Smith's side will be conducted by Ex-Judge Ulrich. The case will be tried before a jury.

MR. HOMAN GETS JUDGMENT.

Against Mr. Barton of Westfield for $65.

KNOWING, perhaps, that he should lose his case, Mr. Barton of Westfield did not appear at the office of Justice of the Peace Nash, yesterday afternoon, to answer to the charge brought in the suit of Homan vs. Barton. Mr. Homan was represented by Mr. Kirch of the law firm of Jackson & Codington, who was fully prepared to win his case.

The suit was brought by Mr. Homan to recover $65 he claimed was due him for a carriage and harness sold by him to Mr. Barton. Besides this the defendant also owed for the painting of a wagon, according to the complaint.

As Barton failed to appear Justice Nash rendered judgment in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Joseph A. Blatz of Somerset street is ill at her home.

Miss Lillie Hope of East Second street is visiting friends in Oranford.

Miss Agnes Morse of Chatham street is visiting Mrs. MacDonsid of Newark.

Dr. and Mrs. Stelle of Park avenue start for the Adirondacks next Tuesday.

Miss Marion Vickery of Raritan has been visiting Miss Cora Sheppard of this city.

The family of Mr. E. B. Clarke of East Front street has returned from Atlantic City.

Mrs. Sarah Smith of Millstone has returned home after a two weeks visit with friends here.

Mrs. F. C. Langhorne of Putnam avenue is at the Atalanta Hotel, Asbury Park, for a couple of weeks.

Mr. Daniel Nolan of Yonkers, N. Y., visited friends in this city yesterday. He was a former resident of this city.

Yesterday Dr. T. H. Davis and family of Park avenue left for the Adirondacks, to remain during the mopth of August.

Miss Helen Whitenack of Scotch Plains has been spending a week with her grandmother, Mrs. Isaac McCord, of Bound Brook.

Mr. James F. Pangborn of Plainfield avenue has rented a cottage at Ocean Grove, where his wife and daughter are spending the Summer.

Mrs. John H. Carney and son are visiting friends at Trenton. Mr. Carney left this afternoon to join his family there, and will probably return Monday.

Mr. George W. Van Nest, Jr., one of Mr. M. Griffen's efficient clerks, is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Van Nest, of Martinsville.

Georgie and Gracie Chamberlain of Jersey City, daughters of Mr. Wilbur Chamberlain, a New York Sun reporter, returned to day, after a visit with their grandfather, Constable Moffett.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wharton, Jr., of Crescent avenue, have gone to the Thousand Islands for the remainder of the Summer. Mrs. Wharton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jackson, have a cottage there.

The Destructive Elm Beetle.

The elms about Plainfield are showing the terrible effects this year of the elm beetle. It would be good policy for those who wish to save their trees to whitewash them from the ground for ten feet up if they would survive the present attack. It is believed that the sparrows will much toward saving the trees from the depredations of these insects, and that the reason the latter are so destructive this year is because the sparrows are not so plentiful as formerly, as many of them perished in the long continued snow storms of last Winter.

Odd Fellows go to Rahway.

District Deputy Charles W. Tallman and his installing staff, consisting of Messrs. Thomas Young, Joseph Shepard, E. H. Clevely, Rudolph Kersting, Jacob Ketterling, J. Kelly, J. Rickert and E. C. Morse went to Rahway last evening and installed the officers of Essex Lodge. Next Monday night they will go to White House and install the officers of White House Lodge.

Red Men to Hold a "Pow-Wow."

Miantonomo Tribe, No. 115, I. O. R. M., held a regular meeting last night, and had two adoptions. Next Friday night the Tribe will have a "pow-wow" in their wigwam on West Front street. Oneome Tribe, No. 103, of Elizabeth will be present 40 strong, it is expected, besides the Great Chiefs of the State. A reception will be tendered to Iona Council.

Keep Your Lamp Burning.

The numerous arrests of bicyclists who ride without a light is having its effect on wheelmen. Last night two came to Plainfield from out of town. As they were riding along Front street, one's light went out. He was compelled to dismount and proceed through town on foot.

The Weather.

On Sunday fair weather will probably prevail, with slightly lower temperature and westerly to south-westerly winds, followed by slightly warmer, sultry conditions, and on Monday fair, warmer weather

FORTY MILES OF ROAD.

PROPOSED RAILWAY BETWEEN PATERSON AND NEW BRUNSWICK.

It will Pass through or near Plainfield.—A Company Organized and Surveys Being Made.—To Act in Harmony with Other Lines.

HERE is said to be a syndicate of New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia capitalists preparing to build an electric railway between Paterson and New Brunswick, passing through or near Montclair, Orange, Plainfield, South Orange, Bloomfield and Metuchen and skirting the Orange Mountains for thirty miles. It will connect the Passaic Railroad with the New Jersey Central, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, New York and Greenwood Lake and the New York, Lake Erie and Western with the street-car systems and threads between.

The proposed line will be about forty miles long and pass through one of the most beautiful and thickly populated sections of New Jersey. It will also open a large area of the finest suburban property only awaiting transportation facilities for development. Including the terminal points, there are now nearly 2,000,000 people tributary to the line.

The most improved electric system will be employed, and if the storage battery is sufficiently developed to be practicable it may be utilized. Electric motors will probably be used on at least a portion if not all the line. A speed of thirty miles an hour, it is said, is practicable for passenger trains in country districts. The proposed road will be practically a north and south line to connect with the present electric system in Paterson, Newark and Plainfield.

The New Jersey Improvement Company has been organized to build the road and improve property. Major John Hank, Chief Engineer of the company, is making a preliminary survey, and consents for right of way are sought. This concern proposes to act in harmony with existing lines and benefit their traffic.

The officers of the company are President and General Manager, Jacob L. Stadelman, of Bath, Pa.; Secretary, John N. Bethel, of Philadelphia; Treasurer, Charles E. W. Smith, of Morristown; Directors, Lewis D. Amos, Philadelphia; Richard Hill, New York; A. Thomas Son, Plainfield, and William N. Mills, Boston Bass.

Sir Isaac Newton and Little Johnny Smith.

"The more we know the more we realize how much there is that we don't know," remarked a News reporter to a friend to-day in conversation.

"Yes," replied the friend, "that is true.

"When Sir Isaac Newton on his death bed was told by a friend that he ought to die happy after having won so much renown in the world of science, as testified to by the numerous medals he had received, you know his answer:

"I know not how I may appear to others, but as for myself I seem to have been as a child playing on the sea shore, diverting myself in now and then finding up a prettier pebble, or a smoother shell, while the great ocean of truth lay undiscovered before me."

"Even when we think we know it all, we find that we know it not at all. And if even doctors disagree, pray why can't we. We know that the doctors themselves can't save us, for you know—

"Two doctors doctored Johnny Smith:
They blistered and they bled him;
With calomel and nitrous pills
And quoted they fed him.

They stirred him up with calomel,
And stirred in it the nitrous;
But, all in vain, his little soul
Was wafted o'er the river."

What has Been Done with the Money.

The property owners of North avenue are still very much worried over the action of the North Plainfield Board of Health in the matter of the North avenue sewer, which has for a long time been emptying its contents in the brook. The property owners mentioned have for the past seven or eight years paid the Plainfield Connecting Company a yearly sum of money for the privilege of using the sewer. They now want to know what has been done with that money? It is asked by one property owner, is not the City of Plainfield the most interested? We think it will be wise for those interested to get decided resolutions without delay, and not to take chances.

A New Lodge of the Knights of Honor.

A new lodge of the Knights of Honor was instituted at South River Thursday night, to be known as Middlesex Lodge. The lodge was instituted by the following grand officers: Grand Dictator, C. J. Peyton, of Plainfield; Grand Vice Dictator, P. P. Scherf, Newark; Grand Reporter, J. M. Mayhew, Newark; Grand Chaplain, W. E. Blade, and G. G. Bayer, of Newark Lodge.

A New Corporation in the County.

The Seargent Gas Machine Company has filed articles of incorporation in the office of County Clerk Gerdner. The capital is 20,000, and the place will be located in Westfield. The incorporators and stockholders are Henry C. Seargeant of Westfield, Daniel J. Carroll of New York, and Edward Phillips of Brooklyn.

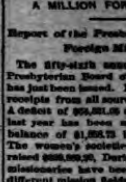
A MILLION FOR MISSIONS.

Report of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

The fifty-sixth annual report of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions has just been issued. It shows a total of receipts from all sources of $1,014,886.57. A deficit of $93,886.05 carried over from last year has been made good, and a balance of $1,858.73 is in the treasury. The women's societies and boards have raised $288,999.90. During the year ninety missionaries have been sent out to the different mission fields under the supervision of the Board. The receipts of the Board of Foreign Missions were: From churches, $387,562.93; women's boards, $239,288.20; Sabbath schools, $28,998.09; Y. P. S. C. E., $18,566.52; legacies, $132,565.61; interest, individuals, and miscellaneous sources, $150,674.13. Total, $1,014,804.87.

Excellent Timber in Union County.



POSSIBLY Mr. Codding of Westfield will be named as a candidate for Assembly to the Third district, according to the Elizabeth Journal. As honorable and capable gentleman and a strong candidate. Westfield has sent such excellent legislative timber to Trenton in former years that her claims are very well worthy of proper consideration. But Rahway has also an excellent candidate to present in the person of Editor Rollinson of the Advocate. An able man, a thorough Republican, and a man well posted as to the needs of Union county. Rahway, too, has heretofore sent excellent men to the legislature, and is entitled to consideration. The Third district is rich in men who would honor the State and the party in the halls of legislation.

Trouble Among the West Ends.

There has been during the past two weeks no little discontent noticed in the rank and file of the West End team. For what reason no one knows, as all of the players have been dealt with fairly. It is indeed surprising the petty jealousies which have sprung up and which it is thought is intended to break up the team. Of course this is an impossibility as there are many of young fellows who love baseball to the club, and who will be tickled to play, but then the team has played several games together and it is trouble to change. These men say that last Saturday's game was their last with the team. What the trouble seems to be is that whenever a man makes a fair batting and fielding record he seems to get a case of swelled head, believes himself a candidate for the best teams in the country, refuses to practice, considering himself perfect, and finally believes he is the following game unless he is petted, coaxed and bulldozed into it.—Somerville Democrat.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Nineteenth Century Education.

The New York School Journal contains an interesting resume of the status of education at the close of the nineteenth century. In particular The Journal felicitates the American people on the mighty educational gains all along the line in the past 50 years. The kindergarten is one of the established facts to which the close of the century may rejoice. With its advent a new era of progress and joy in learning was opened before the school child. A deeper sympathy with the child nature is also one of the greatest gains for humanity in our time.

Another magnificent step forward is the improved schoolhouse. Here indeed can be nothing but congratulation. The traveler on a railway train passes hurriedly past village after village in a tour through the land. They are plain and humble, most of them, especially in the newer portions of the country, but in every case where the place is even four or five years old there will be a handsome and imposing school building, the finest house in the town.

Then, too, the interest in education is widespread. We are at last trying to educate the negro and the Indian along the lines the white race traveled to get its civilization and learning, through the path of work and manual training. One of our greatest gains is the establishment of manual training and trade schools, and another is the introduction of physical culture into educational courses. So is the increase in salary of the teacher. Another gain is the introduction of the study of geometry into kindergarten classes through the use of mathematical forms and lines.

Concerning all these we may rejoice. But when The Journal goes on and informs us that school compositions are wonderfully better than they were and that the textbooks of a past generation could not compare with those of the present we simply do not accept it. The vast influx of foreign children into our schools has almost overwhelmed temporarily the pure English language. So far from being better than they were, compositions are not as good as they were when Garfield and Colonel Ingersoll went to school. Of the present time textbook the less said the better. It is often loaded down with words, its meaning is muddy and heavy, and its average author could not hold a place in a good newspaper office three days. He could not write clearly and tersely enough.

Girl and Bicycle.

Ward McAllister permits American young women to ride tricycles because the Princess of Wales and her daughters ride tricycles. But it "is highly improper," quoth Wardie, "for young women to use bicycles." Dear! dear! A woman mounted upon a tricycle looks like a spider, it is true, and she can make no sort of speed. Likewise the tricycle is fatiguing to operate, moreover, it is rather apt soon to make a creaking sound that sets sensitive nerves crazy. But if the Princess of Wales is willing to wear herself out and look like a spider and not cover any distance worth speaking of besides, of course that settles it. But if some of our modest, merry, pretty American women who, with the full approval of their parents, husbands or grandparents and without a thought of impropriety, flit gracefully through our city parks every day upon bicycles, occasionally taking long and health bringing tours in the same manner, get hold of Wardie McAllister we wouldn't take even chances on him. They would tell him, these independent American girls, that immodesty exists in his own toadyish little mind and nowhere else. If the Princess of Wales were to ride a bicycle appearing just once upon it, Ward McAllister would see in bicycle riding henceforth the most modest and healthful of exercises for American girls, and he knows it.

The newspaper fakir has been at it again. This time it was not the cow which gives black milk or any miraculous tale about the town of Salem, O. It was merely a neat little fairy story to the effect that the United States war steamer Mohican had been fired on and disabled by a sealing poacher flying the Hawaiian flag, only a harmless little poem from the correspondent's brain, as it were. If the fellow who invented the tale can be discovered, he should be put upon the black list of every journal in the land and kicked down the stairs of every newspaper office he enters besides. Even that would be too good for him. In a profession in which all depends absolutely on the personal honor and truthfulness of its representatives, as is the case in journalism, the utmost pains must be taken to drive out liars and fakirs. The confidence reposed by the public in a reputable newspaper demands nothing less.

The idea of surpliced ladies in church choirs is becoming popular. Three churches have such choirs. The latest addition is the fine choir of Epiphany church in Washington. Twenty young women look extremely well in white surplices, with flowing sleeves and edges of black. On their heads they wear cute little black caps with tassels as a concession to the apostolic command to women to keep their heads covered in church.

CHOICE PLUMS DROP.

Kilbreth Is Made Collector of the Port of New York.

LAWYER BUNN IS MADE APPRAISER

The New Collector an Anti-Tammany Man and the New Appraiser Has Long Been at Odds With the State Machine—Mr. Eckels Revises the Figures.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Private Secretary Thurber announces the following appointments as made by the president:

James T. Kilbreth of New York city collector of customs for the district of New York, vice Hendricks, resigned.

Walter H. Bunn of Cooperstown, N. Y., appraiser of merchandise for the district of New York, vice Cooper, resigned.

Mr. Kilbreth is a native of Cincinnati, 38 years old. He graduated from Harvard in the same class with Cornelius Kane of the district of Columbia, and is an intimate friend of ex-Secretary Fairchild.

He served two terms as police justice in New York city from 1874 to 1892, and at the expiration of his last term Tammany refused to reappoint him, he not being identified with that organization.

Mr. Kilbreth married Mrs. Oudin, mother of the famous tenor singer. Her other son is her husband's law partner. By this marriage Mr. Kilbreth became a brother-in-law of General Agnus of the Baltimore American. The appointment is said to be a most excellent one, and with that of Mr. Bunn to be appraiser of merchandise, is regarded by politicians here as the first splendid wing of the New York Democracy as contra distinguished from that recognized as not devoted to the president.

Mr. Kilbreth was born in Cincinnati about 55 years ago. He was graduated from Harvard. Robert T. Lincoln was one of his classmates. He studied law and began practicing it in this city, where he built up a large practice. In 1873 he was made a police justice by Mayor Havemeyer. He resigned a year before the expiration of his term in order to secure a reappointment from Mayor Edson for a full term. He served as a police justice for 19 years. His second term expired early in the year.

To Justice Kilbreth are due the thanks of the people for finding a way to frame a complaint which held in law against Anna O'Della Dies Debar, the alleged spiritualistic medium who fleeced Lawyer Lester R. Marsh.

Walter H. Bunn, who has been appointed by President Cleveland as appraiser of merchandise for the district of New York, is a lawyer, about 55 years of age. He first became prominent in state politics during the Tilden movement. He has held several local offices in Otsego county. He was clerk of the assembly in 1883 and of the constitutional commission which convened here a few years ago.

Under Mr. Cleveland's former administration Mr. Bunn was United States marshal for the northern district of New York. He was one of the leaders in the May convention held in Syracuse this year.

Colonel Dan Lamont, secretary of war, is said to be his close friend, as is also ex-Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney. Mr. Bunn lives in a fine residence in Cooperstown with his wife and 10 children—seven boys and three girls.

May Condemn the Gettysburg Trolley.

Colonel Nicholson, president of the Gettysburg battlefield commission, waited the war department in conference with Acting Secretary Grant respecting the accounts of the commission. The commission has so far laid out seven avenues on the Gettysburg battlefield, which intersect the electric road at many points, and it may be necessary to secure their continuity by condemnation of the railroad right of way at these points.

Dr. James Cunningham Batchelder, the eminent Free Mason who succeeded General Albert Pike as grand commander of the supreme council of the Scottish rite, died in this city. Tonight the body will be carried to New Orleans, the former home of the deceased, where the regular Kadosh services will be held over the body probably at midnight Monday next.

Estate Is Insolvent.

"Recent dispatches having appeared in the newspapers," said Comptroller of the Currency Eckels to a reporter, "that since Jan. 1, 1893, 200 national banks have failed, I have prepared a statement that the public may be properly informed. Instead of 200 having closed their doors, but 105 have gone into the hands of the comptroller of the currency. Fourteen of this number have already resumed business under favorable conditions and possessed of the confidence of the communities where located, and during the ensuing week it is expected several others will have complied with the requirements of the comptroller and reopen, so prior to Sept. 1 an equal number will resume."

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New York—Nicholas Diehl, Postcards; William Hilliard, Maplewood; E. B. Lake, Meredith Hollow; F. A. Moore, Morrisonville; D. V. Case, Oakland Valley; Edward McKenzie, Glen Cove; Benjamin Thomas, Tannersville.

Pennsylvania—Miss D. J. Barrett, Berrytown; J. T. Henry, Cottager; T. J. Boyles, Cranberry; Isaac Emerick, Fairchance; W. R. Howard, Dunkard; J. A. Hoffner, James Creek; John Vandyke, Mt. Cobb; Chester S. A. Cromwell, Petersburg; W. C. Swan, Shade Gap.

Will Race Oct. 5.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The date for the sailing of the great international yacht race for the America cup has been definitely fixed for Oct. 5. Lord Dunraven, the owner of the challenging boat, the Valkyrie, was anxious to have the date determined, and the New York yacht club very courteously at once agreed on the time. Mr. H. Maitland Kersey of the White Star line acted on behalf of Lord Dunraven.

The Negro No Anarchist.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., July 29.—About 1,000 colored people attended the annual meeting of the African Methodist Missionary society here. Bishop Tanner presided. The Rev. J. H. Palmer, D. D., said that the negro was not an anarchist, but an orderly, law abiding citizen, one that the white man found good enough to associate with when election time was on hand.

No More Girl Ushers.

NEW YORK, July 29.—There will be no further experiment with girl ushers in the Duryea Presbyterian church in Brooklyn. The first and only trial of the novel plan to attract young men to the services of the Christian Endeavorers' gathering on last Wednesday night was a complete failure, and it will not be repeated.

BANKERS USE CAUTION.

New York Saving Institutions Will Enforce the Sixty Days Clause.

NEW YORK, July 29.—An important meeting of presidents of the saving institutions of New York and Brooklyn was held at which it was decided recommended to the trustees and directors of the various banks represented to enforce the 60 days clause of the savings bank act. The resolution adopted by the presidents provided that the full requirement of 60 days notice be enforced against withdrawals of $200 or over. For sums under that amount, it was recommended that a notice of only 30 days be required.

This action was recommended that a notice of only 30 days be required. This action was entirely advisory and before becoming operative must be ratified and adopted by the trustees of each individual institution. It is believed, however, that a radical course is even advised, is indicative of an unexpected effect of the stringency in the money market.

Bank Caught In Two Failures.

PORT WASHINGTON, Wis., July 29.—The German-American bank closed its doors, having been caught in both the Plankinton and Mitchell bank failures at Milwaukee.

A Grocer Assigns.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 29.—C. A. Horr, a grocer of Carthage, has made an assignment. The liabilities are about $5,800 and the assets $2,800.

Big Hardware Firm Assigns.

DENVER, July 29.—The Denver Hardware company made an assignment to James A. McClung. The liabilities and assets will be large.

Bank Runs In Chippewa Falls.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., July 29.—G. W. Seymour's private bank closed its doors. There are runs on all the other banks in town.

Montana Bank Gives Up.

GREAT FALLS, Mon., July 29.—In the First National bank failure money stringency is given as the cause.

Helena Panic Over.

HELENA, July 29.—The situation in Helena is very quiet, the banks doing an ordinary business.

A Portland Bank Suspends.

PORTLAND, Or., July 29.—The Union Banking company has suspended.

CABLE CARS EVERYWHERE.

A Plan to Cover All New York City With Them.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The Metropolitan Traction company will apply to the commissioners of public works in a few days for permission to begin operating streets for the purpose of extending its cable system. The proposed extensions and connections are planned on a huge scale and will substantially change the conditions of transit in this city.

When fully completed over 20 miles of new road will have been added to the roads now owned by the company, and the city will be crossed east and west, north and south by cable roads which will girdle Central park completely.

The plans and preparations of the company have all been made, with the cable alone considered as the motive power, but should efficient electric storage batteries or any other radical improvement be made before the work on the new roads has progressed too far the probability is that they will be adopted.

The company expects to begin work this summer and to have the roads in operation much sooner than which Mr. Brydges in the preparations for the great cable scheme were begun over a year ago and have since then been steadily carried on without any flourish of trumpets.

No One Knew the Mob Leaders.

DENVER, July 29.—The coroner's jury investigating the death of Dan Arata, the Italian murderer who was lynched on Wednesday, returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by being hanged by parties unknown to the jury. The witnesses examined were loath to testify and were unable to identify any of the leaders of the mob.

Another Redhot Silver Meeting.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Another echo of the tumultuous silver meeting in the Fifth Avenue hotel last Tuesday was heard when the National Citizens' Industrial alliance held their meeting at Clarendon hall. There were some fiery and denunciatory speeches preceding the adoption of some equally fiery anti-silver recovery resolutions.

Cholera Record at Naples.

ATHENS, July 29.—The Greek consul in Naples telegraphs that there have been four fresh cases of cholera and three deaths in that city in the last 24 hours. The Tribuna in Rome, says, acknowledges that there have been 4 few isolated cases of cholera in Naples, but does not concede more.

Dr. Meyer Severes Connect.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Dr. Henry C. Meyer, at present in the tombs on an indictment charging him with poisoning Gustavus H. M. Joseph Baum, has at last secured counsel. The lawyers Ira of Brooks, O'Sullivan & Brooke will defend the alleged poisoner.

Think Mrs. Korn Was Insane.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Mrs. Fannie Korn was found not guilty by a jury in the court of general sessions on the charge of murder for poisoning her little daughter. The acquittal was on the ground of insanity. The jury was out less than a minute.

Still Investigating the Custom House.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The custom house investigating committee was in private session, continuing its inquiry into the frauds. Mr. Magone says no report has been sent to Washington recommending removals in the custom house.

Will Attempt Another Cordage Trust.

NEW YORK, July 29.—All the cordage interests of the United States have received a call for a meeting to be held in New York city on Aug. 9. It is understood that an effort will be made to unite the cordage interests of the union.

The Suit Against Russell Sage.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Judge Bookstaver in the court of common pleas granted Russell Sage a further stay of 10 days in which to serve his amended answer in the action brought against him by Della Keegan.

Collector Phillips Resigns.

ROCHESTER, July 29.—Marcus H. Phillips of Nunda, Orleans county, has resigned his position of deputy collector of internal revenue for Orleans and Niagara counties.

World's Fair Attendance.

CHICAGO, July 29.—The paid admissions at the World's fair Friday were 77,046.

BROTHERLY BAPTISTS.

They Give Up Their Church to Burned Out Romanists.

WILL SAY MASS BEFORE THE TANK

The Congregation of St. Mary's Church at Long Island City Will Worship Tomorrow In the Leased Sanctuary of the Presbyterian Baptists.

NEW YORK, July 29.—When St. Mary's church, parochial residence and school in Long Island City were destroyed in the big fire of a week ago, which wiped out a whole block, the Rev. L. T. Giffin, pastor of the Tenth Avenue Baptist church in that town, with the board of trustees, consisting of J. C. Schoonmaker, A. L. New, E. Fleet and William Timpson, sent a letter of sympathy to the Rev. Father Doherty, assistant pastor of the parish, tendering to him the use of the Baptist church for worship until other quarters were obtained or the burned church rebuilt. Father John McGuire, the rector, decided yesterday to accept the tender of the Baptist church as a temporary place of worship, and he will say mass there tomorrow.

The Baptist church is located in East avenue and Eighth street. It is a frame structure and capable of seating several hundred people. The baptismal tank is built back of the pulpit and shows up plainly with its polished marble front. Sunday morning services begin at 10:30 o'clock, so that Father McGuire will have ample time to conduct his services and dismiss his flock before Pastor Giffin and his congregation arrive.

The Rev. Mr. Giffin is about 35 years old. He is tall, well built and has a pleasant manner of speaking. To a reporter he said that before making the offer to Father McGuire he had talked the matter over with his trustees.

How Mr. Griffin's Theory.

"We came to the conclusion," he said "that in tendering the free use of our church to the congregation of St. Mary's we were not surrendering any principle or doctrinal dogma. It was our duty to help our neighbors in distress. I know that we will be criticised for doing so in certain quarters, but if we have added to the happiness of our Catholic brethren or lightened their load in any way by giving them the use of our church then we care very little about criticism. We are here for doing good, and I hope to see the day when all churches shall join hand in hand for one common object—the glory of God and the salvation of souls."

"Apart from the friendly aspect of the matter, it will have a good moral effect.

"In connection with this let me state that the trustees of the church were actuated by no other motives than of extending a helping hand to the Catholics in the best way they knew how. In matters of doctrine we can never agree with the Roman Catholics, but that is no reason why we should not aid them. There was a recent attempt made to bring about a union of religions at the World's fair in Chicago. The idea was a capital one. Every church has its own good features, and it is pleasing to know that Lenox Avenue Christ church is now recognizing this fact, and also the great principle which should underlie all religions, the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man."

A pathetic meeting was held in this church last night, where contributions much needed which will help Mr. Brydges in rebuilding his church. Quite a large sum of money was raised.

Father McGuire was not to be found last in a large portion of the city, but among other things, he says the following:

I should not also, neglect gratefully acknowledging the kindness of the Baptist church on the part of my East avenue Baptist friends and a similar kindly act on the part of the Rev. Dr. Lorimer Ramsay and his church in the sending us a long step forward in the direction of that "universal brotherhood" for which we are all striving.

This we are temporarily provided for, and our hands made free for pushing on with the burden that is upon us in reconstructing our church and other needed buildings.

Peculiar Accident on a Warship.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—A peculiar accident by which five men were burned—two of them fatally—occurred on board the cruiser New York. Five ship carpenters named Charles Lamont, Thomas McGovern, Joseph Teese and David Hedmond had just finished their day's work on the boat and were cleaning their tools with benzine. The rapid friction of one of the men's hands over the tools caused the benzine to explode, at the same time igniting a can of the fluid that was on the floor of the deck and scattering it over all the men. Lamont and McGovern were seriously and the other three painfully burned by the explosion.

An Unlucky Female Assessor.

NORFOLK, July 29.—There were fully 1,000 people at Ocean View to see the balloon ascension of Grace Hutchison. As on the day before the balloon floated into the top of a pine tree, and she was left hanging on a line 100 feet from the ground. She was let down from her perilous position by Mr. J. F. McCartney, an electrical engineer of New York, who was one hour climbing to her. The balloon floated out to sea and was lost.

A Fish Dealer Reorganized.

ELBERON, N. J., July 29.—Chancellor McGill of New Jersey, in chancery chambers, issued an order restraining James Dunn, the fish dealer, whose shop on Ocean avenue has been a source of annoyance to wealthy cottagers here, from doing further business.

Railroad Employees to See the Fair.

PITTSBURG, July 29.—The Pennsylvania Railroad company is now preparing to run a series of excursions to Chicago for its employees. Transportation will be furnished free, and the employees will be given a week with which to take in the sights.

Killed In a Freight Wreck.

ERIE, Pa., July 29.—A Lake Shore freight train broke in two near Harbor Creek and the sections collided. Louis Paul and Daniel Egan of Chicago were crushed to death. John Sullivan and Frank Patterson were injured, while another man is missing.

The Captain Shot Himself.

LUDINGTON, Mich., July 29.—Captain William E. Ladoer of the steam barge M. F. Butler, in the lumber trade, committed suicide by shooting himself on board the boat, 15 or 20 miles out in the lake.

Pumping Out Pueblo.

PUEBLO, Colo., July 29.—Pumps of all descriptions are at work relieving the basements of business houses of water from the Arkansas river, which overflowed.

Hood's Cures

Major Joel H. Austin

Trenton attorney at law, Trenton, N. J., aged for 20 years a Baptist missionary minister, suffered for years with swelling of the limbs, very painful, and unable to walk at times. After taking six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla he was entirely relieved of all pain and swelling, and can walk as well as ever. He also suffered with a severe cough, and a trial bottle of Hood's Cough Syrup gave him relief. He says: "I feel it my duty to say that Hood's Sarsaparilla has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took, and I am positive of perfect cure. I recommend it."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is peculiar to itself, and at least a dozen are taking it from motives of esteem on me." J. H. AUSTIN.

BAGGED A BURGLAR.

But the Burglar Shot Him Young Texan, Too, and Both Will Die.

HAVANA, O., July 28.—Pierce Converse of San Antonio, Tex., visiting at the home of N. Converse, a wealthy merchant here, shot a man who gives his name as Frank Edwards of Philadelphia, just before daylight. The burglar returned the shot doubly, two balls taking effect. The knight of the pistol received a terrible wound in the abdomen, but managed with the left's clothes, only to fall on a neighbor's porch, moaning in agony.

He was taken to the sheriff's office and later removed to a cell in the county jail. The young Texan was seen by a reporter before the doctors arrived. He is still full of grit, but in terrible shape. The man at the jail breathes heavily, and there is no possible chance for his recovery. It is thought both will die.

Pierce Converse was accompanied here by his grandmother, Mrs. A. C. Allen, a noted lady of Houston, who has plenty of money. He had a presentiment of a plot to rob her, and slept on a cot at the door of her room. It is thought Edwards followed them from Texas. The burglar said as he lay on an iron cot unattended and alone: "I am sorry for the boy and hope he will recover. It's hard for me to breathe, and I won't last long."

MURDER IN THE COURT.

During a Divorce Trial There Was Shooting and Cutting.

RUSSELLVILLE, Ala., July 29.—There was a tragedy in the criminal court here. During the trial of a divorce case a difficulty arose between John Ligon and Line and Clark Richardson, two brothers, which resulted in Ligon shooting Line Richardson in the left shoulder and Clark Richardson cutting Ligon's throat from ear to ear. Richardson may recover, but Ligon is dead. Ligon married Mrs. Richardson, the mother of Line and Clark. He was so disagreeable that she was forced to leave him some months ago.

The divorce, and during the trial here Ligon made some slanderous remarks about her. Line Richardson gave him the lie. Ligon called young Richardson a vile name. Both drew pistols and fired, and was in the act of shooting again, when Clark Richardson rushed to the rescue and cut his throat from one ear to the other, his knife thus saving his brother's life.

Infected With Cholera.

LISBON, July 29.—The Portuguese government has declared Naples and all ports of Senegal to be infected with cholera.

SIAM MUST YIELD ALL.

The Blockade in Force and No Interference Yet.

ENGLAND ANXIOUS BUT PASSIVE.

A Speedy Settlement Looked For and No Bloodshed Expected. Activity About the Foreign Office In London—Reasons Believed at the Inactivity of Other Nations.

BANGKOK, July 29.—The Siamese government continues making every effort to maintain peace with France, and is encouraged by the events of the last 24 hours to believe that an understanding will be reached shortly. The French flag has been hoisted at Koh-si-Chang.

LONDON, July 29.—The London correspondent of The Times telegraphs:

The prompt enforcement of the blockade, which virtually damages only Great Britain, has seemingly convinced the Siamese that the assumed friendly attempt at intervention by Great Britain in Paris has not availed to modify the hard conditions of the ultimatum. Siam therefore will probably concede immediately the last difference remaining between her and France by accepting the ultimatum pure and simple. Siam has not received the slightest official support from Great Britain throughout the difficulty.

The Times' correspondent in Singapore telegraphs: "The blockade of the Siamese coast has reduced to idleness the numerous steamers of the Straits settlements. The piece goods trade is dormant and rice is rising."

All special correspondents of London papers in the Far East outlook is more peaceful. Paris correspondents predict a speedy settlement of the dispute.

The Chinese and English Consult.

The Central News makes this statement: "There is rumored to be serious activity in political and government circles anent Siamese affairs. Mr. Gladstone therefore has canceled his intended visit to Sunart Rosdel, M. P., at Hatchlands place, near Guildford. Lord Rosebery is closely engaged in the foreign office morning and night. Last evening he was in consultation with Sir H. Macartney, secretary of the Chinese legation in London. Official telegrams are exchanged constantly, and special messengers are traveling uninterruptedly between Paris and London."

General Roberts, recently commander in chief of the army in India, received the freedom of Glasgow yesterday afternoon and intended to make a tour thence through the Highlands. Now, in response to a special request, he is returning to London. The Central News suggests that he has been called back to confer with Lord Rosebery as to the Siamese affair.

China Grabs a Slice.

BERLIN, July 29.—The London correspondent of the Koelnische Zeitung telegraphs: "China has reserved rights of sovereignty over the principality of Chiengg-Hong, extending southward to the twenty-first parallel and consisting of four districts to the sight of the Mekong and eight to the left. Great Britain's known knowledge China sent troops to this region months ago. These troops would, if necessary, co-operate with the Black Flags. China industriously is trying to make to her the claims accruing to her in this region from the conquest of Burmah."

French Feel Relieved.

PARIS, July 29.—The Temps comments favorably on Lord Rosebery's declaration in the house of lords on Thursday as to Great Britain's attitude toward Siam. His utterances are interpreted as indicating a British policy of nonintervention. The fair expressed fear that M. Develle was abandoning his former attitude toward Siam and was yielding to pressure from London.

Smallpox In the Postoffice.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 29.—Robert Howe, a small son of Mrs. E. A. Howe, postmistress of Auburn, has developed a case of smallpox. The postoffice is in one room of the house which the family occupy, and the mother is taking care of the boy besides attending to her official duties. The Worcester board of health has ordered the Worcester postmaster to refuse mail from Auburn.

The Old Welles Tavern Burned.

HARTFORD, July 29.—The old Welles tavern on the Albany turnpike, about four miles from this city, was burned to the ground. There were 18 persons asleep in the house when the fire broke out who escaped with difficulty, losing their effects. The house was about 100 years old.

Died After a Three Months' Sleep.

CHARDON, Neb., July 29.—Louis Irig died near Whitney, Neb., after sleeping three months. Irig was snowed in a snow storm in April, and after retiring never awoke from his slumbers but twice, once for about an hour and the last time for only 10 minutes.

Russia Protects Her Seals.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.—An imperial ukase issued forbids the killing or capturing of fur seals on Russian lands without special permission from the government.

Legal Advertisements.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To George Wolfe, Charles Wolfe, Glen Wolfe, Mary A. Irvin and Wilson Irvin, defendants:

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the 17th day of July inst. thereof, in a cause wherein Carrie V. Line, wife of James H. Line, complainant, and the said James H. Line, husband of the said complainant, and Nettie J. Line, Arthur D. Line, Charles Line and Elmer V. Line are complainants, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainants on or before the second day of September next, or the said bill of complaint will be taken as confessed against you. Said bill is filed to have certain lands situate in the City of Plainfield and known as Lots 1 and 2 in Block 1 in the tract of land specifically devised by the last will and testament of Isaac D. Line, late of said City, for life, remainder to his children, and the value of the use of the said forty-five acres tract from the date of said thereof, April 4, 1890, to date of final decree in this cause; for that said husband, James H. Line, is insolvent and unable to pay the annuity of $300 provided by said will and the proceeds of said forty-five acre tract calculated from the death of Isaac Line in May, 1890, to date of final decree in this cause, that from the remainder of the proceeds of sale he may be ordered to invest a sufficient sum to equal the value of said forty-five acre tract, and pay the income thereof to the trustee of the said James H. Line to Carrie V. Line, the present owner of said life estate, and to direct the disposition of the residue of said James H. Line at his death, and for general relief, you are made defendants because it is alleged in the bill that you have or may claim to have some interest in said lands under the last will and testament of Isaac Line, deceased.

DEADLY STOVE POLISH.

It Exploded and Caused Two Fatalities and Injured Three.

PITTSBURG, July 29.—Two persons are dead and several others seriously injured as the result of a fire on the south side.

The dead are:

Maggie Mitchell, aged 18 years.
Joe Russell, aged 25 years.

Injured:

Charles McDonald, probably fatally burned.
An unknown Polish girl, probably fatally burned.

An unknown peddler, very dangerously injured.

The fire was caused by an explosion of stove polish, which the peddler was using on the stove. The liquid exploded and scattered the burning contents all over the room. Maggie Mitchell was burned to death, and the others it is not thought can recover. Charles McDonald was burned in trying to rescue a woman.

Joe Russell lived on Eighth street, and dropped dead while running to the fire. The fire spread rapidly to the adjoining rooms, and in less than 20 minutes the building was in ruins. The building was occupied by Frederick Wilson as a saloon and restaurant.

The Miners Will Stop There.

KANSAS CITY, July 29.—Chief of Police Speers has discovered a law in the statutes forbidding railway companies to bring paupers into the state. In view of the threatened invasion of unemployed and destitute men from Colorado he has decided to enforce the law.

A Colorado Cloudburst.

PUEBLO, Colo. July 29.—Meager news from the vicinity 15 miles west of town tells of a cloudburst which fell there. It was 100 yards wide and about 200 feet in height. Scores of ranch houses, barns, sheds and hundreds of cattle were washed away.

English Naval Maneuvers.

LONDON, July 29.—The annual maneuvers between the red and blue squadrons began with the declaration of war. The objects of the maneuvers are on the one side, to obtain command of the Irish sea, on the other side, to prevent this.

THE HOUSEHOLD

A FRESH AIR PARLOR.

The most enjoyable part of every summer home is the broad veranda, and for this nothing surpasses rattan furniture, as the pieces are so light that a child can move them, and this is a valuable quality in selecting things for out of door use. From Demorest's Family Magazine are gleaned the following suggestions for the artistic and comfortable furnishing of a veranda corner:

The half reclining chair is a compromise with the lounge which many people prefer, and it finds great favor with delicate people and invalids. There are also capacious easy chairs, with adjustable backs, which can be raised or lowered at will. A capacious pocket or rack of some sort should be provided with newspapers and magazines.

A generous provision of cushions adds much to every one's comfort, but the dainty materials suitable for indoors are out of place on the veranda. The twilled linens, which comes now in many colors, and blue or red denim or the new changeable denim—blue and red—are the most suitable choice if to be embroidered. Bold conventionalized patterns that are not very much work are selected, and the art linen floss is used for embroidering. There are many Japanese cotton fabrics which are pretty enough to use without embroidery.

Comfortable head cushions to throw over the tops of chair backs sometimes have a convenient pocket in the half of the cushion which falls backward. Somewhat similar cushions tied on the broad arms of easy chairs, with a wide pocket hanging outward, make acceptable receptacles.

A great addition to the comfort of the veranda is found in the bamboo screens or rattan screens, which are fastened between the posts and can be raised or lowered, as needed, for protection from wind or sun. If neither of these be accessible, heavy awning linen is the next choice.

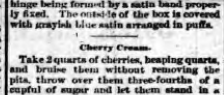
The Mystery of Mayonnaise.

Concerning mayonnaise for salads there is a mystery, says a professional cook. No one knows how it derives its name, and it may be safely asserted that 15 out of 20 people are equally in the dark as to its manufacture, though really the latter is easy enough. Here is one way:

Mix with a very clean wooden spoon about half a teaspoonful of flour of mustard, a pinch of salt and the same of white pepper to the yolk of a very fresh egg, and when well mixed add drop by drop about half a pint of the best salad oil, stirring carefully one way the while. After adding a small little vinegar (malt, tarragon and chili, either one or all), occasionally as the sauce shows signs of becoming too thick. This sauce requires care in the making, or it will curdle, when the only remedy is to take another yolk of egg and add the previous (curdled) mixture to it, gradually and slowly turning it all the time. It is said that a very little hot water added to the mayonnaise just as it is finished helps to keep it in good condition, even if it does have to wait a somewhat unconscionable time.

A Novel Fancy Box.

The triangular foundation is made of cardboard and lined on the inside, with strawberry colored satin over a slight padding of cotton wool. The cover is lined in the same way and a satin ruche fixed to the front point.



A TRIANGULAR TOILET BOX.

The embroidery on the top side of the cover is carried out on grayish blue plush with filoselle and edged with a silk cord, the hinge being formed by a satin band properly fixed. The outside of the box is covered with grayish blue satin arranged in puffs.

Cherry Cream.

Take 2 quarts of cherries, heaping quarts, and bruise them without removing the pits, throw over them three-fourths of a cupful of sugar and let them stand in a cool place two hours. Then strain. Sweeten the juice after straining, beat a pint of cream, gradually add the juice and the beaten whites of 2 eggs, continually whisking it till no more froth arises. The secret of success is to have cream and eggs all thoroughly chilled on ice, and in adding the juice a little at a time to prevent curdling. In the same way make currant cream. The berries and other fruits which have sufficient juice can be used, also lemon and orange cream.—California Fruit Grower.

A Hint to the Amateur Paper Hanger.

Those who do their own paper hanging (and in these hurrying times one cannot wait forever for a skilled workman) will find that if they follow the paper hangers' example in cutting two rolls at a time into the desired lengths there will be no waste, says a Rural New Yorker correspondent. After the first matching of ti urns at the beginning of the rolls no more matching is to be done. One has only to use a piece from each roll alternately. It is a good plan to cut up two rolls at a time and arrange the pieces alternately before pasting.

What to Do When the Windows Stick.

When window frames have been newly painted, they should not be shut down tight, as they are liable to stick, and panes of glass are often fractured in endeavoring to open them. A little bit of wood inserted between the frame and the sill leaves an aperture to dry the paint and can be removed in the course of a day or two. If, however, they should still prove obstinate, a piece of common soap rubbed smartly on the frames will generally ease them.

Banana Blanc Mange.

Into a quart of boiling milk stir 4 tablespoonfuls of cornstarch wet with a little milk and a quarter of a cupful of sugar. When it thickens, set aside to cool. When cold, stir in a scant teaspoonful of vanilla and 3 or 4 thinly sliced bananas.

Ages of Animals.

The age of a squirrel rarely exceeds 8 years; that of the rabbit 7; sheep will live 10 years; dogs have been known to attend 20; cats and foxes rarely go beyond 15, while pigs, deer, the bear and the cow have often lived beyond 20 years. The horse has been known to exceed 30; the lion 70; the camel, the eagle, the raven and the tortoise have been known to pass a century.

SHE TRAINS SINGERS.

MME. MARCHESE OF PARIS DESCRIBED BY ONE OF HER PUPILS.

A Famous Singing Teacher's Methods of Instruction—Where Girls of Every Nationality May Learn to Sing For the Public—Hard Work.

The most famous music teacher of the age is the Marchese de Castrone, known to all the world as Mme. Marchese. To say that a young woman has graduated with honors from Marchese's school is sufficient to stamp her as a painstaking and capable, if not a great singer.

She is a German by birth and married a Sicilian nobleman, the Marchese de Castrone, who was a musician and composer of ability. Ten children were born to them, but of these only one, the Baroness Popper, wife of a banker, is now living.

Mme. Marchese was a great mezzo-soprano. She herself studied of Garcia, a brother of the famous singer, Mme. Viardot. She made several successful operatic tours, but abandoned the stage finally and went to Vienna, where she was offered the position of first teacher at the Conservatoire. Her methods differed greatly from those employed by previous teachers, but in a very short time she was recognized as a leader in Vocal Science and Art. Indeed, her favorite daughter impelled her to leave for Paris, where she founded the present establishment, and, strange to say, every one of her twelve pupils followed her.

Mme. Marchese is a woman of unusual brilliancy. She has a splendid education. She is a diligent reader, a profound thinker and a woman of a clear, logical mind. She speaks fluently and without the slightest accent the English, German, French, Italian, Spanish and Russian languages. She is a woman of tireless energy. She never rests, yet she never seems to be fatigued.

There is no detail of her vast establishment so small that it is delegated to another. In addition she personally superintends her household affairs, besides giving some time to social duties. Her classes assemble every day at 9 o'clock and are not dismissed until 1 in the afternoon. At 3 o'clock they are again called together, and instruction continues until 7 in the evening. But it must be remembered that Marchese's pupils are not so far advanced in the study of music and vocal culture that she does not have to devote every moment of this time to watching over them.

There is no use of much importance or of such wealth or influence that the smallest rule or the least important one should be modified in any degree. The first requisite, of course, is that the applicant shall possess a voice. It does not take Marchese very long to find out about this. Then there are various examinations always waiting on the line for admission to the Conservatoire that it may require some diplomacy to be admitted, for only so many pupils can be accommodated in the school, and Marchese often finds some poor girl with a voice that promises well, to whom she makes an extra inducement to enter, either by pushing her voice and telling her of its possibility in the future, or by entirely omitting the customary fee of 25 francs for each lesson. No pupil is taken for less than this, except it be as above described. It is necessary that three lessons shall be taken each week. No men are received as pupils under any circumstances.

Once having entered the Conservatoire, the pupil begins in the preparatory class, where the voice is purely sound, and the beginner is not permitted to sing anything until the quality and character of her voice are ascertained. The next step is to enter the class where vocal exercises are taught. Then if she proposes to sing in concert, or is simply studying to obtain a finished musical education, she will enter a class where arias, songs and romances are studied. Or if she be preparing to sing in opera she will form one in a class where she will first be taught how to walk the stage, suppose to light airs and then light operas, arias and cadenzas.

In the last and highest class grand opera only is studied. The leading female roles in some particular opera are assigned to certain pupils who sing the parts while the remainder look on from the front and profit by the instruction given the participants. It is in this class that the pupil is taught some of the rudimentary knowledge of acting, and also, what is quite important, gesticulation, a feeling of confidence and ease and grace. In this class the great teacher is seen at her best. Her methods are very positive. If the voice be faulty in the least in the singer's voice, she unhesitatingly says so.

It is noticeable that the majority of French professional singers can chirp clear, sweet, bird-like voices as they have. On the other hand, Americans and Italians usually have good voices, but unfortunately for their vocal organs, singing for at least six months, and, unlike a great many other teachers, she degenerates cutting the tonsils.

There are two classes for the study of grand opera—one for French, the other for Italian. It sometimes happens, if the class is unusually large, a piano accompanist is required, but in general Marchese herself plays for her pupils. She never gives private lessons. Were she to do so, she could increase her income 600 per cent. It is so much easier

INJURED ON THE RAIL.

TWO ACCIDENTS IN THIS CITY ON SATURDAY NIGHT.

William Crawford Found Lying on the Track with His Leg Cut Off—William Wilson's Foot Crushed.

USUALNESS in Hospital's staff has been kept busy the last few days with patients who were injured in accidents Wednesday, a carpenter named Wilcox fell with a scaffold on Summit avenue. Saturday Hiram Voorhees, a painter, was taken to the Hospital suffering from injuries, which will probably prove fatal. Saturday night another was added to the list. It was William Crawford, who was found lying on the railroad track, near the Potter Press Works, about nine o'clock, by Samuel Squires, whose attention had been attracted by groaning.

One of Crawford's legs was cut off and his head was bruised. A stretcher was procured from the Hospital, and the injured man taken there on it.

The man was found just after the 8.55 train had passed. He could not tell how he was hurt.

The most likely story of how the accident occurred is told by Policeman Kiely. He says that a passenger train passed through, going West, just before he heard of the accident, on the rear platform of which he saw a man sitting down. It was closely followed by another train. The man was sitting on the rear platform was no doubt Crawford who jumped off at Spooner avenue, where he lived. Not noticing the approach of the other train it is supposed he stepped in front of it and was cut as told above.

William Wilson, a hackster, was the other victim. He had one leg cut off several years ago, in attempting to jump on a coal train. Saturday night he came near losing his other leg.

Wilson had been around town during the evening with several friends. Later he went to the merry go-round. He was seen to leave there at about half-past eleven, in company with Charles Huxler. They went to the depot and stood there talking. A freight train had stopped in in front of the station. As it started up Wilson attempted to jump aboard. He fell down and the wheels of the car passed over his foot. He refused to go to the Hospital, so he was taken home. Yesterday he was taken to the Hospital, where it is probable his foot will be amputated.

Mrs. A. G. Hooley of Central avenue will start for Monroe, Orange county, N. Y., to morrow.

Mr. Tunis J. Carey of Prospect place is at Clinton, N. J. His son Alvah will join him to-morrow.

Charles H. Borden of Highland, N. Y., is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Borst of La Grande avenue.

Mr. William H. Sampson and family of East Fifth street have gone to Eldred, Sullivan county, N. Y.

The Rev. Mr. Smalley, who died, near Dunellen, Saturday, is a cousin of the Smalley Brothers of this city.

Mr. Brooks Brown, head clerk in Mr. White's dress goods department, is spending his vacation at Tier's Lake House.

Mr. William Dunn and wife of West Fourth street, who have been enjoying the sea breezes at Asbury Park, have returned home.

Mrs. Edgar C. Schenck of Grandview avenue has returned home after an enjoyable visit at her father's, Dr. Ribble, of Harlingen.

Miss Lillian Epner, typewritist in Mr. M. M. Dunham's insurance office, has resigned the position to accept a more lucrative one.

Messrs. George Taylor, Alvah Carey, Frank Blatz and A. Y. Honeyman returned home yesterday from a week's outing at Budd's Lake.

The following Plainfielders registered at Asbury Park hotels, Saturday: Mrs. Wm. D. Thickstun, D. H. Thickstun, Mrs. C. G. Crawford, R. O. Bowers and wife, Lizzie Hagen, John E. Beerbower and wife, E. McClintock and wife, Wm. A. Coddington and wife.

Mr. Walter Irving Clarke, formerly a reporter on the THE NEWS, has become "managing editor" of the Daily Press, succeeding Mr. J. A. Demarest, who has been in the employ of the Force Brothers in such position since the paper was first started seven years ago, and who for nearly seven years more was also in the employ of the Forces as "managing" editor of the weekly Gentlemanly. While there is a change in names, the tone of the paper will probably remain the same as hitherto.

Voorhees Cannot Live.

Hiram Voorhees, the painter, who had such a bad fall, Saturday, all told in THE NEWS, the doctors say, cannot live. His death is expected at any moment.

THE HILLSIDE T. C. LAST.

IN THE INTER-CLUB LAWN TENNIS LEAGUE.

The Championship Won by the Bergen Point Club.—The Last of the Series Played Saturday at Jersey City.

THE LAST of the series of contests for the championship of the Inter-Club Lawn Tennis League, composed of the Hillside Tennis Club of this city, the Bergen Point Tennis Club of Bayonne, and the Jersey City Tennis Club of Jersey City Heights, took place Saturday afternoon on the courts of the Jersey City Tennis Club. The Bergen Point representatives, Sydney L. Smith and Howard, carried off the honors, defeating the representatives from both the other clubs with the loss of but a single set. The great work of the Bergen Point Club players lands that club in first place, with four victories and two defeats.

Strong Post of the Jersey City Tennis Club failed to add to the victories of their club; but their two defeats brought the Jersey City organization from first place down to second with an even number of victories and defeats.

The Hillside Tennis Club brings up the rear with two victories and four defeats, one of the victories being scored yesterday over the players from the Jersey City Club.

Summaries follow:

FIRST ROUND.

Sydney L. Smith and Howard, Bergen Point Tennis Club, defeated Simmons and Walz, Hillside Tennis Club, 6—4, 4—6, 6—1.

SECOND ROUND.

Sydney L. Smith and Howard, Bergen Point Tennis Club, defeated Strong and Post, Jersey City Tennis Club, 6—3, 6—3.

THIRD ROUND.

Simmons and Walz, Hillside Tennis Club, defeated Strong and Post, Jersey City Tennis Club, 7—5, 6—3.

The records now stand—Bergen Point Tennis Club, won 4, lost 2; Jersey City Tennis Club, won 3, lost 3; Hillside Tennis Club, won 2, lost 4.

MR. EDWARD LELAND INJURED.

A Scaffold Gave Way and He Fell with It.

Mr. Edward Leland of Grandview avenue met with an accident which might have proven serious, while working on Mr. Tyler's house on West Seventh street Saturday afternoon. He had been doing some plumbing in the new addition which is being built to the house, and started to descend by the way of the scaffold. He got out of the window and jumped upon the scaffold, which was a few feet below. The scaffold gave way and fell to the ground, a distance of 14 feet, throwing Mr. Leland down with considerable force upon the stone steps leading to the cellar. He landed on his left side, bruising his hip quite badly and also his left leg. Had he landed a foot further down the steps it might have proven serious as his head would have struck the Stone Steps. He was taken home.

HIS RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.

Superintendent Passmore Leaves the Plainfield Company.

Superintendent Passmore, of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, has resigned to accept a more lucrative position as superintendent of the Norristown Passenger Railway Company, at Norristown, Pa. His resignation has been accepted to take effect at once.

BREVITIES.

—James Mullen was given the "Wanswanz" degree by the letter-carriers this morning.

—A number of wheelmen from this city attended the carnival at Cranford Saturday night.

—"Lady Nell" and "Patchum" were raced by their owners at Stirling yesterday. "Lady Nell" won.

—Justice Nash has issued summons in the case of Mead vs. Stevens, landlord and tenant, returnable August 3.

—There was a raffle Saturday night at the Valley Hotel, Scotch Plains, for a $50 Elgin gold watch. Mr. Wm. Collins won it.

—Next Saturday night a gold horse shoe ring set with seven brilliants is to be raffled off at the Paff Hotel, Scotch Plains.

—Mr. Windham, this morning, closed the final arrangements for the Arlington Hotel on Somerset. Mr. Windham was formerly of Windham & Crowley.

—A new stone walk has been placed on the Park avenue side of Park avenue Baptist church. It was one foot higher than the old walk so as to be up to grade.

—Seventeen men were laid off at Scott's Saturday night. The company has orders enough to keep the men, but has received orders not to finish the work, owing to the financial depression at present.

The Weather.

On Tuesday fair to partly cloudy weather will probably prevail, with light southerly and westerly winds and slight temperature changes and local thunder storms, followed on Wednesday by slightly cooler, fair conditions.

SATURDAY'S BALL GAME

NINE "GOOSE EGGS" FOR THE NEW BRUNSWICKS.

Crescents Play a Brilliant Game—Both Turner and Keenan Pitch in Fine Form—Score: Crescents, 10; New Brunswicks, 0.

HE New Brunswick papers stated last week that the New Brunswick team was "going to Plainfield for revenge for their defeat." The kind of revenge they got was the worst ever, even worse than the Jersey City Tennis Club of Jersey City Heights, took place Saturday afternoon on the courts of the Jersey City Tennis Club. HE New Brunswick papers stated last week that the New Brunswick team was "going to Plainfield for revenge for their defeat." The kind of revenge they got was the worst ever, even worse than they wanted revenge for.

The game abounded in brilliant plays. The Crescents showed the effect of the practice they received on their trip up the Hudson. Coming home, Friday, with three straight victories, they were in trim to tackle the best team in the State, and they really beat the New Brunswicks who were unable to bat either Turner or Keenan to any extent. The best the visitors could do was nine goose eggs, while the Crescents piled up ten runs. Several times the New Brunswicks got men on bases, but sharp, quick playing kept them from scoring. The score:

TILLIE WANTED FINE DRESSES.

The Policeman Found her Hiding in a Hay Mow.

Tillie Hicks, colored, employed at Mr. Ross', on Plainfield avenue, has a weakness for fine clothes, and this got her in trouble yesterday.

Mrs. Ross' daughters are away for the Summer. Tillie thought she would borrow some of their dresses. When she was found out by Mrs. Ross that lady sent for a policeman. Policeman Kiely answered the call. He searched for Tillie all over the house without success. Then he went to the barn to look there. Finally he found her in the hay mow, partly buried in the hay.

As Mrs. Ross did not wish to prosecute her, she was released, on her promise to leave town within an hour.

Backed the Wagon Over the Fence.

A horse belonging to G. W. Eddy of Grant avenue met with a peculiar accident last week. The driver got out to deliver an order. As he got in the wagon the horse started. He gave a quick jerk on the lines. The horse backed the wagon over a low stone fence. After the animal got the wagon over, its heels caught and it sat down on the fence. The horse's perch on the fence was of short duration, for it soon rolled over and had to be unhitched before it could get up.

The "Hops" Contest.

THE NEWS has submitted to three disinterested persons the answers giving definition of the word "Hops," or, rather, so many of these answers as complied with conditions of our offer—brevity and originality.

One of these persons will not be able to have his answer ready before to-morrow, because called away to New York. In consequence the decision which we expected to have been ready to publish to day must be deferred.

In the City Court.

Henry Fosberry was arrested Saturday afternoon, for drunkenness, by Policeman Vanderweg. He was fined $5.

A bicycle rider was fined $1 for riding without a light.

Charles Sowrocki was arrested by Policeman Kiely, yesterday, on complaint of his wife, who said he had beat her. He denied the charge. Trial was set down for August 17.

What It Has Done for Him.

Have kept and sold Hires' Rootbeer for several years. I have drunk it exclusively this Summer. Am 76 years old and feel like a boy. It is ahead of sarsaparilla.

"Plainfield Forever."

(Asbury Park Journal.)

Plainfield forever! Again she sent fourteen couches loaded with pleasure seekers to Asbury Park. They bore the ropes and had something cash out for every minute of their stay. They were early birds, and departed for the "Colorado of the East" at 8.30.

One Plainfield boy had a black eye time to rotate when he got back. He went sailing on the Jessie J., got seasick, lost his hat, had an involuntary bath, and arrived at the station half an hour after his train had gone. His hat was shelled through by a regular.

John Burke was Fighting Drunk.

John Burke, while drunk, last night, tried to start a fight on Somerset street, and was otherwise disorderly. His language and actions disgusted everybody who followed the kingdom of the maiden. When heard that he was likely to be arrested he hurried away. Marshal Pangborn caught him in Manning avenue.

Burke was sentenced to a fine of $10 or ten days in the county jail. He will probably take the days.

CORRESPONDENCE.

About the First Church of Christ.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—The article that appeared in some of the New York papers yesterday in regard to the Plain Church of Christ losing members, was refuted last night by Pastor Hand. He read the article, and said it was a base fabrication tending to injure himself and flock.

A MEMBER OF THE CHURCH.

After Using It Three Days Without Paying for It.

EARLY Saturday afternoon two strangers stopped at the Somerset House, on Somerset street. They were in a wagon. After ordering that their horse be fed and cared for they walked off. Mr. Boyce had the horse put in the stable. The horse did not return. Later Mr. C. J. Frall of Somerville called at the hotel and showed Mr. Boyce the following telegram:

JERSEY CITY, July 28, 1893.

C. J. FRALL,—
Horse at Somerset House, Plainfield.

As the horse belonged to Mr. Frall he was allowed to take it.

Mr. Frall sent back the following:

SOMERVILLE, July 28, 1893.

CHIEF OF POLICE, Jersey City:
Hold two men, Cloth peddlers. One gone. One rather short, immaculate. Stuck in paper collar. C. M. FRALL.

Mr. Frall said the men had hired the horse for three days to take a trip in the country.

Base Ball Notes.

There has been a new base ball club organized under the name of the Crescent Juniors. Following are the players. H. Woolston, 1b., J. Steiner, 2b.; O. Smith, s.s.; D. Kane, 3b.; W. Van Horn, p.; M. Sutphen, c.f.; G. Bosterli, c.; B. Woodland, r.f.; O. Dodge, r.f.

We will challenge any team in the vicinity, under 19 years of age, and would like to arrange a game with some team for Saturday afternoon, which we have open. Address M. Sutphen, manager, 309 Second street.

Davenport, of West End fame, played here Saturday under the nom de plume of "Howley."

The Crescents will play with the Woodbridge team next Saturday afternoon.

The Washington National League team and the Paterson club played an interesting eleven-inning game Saturday at Paterson, the score being 5 to 4. Two Crescent players—Murphy and Turner—played with the Paterson team. Both put up errorless games. Turner made one run and two singles.

Relief for Consumptives' Coughs.

In a dry, hacking cough not accompanied by much expectoration recourse can be had to preparations of opium associated with belladonna. If the secretion of the bronchial tubes is not very abundant and is very sticky it is preferable to use the following preparation as a spray:

Bicarbonate of soda..... 2 gms.
Hydrochlorate of morphine.. 0.05 centig.
Aqua dest..... 100.00 gms

This is put up in atomizers.

When a dry cough is accompanied by any rise of temperature the use of phenacetine is approved at the dose of 0.30 centig.

In cases where there is abundant expectoration opium must be replaced by the different balsams, as tar, turpentine, guaicol or creosote, inwardly or in inhalations. Relief can be had by the use of the following formula for pills:

Oxalate of cerium, 0.10 centig.
Extract of hyoscyamus, 0.05 centig.
Flint 40. Four to six a day.

Difficult as it is to relieve the cough of consumptives, it is too exhausting to be neglected.

Literary Note.

"The American Soldier" is the name of a new monthly publication from the press of the Nation Publishing Company, Mail and Express building, New York. It is bound in an artistic lithographed cover, upon which is a Continental soldier, 1776, and Union soldier, 1865, clasping hands, surrounded by the pictures of the heroes of America's four great wars, Washington, 1776, Andrew Jackson, 1812; Scott, 1846, and Grant, 1865. The significant sentence on the cover is "Peasions are not pims." The first number contains a most remarkably natural, home-like picture of Abraham Lincoln, done by means entirely devoted of coloring process which produces the effect a colored photograph—the picture is 10½ x 13½ inches, and is so excellent as to merit an expensive frame. Each month a similar portrait of one of the heroes of the Civil War will be given. The publication is most beautiful. The contents will delight every pensioner, honest veteran and Republican.

It Was Only Glass Falling on a Tin Roof.

While a resident of Evona and his family were at camp meeting last night, it became rumored that his house was being robbed. Neighbors investigated and found that a window, which had been left open, had come down with such force as to break out the panes of glass. The glass fell on the tin roof of the piazza. It made such a racket that neighbors thought the house was being robbed.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Britannia First Wins $25.—Valkyrie Second, Wins $25.—The Navahoe Third Wins Nothing.

LONDON, July 31. (Special.)—The regatta of the Royal London Yacht Club took place.

The first prize in to-day's race is $25 and the second $25.

Great interest was manifested in the Navahoe, which is the American challenger for the Royal Victoria Yacht Club's gold cup, the Brenton Reef Cup and the Cape May Cup.

At the beginning of the race the Valkyrie drew away sharply from the other boats, and the Navahoe seemed to lose slightly. The wind freshened on a rising tide, and the Navahoe, with everything except spinnaker set, began to overhaul the leaders.

At 1.20 o'clock the Navahoe was leading. The Valkyrie was two seconds behind. The Navahoe continued to gain slowly, and at 1.30 was leading the Valkyrie by ten seconds. The Britannia was a close third.

When the yachts started on the second round the Navahoe got over the line eight seconds ahead of the Valkyrie. The Britannia was the third to cross, a minute later than the Valkyrie.

Then followed the Satanita, Calluna and Iverna in the order given.

The Britannia finished first.

The Valkyrie was second.

The Navahoe third.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Faddist.

Don't laugh the faddist to scorn. He is the happiest man alive. Other people run in ruts and get to be wooden old fogies before their time. For the faddist life has an ever renewed interest. He is always discovering the fountain of youth, the alleviation for all human miseries. That it is not a true fountain, not a lasting alleviation, is nothing. It is real while it lasts. It gives him as much pleasure for a time as if it were the living reality. By the time he discovers there is not much in it he will be interested in something else, and so keep himself alive and young.

The most important sanitary improvements, reformations in morals and religion, better methods of education—all began as fads. Those who went in for them were sneered at as cranks, and respectable, conservative people made very merry over them. Yet by and by the crank's ideas began to be popular. It has been found in the case of every fad or crank notion which prevailed to any extent that it contained a grain of precious, golden truth helpful to mankind. Through the water cure craze mankind became cleaner in general. Through vegetarianism the people learned that they were eating more meat than was good for them. The fad for physical culture was so laughed at at first that rural parents wanted to discharge for wasting time teachers who attempted to introduce it into the schools, yet through physical culture and outdoor sports the whole American people have become in the last generation taller, stronger, handsomer and certainly happier.

Air, Fruit and Sleep.

In these three words are to be found nature's great medicines and hygienic agencies. If a person is found who has kept his youth and mental powers far beyond the average age, he will always be, like Gladstone, a man who "does his nine hours' sleep," or if not nine hours then at least eight hours. This generation is handsomer, healthier and will be longer lived than the one immediately preceding because it lives more in the open air, eats more fruit and really sleeps more than its parents did.

Our grandparents, especially if they came from the superstitious old countries of Europe, thought that in some way a current of air blowing upon them would poison them. No less dangerous than a mad dog bite was that dread thing they called a "draft." The new school human being has made himself on such friendly terms with "drafts" as to find that the quickest and pleasantest way to cool himself when he is overheated is to place himself where the fresh, sweet air surrounds and envelops him. One will take cold twice as quickly in a room full of tainure air as in one where the wind blows upon him freely all day long.

We may rejoice that this is a good fruit year. Every season develops more and more the magnificent possibilities of our country in fruit production. This year for the first time fresh figs have been shipped across the continent from California, arriving at the Atlantic coast in a fair state of preservation. If you would be happy and live long, make fruit a larger part of your diet, especially in hot weather.

What gives promise of supplying the long felt want of a rotary steam engine has been invented by Mr. Parsons, an Englishman. He calls his discovery a "steam engine." It is probable that the need of all the complicated machinery of compound triple and quadruple expansion engines, with the attendant difficulty of managing them and the constant danger of their getting out of order, will be obviated by this simple device. It has "neither valve, piston, pitman, connecting rod nor fly wheel," which will make it a boon to all establishments where power is required. It can be easily attached to a dynamo shaft of any size and be made to furnish electrical power in desired quantity. A steam turbine wheel that practically amounts to a rotary engine is indeed an invention of which we may well be proud just as we turn down the leaf upon the nineteenth century. The small amount of steam pressure needed for the new turbine is another feature that will commend it especially to the manufacturers. Now, too, that it has been invented, the simplicity of the thing is such that the wonder will be nobody ever thought of it before.

An English judge has ruled that policemen have no right to question a prisoner as to his guilt or innocence. They may only inform him of the charges against him. Then if he voluntarily makes any statement they can use this statement in evidence at his trial if they are called on to do so.

Of the immigrants who came to us during the year ending June 30, all the nationalities show a falling off on account of the cholera scare, except the Italians, whose number increased even under such a condition 11,439. Not even cholera can keep our Italian away, he loves us so well.

The certain destiny of the beautiful and fertile islands of the Pacific is to be taken possession of and absorbed by the civilized nations. Unless the United States gets her share of them she will be left behind in the last part of the world.

SILVER MEN GATHERING

Swarming Into Chicago For Their Big Convention.

LOOKING FOR GOLDBUG SCALPS.

General Warner Talked of For Permanent Chairman — Colorado's Big Delegation Arrives With Flying Colors—A Sample of Silver Oratory on the Lake Shore.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Delegates to the silver convention arrived in force, and the prospects are that when the convention meets tomorrow morning it will be one of the largest gatherings of the kind ever assembled.

About 200 delegates to the national silver convention had registered at the headquarters in the Montauk block up to this morning, but according to the advices received by the committee on arrangements early in the summer there will be on hand within the next 24 hours. Headquarters will be opened this morning in the Palmer House for the delegates from New York and Colorado; at the Great Western hotel for those from Montana, Idaho and Illinois, and at the Antlers hotel for the delegates from Ohio, Texas, Indiana, Nebraska, Michigan and California. This applies to delegates that come alone. For those with families provision has been made at the Hotel Mecca.

Wolcott Cannot Stay.

Senator Wolcott of Colorado and Congressman Bonn of Minnesota looked in on the committee. They lurried long enough, however, only to remove the dust of travel and take dinner and then continued their journey to Washington.

In conversation with some of the local silver men who say that he should remain for the convention, Senator Wolcott said he felt that he could be of more service to the party at the national capital in view of the fact that the makeup of committees and other important matters would command consideration during the coming week.

Congressman John H. Reagan of Texas also arrived at the Grand Pacific. The national executive committee of the People's party has established itself in the same hotel. Only H. C. Taubeneck, Treasurer Rankin of Terre Haute and George J. Washburn of Massachusetts, chairman of the eastern division of the People's party, have so far put in an appearance and although these were in consultation for several hours no formal caucus will be held until the bulk of the committee arrives.

It is understood that the Populists in the convention will vigorously resist any attempt to form any new party on the ground that the Omaha platform contains everything that is demanded by the silverites, and that as a consequence the latter could not do better than to come into the Populist fold in a body.

The leading silverites already on the ground moreover are strongly opposed to any inflammatory or demagogic harangues under the heat of the convention. They want it, they say, to be a sober, calm and deliberative body, and if Governor Waite or any others should undertake to repeat their recent wild utterances they will speedily be called down and sent to the rear.

Senator Stewart of Nevada is the most mentioned for permanent chairman by the western people, but a growing sentiment has developed in favor of General Warner as permanent chairman. Four is entertained that if a western man is made permanent chairman impression will go abroad that the convention is being managed wholly in the interest of western mine owners, and for this reason many of the delegates prefer General Warner.

A Characteristic Silver Speech.

About 200 laboring men gathered on the lake front to listen to a silver address by Carl Brown, one of the delegates from California, and who styles himself national recruiting officer of the Industrial Legion of the United States.

He declared that the goldbugs got their shackles on the country during the war and that they had kept them riveted ever since. American labor, he said, was never in a worse condition under King Gold than the slave before the war were under King Cotton, for the latter received plenty to eat and a day's holiday now and then. There were those that considered Senator Sherman a statesman and a patriot. Others there were that thought Benedict Arnold must be a saint in heaven. As for the old man down at Bunzard's Bay, he was trying to do just the opposite to what Jackson did in the financial question, and yet the great bulk of his own party regarded him as a dyed in the wool Jacksonian Democrat.

Congress, declared the speaker, who was frequently applauded, had degenerated into a great anction room, in which the rights and privileges of the people were bartered and sold. Notwithstanding this, however, the present silver trouble must be settled peaceably. There was no necessity to allow moothings or talk of revolution. It was a question for the people would settle it in such a way as to demonstrate that the public was a bulwark and a safeguard between those that would deprive them of their rights.

The Colorado Men Arrive.

Among the 300 strong delegation which arrived today was ex-Senator Thomas M. Patterson of the Rocky Mountain News, who made the brilliant fight in the last Democratic national convention for a free silver plank in the party's platform. The headquarters of the delegation are at the Palmer House. Other prominent men in the party are: Governor Waite, ex-Governors John L. Routte and John Evans, ex-Senator N. P. Hill, ex-Senator H. A. W. Tabor, Jacob A. Cheyer, president of the Bank of Commerce; John Rising and ex-Chief Justice Joseph C. Helm. The Centennial state delegation will wear a blue and silver badge, bearing the inscription "Liberty and Union" above a replica of a silver dollar, and the shield of the state.

Messrs. T. C. Clark, E. C. Kingsbury and C. L. Hathaway of the Washington delegation, are at the Wellington hotel, and expect 100 or more delegates to arrive today.

Death Overtook the Scorchers For Work.

PITTSBURG, July 31.—Three men were run down by the eastern fast line on the Pennsylvania railroad at Brinton station, near here. Thomas and Michael Cornallan of this city were killed. The third, William Diskin, of Scranton, Pa., was terribly mangled and will probably die. The men were in search of work and were walking on the track.

Want Miss Melton Recalled.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The Presbyterian board of foreign missions sent a letter to Secretary of State Gresham requesting that immediate and decisive action be taken by the government in regard to the outrage on Miss Anna Melton, the missionary, in the Nestorian village of Duroa.

BACK FROM A PEST HOLE.

Sad Tales From Passed Those Yellow Waters.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The British steamship Dorset limped into port a cripple, and it required the services of three powerful tugs to tow her to her dock in Brooklyn.

The Dorset was badly handicapped. Her boilers were defective and leaked like watering pots. The plates parted at the seams, the rivets sprung out, the cylinders allowed the steam to escape through wide apertures, and more than once at sea the big steamship was forced to call into port her spread of canvas in order to keep her head on to the seas and while her old boilers were being patched.

In addition to these drawbacks the Dorset's crew was sorely depleted by the ravages of yellow fever. Her chief engineer, Richard Peters, was about the first to succumb to the terrible Yellow Jack. This was on Jan. 5, and he was stricken a few days before and while the vessel was lying at Santos.

The chief mate, S. W. Page, had died two days before, and in rapid succession followed the deaths of the donkey engine man, Von der Wingert, and J. W. Corbett, an American fireman. Two more died before taking passage on the Dorset had abandoned his sailing ship, Amy, in Santos. His crew had been carried off by the dreaded disease, so he was impossible to secure another in Santos, and after his vessel had been riding at anchor in Santos bay for nearly a year, and only after he himself had been taken down with yellow fever, did he decide to abandon his ship and return to the north.

In the meanwhile, during his enforced stay in the hospital in Santos, where he subsequently told Captain Couch of the Dorset he had been more treated like a dog than a man, the natives who live along its shore swarmed aboard his ship and looted her of everything of value.

The cargo was carried away piecemeal, and when the pirates left the ship she was practically dismantled. Nothing remained but the hull and the masts, and it was in this condition that Captain Corbett found his vessel when he returned after his discharge from the hospital. Every man aboard of his crew was dead, his ship dismantled, with no funds to prepare her for sea, no possibility of procuring another crew and receiving no satisfaction from the authorities of Santos, to whom he complained. Captain Corbett took passage home on the Dorset. He took a relapse and died at sea.

MR. M'NAUGHTON'S DEATH.

Died in Chicago at the New York State Fair Building.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Senator McNaughton died at the New York State building at the World's fair grounds.

Donald McNaughton was born in Mumford, town of Wheatland, Monroe county, March 29, 1830. From a clerk in early life he prospered himself to the legal profession also. During the construction of the Rochester and State Line railroad, and since its completion, he was secretary and treasurer of the company, was a trustee of the Central Union Storage and Transfer company of Rochester, trustee of the Reynolds' library, president of the Scottish society of Rochester, and secretary of the Wheatland Historical society. He was unmarried and resided in Mumford, having a law office in Rochester.

He was elected to the senate in 1887 over John W. Hannah, re-elected in 1889 over William A. Sutherland, declined renomination in 1892, defeated by John Van Voorhis for congress in 1892, appointed chief executive officer of New York state exhibit at World's fair April 18, 1892. He was one of the most popular citizens in Rochester.

Shot His Man, Then Dropped Dead.

LOUISVILLE, July 31.—Town Marshal T. J. Husk and Edward Graham, a tough, shot and killed each other on Twenty-eighth street in Parkland, an incorporated suburb of Louisville. The marshal had placed two of Graham's cows in the pound, and Graham broke the gate down and let them out. Blank, who is a white haired man of 70, secured a warrant and attempted to serve it on Graham, who resisted. Graham opened fire, and Marshal Husk began to shoot also. He brought Graham to the ground at the second shot. Graham was shot through the breast. The game old man fell, but drew himself up to his knees, shot Graham near the heart and killed him. Graham attempted to rise, but the marshal's bullet had touched a vital spot, and he, too, fell back dead.

COSEY ISLAND, N. Y., July 31.—A train from Bay Ridge over the Sea Beach railroad to Coney Island was near being wrecked. and 300 passengers had a narrow escape from death or injury. Three Brooklyn men were arrested for placing a hand car across the track. They are: E. E. Stone of 161 Tillary street, George Springer of 220 Pacific street and Edward Hilton of 1,000 Atlantic avenue. They left a hand car at King's highway just as the train was rounding the curve.

Captured Beauche In Canada.

Another South American Revolution.

BUENOS AYRES, July 31.—The radicals have begun a revolutionary movement in the provinces of Buenos Ayres and Santa Fe, and fighting has been going on for 30 towns in the first named province since Sunday last, according to advices so far received the insurgents seem to be victorious. There was desperate fighting at Rosario, the battle lasting six hours.

Two Engines Met.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 31.—An empty engine on the Delano division of the Lehigh Valley railroad ran into a passenger train near Mahanoy City. Neil Gallagher, baggage master, and W. J. Hattrick, conductor of the passenger train, both of Shoch Creek, were quite badly injured. Both engines were wrecked.

Bicycle Manufacturers Angry.

CHICAGO, July 31.—The manufacturers of bicycles announce that they will withdraw their exhibits from competition, giving as a reason that Prince Miller, who was appointed as juror of awards, is employed by a rival concern.

England Sends Back Gold.

LONDON, July 31.—It is understood that $2,000,000 of gold will be shipped within the next two weeks to the United States, and the belief is that several millions more will be sent over before the end of the year.

SOLDIERS WENT HUNGRY

New Jersey Militiamen Complain of Their Rations.

FOOD WAS SCARCE AND VERY BAD.

Fried Steak Three Times a Day and a Mysterious Substitute For Coffee, Which Was Not Recognized—They Say There Was an Attempt at Economy.

JERSEY CITY, July 31.—The charge is made that New Jersey does not give her citizen soldiers enough to eat when they are in camp. Queer stories are being told about the manner in which the boys of the 7th Fourth New Jersey regiment were treated last week while serving their state in Camp Werts, Sea Girt. Complaints were rife that the healthy appetites of the militia were unsatisfied and they were compelled to look upon an empty stomach. Some very harrowing tales have been circulated about the gastronomical powers of the Jersey soldiers and the deprivations they were forced to suffer.

In the first place there was no vinegar in camp. All the week the soldier boys took their applejack coolers regularly and flirted with the pretty girls down the beach with becoming Hudson county decorum, but when it came to eating cucumbers and tomatoes without vinegar the gastronomical powers of the Fourth failed to fortify that even Canadian Bradley, the Naval, of Asbury Park, could hear the rumblings along the coast.

The absence of vinegar was first told to the regiment's quartermaster, Alvin H. Graff, who dates his mail when at home from 30 Highland avenue, Jersey City. But it was not long before the blame was fixed upon the shoulders of Quartermaster General Donnelly, who hails from Newark.

Did Not Like the Coffee.

The milk is canned, we have said, was good enough, what there was of it, but the quantity was hardly sufficient for the cooking pup which Company B wanted to adopt. Then the four rats served on Saturday and Colonel Abernethy was compelled to put up some of his own hard earned cash to finish out with. This was the straw that broke the colonel's back. He had the luxuries of the season. But he would not march idly by and see his command suffer for flour.

"I tell you what it is," said a private of the Fourth, "that coffee was more than suspicious. Why, they fired it up in the cook's tent or in the quartermaster general's department, or some where else, and that coffee was sugared and milked before it reached us. Phew, what stuff!

"They was a loud call for some Jersey City chickory or some coffee of the vintage of 1825—anything, in fact, except the mysterious liquid which bore the brand of Quartermaster Graff."

"You see, it's this way," said another of the Fourth's men. "Our quartermaster has too many irons in the fire. Now, he is colonel of the 7th regiment, has entire charge of the rifle range down at camp at 86 a day, and his other duties are numerous and lucrative. He's a decent fellow enough, but he don't devote time enough to properly feeding the men while in camp. It was fried steak for breakfast, fried steak for dinner, fried steak for supper and ditto, ditto, ditto for all the days. And just to think of it—the thermometer away up to 102 in the shade, a land breeze bringing out real mosquitoes and coming in by the billion."

Too Much Economy.

The state appropriates 90 cents a day for the subsistence of each militiaman, and they say that if that sum were properly handled it would give the soldiers a much better spread than was furnished last week.

"Quartermaster General Donnelly," one man remarked, "was possessed of the crank's ambition to make a record for economy, and he did it at the expense of the men, who were not in a position to remonstrate. The rations were so scanty that on Friday we had consumed the entire base for that day before supper. They ate everything before them, and when the last crumb had disappeared the men took to drinking oat meal water and filled up on that diet.

Many barrels of water were consumed when something more substantial should have been furnished.

It is well enough to give the militiamen a taste of rough camp life, but his food should be wholesome, palatable and abundant. If Quartermaster General Donnelly saved a few dollars to the state perhaps he has gained the ill will of this entire command. Regimental Quartermaster Graff was careless, too, in making his requisitions small. With all his experience he ought to easily gauge the appetite of the troops in the field. He evidently failed in that he did not order a double ration every day for each man. Members of the Fourth take the palm for food consuming capacity."

The matter will be officially investigated.

Another Chilean Enterprise Fails.

CHICAGO, July 31.—The Dairy kitchen, hotel and restaurant, State and Madison streets, was closed by the sheriff. As a result 150 employees are thrown out with considerable back pay coming them, and many of them without the price of a meal or bed. Up to a late hour the employees thronged about the barred doors.

FRANCE ACCEPTS.

Siam's Alleged Unconditional Submission Declared by the Cabinet.

BANGKOK, July 31.—While the government of Siam accepted without reservations France's ultimatum, it received previously the assurance that the kingdom would not be dismembered until after the consideration by all powers concerned of France's demand for the territory between the eighteenth and twenty-third parallels.

It is somewhat remarkable that before Prince Vadhana, Siamese minister in Paris, could have received his instructions to accept the ultimatum, Great Britain's refusal to recognize the blockade had become known in this city.

The blockade is still maintained by the Forfait, Lotin, Inconstante, Comete and Lion. The British warships Pallas and Swift remain at the Menam bar, inside the blockade limits. The British government mail has been allowed to pass, but mercantile correspondence with Bismore firms has been cut off. An effort is making, therefore, to render efficient an overland postal service via Tavoy and Rangoon.

Rear Admiral Humann has arrived at Koh-si-Chang. M. Pavie remains at the same port, as all negotiations subsequent to the ultimatum have been carried on directly with Paris.

The French have seized the Siamese mail steamer Chantaboon and the Hong Kong steamer Phra Chomklao with 400 Chinese aboard her. The Phra Chula eventually was allowed to land her passengers and cargo at Bangkok. She will sail for Hong Kong today.

Of the British steamers rendered idle by the blockade 12 are in the trade with Hong Kong, eight in the trade with Singapore and one in the trade with Bombay.

The French Accept.

PARIS, July 31.—A cabinet meeting, with President Carnot presiding, was held at the Elysee. The decision was that Siam's offer to concede the demands of Siam's ultimatum be accepted.

HATRED OF HOKE SMITH.

The Secretary Burned In Effigy Because of Dropped Pensions.

PORTSMOUTH, O., July 31.—Secretary Hoke Smith was hung in effigy by the enraged citizens of Rome, a little town of Adams county, 20 miles from this city. A number of pensions had been suspended before. The climax was reached when the pension of J. L. Reed, a veteran of the One Hundred and Tenth Illinois cavalry, aged 83 years, was dropped.

Mr. Reed's pension was his sole support. When he received the news of his suspension he became a raving maniac. The aroused citizens, led by John Furnier, a Democrat, proposed to hang Smith in effigy. Over 1,000 people, irrespective of party affiliations, assembled to participate in the ceremony.

It was intended to burn the president in effigy also, but wiser counsels prevailed. A platform was erected on the public landing and several speeches were made. After a procession had marched through the town, headed by a brass band, the effigy was hung and afterwards burned.

The Paying Teller a Defaulter.

PATERSON, N. J., July 31.—A defalcation of $10,650 has been discovered in the cash of the First National bank of this city. Abram Pardon, the paying teller, was arrested and committed to the county jail. The money was taken from four packages containing $5,000 each. Ten dollar bills were abstracted from them and replaced with one dollar bills. The defaulting teller is 50 years old and unmarried. He has been connected with the bank for 28 years. He admitted that he was responsible for the loss of the money and asked that he be committed to prison.

Mills and Factories Closing.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., July 31.—Sandford & Sons' carpet mills shut down for at least two weeks, and possibly longer. They employ 2,000 hands. The following mills and factories have also closed: The Van Auxwerp Knitting mills, indefinitely; Johnson Knitting Company's mills, two weeks; Shuler Shaw and Co., one week, and Scott's Silk mill at Fultonville, two weeks.

Will Attack the Geary Law Again.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—Thomas D. Riordan, attorney for the Chinese S. x Companies, states that, in connection with Joseph Choate of New York and other counsel, he is preparing to make a second test of the constitutionality of the Geary Chinese registration law at the October session of the United States supreme court.

Robbers Made a Big Haul.

WICHITA, Kan., July 31.—Robbers held up a Pacific express wagon and the messenger was compelled to open the safe, which contained silver and currency about to be shipped south to the amount of $7,500. The robbers dumped the money into a sack and made good their escape.

Russia Goes Germany Several Better.

BERLIN, July 31.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Kreuzzeitung Zeitung says that Russia intends to add on Aug. 1 50 per cent to the present maximum tariff on German imports. This will be Russia's reply to Germany's increase of 50 per cent in her tariff on Russian imports.

THE HAIR CLIPPER AGAIN

Mysterious New Yorker Who Is a Terror to Young Women.

NELLIE LOST ONE BLACK BRAID.

She Was Standing In a Crowd About a Street Preacher, When She Heard the Snip of the Clipper's Scissors, and Then She Missed Half Her Hair.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The man who clips girls' hair in the streets appeared last night at an outdoor gospel meeting on the southwest corner of Eighth avenue and Thirtieth street and cut off a black braid, one of two belonging to Nellie McDonald. Nellie is 19 years old and lives with and supports her widowed mother. Their apartments are on the second floor of the tenement at 435 West Twenty-fifth street.

Nellie is short, has a good looking face and black eyes, and her hair—the half that is left of it—is raven black and unusually long. She worked as a house servant in a family at 435 West Twenty-seventh. She is going to marry Charles Keeler, a young mechanic of 307 Seventh avenue.

Nellie spent Sunday with the family she works for, and last evening after supper set out to walk to her home down Eighth avenue. She wore a spotless gown of figured mull and jaunty hat.

As she passed the corner of Thirtieth street she was attracted by a group standing on the corner about a street preacher. She mingled with the crowd, but took no notice of the individual appearance of any one. She moved into the midst of the crowd, and thinks now that she was edged to the front by some person with malice aforethought.

Missed One Braid.

Miss McDonald became interested in the discourse of the missionary, and, although she remembers now that she heard a click as of a pair of shears, she paid no attention to it then. A moment afterward when she turned to go she felt, as she says, that something was wrong with her hair. She had had it done up in two long braids. They were rolled up and bunched tight against the back of her head.

There were two bunches, and she found that the bunch on the right side was gone. Instinctively she looked on the ground and saw her hair lying there loose. She was frightened, she says, and picking up her hair, hurried off without saying a word to anybody.

She ran straight to the house of her sweetheart and told him about her loss. He took her to the West Thirtieth street station house, where they saw Sergeant Sheehan. The girl said a man had stood on one side of her in the crowd and a woman on the other.

She could not even remember whether the man was on her right or left, or anything about him. She said she had not an enemy in the world, and could not think of any reason why anybody should want to ruin her hair.

Mr. Richard J. Owen, the leader of the meeting, said the incident must have occurred on some other corner. Policeman Wuertzfelder, who had the Thirtieth street post, looked through the crowd for suspicious characters, but could not find any.

He also talked with several persons in the crowd, but failed to get anybody who had seen the affair. It appears that the matter was hardly understood by the incident, and the services were continued until the close without interruption.

On the night of July 4 Miss Annie O'Neil, who lives in West Forty-eighth street, had her hair clipped by a man at Forty-eighth street and Eighth avenue.

Lynchers Indicted.

MEMPHIS, July 31.—Charles Frayser and Phil Hode and Jake O'Neal, three supposed lynchers, have been indicted by the grand jury. It is understood that Sheriff McLendon and several others have also been indicted and will be arrested today.

CONGRESSMEN GATHER.

Slowly Drifting Into Washington For the Big Silver Fight.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The advance guard of members of the Fifty-third congress, coming to attend the special session, which will begin a week from today, are at the capital. There not many of them, and the probabilities are that the few congressmen will be in the city before next Saturday. Among those who have arrived the opinion seems to be unanimous that the Sherman law will and must be repealed, or at least the silver purchasing clause, but what shall follow is an unknown quantity.

Mr. Crisp Is All Ready.

FOUND IN THE CREEK.

Circumstances Indicate That Miss Schultz Was Murdered.

BATAVIA, N. Y., July 31.—The body of Miss Genevieve Schultz, aged 15 years, who has been missing from her home on Elliot avenue since last night, was found in Tonawanda creek. There were several bruises on her neck and face. Her death is a very mysterious one, for Miss Schultz was about to leave for a vacation trip to Rochester, where she was to join a painting class. She had spent all the afternoon bidding her friends goodby and making the necessary purchases at the village stores.

There is absolutely no reason why she should have committed suicide. It is said that a strange man was seen about the bridge under which Miss Schultz was found.

A young man named Smith, whose home is in Rochester, was walking on the New York Central tracks and discovered a hat and shoe lying on the bridge. He took them to the village, where they were identified as belonging to Miss Schultz. This led to the dragging of the creek and the finding of the body. The sweetheart of the deceased—Mrs. Fitzpatrick and Miss Anna Schultz—live in New York city and another is a sister in a Missouri convent.

Fatal Blow With a Lump of Coal.

PITTSBURG, July 31.—Charles Rathkoskie, a boarding house keeper of Soltmiry, has crushed the skull of Joseph Hyris with a lump of coal, inflicting fatal injuries. Hyris boards with Rathkoskie and many women won't wear a ball or hoods dress because no tailor made dress must have big sleeves. A plain serge skirt, with short open coat, is the only kind of sensible dress left us.

The New Parasols.

In regard to parasols it may be said that red, white and black lead in the race for popular favor. Many of the sunshades are made entirely of chiffon and lace.

NEW PARIS SUNSHADES.

THE CROCKERY SHOP

AGES AT WHICH MEN MARRY.

Statistics Show That a Law of Chances Governs In the Majority of Cases.

Workmen and artisans take unto themselves wives at a far earlier age than those whose vocations are of a more intellectual kind. Thus miners, textile factory hands, laborers and artisans marry at an average of 23 years. Of these the miners are first in the field, more than 100 of every 1,000 of them securing wives before they have become of age. Workers in textile fabrics run them close; then come shoemakers and tailors, and they are followed by artisans and laborers. Farmers and farmers' sons consider 25 early enough.

Commercial clerks seek the pleasures of matrimony at 26. Shopkeepers and shopmen postpone the rapture a little while longer. Professional men and gentlemen of independent means rarely care to encumber themselves even with so delightful a burden as a wife until they have toed the line of over 30 years. Though the rich marry at a more ripe age than the working fraternity, they continue marrying until long after the last named have ceased to wed. Whereas 14 miners and 25 artisans in every 1,000 marry between the ages of 25 and 40, nearly 100 of the professional class do. It is explained in this way: The rich like to see something of the world and its pleasures before settling down to sober matrimony. A laborer has neither desire nor opportunity for it. In a word, says the New York Ledger, authority for these statistics, a law of chances governs in the vast majority of cases the ages at which men marry whose engaged in certain occupations.

A Very Remarkable Fly.

The African tse-tse fly is a small insect rather larger than the common house fly, of a brown color, with a yellowish line down the center of the body. This fly attacks lions and beasts both by day and night. It can easily bite through khaki breeches or flannel pajamas. Where it exists—and it is extremely local—it appears in such great numbers on a dull or rainy day. Its bite is man, though very sharp and needlelike, leaves no irritation, and it invariably chooses those parts that are shaded from the rays of the sun—such as under the brim of the hat, behind the ear, neck and under the throat, if not protected by a beard. If allowed to suck itself full, its body becomes so distended that it has the appearance of a small unripe purple grape, and it is unable to fly more than a few yards before settling. An African traveler says of it:

This fly is perfectly harmless to human beings, but its effects on domestic animals is of the most disastrous nature—in fact, as far as my knowledge goes, all domestic animals, with the exception of goats and perhaps of the dog, may die when struck by this fly are bound, sooner or later, to die. I do not believe that donkeys are imperious to its bite, and I think that the wasting disease which kills off so many of them comes from the effect of being bitten by these flies. I have seen a bullock cut up after dying from these wasting symptoms, which I knew to have been bitten by the tsetse. The whole of the juices of the body were turned into greenish yellow slime.

Pisa's Leaning Tower.

The famous leaning tower of Pisa is a campanile or bell tower. It was begun in 1174 by the two famous architects, Bonano of Pisa and William Innspruck. The tower, which is cylindrical in form, is 179 feet high and 50 feet in diameter, made entirely of white marble. It has eight stories, each with an outside gallery projecting several feet from the building and each decorated with columns and arcades. In the center of the tower a flight of 330 steps passes up to the summit. It is called the leaning tower from the fact that it inclines some 30 feet from the perpendicular, and it is not generally known that this inclination, which gives the toper such a remarkable appearance, was by the intention. At the time that it was about half done the error in measurement was perceived, and it was guarded against by the use of extra bonds in the further construction of the building and an adaptation of the stone in the highest portion. There are seven bells on the top of the tower, the largest of which weighs 12,000 pounds, and these are so placed as to counteract as far as possible the leaning of the tower itself.

A Perversion of the Word Creole.

A creole, strictly speaking, is any person born in this country or the West Indies of European ancestry; also any person born in or near the tropics, and this is the sense in which the word is usually employed. The use of the word, however, has been by some restricted first to children of foreign parents born in Louisiana, and, second, to children of Spanish or French parents born in Louisiana, and then, in the north, the word has been perverted so that it is believed to imply some strain of negro blood in a person to whom it is applied. It does not imply anything of the sort.

July.

July was the fifth month in the Roman calendar and was called Quintilus, the fifth. Originally it contained 30 days, but was reduced by Romulus to 31, by Numa to 30, but was restored to 31 by Julius Cæsar, in honor of whom it was named July on account of his having been born during this month. It was also so called from the goddess Juno.

I beseech you, gentlemen, to put your trust and your faith in work. I, who have been nothing but a worker, am a witness to its marvelously soothing effects upon the soul. The work I allude to is daily work—the duty of moving one step forward in one's allotted task every day.

Adversity as a Medicine.

Adversity is a medicine which people are rather fond of recommending indiscriminately as a panacea for their neighbors. Like other medicines, it only agrees with certain constitutions. There are nerves which it braces and nerves which it utterly shatters.—Justin McCarthy.

The Once Celebrated Purple.

The beautiful shellfish called murex, containing a purple dye, was first discovered about 2200 B. C. by the Phœnicians. They traveled westward in search of these fish, had large fishing colonies and became world renowned for the purple dye known as the "royal purple."

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

How Tom's Life Was Saved.

Tom Strahan was a pet infant of 2½ years at the time and dearly loved a cat. Now, a five cat is rather a dangerous plaything for a very young child. So Aunt Biddy bought Tom a beautiful cat which couldn't scratch. It was made of cloth and stuffed with hay. But its sides and face were painted so like the real cat that Tommy hardly felt that it was only a rag cat.

He became fond of it.

Tom's father was an engineer, and every pleasant day Aunt Biddy used to take his little Tom down to the railroad to see the train go past. One summer afternoon as it got to 4 o'clock Biddy said, "Come, Tom boy, we will go down to the curve and see daddy and the 'choo choo.'" They arrived at the curve about 10 minutes before "27" was due. As they were walking along Aunt Biddy saw that her shoestring had come untied. She turned and let go Tom's hand and put her foot upon a stone and tied the string in a good stout knot. She double knotted it, in fact.

Just then she heard the rumble of "27" coming along on the other side of the curve with the long train of coal cars. When Biddy turned round, she never can see near fainting in her whole life as she did then. For there sat cat on the car track, with his back to the engine, tugging away at a wild flower which grew between the ties. It had caught his eye, and he had made for it while Biddy was tying her shoe. Engine 23 was rounding the curve. The distance between the curve and the small boy with his cat drawn on the track was not great enough to bring the engine to a standstill, and Biddy knew she couldn't get there in time to snatch him away, and then she saw the old limp cloth cat lying in front of her, where Tom had dropped it to go for the flower.

She grasped it, and shrieking, "Tom, kitty; poor kitty," threw it toward him. He heard her, and he saw the darling old cat drop some yards away, and he uttered a cackle of delight and ran for it. Just as he clutched it in his hands engine 23 tore by, and the wind of it rolled Tom over.

Daddy had seen that red spot on the track, and he had nearly dropped out of the cab as he had realized it all. As soon as he could he rushed back, and there was poor Biddy all of a heap on the ground, her face as white as a sheet, and so weak she could not stir.

But Tom, who had not been hurt at all by his roll, was on his feet holding out the darling old cat to his father. The way daddy whipped him up into his arms and hugged him was a great surprise to Tom. Until then daddy kissed the cat that had saved his boy's life.—New York Press.

How Young Chinese Are Educated.

At the age of 5 a boy begins his schooling. At daylight he rises, and after dressing as quickly as possible he starts breakfasting to school.

He is given a task, and after it is completed he is allowed an hour for breakfast. Again later he has an hour for luncheon, but he is at his study nearly 12 hours a day, never less than a week. All this time when he is not reciting his lessons he is studying aloud as the top of his voice. He is under the eye of his master, both in school and on his way to and from school.

The lad is taught rudimentary astronomy, physics and natural history, but greater time is put upon writing and his literary studies.

"A Thousand Letters," a poem, is the study that forms the backbone of his literary education. In it are taught the duties of children to parents and all such matters.

Whatever the study may be—history, classics or science—every lesson is learned and repeated word for word.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

When Queen Victoria Was a Little Girl.

Among the many stories told of the childhood of Queen Victoria is one of a visit made with her mother to Wentworth House in Yorkshire. While there the princess delighted in running about by herself in the gardens and shrubberies.

One morning soon after her arrival the old gardener, who did not then know her, saw her about to descend a treacherous bit of ground from the terrace and called out:

"Be careful, miss, it's slaper!" a Yorkshire word for slippery.

The ever curious princess, turning her head, asked, "What's slaper?" and at the same instant her foot flew from under her and she came down.

The old gardener ran to lift her, saying as he did so, "That's slaps, miss."—Youth's Companion.

How a Hindoo Baby Is Named.

A Hindoo baby is named when it is 12 days old and usually by the mother. Sometimes the father wishes for another name than that selected by the mother. In that case two lamps were placed over the two names, and the name over which the lamp burns the brightest is the one given the child.—Exchange.

WHITE, of Plainfield,

AFTER MANY DAYS.

A Lifelong Search for a Pole That Would Do.

"George!"
His mother called to him sharply.
"Ya-a-as," drawled the boy.
"I want you to go over into the grove and get me a long, straight pole for the clothesline. Do you hear?"
"Ya-a-as."
"And if you come back without it I'll skin you alive. Do you hear that?"
"Ya-a-as."
He walked lazily away, whistling as he went, and his retreating form was soon lost in the thick shadows of the wood that skirted the premises.
His mother sat on the kitchen steps, waiting for his return, and the sun sank lower and lower, and the melancholy note of the whippoorwill sounded through the still air and the stars came out one by one and twinkled feebly.
And the boy came not.
Twenty-eight years passed, with their burden of joy and sorrow, their mellowing touch beneath which golden heads ripened into gray and the full, rounded cheek of rosy youth paled and grew furrowed with care, and the lights of hope died out of the eager, sparkling eyes that watched the seasons come and go.
One dreamy Indian summer day a man past the prime of life, footsore and weary with travel, walked slowly through the streets of the thriving, populous town which he remembered as the little frontier village of his boyhood. He looked uncertainly from side to side, as if searching for some familiar landmark. Finally he stopped in front of a plain, unpainted, old and time worn cottage, gleaming it with tired and dejected eyes, opened a gate that creaked drearily on its rusty hinges, went up the grass grown path and knocked at the front door.
A wrinkled old woman, bent with age and rheumatism, answered the knock.
"Where is that clothesline stick, George?"
"I couldn't find one that I thought was long enough and straight enough, mother, and I kept on hunting it. Went over into the next county. It wasn't there. Been looking for it all these years. I have traveled thousand of miles trying to find it. I know exactly where it is, and I have made many a trip to reach it, but never got there. I've given it up. You don't need it now, anyhow, do you?"
"What do you mean, George?"
"I mean that I don't think you could use it for a clothesline prop if you had it."
"You say you've made several long journeys to find it?"
"Yes."
"And couldn't?"
"That's what I said."
"Yet you know where it is?"
"Yes."
"George, what in the world are you talking about?"
"The north pole, mother."—Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. Q.—Oh, well, the dear woman couldn't help it. She hadn't time to come in, for she told me when she called me down she hadn't a minute to stop.—Boston Courier.

A Little Mixed.

"Brown, do you know why you are like a donkey?"
"Like a donkey," echoed Brown, opening wide his eyes. "No, I don't."
"Do you give it up?"
"I do."
"Because your better half is stubbornness itself."
"That's not bad. Ha, ha! I'll give that to my wife when I get home."
"Mrs. Brown," he added, as he sat down to supper, "do you know why I am so much like a donkey?"
He waited a moment, expecting his wife to give it up. He looked at him somewhat commiseratingly as she answered:
"I suppose because you were born so."—Exchange.

Miscalculation.

The Boston Globe prints a story which reminds one of the old saying about the shoemaker and his last:
A Yarmouth captain had a small coasting schooner lying in port, and decided to give a lesson to painters in general by himself painting the vessel's name on her bows. He could not reach high enough from the boat and did not care to put out a swinging stage, so he reached down over the side to do the lettering.
After finishing the job on one bow he went ashore to view his handiwork, and this is what met his gaze:—MIDDYM

Tired from Head to Foot.

FROM HEAD TO FOOT.

That's what's the matter with the most of us. What's the reason? Poor circulation of the blood. The remedy? Anti-Tire. Many of them. We have known severe cases of so called rheumatism, sciatica, lame back, weak joints, backache, &c., to be benefited in a few days by the use of Anti-Tire. In a short time by the use of Anti-Tire, also, the kidneys and liver, which, if not in healthy action, are the cause of many aches and pains, will quickly be made to perform their natural functions. All druggists. Send 15 cents in stamps for trial package.
